FORTUNES IN A NAME—IF THAT NAME IS LUCKY

Big Prizes Offered by The Tribune.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

What's in a name?

If by some lucky turn yours should win you a cash fortune, would it be sweeter far?

What is your name?

Is it a lucky one?

What is your birthday? Is it a lucky day?

Have you ever taken the trouble to find out?

Are you willing to take it? Are you willing to submit your name to me and your birthday that I may analyze it according to a process of astrological and cabalistic divination I have evolved to determine whether it will bring you a cash fortune?

$10,000 for the Luckiest.

Large sums in cash will be paid daily and Sunday by THE TRIBUNE for lucky names. An additional cash prize of $10,000 will be paid for the one luckiest name of all lucky names!

Yours may win it. You cannot tell. Neither can I until you submit it to me for divination.

Names began in Eden. They have meanings. They are not just simple sounds for the sake of distinction only. The first man was given the name of Adam, denoting his origin from the earth. Eve gave to her first born the name of Cain, implying acquisition, a standing testimony of her faith in the first promise made to man in Eden. From the earliest imposition of names they were in some measure given to mark the future good wishes and hopes of the parent toward the child.

Determining Factor in Luck.

For hundreds, aye thousands of years names have been believed to be a determining factor in luck, good or ill. Followers of this cult have changed their names to change their luck and stoutly maintained the change for the greater success and happiness of the individual.

There are lucky names and unlucky names. Some names are luckier than other lucky names. You never can tell about yours. But I can tell you. And the luck in your name will be measured in cash prizes according to its true luck worth.

For a long time I have been conducting the horoscope department in the columns of this paper. I have been telling you all about the influence of the various stars and planets and zodiacal signs upon characteristics, temperament, habits and opportunity. How, born on a certain day and under certain planetary influence, you were "amiable" or "selfish" or "magnetic" or "spiritual" or "jealous" or "hot-tempered" or possessed of certain other traits.

The Process.

Now, having delved deeper into influences that shape and mold the destinies of mankind, I am fortunately able to determine just how lucky you really may be by a remarkable process of combining names and numerals, birthdates and other data which I shall ask you to supply, the secret of which naturally I cannot be asked to disclose, since it is my own method of casting horoscopes and determining luck for the individual.

There is nothing new in luck prediction. Go back as far as you will in history and there you will find oracles, sybils, soothsayers, magicians, astrologers and prophets forecasting events and good fortune by the aid of astrology, numerals, birthdates and other mystic data.

Mrs. Roosevelt's Horoscope.

Now, I am ready to tell you whether your name is a lucky one or not. Read the horoscope of Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, as I have cast it according to my own mystic calculation and believe there is something in a name.

I used the same data in her instance as I request of you in the horoscope blank you must send me and which appears in another column of today's TRIBUNE. And here is what her horoscope portrays:

EDITH CAROW ROOSEVELT.
Edith: Rich gift.
Carow: Probably derived from the Welsh "Carrow"—Castle by the Water.
Roosevelt: Of or belonging to a field of roses.

Father's name: Charles Carow.
Charles: Courageous.
Carow: Stronghold by the water.
Mother's name: Gertrude Elizabeth Tyler.
Gertrude: All truth.

TWO TOWNS BET $100,000 UPON "RINGER" GAME

Rivals Sought Aid of College Stars.

[By the Associated Press.]

The bitter rivalry between two country towns, which became so acute that approximately $100,000 was bet on a football game, was the cause of the athletic scandal which resulted in disqualification Friday night of nine University of Illinois athletes and which threatens to reach into Notre Dame university.

A group of citizens of Carlinville, Ill., it was learned last night, decided last fall to "clean out" financially the rival town of Taylorville, Ill., by obtaining ten college stars to play on their football team, and with victory apparently assured, to bet the limit on the annual contest between the two elevens.

But Taylorville learned of the plan, obtained nine college men for its own team and not only defeated Carlinville, but won close to $50,000 by covering every Carlinville bet made, thus beating the rival town at its own game.

Nineteen College Football Players.

Ten Notre Dame players were in the Carlinville lineup on Nov. 27, immediately after the college season closed, according to statements by citizens of that town, while the nine Illinois men disqualified played on the Taylorville eleven.

In the Carlinville lineup, according to persons associated with the team, were Gus Desch, member of the American Olympic team and world's champion 440 yard hurdler; Chester Wynne selected by some as All-Western conference full back, and John Mohardt, All-American selection of several football writers. All played on the Notre Dame eleven last fall.

In 1920 Carlinville won from Taylorville, 10 to 7, at Carlinville. Taylorville at that time loudly boasted that next year, with their team on its home ground, there would be a different story.

Several Carlinville people then conceived the "safe betting" idea of filling their lineup with college stars.

Notre Dame to the Rescue.

Overtures were made to Notre Dame men, according to backers of the Carlinville team, and it was agreed to pay the ten men $200 each plus their expenses, the total coming to $2,700.

The persons who arranged the affair passed the word to their friends to bet the limit. These friends went to the bank, the family stocking, and the cupboard to bring forth, in some cases, the savings of years. A special train was hired and a band taken along on the trip to Taylorville.

Farmers from all the nearby towns arranged to join the pilgrimage, and in nearly every case a well filled wallet was taken along. The clinching of the game became common gossip on the street corners, in the grocery stores, and wherever persons gathered.

The News Gets Around.

But each person who received the "confidential" information apparently passed it on to another friend, for gradually the word spread through Macoupin and Montgomery counties into Taylorville. At the same time Taylorville received word that Carlinville was ready to back its team with the family jewelry if necessary.

Consternation spread through Taylorville at the idea of sending their team against nationally known college players.

Then a few citizens decided to seek a little college aid themselves.

Quietly the word was passed around not to fear Carlinville—that a means of defeating their rivals' plans had been found.

Ready for Golden Harvest.

When the time for the game came, a group of Carlinville citizens began checking up over in one corner of the field. They found that their citizens had bet close to $50,000. Over in another section some Taylorville citizens reached the same conclusion.

When the Carlinville eleven came on the field the visiting rooters rose to cheer.

"What are we yelling for? That's the Taylorville team," said a Carlinville woman.

"O, no, that's Carlinville," replied a Taylorville policeman.

"I guess I know our boys and not

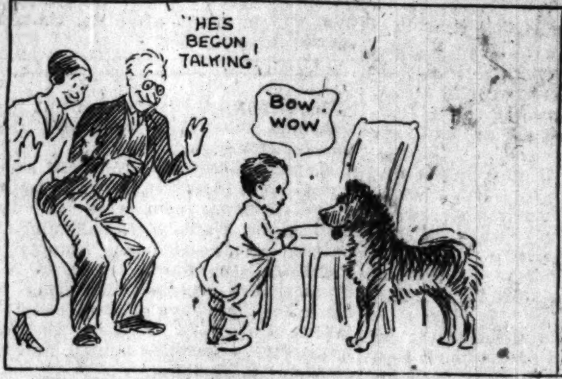
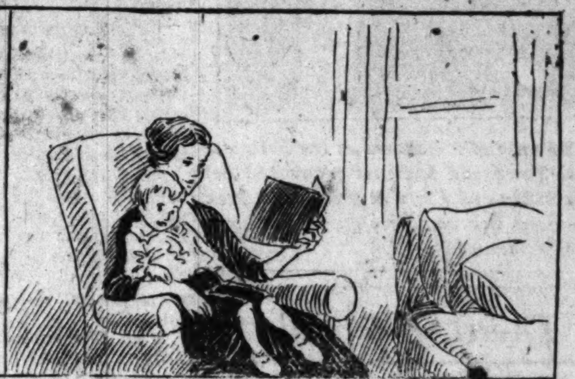
PEOPLE AND ANIMALS

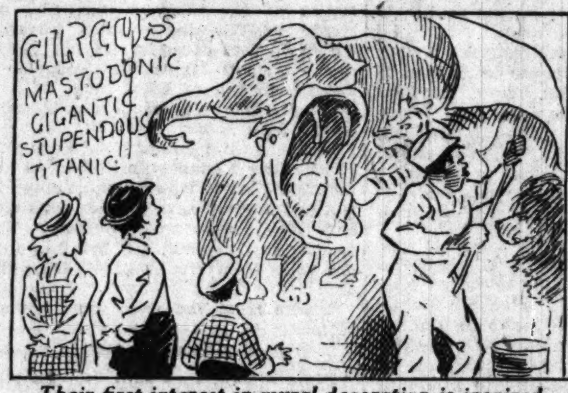
[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]



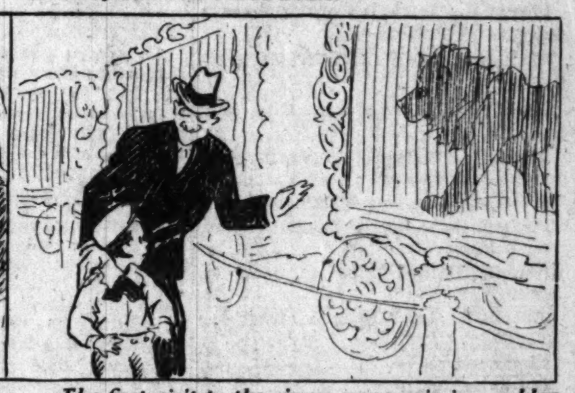
The first word spoken by many children is the name of an animal.



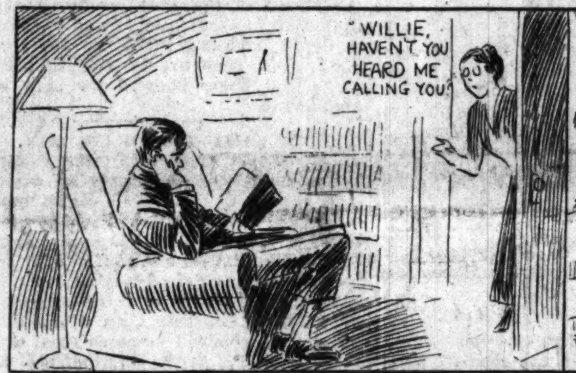
The first story that captures their imagination is the story of "The Three Bears."



Their first interest in mural decoration is inspired by their interest in animals.

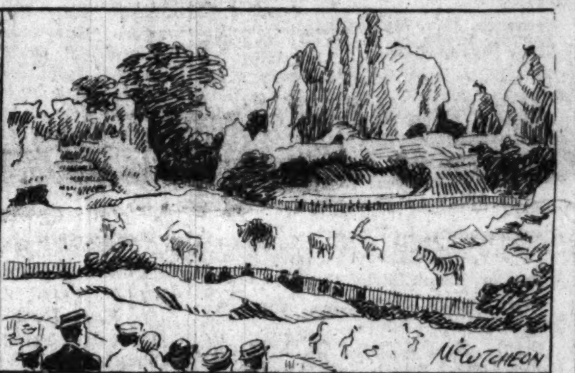


The first visit to the circus menagerie is a golden day in childhood.



"WILLIE, HAVEN'T YOU HEARD ME CALLING YOU?"

"The Jungle Book" is a tale that holds the youthful interest enthralled.



A great zoological collection should, therefore, be the aim of every great city that wants to interest, educate, and please its population.

WOMEN TAKE "KICK" OUT OF POLAND BEER; LEAVE ONLY 2 1-2%

WARSAW, Jan. 28.—[By the Associated Press.]—Beer containing more than 2½ per cent alcohol is to be forbidden in Poland. The alcohol law passed by the diet today places the ban on beer of higher alcohol content, limits drinking places to one per 2,500 population, prohibits saloons, licensing only cafés and restaurants, makes proprietors liable to arrest in the case of drunkenness on their premises, and places a tax of 20 per cent on all liquor stocks.

A stiff fight in the diet preceded the passage of the measure, the "wet" forces presenting lengthy arguments against, as one of them phrased it, "compelling the Poles to drink hair tonic as they do in the United States."

The "dry" victory is attributed largely to the activities of the seven women deputies.

WOMEN TRY TO BUY "MOONSHINE" FROM CONSTABLE

Constable Joseph Miller, 1450 Davis street, Evanston, received a decided shock last night when two well dressed women mistook his home for a "bootlegger's" resort and tried to purchase a quart of "moonshine."

Miller was eating supper when the doorbell rang. Two women were at the door.

"Good evening, ladies, what can I do for you?" he asked.

"I would like a quart this time," said one thrusting a $10 bill toward him.

"A quart of what, madam?" he asked.

"Why a quart of moonshine, of course," said the woman.

"You have the wrong house," said Miller. "I am an officer——"

But the would-be purchasers were around the corner before Miller could add

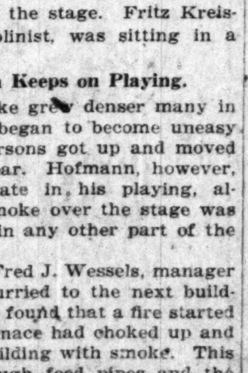
"— of the law."

Steam Column 200 Feet High Issues from Mt. Hood

Porland, Ore., Jan. 28.—A column of steam issuing from crater rock on Mount Hood had doubled in size tonight since it first was observed this morning, and at dusk was about 200 feet high. Word of the phenomenon was received from Government camp, close to the mountain. No rumblings or other evidences of volcanic activity were observed.

AVOID ORCHESTRA HALL FIRE PANIC

Hofmann Plays On as Smoke Fills Theater.



JOSEF HOFMANN.
[Mishkin Photo.]

Smoke escaping from a balky furnace in the Pullman building poured through the ventilators in Orchestra Hall and caused a momentary scare last night. It failed, however, to stop the performance or drive out the 2,500 persons who had gathered to hear Josef Hofmann, pianist, and the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

Hofmann was at the piano playing Beethoven's Fifth Concerto when the acrid odors of burning wood were wafted across the stage. Fritz Kreisler, noted violinist, was sitting in a front seat.

Hofmann Keeps on Playing.

As the smoke grew denser many in the audience began to become uneasy and a few persons got up and moved toward the rear. Hofmann, however, did not hesitate in his playing, although the smoke over the stage was heavier than in any other part of the building.

Meantime, Fred J. Wessels, manager of the hall hurried to the next building. There he found that a fire started in a balky furnace had choked up and flooded the building with smoke. This escaping through feed pipes and the ventilators was rapidly filling Orchestra hall.

Manager Quiets Audience.

Hurrying back, he crossed to the front of the stage, and without halting the program raised his hand for attention. Then he announced there was no fire and that the smoke was coming from a furnace.

The audience settled in its seats and instead of hurrying out when the program was finished, stayed to encore Hofmann five times before they allowed him to go.

ACTRESS PLAYS HER PART WHILE HUSBAND LIES DEAD AT HOME

New York, Jan. 28.—Effie Ellsler played her trying rôle in one of New York's stage successes through two performances today, though her husband, Frank Weston, retired actor of Shakespearean rôles, lay dead in their home.

Mr. Weston, who was 72 years old, died this morning. News of his death was broken to his wife after the matinée performance.

"There is no understudy to take my place," she said. "My husband would tell me to go on with my work."

The marriage of Miss Ellsler and Mr. Weston was a stage romance of thirty years ago. Her father was a partner of Joseph Jefferson. Mr. Weston became a member of their company.

New Comet Winks 'Hello!' and Flies Past Cape Town

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 28.—Discovery of a new comet in the southern skies was announced in a cable message from Brussels to the Harvard observatory today. The message said the comet was seen from the Cape of Good Hope, South Africa, and appeared to be moving south and west, but gave no further details. The British government maintains an observatory at Cape Town. Brussels is used as a clearing house for exchange of astronomical information by European observers.

Children's Cries Foil Mother's Effort to Die

In the presence of her two children, Mrs. Elizabeth Garrett, 25 years old, 9964 Vincennes avenue, attempted to commit suicide last night by hanging herself in a pantry adjoining the kitchen of her home. The children, Eulalie, 4 years old, and Helen, 1 year old, began crying and the former ran into the street and stopped E. W. Sceelmacher of 9958 Vincennes avenue, who followed them back into the house and cut the rope. Mrs. Barrett is said to have been despondent because of ill health.

SNOW SMASHES ROOF, 140 INJURED IN CAPITAL

17 Bodies Found in Ruins; Others Are Still Buried.

FIRST LIST OF IDENTIFIED DEAD AFTER ACCIDENT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—(Special.)—The first casualty list made after the Knickerbocker theater accident contained these names:

- COVALL, MRS. B. A., Washington.
- COSTLEY, MISS.
- EARNEST, S. H., Brooklyn.
- FREEMAN, G. S., musician.
- HILLYER, DOUGLAS, Washington.
- STRAW, DR. W. P., Washington.
- RUSSELL, MRS. MARIE, Washington.
- SCOFIELD, W. S. JR., Danville, Va.
- TRACEY, WILLIAM, member of orchestra.
- UHL, WALTER, Washington.

Five other bodies, not identified, have been found.

BULLETIN.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 29.—(Special.)—The Evening Star's latest estimate of casualties at 12:45 this morning (Sunday) is between thirty-five and forty dead and at least 140 injured. At that hour a report from the scene stated that seventeen bodies had been brought out and others had been located.

Policemen and firemen expressed the opinion that the total dead might go as high as sixty or seventy-five.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—At least twenty, and perhaps thirty, persons were killed and over a hundred injured tonight in the collapse—under the weight of two feet of snow—of the roof of the Knickerbocker theater, a motion picture house. The Knickerbocker is located in the heart of Washington's fashionable northwest section, on the crest of a hill at Columbia road and 18th street, N. W.

The theater presented a scene of horror at 10 o'clock, an hour after the roof fell beneath a weight of snow heavier than any to which it had been subjected since the $1,000,000 building was erected several years ago.

Late tonight the snow, which has been falling steadily for thirty hours since the greatest blizzard of years swept the Atlantic coast from New York to North Carolina, reached an official depth of three feet.

Two hours and a half after the accident at the theater police had recovered ten bodies.

Prominent Men Hurt.

Sig. Nobile Tomasso Assereto, third secretary of the Italian embassy, was one of the first injured to be removed. Both his legs were broken and he suffered internal injuries.

Representative John H. Smithwick of Florida was painfully cut about the head and chest, but not seriously hurt.

Albert Seward of Chicago was slightly injured, his scalp being cut by broken glass.

Beyond the lines first established by the police and later taken over by soldiers and marines thousands gathered, the news having spread rapidly over the capital, many being aroused by the clanging of fire gongs as apparatus was rushed to the scene from every fire station in the city.

Vast Crowd at Scene.

Those beyond the fire lines included men and women known throughout the country—senators, representatives, ambassadors, ministers, and society leaders—the beautiful theater drawing its clientele from embassies, members of congress, and cabinet members.

While estimates differed as to the actual dead still buried in the ruins of the theater, Coroner J. R. Nevitt did not alter his "first guess" that there had been three hundred killed. Several hours would perhaps elapse, however, it was indicated, before a definite estimate of the situation would be available. The more moderate reports limiting the dead to approximately fifteen were more generally believed, but Second Battalion Chief Wolter reported that his men had removed six dead from one corner of the building and that he had helped another group unfasten the body of a woman from the debris.

"There are several hundred more in there," Wolter said. "It is awful."

The orchestra pit had disappeared under the debris, he said, and he suspects the entire band of nearly fifty musicians are trapped.

Moans Heard on Streets.

The lights in the theater were dimmed at the time of the accident, and succeeding it there was a scene of wildest confusion. The moans of men, women, and children, some buried beneath tons of cement and bricks, could be heard by the first persons to gather in the street. The police said there were about 150 persons in the gallery and perhaps two hundred in the part of the theater where the wreckage was worst.

"Get Rich Quick Wallingford" was being shown and the second show of the evening had just begun when the roof crashed.

Race to Rescue Hundreds.

Five alarms of fire were sent in, although there was no fire as a result of the collapse, and the firemen were able to concentrate on the work of digging the victims out of the wreckage.

Drug stores and ice cream parlors, of which there are a number in the neighborhood, were converted into temporary hospitals and telephone operators were instructed to summon all physicians and nurses who could be reached.

The corps of marines guarding the new navy building, where the arms conference has been in session, were called out for duty, and they had a hard fight with many men and women who had relatives or friends in the theater.

A call was sent in by the rescue squads for acetylene torches, hacksaws with which to cut iron girders which imprisoned some of the victims in the ruins, and oxygen tanks.

The roof, according to one witness who was in the theater, started first to collapse in the center. There were wild shouts of warning and alarm as tons of snow and cement tumbled down on the audience. Then the balcony gave way with a grinding wrench, carrying a fifty foot section of the rear wall with it.

By the time the police and firemen arrived in force the walls were wavering in the wind and apparently about to fall. The crowd about the theater was driven back and ropes strung. A general call was sent out to all of the city hospitals and the Walter Reed hospital.

Rescuers who came out of the theater after the collapse said there was almost complete wreckage in the rear section, and that it might take hours to get all of the victims out of the heaps of debris.

Many women who escaped ran screaming to the street and several fainted while the injured were removed on stretchers and taken in ambulances to hospitals, private homes, and nearby clubs.

The hospitals were soon overcrowded and the list of injured grew in proportion. At Emergency hospital, one of the largest institutions in the city, there were twenty-five victims in two hours after the accident. The Emergency hospital, as well as the others—Georgetown, George Washington, Sibley, and Casualty—were jammed with relatives and friends.

The "Dreadful Silence."

At 11 o'clock a worker came out of the ruins. He asserted that there was a "terrible silence" inside the building. If others were still imprisoned there at that time, it was believed that they had died.

The roof to those able to push through police lines seemed to rest almost on the floor, scarcely more than a foot and a half separating the lowermost debris and the floor level. All of the debris was covered with the snow which had weighed so heavily upon the roof. Standing up through the debris, however, stark and ragged were pillars that had supported the balconies and the roof.

The site of the theater being at the intersection of two or three principal streets was lighted by the glow of street lights which a few blocks distant shed a soft glow on the mantle of snow which covered the city but lighted the scene of the horror.

In Fashionable Center.

The big theater is in a section about one mile from the business center of the city, which has grown up into a community of many thousands, and scores of the finest residences of the city are within a stone's strow.

The edifice was one of the newer show places of Washington and occupies an entire large square. The huge roof, which weighed many tons, was weighted with additional tons of snow which had fallen during the last twenty-four hours in the worst blizzard Washington has experienced since 1899.

The police attempted to fix responsibility for the collapse of the roof, but no statement of an official nature could be obtained. A girl who described herself as Ida M. Clark, and who said that she played the big organ in the theater stated that the question of removing the snow from the roof had been discussed at the theater in the afternoon. An expert who knew the construction of the roof, she said, stated that the roof would hold the snow and that there was no danger.

Theater Owner Is Away.

No statement could be obtained from Harry M. Crandall, owner of the theater, who was at his home when the collapse was reported. Crandall, it is understood, was in Alexandria, Va., during the day to be present when Joseph P. Morgan, general manager of the Crandall theaters in Washington, was married to Miss Mary R. Bogert of this city.

EYE WITNESSES' STORIES

Dever Weeden, a government employé, was across the street when the roof fell. He rushed into the wreckage and groped his way to the balcony. There he saw a woman's arm protruding from the twisted mass of steel.

"She was screaming," he said. "I made an effort to get to her, but the debris was impassable. She screamed a couple of times more and then, after a few moans, her voice died away."

Dr. J. R. Canine, who was sitting with his wife in the last row of the balcony, suffered a broken arm. After getting first aid at the drug store nearby, he returned to aid in the rescue. His wife escaped with bruises and a cut on the head.

"I saw the roof come down and jumped into the aisle," Dr. Canine said. "The force of the impact knocked me to the floor, but the roof did not strike either of us. As soon as I recovered from the first stun I picked up my wife and with the aid of matches we picked our way through the dark and got out."

Heroism of Young Girl.

The heroism of Miss Ruth Posely, 19, drew the admiration of the crowd of spectators. She had gone to the movie with two other girls, and was carried out suffering a broken nose and severe lacerations. She laughed as a doctor came up to her.

"Don't bother about me, look after the other girls," she begged.

Congressman Barkley, Kentucky, was among the crowds of frantic relatives. His son, Merle, 15, was in the theater at the time and Barkley was trying to get through the police lines to search for him.

Among the remarkable scenes was the sight of scores of men and women who hitched themselves to stalled ambulances, pulling them through the great snowdrifts until the engines could be started.

Residents of the neighborhood responded quickly to a call for blankets with which to wrap and carry the victims. Hundreds of blankets and overcoats were piled near the rescuers.

CHEESE DESTROYED.

Cheese valued at $2,000 was destroyed by fire or damaged by water last night when fire started in the basement of the Crosby Cheese company, 18 West Kinzie street. Crossed wires are believed to have caused the blaze.

POLICE HUNT MYSTERY WOMAN AND INFANT

A young woman, who gave the name of Mrs. Mary Casey, entered the St. Vincent's orphanage, Superior and La Salle streets, last night, and asked if she might leave an infant she had wrapped in a blanket.

When one of the attendants asked where she got the child and why she wished to leave it at the orphanage, the woman replied that she lived at 2730 Hampton court and the child belonged to a friend. The attendants informed her they must notify the police before she could leave the child. While this was being done the woman left the place unobserved.

The Sheffield avenue police went to the Hampton court address and found no one named Casey lived there.

SUSPECT TAKEN IN $25,000 LOAN BANK HOLDUP

Police early this morning arrested William Mossbaum, alias "Red" Moniker, 1226 South Peoria street, at Roosevelt road and Jefferson street. Mossbaum is wanted, it was said, in connection with the robbery of the Klein Loan bank, 505 South Halsted street, in which $25,000 in cash and jewelry was obtained.

According to Sergts. O'Neill, Gratton, and Knowles, who made the arrest, Mossbaum was named in a confession made by Edward Eisenburg, alias Edward Ginsburg. The latter was killed last week in a pistol duel with Sergt. Charles Paldina, who was himself killed.

3 FT. SNOWFALL BURIES CAPITAL, BLOCKS TRAFFIC

Washington Is Isolated by Terrific Blizzard.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—The entire middle Atlantic seaboard from the Carolinas to New York, according to reports to the federal weather bureau, is tonight buried in a snowfall that has broken all official records. So far the heaviest fall has been in North Carolina, Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, and the District of Columbia, with the storm still raging from the North Carolina line to the Hudson river.

Snow has been falling steadily in Washington since 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, slowing down the activities of the government, interfering with the transaction of legislative and official business, and generally paralyzing traffic.

Trains Are Held Up.

It is the peculiar kind of a snowstorm that has affected wires very little, but greatly interfered with steam, street car, and automobile traffic. Hundreds of automobiles are stalled in the heavy snow banks.

All train traffic from Virginia and the south was tied up. Hundreds of persons are marooned in the railway stations here, unable to leave for their homes. Even the crack trains from New York and Philadelphia either did not arrive at all or were many hours late.

With few exceptions the street car lines in the District of Columbia were snowbound today, suburban lines are unable to operate, suburban street cars have been forced off the tracks by the snow, and these derailments have halted operation of other cars.

An official measurement at 5 o'clock this afternoon recorded 28 inches in less than twenty-four hours. This not only broke all snow records in Washington but more than doubled the best previous record, that of twelve inches on Feb. 12, 1899.

Congress Closes Shop.

The paralyzing effect of the snowfall may be judged by the fact that congress adjourned today on account of the weather, one of the few such occasions in history. The senate started to continue the discussion on the foreign loan refunding bill, but found that a quorum could not be mustered.

The house continued with a handful of members for about three hours, but finally quit at 3 o'clock.

While most of their younger colleagues reported that they were "snowed in," the three oldest senators surprised attachés at the capitol by appearing at their desks. They were Senators Warren of Wyoming, 78; Nelson of Minnesota, and Page of Vermont, each 79.

The three patriarchs declared they were too used to blizzards at home to be "snow bound" in Washington.

Senator Simmons of North Carolina sent this message by telephone:

"I am snowed in. Drifts fifteen feet deep around my house."

First Families Are Cold.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 28.—All Virginia is blanketed under the deepest snow fall in twenty-three years. Drifts have piled eight feet deep in many places. Traffic of every kind is demoralized.

Three large tobacco warehouses at Danville, Va., collapsed under the weight of snow and all other warehouses in that city were ordered closed. Wind at a velocity of fifty-six miles today crippled the water front at Norfolk and practically suspended shipping in Hampton roads.

Dispatches from Norfolk said seven vessels were in distress off the Virginia coast. Among them were the two barges, the W. R. McDonald and the Catonsville, the schooner Blanche C. Pendleton, the naval fuel ship Arethusa, which has been battering the storm for three days off Cape Fear; the tanker Robert E. Hopkins, the Ambrose Five, a gasoline launch, and the coast cutter Manning.

New York Gets Edge.

New York, Jan. 28.—[Special.]—The center of the blizzard that tied up traffic in Washington and Virginia with two feet of snow did not reach this city, but its fringes dropped a three inch fall of snow here, with a fifty mile gale to create a near-blizzard in the open spots.

Traffic in and out of New York suffered. The Pennsylvania railroad announced that it would not attempt to run any more trains between this city and Washington until Sunday. The Pennsylvania was able to bring in only one train from Washington during the day.

Trains from the west were not affected.

Brotherly Love Frozen.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 28.—Eastern Pennsylvania, Delaware and southern and central New Jersey tonight felt the effects of the storm raging along the Atlantic coast line. Falls varying in depth from six inches to one foot have been reported in the district, while the snow showed no sign of abatement.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94% AIR.
Beats Electric or Gas.

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke, or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, L. P. Johnson, 609 W. Lake street, Chicago, is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' free trial, or even to give one to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.—Adv.

BANDIT TRIO, ONE PHONY COP, GET $5,800 IN LOOT

Rob Saloon Owner in His Own Automobile.

A holdup band with one member dressed in a policeman's uniform and wearing a star, figured last night in a $5,800 robbery.

Three men, including the fake policeman, approached Peter Almeroth, a saloonkeeper at 4757 Roosevelt road, Cicero, just as he had been driven to his home at 4739 Jackson boulevard. Two drew revolvers and forced Almeroth into his automobile.

Throw Chauffeur Out.

The three robbers then got in the car and were driven by John Bron, chauffeur, to Spaulding avenue and Van Buren street. There the chauffeur was thrown out. One of the bandits took the wheel and drove to Francisco avenue and Walnut street. En route, Almeroth was robbed of $3,000 in cash, a $2,800 diamond ring, and a watch and chain. He was then thrown from the machine. Later in the night, rifle squads and emergency squads, searching the west side for the bandits, found Almeroth's car abandoned at Paulina street and Park avenue.

Almeroth is said to operate a handbook in connection with his saloon. The police believe the bandits knew that Almeroth carried large sums of money and planned to waylay him for the loot.

Resists Five; Shot.

Many other robberies were reported to the police: Charles Dahlin, 1861 81st street, a chauffeur for the Davis Cartage company, was shot while resisting five men who attempted to rob him. Frightened after firing the shot, the bandits fled without further molesting him.

Mrs. W. Coe, 6602 Claremont avenue, was a victim of purse snatchers, losing her pocketbook containing $4. Mrs. Elizabeth Lang, 6837 Emerald avenue, also reported that her purse containing $5 had been grabbed.

Miss Rose de Coury, cashier in a cleaning and dyeing stop at 3523 South State street, was held up by two colored bandits who got $20 from the cash register.

Kidnaped; Loses $85.

George Dailey, 4101 Adams street, a chauffeur for The Hub, was kidnaped in front of 5322 South Michigan avenue by four men driving a black sedan. After taking $83 he was thrown into the street at Prairie avenue and 63d street.

Thomas Johnson, employed in a grocery at 7402 Vincennes avenue, was robbed of $25 by two men while he was on his way to the bank.

George Strecht, a butcher, 3603 South Washtenaw avenue, was held up by three men who rifled the cash register of $75.

Joseph Lynch, 1263 West 72d place, was strong armed and beaten by three men who robbed him of $20.

Three colored men, said to be members of the "Black Knights" who were captured several days ago and identified by many victims, were arraigned yesterday in the South Clark street court and the case continued to Feb. 8

Two colored men robbed Max Lueder, 1333 East 69th street, of $550 after they had entered his butcher shop, bound him and hung him from a meat hook.

WOES COME FAST AFTER CRIPPLE DEFIES CITY HALL

Charges He Was Hit with Own Crutch.

Two years ago Dr. B. B. Butts, 71 years old, a cripple living at 6227 North Nordica avenue, unwittingly violated a building ordinance in the construction of some new buildings. Immediately, he charged last night, he received a visit from a city hall "inspector," and a request for a contribution to the Thompson-Lundin campaign fund, $100 being named as the amount desired. Dr. Butts failed to "kick in."

Since then, according to Dr. Butts, these things have happened:

Plasterers have struck on his buildings and demanded that he pay a $100 fine.

Needless special assessments have been levied against his property.

He has been beaten by his own crutch.

He has been arrested.

Dr. Butts told his story when he appeared at the detective bureau to give himself up.

"Inspector" on the Job.

"I own several houses in my neighborhood," said Dr. Butts last night. "In the construction of some of them I have used wallboard as a substitute for plaster, because I thought it better.

"Two years ago this winter a man representing the city hall called and told me I must discontinue the use of wall board. I demurred. He said I would have to come in and fix it at the city hall. I asked how much it would take. He said, 'About $100.'

"'To whom shall I take the money?' I asked. He would not tell me the name, but said he would accompany when I was ready to pay the tribute. I never paid it.

"My troubles date from that time. The plasterers' union soon was after me, insisting that I use plaster instead of wall boards, and demanding $100 for the 'damage' my practice already had caused. I refused.

Charges Clerk Struck Him.

"I have been unable to get needed improvements, and I have been persecuted through levy of taxes for needless expenditures in connection with 'improvements' that none of the property owners in the vicinity wanted.

"About ten days ago I called at the board of local improvements offices in the city hall to protest. After I had presented by complaint, Jackson M. Evans of 347 West 72d place, a clerk, said:

"'You're an old crook—get out of here!' I told him I was in a public office and would leave when I finished my business. He rushed from his desk, striking me a glancing blow on the head. I believe there was a ring on his finger, because my scalp was cut. I threw up my crutch in self-defense. He grabbed and struck me with it.

"The next day I was arrested. The case comes up Tuesday in the Clark street court.

Mr. Evans last night contradicted Dr. Butts' version of the encounter in its entirety.

"'Dr. Butts," he said, "came into our office in a great rage and said he was going to 'clean out the place.' He was not long in hitting me in the eye with his crutch."

BUILDING PEACE STILL RESTS IN LANDIS' HANDS

Judge to Fix New Wage Scale as Arbiter.

Peace in the building industry of Chicago still rests in the hands of Judge Landis.

Tomorrow he will begin consideration of whatever data may be submitted by the building craft unions on which he will determine what shall be the wage scale and working conditions effective June 1. If this new edict should be satisfactory to the twenty-six unions which refused to accept the scale he set last September, building construction will start with a rush; if he doesn't allow the pay increases demanded, the unions will continue their fight.

This was the statement of union leaders yesterday following the emphatic announcement of the jurist that he would not step down as arbiter between the unions and contractors, as requested by the "insurgent" labor organizations. In event the unions refuse, the empoyers' efforts for an open shop will continue.

Announces Stand at Conference.

The decision of Judge Landis to continue his work was announced at a conference at the Chicago Beach hotel with officials of the Building Trades council and representatives of the Associated Builders of Chicago and the Building Construction Employers' association.

When Judge Landis was selected by the building trades organizations last June as arbiter it was agreed that all disputes between the unions and contractors should be settled before Feb. 1, so building activities in the spring would not be hampered. The meeting yesterday was called in conformity with that provision.

Judge Landis at the outset read a letter presented to him a few days ago by a committee of the building trade union officials. This letter told of a meeting of the trades council on Jan. 13 at which "eighteen of the trades expressed a desire to be relieved of any further participation in arbitration proceedings with you as umpire, feeling that if both the contractors and journeymen were permitted to meet without any restrictions being placed on either party a satisfactory agreement could be reached that would stabilize the building industry, to the end that the entire community would be benefited."

Couldn't Back Down.

"I stated to the gentlemen who presented this," Judge Landis said, "that of course I could not issue any such statement or take any such position."

The judge added that he had not been a "volunteer" as an arbiter and he asked if the request that he withdraw from the duty represented the views of the employers also.

He was assured to the contrary by William Schlake of the builders' organization.

"I want to say that the Associated Builders recently adopted a resolution protesting against your elimination from the situation," Schlake said. "They believe that, while the Associated Builders was not a party to the original action, while they had nothing to do with the selection of your honor as arbiter, they assented to the job you took and agreed to abide by your findings, and it is their desire that you see it through."

Edward Haupt, president of the Building Construction Employers' association, said similar action had been taken by his organization.

Reads Plea for Him to Quit.

"Now," continued Judge Landis, "subsequent to this and after my interview with the committee, I have received from officials of a number of the building trades unions the following communication:

"'We, the undersigned representatives and in behalf of the organizations we represent, hereby petition you, as umpire in the building trades arbitration proceedings, to be relieved of any further negotiations in this matter before you, as it is believed that a satisfactory agreement between the contractors can be reached by such action on your part.'

"These officials represented the cement finishers, drain layers, tile layers, fixture hangers, plumbers, gasfitters, glaziers, stone cutters, engineers, tile layers' helpers, architectural iron workers, lathers, asbestos workers, steamfitters, hodcarriers, boilermakers, marble cutters and setters, marble polishers, skagliola workers, marble helpers, sprinkler fitters, machinery movers, composition roofers, tuck pointers, marble, mosaic, and terrazzo workers.

Petition of Metal Workers.

"Now, were there any more, do you know, besides those that I have just read? Have I mentioned all of them?" inquired the judge.

William A. Curran, who was recently elected president of the Building Trades council, said there was an addenda attached to the petition in regard to the carpenters and several other trades which were not in the arbitration.

"Here is a document that isn't signed by anybody," Judge Landis continued. "It reads: 'As the award is made for the carpenters and the sheet metal workers, these trades feel, as they have not been parties to the arbitration proceedings, that an error was made in making the award to cover them, and they feel, in view of the above facts, that they are in no wise bound to accept the plan of arbitration or any decision entered by the umpire.'

Only Course to Go Ahead.

"What I have said," the judge continued, "indicated the inescapable position that this umpire finds himself in as a result of all that has happened, beginning with the execution of the first document, and leaves for me only the going on with it, disagreeable as that thing is under these circumstances.

The electricians, bricklayers, and architectural ironworkers—three of the powerful building trades organizations that have consistently abided by all the provisions of the Landis award—also had representatives at the conference.

Judge Landis invited them to submit any data they might have bearing on the question of wages for the year beginning June 1 and the representative of the bricklayers offered arguments for an increase in their scale from $1.10 fixed in the first award.

Meets Mike Boyle.

"Is there anybody else here from either of the other two organizations?" Judge Landis asked.

"We may have something Monday or Tuesday, your honor," Michael Boyle of the electricians said.

"Tuesday will be too late," the judge said. "I have got to act in this matter not later than Monday. Whom do you represent?"

"The electricians," Boyle answered.

JUDGE LANDIS—Is this Michael Boyle?

MR. BOYLE—Yes, sir.

JUDGE LANDIS—How are you?

MR. BOYLE—Pretty good.

JUDGE LANDIS—I didn't know you. I sent word for you to call me up.

MR. BOYLE—Now, this is the question I would ask: If the employers do not make an application for a reduction and the employés do not make an application for an increase in wages, what will be the position of the umpire?

JUDGE LANDIS—You mean what will I do with respect to the subject?

MR. BOYLE—Yes.

JUDGE LANDIS—Well, I should say without any question it will stand as it is.

No Private Sessions.

At the close Judge Landis was asked about the private audience Mr. Haupt of the builders had requested in behalf of certain unions.

"Well, don't waste any time on that, gentlemen; there won't be any 'under-the-bed' meeting here," the judge said. "I didn't get your point. I thought you said that some of the trades wanted to come here and in the presence of the other side present something. No, don't waste any time on any private audience."

U. OF I. STUDENT IS ARRESTED ON GIRL'S CHARGES

John Howard Jones Jr., 18 years old, 344 Woodstock street, Kenilworth, a freshman at the University of Illinois, was brought back to Chicago from Champaign, Ill., last night to face serious charges preferred against him by Miss Edith Britton, 3052 Bertram street. The young woman accuses him of being the father of her unborn child.

Miss Britton appeared before Judge Arnold Heap in the Morals court last Thursday and obtained a warrant for Jones' arrest.

Jones was released in bonds of $1,000 He denied knowing the young woman and said that it was a case of mistaken identity.

Suitor of Girl, Charged as Abductor, Freed on Bond

Clayton Merwin, 2005 Prairie avenue, alleged abductor of Miss Francis Waddell, 19 year old high school girl, was released last night on $5,000 bonds obtained for him by his attorney, Alex W. Jamieson. Merwin, suitor of the girl, obtained her release from the House of the Good Shepherd, where she had been placed by her father. He then sent her into hiding and refused to tell the police her whereabouts.

POLICE ON TRAIL ON HYDE PARK'S "BURGLAR LADY"

A description of a pretty, fashionably dressed young burglaress who, the police believe, has aided her male escort in several recent Hyde Park robberies was obtained yesterday when the pair were frustrated in their attempt to break into the apartment of Frank McCorkle at 4207 Berkeley avenue. Only the fact that Mrs. McCorkle's sister, Mrs. Irene Kerley, remembered to fasten the burglar lock on the front door prevented the two from entering.

Mrs. Kerley was sitting in the living room when the woman and her accomplice "jimmied" the door to the building and rang the McCorkle bell. Mrs. Kerley failed to hear the bell but she did hear the scraping of the "jimmy" on the apartment door.

"I demanded to know who was there and the next moment I heard them running down the steps," she said. "I ran to the window and saw them leave together in a hurry. The woman was about 30 years old and wore a fur-trimmed tailored suit. The man appeared to be a trifle younger. Both were smartly dressed."

Seek Missing Chauffeur at Request of Father

The police have been asked to search for Walter A. Rodman Jr., 1756 North California avenue, a driver, who started for Burnham from the Midnite Frolics Friday night with a fare and has not been seen since. The father believes his son has met with an accident or bandits.

KATHERINE FIELD AND T. C. RODMAN WED IN CHURCH

St. Chrysostom's Scene of Ceremony.

Never has little St. Chrysostom's Episcopal church on Dearborn parkway housed a more fashionable audience nor been more artistically decorated than it was yesterday for the marriage of Miss Katherine Blackwell Field, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Field, and Thomas Clifford Rodman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willoughby Rodman of Los Angeles.

The service was read at 4 o'clock by the Rev. Norman Hutton, rector of the church. Easter lilies decorated the altar and at the pew ends were lighted tapers, the standards of which were wreathed in smilax. The arches were festooned with smilax and in each was hung a golden bell. Beautiful old tapestries were flung over the high partitions at the rear of the church.

Ushers and Bridesmaids.

The acolyte and choir, singing the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin," preceded Dr. Hutton and the bridal party in the bridal procession. Ushering were Sanford Otis, Kingman Douglas, Richard Bentley, Arthur Dixon, Leonard Marshall, and Edward J. Bermingham, all of Chicago; William A. Read Jr. of New York, and Frederick G. Crane Jr. of Dalton, Mass.

The bridesmaids, Miss Beatrix Thorne, Miss Frances Robbins, Miss Anna Marquis, Miss Phoebe Norcross, Miss Eilzabeth Carpenter, and Mrs. Keith Carpenter (Anita Dunn) of Chicago, Miss Margaret Smith of Baltimore, Md., and Miss Helen James of New York, wore pale yellow gowns of crêpe romaine with Brussels lace sleeves and side draperies of lace which touched the floor. Cape effects at the back were edged with sable. Their hats were of brown tulle with numidie feathers drooping off one side. They carried bouquets of spring flowers.

Car, Gift of Father.

Miss Daphne Field, her sister's honor maid, wore a dress of cloth of gold with a cream colored embroidered net overdress. Her hat was of brown velvet and she carried a bouquet like those of the bridesmaids.

The bride's gown was of white velvet, made very simply and quite short. It had a full court train of brocaded white velvet lined with silver cloth and the tulle veil extended beyond the train. The veil was held in place with a narrow wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of cyclamen and valley lilies. She wore a four strand string of pearls, the wedding gift of her mother. Her father's gift to her was a motor car which took her and her husband to the train last night when they started on their honeymoon.

Russell Welles of New York served as best man for Mr. Rodman. The bride was given in marriage by her father. Following the ceremony, which was witnessed by an ultra-fashionable assemblage, there was a reception at the residence of the bride's parents, 1550 State parkway. Mr. and Mrs. Rodman will be at home after March 1 in Lake Forest.

Miss Helen Gale Married.

The marriage of Miss Helen Gale, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert L. Gale of 935 Judson avenue, Evanston, to Edward Campbell George, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. George of Evanston, took place at 8:30 o'clock last night at the First Methodist Episcopal church, Evanston. The ceremony was read by Dr. Ernest Fremont Tittle. Miss Katherine Ward presided at the organ.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Howard Lotspiech, Miss Harriet Odell, Miss Margaret Frankhauser, and Mrs. P. M. Fifer of Indianapolis. Mr. George was attended by William White of Wilmette. The ushers were John Newey of Evanston, Stuart Ritchie of Chicago, and Al Wiltberger of Evanston.

After the wedding a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. George will spend two weeks in New York and Boston. After April 1 they will be at home at 2118 Sherman avenue, Evanston.

FIVE INMATES OF ST. CHARLES BOYS' SCHOOL ESCAPE

Five inmates of the St. Charles School for Boys at St. Charles, Ill., escaped last night. A guard, making the final rounds of the institution discovered the absence of the boys from one of the farm cottages and notified the police of the surrounding country.

According to Col. C. B. Adams, superintendent of the institution, the boys who escaped are: Charles Tabley, Paris; Rowland Bacon, Chicago; Charles Jacobson, Chicago; Earl Clark, McLean county, and William O'Kane, Ottawa.

The relations between the inmates and the officials of the institution have been exceedingly cordial in the past, according to Col. Adams. He can give no reason why they should want to escape.

Both Husband and Doctor He Stabbed Are in Court

Howard Willis, 2257 West Monroe street, arrested on charges of stabbing Dr. M. H. Fash, 2258 West Madison street, was arraigned yesterday before Judge Joseph LaBuy in the Desplaines street court. Dr. Fash, also arrested on a disorderly conduct charge, had his case continued.

CROWE'S CAMP SLATES 2 WOMEN ON COUNTY TICKET

Deneen Clan Picks Parker for Treasurer.

Crowe anti-city hall Republicans stole a march on rival camps last night by being the first actually to slate women for places on the county ticket for the April primaries. The women named are Mrs. David Hill Danek, president of the Women's Protective association, and Mrs. William Severin, long an active figure in Republican political and women's club circles. They are slated for places on the county board.

Following their selection State's Attorney Crowe said that his followers still are "holding out the olive branch" to the Brundage-Deneen camp, that a solid front may be presented against the Thompson-Lundin machine.

In addition to the women named they offer Coroner Hoffman as a candidate for sheriff, William Busse for president of the county board, George K. Schmidt for assessor and Trustees Matthias Mueller and James H. Lawley of the sanitary board for renomination, as their contributions to an amalgamated ticket. If no overtures come from the Deneen-Brundage camp the rest of the Crowe ticket will be announced tomorrow, the state's attorney said.

Parker Slated in Other Camp.

Meantime the combined Brundage-Deneen forces, who also are formulating a county ticket on an anti-city hall platform, continued sifting candidate timber. William R. Parker, clerk of the Criminal court, was slated for treasurer. He had not accepted the offer late last night and it was said he prefers a renomination for his present position.

If he should accept the rest of the Brundage-Deneen ticket will be put together rapidly and Harry Laubenheimer, present chief deputy sheriff, will be slated for sheriff and charged to the Deneen group. Charles S. Peterson has signified he will accept the offer of a place on the ticket as candidate for president of the county board.

Democrats Strive to End Row.

The Democratic slate making committee of seventeen went into session at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, determined to work out, if possible, an agreement to end the bitter factional strife that has arisen within the committee. The latest suggestion is that the offices of president of the county board and county judge be left open for a free for all primary fight and that the slate be made for the rest of the offices.

So far the anti-Thompson Republicans have done nothing with congressional and legislative nominations. However, as soon as county slate making is out of the way quick work will be made of the legislative tickets. There is little prospect of congressional contests except in the Seventh district, where there will be a candidate against Congressman Michaelson, and in the Third, where State Senator Frank P. Sadler will be the anti-Thompson candidate against Congressman Sproul.

Senator Medill McCormick returned to Washington following completion of the agreement between the Deneen and Brundage forces.

The first day for filing primary petitions is Feb. 10, one week from next Friday.

SEEKS DIVORCE

Mrs. Helene Hopkins, who has filed suit for divorce against the son of the former senator from Illinois, charging cruelty.

SON OF FORMER SENATOR AGAIN IN DIVORCE SUIT

Nearly a year of constant abuse and beatings administered by her husband, Albert J. Hopkins, Jr., and a nomadic existence from hotel to hotel, were told of by Mrs. Helene A. Hopkins yesterday in a bill filed in the Superior court.

The couple were married at Fort Wayne, Ind., on May 22, 1920, a runaway match, without the approval of the senior Hopkins, former U. S. Senator from Illinois. In March of the following year disagreements began.

The bill, filed by Attorney Charles E. Erbstein, sets forth that the Hopkinses were forced to move from the Somerset, the Sheridan Plaza, and the Eastwood Beach hotels because of the husband's cruelty to his wife.

This is the second matrimonal venture that has ended in the divorce court for the younger Hopkins. On May 19, 1919, his wife, formerly Miss Helen Cass of Aurora, was granted a divorce; with $75 a month alimony and the custody of their 4 year old daughter Katherine. The charges in the first suit were similar to those in the suit filed yesterday.

St. Louis Newspapers Go Back to Pre-War Rates

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 28.—All English language daily newspapers of this city will reduce their subscription rates to the pre-war basis, it was made known today. The Globe Democrat and the Post-Dispatch will announce the reduction from three to two cents for a daily copy and from ten to five cents for the Sunday copy in tomorrow's issue. The Times and Star, it is understood, will reduce their rates beginning Monday.

AGED BUSINESS MAN ASKS COURT FOR HIS SANITY

Robbed of It Last Year, He Asserts.

Thomas E. O'Brien, a retired furniture dealer, 75 years old, living at 4332 Kenmore avenue, lost his legal sanity last June in the courts. Tomorrow he's going before Judge Oscar Torrison, in the Circuit court, to try to become legally sane again.

The original court action took place at the behest of his son, Francis T. O'Brien, 4528 Grand boulevard, with Frederick Z. Marx as attorney. A business venture embarked upon by the elderly gentleman a year ago was the reason.

Partner of Pastor-Promoter.

The senior Mr. O'Brien in March, 1921, visited Omaha, Neb., with the Rev. Robert E. Jenkinson, oil promoter, then of 830 Gault avenue. The Rev. Mr. Jenkinson, former pastor of the Presbyterian church there, was welcomed warmly. He told his erstwhile flock that he had returned to pay debts and square accounts, accumulated from a coöperative boarding proposition he established. The terms to the boarders were $65 a month and a rebate of $40 of stock of the United Shale Products company. Mr. O'Brien, he declared, as he handed around $100 bills, was a Chicago millionaire, intensely interested in a new project.

The rest of the O'Brien family, fearing that their father's monetary hallucinations might cause trouble, took it to the courts. But the father declines to stay insane.

"It was a put up job," he insisted yesterday. "There were no real grounds for that action at all. Why, the papers show that the six jurors' signatures are all in the same handwriting and in the same ink."

"Man of High Ideals."

Although Mr. O'Brien is through with the Rev. Mr. Jenkinson as a business associate, he still believes in his honesty.

"Mr. Jenkinson was a man of high ideals," he said, "but the trouble came in getting him to be businesslike."

The old furniture dealer learned his true status in the eyes of the law last week, when he attempted to purchase some real estate and found he had no such legal power.

Third Set of Twins Net Celebrants Extra Cigar

Charles August was passing the cigars at his office at 64 West Illinois street yesterday morning when the phone rang. Mr. August answered it, then said:

"Take two apiece; it's twins—both boys."

Yesterday's little visitors at 5227 Berteau avenue are the third set of twins the stork has deposited there. All are living.

SLAYER IS EXONERATED.

Joseph Calabrese, 1110 South Racine avenue, was exonerated of blame for the death of Giacoma Graziano, 744 South Loomis street, who was shot and killed two weeks ago. Calabrese testified he shot in self-defense.

AGENDA OF GENOA CONFERENCE NOW AT WASHINGTON

No Reply as to Intention of U. S. in Premises.

BY GRAFTON WILCOX.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—The Washington government today received the agenda of the European economic conference at Genoa, but still has made no reply to the invitation to participate.

No reply, it is authoritatively stated, has even been drafted. In fact, it is stated, the definite American policy has not been determined finally, although the administration still adheres to the view that this government could be of little service to Europe at the conference at the present time and under existing circumstances abroad.

Contents of Agenda.

The agenda for Genoa as viewed here is as follows:

1. Examination of methods for placing in effective operation those principles contained in the Cannes resolutions of the allied supreme council as of Jan. 6, 1922.

2. Establishment of European peace on a solid basis.

3. Consideration of conditions necessary to reëstablish confidence without prejudicing existing treaties.

4. Financial questions: [a] Circulation; [b] central banks and banks of issue; [c] public finance with respect to the work of reconstruction; [d] exchanges; [e] organization of public and private credit.

Economic Aims Told.

5. Economic and commercial questions: (a) Facilities and guarantees for import and export; (b) Legal guarantees for the resumption of commerce; (c) Protection of industrial, literary, and artistic properties; (d) Consular regulations; (e) Admission and status of foreigners in relation to their engaging in business; (f) Technical assistance in the work of industrial reconstruction.

6. Transportation.

The Washington Post, close to the President, is generally regarded as expressing the keynote of the administration viewpoint today, in the following editorial statement:

"Doubt has been aroused by the course of these nations in the Washington conference. If they have failed and refused to coöperate in Washington, although they had declared beforehand they were in sympathetic accord with this government, there is little upon which to base the hope that they would coöperate in Europe on more complex questions."

FIGHT TO QUASH DIVORCE OF MARY PICKFORD STARTS

Carson City, Nev., Jan. 28.—[United Press.]—A new battle over Mary Pickford's divorce from Owen Moore starts here Monday.

Lawyers are gathering to argue in the Supreme court in a final effort to determine whether the state's suit to annul Mary's decree,

Mary's divorce, nearly two years ago was a sensation. As a "poor little rich girl" she went with her mother to Minden, Nev., an unheard of village near Carson City, bought a home, and sued. Within ten days Mary was back in Los Angeles and within a month she was Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks.

DENOUNCE "RINGERS"

GEORGE A. HUFF. ROBERT ZUPPKE.

Athletic Director George A. Huff and Coach Robert Zuppke of Illinois are leading in the move to clean up athletics. They are ready to sacrifice valuable material, to prevent the possibility of a repetition of the football scandal which resulted in making nine Illinois stars ineligible to future contests.

TWO TOWNS BET $100,000 UPON 'RINGER' GAME

Rivals Sought Aid of College Stars.

one of these fellows is from Carlinville," indignantly replied the woman.

Taylorville in the first half used its regular home town team. At the end of the half, Taylorville led, 7 to 0.

Hoist on Their Own Petard.

Then, out on the field trotted nine stars from the University of Illinois. They had been held under cover for the first two periods.

These men were Larry Walquist, last year's football captain and mainstay of this year's team; Jack Crangle, All-Western full back in 1920 and honorably mentioned this year; Joe Sternaman, brother to the famous "Dutch" and a quarter back around whom Zuppke had planned to build his 1922 elven; "Dutch" Kaiser, one of Coach Gill's best track athletes; P. T. Green, sub on this year's football team and slated for a place on next year's eleven, and "Dope" Simpson, John Teuscher, D. A. Milligan, and F. J. Gammage, substitutes.

Little Sternaman ran circles around the Carlinville ends. Jack Crangle plunged through the line, and Laurie Walquist forward passed for big gains. The game ended with Taylorville winner, 16 to 7.

How the Players Arrived.

Taylorville, Ill., Jan. 28.—[By the Associated Press.]—Ten football players who did not come from Carlinville spent the night of Nov. 26 in Springfield and the next day joined a crowd of Carlinville rooters to go to the Taylorville-Carlinville game, according to investigators for the Taylorville team who had been spying on Carlinville for a week previous to the contest.

On the register of the hotel in Springfield, where the players are said to have stopped, appears the name of Lionel Moise, manager of the Carlinville team.

Carlinville's attempted coup was discovered through a "spy" system established by Grover Hoover, Taylorville coach, a week before the game.

"The most I can say, however, for a university who disqualifies players when somebody else hires them is to compare them with prohibition agents who search other persons' cellars when their own are full of booze," Hoover declared tonight.

Denials from Notre Dame.

Notre Dame, Ind., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Denial of participation in the football game at Taylorville, Ill., Nov. 27, was made tonight by Johnny Mohardt, the Notre Dame football and baseball star. Friends of Gus Desch, world's champion hurdler, declare that he also was not implicated.

Coach Rockne when told of the accusations made against Wynne, Mohardt, and Desch said:

"Illinois has had two months to investigate this matter and the only information that has come to Notre Dame has been the story from the Associated Press. These stories implicate Mohardt, Desch, and Wynne, and all have denied the charges. We can only give these boys a fair chance by making a thorough investigation of their cases and demanding retraction if the charges are untrue, which I believe to be the case."

Status of Nine Men.

Champaign, Ill., Jan. 28.—Pending action by the eligibility committee of the University of Illinois faculty the nine athletes accused of having taken part in a professional game at Taylorville will not be permitted to engage in college sports.

G. Huff, director of athletics, tonight made clear the status of the students. Asked if they had been declared ineligible, he said they had not. Asked if they would be permitted to take part in events, he said they would not: that they were temporarily suspended pending action of the committee. Asked when the committee would make its ruling, he said he did not know.

Robert Zuppke, football coach, denied that overtures had been made to "Dope" Simpson or to any other football player to enter the university.

Zuppke also denied a statement attributed to him that he hoped the scandal "will start a cleanup in the conference that will be thorough."

ADJOURNMENT OF PEACE CONCLAVE FEB. 3, FORECAST

Conferees Ready to Wind Up Minor Details.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—There are many guesses concerning the probable date of adjournment of the Washington conference, most of the speculations naming Thursday or Friday.

A person in close touch with one of the more important delegations stated today there would likely be two plenary sessions, one next Wednesday, for disposing of the naval treaty, and the other either Thursday or Friday, for formally recording the far eastern treaty, usually referred to as the nine power treaty.

Acceleration of the conference is expected to follow the predicted agreement of the Japanese and Chinese delegations Monday on the Shantung railway issue.

Dr. Chung Hui Wang, chief justice of China, minister of justice in the new Chinese cabinet, and member of the Chinese delegation, it was learned today, was the last to assent to an acceptance of the compromise proposal for settlement of the Shantung railway question.

Dr. Wang, it was said, alone has to return to China, and he has asserted that the opposition in China to a settlement of the Shantung question on any terms, short of an absolute and unconditional return of the former German leasehold to China, together with the surrender by Japan to China of all former German property in Shantung, had become almost a religious tenet with the people.

Dr. Wang finally asented to accept the compromise proposal, it is said, after being convinced that China could never hope to secure as favorable settlement as the one offered here, which was as much in concession to American public opinion as to Japan's desire to placate China.

3 KILLED, 4 INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

W. C. Smith and his brother, John, 9133 South Baltimore avenue, were instantly killed last night when a Dodge automobile in which they were riding was struck by a Pennsylvania passenger train at the 119th street crossing.

According to the South Chicago police, the automobile became stalled on the track and the two men waited until the train was almost on them before they attempted to get out of the car.

William Harbough, 13 years old, 873 Ernst street, died in the Henrotin hospital last night shortly after he was run over by an automobile at Delaware place and Michigan avenue. Martin Cody, driver of the automobile, was released on bonds after being booked for manslaughter.

William Brady, 5735 Kenwood avenue, and Robert Burch, same address, had a miraculous escape from death when a Grand Trunk train smashed the automobile in which they were riding at the 60th street crossing. Neither man was injured.

HUMANITY.

The present day calls for world mindedness. People who would be broad-minded should cease living "in their own backyards." Merely taking in each other's washing is not progress.

America for herself alone is contradictory to an outlook containing value. Thought must be in terms of world relief, as well as world advancement. Actual and continuous prosperity in the United States is dependent upon healthy restoration of stricken nations, and the ability of other nations to buy our products. Our surplus must be sold for good money, or traded for other goods. It does not matter how large or small that surplus may be. The question of the size of the surplus deceives many of our people.

Study the history of failures in industry. You will find the percentage of difference between prosperity and depression, which causes bankruptcy or success, need not be large.

The war is over. The people of stricken nations must live. The children must have food to eat—clothes to wear. Civilized nations are not properly termed "civilized" if not humanitarian. To make the claim that others were inhuman first does not suffice unless one is ready to come down to that level.

"Humanity" is a word to conjure with in the present day. Insofar as we do not regard it, we will not be successful, no matter how much money we may turn over among ourselves.

"One touch of nature makes the whole world kin."

JAZZ MUSIC HELD OBSCENE, PERIL TO NATION'S MORALS

Shimmy Dancer Is Fined $200 by Judge Heap.

Jazz dancing, immoral "wiggles," and obscene music—"an insult to Chicago's fair name and a menacing influence to the city's youth"—received a body blow yesterday when Judge Arnold Heap, in the Morals court, found Julia Rector, dancer at the Entertainers' café, 209 East 35th street, guilty of "improper performances" and fined her $200.

"The abdominal muscle dancer and the shimmyite must go," the judge said, as he handed down his decision in the first application of the state law in a case of this kind.

The decision was awaited by reformers and social workers of the country as an indication of whether music in itself can be immoral and as a precedent in the prosecution of similar cases.

Holds Jazz Music Obscene.

"You can do anything while listening to jazz music," the judge said. "The jazz is no dance music. There is no grace or beauty in jazz. You do not find the activity, the physical and mental exhilaration of the dance as manifested by our fathers and mothers, where real music was produced by which to dance.

"This case smacks of the barbarism of the jungle. The very music was obscene. The evil genius of this place has artfully combined the grossness of primitive sensuality with the gilded refinement of modern licentiousness."

Hits City Authorities.

The judge criticised the city administration for allowing such a place to operate.

"This café was open to the public, an admission fee was charged and a city license must have been obtained to conduct it, yet we find it running for months, catering to the worst and basest of human passions.

"That these things happen in the fourth largest city in the world, in a so-called civilized community, where decency and religion are presumed to be supreme, must cause the average Chicagoan to hang his head in shame."

Judge Heap pointed out that the testimony showed from 200 to 400 couples danced on a floor 400 feet square.

"The floor was always crowded," the judge said. "This left a maximum of one person to every square foot of dance floor. They couldn't do anything that even pretended to be dancing. The music played wasn't dance music. The jazz orchestra blared and clanged its tones, but that isn't intended to be dance music."

Turning to the effect of such places on the morals of youths, Judge Heap said:

"Socrates was forced to drink hemlock because of trumped up charges that he corrupted the youth of the city. Such importance did the Athenians place on the virtue of their young men.

"If such entertainments are tolerated it means the debauching of society, the corruption of the community, and the destruction of the moral stamina of the nation."

"Victory for Decency."

Samuel P. Thrasher, head of the Committee of Fifteen, responsible for the prosecution of the case, was elated at the decision, proclaiming it a "great victory for decency."

"It is a blow to the vicious cabaret business all over Chicago," Mr. Thrasher said. "We will use the decision to seek the revocation of licenses of similar places. I hope it will prove effective in stimulating the police in curtailing obscene dancing elsewhere."

Mrs. Elizabeth Crandall and Miss Jessie F. Binford of the United States Interdepartmental Social Hygiene board, who also investigated the Entertainers' café and assisted in prosecuting the case, expressed themselves as being delighted.

As the trial of Julia Rector was a test case, Assistant State's Attorney Frank O. Souhrada nolle prossed charges pending against forty others arrested in the raid on Nov. 10. Maurice Slater, counsel for the defense, was denied motions for a new trial and to set aside the fine by Judge Heap.

PARENTS BACK MORTENSON IN JAZZ CRUSADE

Father and mother, as represented by the Illinois council of the Parent-Teachers association, responded to the appeal for support of Supt. Peter A. Mortenson's effort to curb the night-life activites of Chicago high school students.

"Mr. Mortenson is right," said Mrs. William F. Young, president of the Illinois council. "The solution of the problem lies with parents even more than with the boys and girls themselves. Excesses in dress, recreation, and social life of the students have their beginning back in the home circle. That is where they should be checked."

Mrs. William S. Hefferan and Mrs. B. F. Langworthy and others also indorsed the action of the superintendent in condemning "joy riding" and "petting parties" as recreations for high school students.

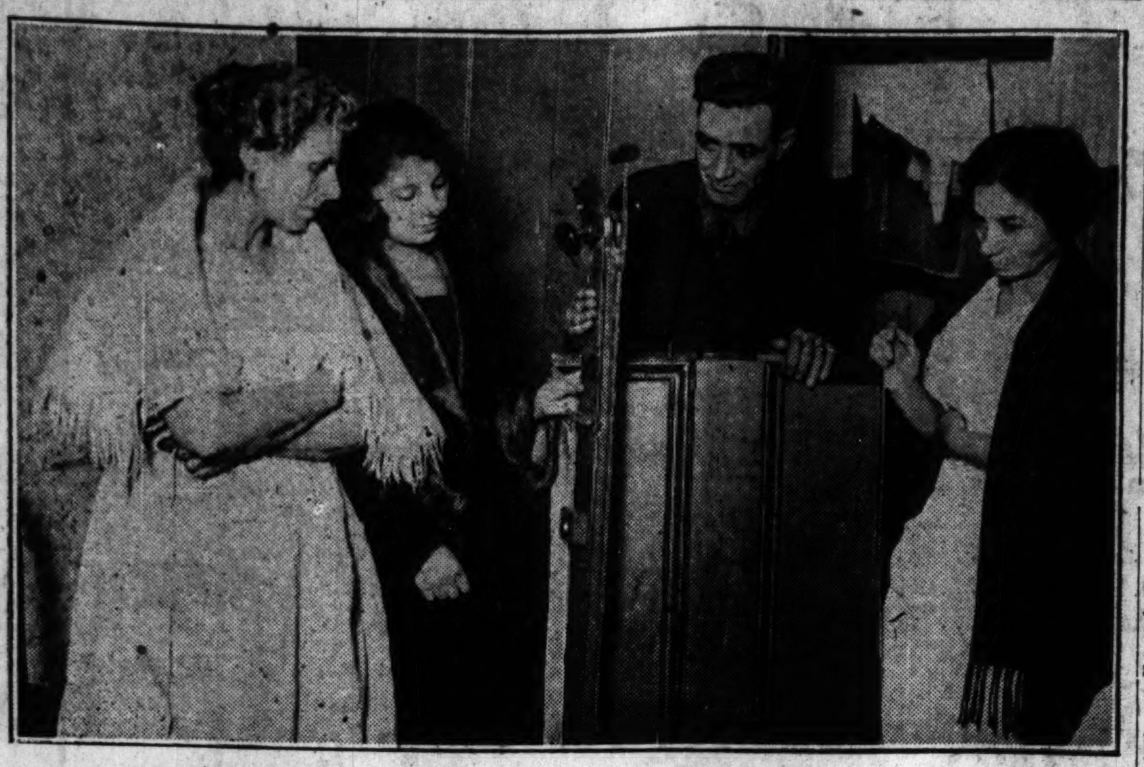
VICTIMS OF BOMBING



When a bomb was exploded in the building at 854 West Erie street last night the persons shown in the picture said they thought the end of the come had come. They live in the building.

From left to right, they are Mrs. Frances and Marie Sigimondo, Phillip and Antoinette Cutrona. All fled to the street, frightened by the detonation and the rocking of the building.

GERMANY ASKS ALLIES TO DROP CASH DEMANDS

Larger Payments in Goods Offered.

BERLIN, Jan. 28.—[By the Associated Press.]—The German note to the reparations commission in response to the commission's demand for explanations of Germany's alleged inability to meet her obligations for January and February requests that Germany be relieved of all cash payments in 1922. It also asks for a general reduction in cash payments and an increase in payments in goods.

The note suggests that the allies take measures to restore Germany's internal and external credit, and thereby facilitate the floating of a big international reparation loan. It announces that Germany will raise an internal loan in 1922 independently of the forced loan, in order to reduce the floating debt.

It is pointed out in the note that the allied experts at the Brussels conference in 1920 recognized that German direct taxation was incapable of further augmentation, but that nevertheless bills were now before the reichstag to provide further increases in property tax, as well as taxes on capital and corporations. The turnover tax will be increased from 1½ per cent to 2 per cent, and the coal tax from 20 to 40 per cent.

Increase Consumption Taxes.

The burdens on production and consumption will be increased, and, in addition, the increased customs duties will be collected on a gold basis. The entire burden imposed on consumption, it is asserted, is at least equal to that in other countries.

In explanation of Germany's financial position, the note states that energetic measures will be taken against the removal of capital abroad and the evasion of taxation, such as the abolition of the obligation to secrecy imposed on banks, and control over the ownership of securities deposited with banks. It explains that the railway rates, compared with pre-war conditions, had been increased nineteen fold for passengers and thirty-two fold for freight; the postal and telephone rates were increased twenty-one fold.

Bread Price Up 75 Per Cent.

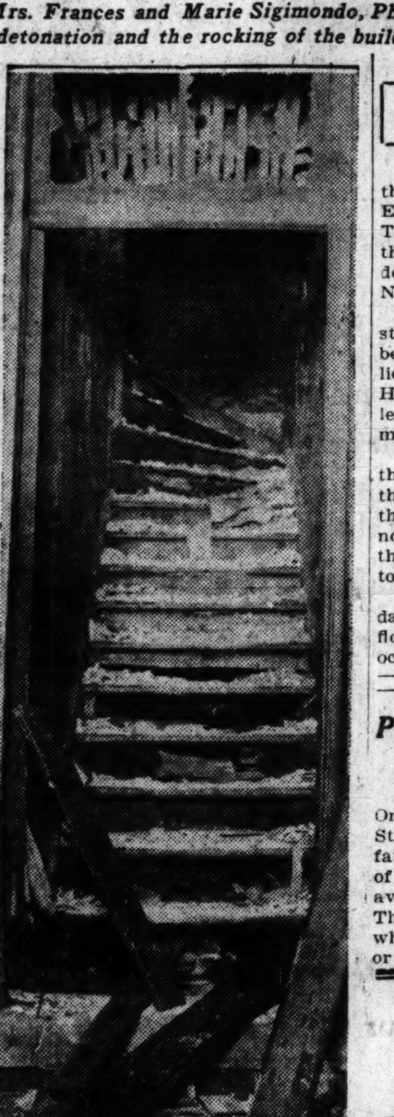
The food subsidies for 1922 will amount to only 1,000,000,000 paper marks, as compared with 2,250,000,000 previously. The price of bread will shortly be increased by 75 per cent. A system for insurance for the unemployed at the expense of employers and employés will be introduced, to replace the existing relief system.

The ordinary budget shows, with a revenue of 103,200,000,000 marks and expenses of 86,700,000,000 marks, a surplus of 16,500,000,000 available for reparation payments.

It is absolutely necessary, if the matter is viewed from an economic standpoint, the note continues, that Germany should at least for 1922 be relieved of all cash payments on account of reparations.

The German government recognizes that economic and financial considerations must yield to political necessities. It refers to the figures taken into consideration at Cannes by the allies, namely, 720,000,000 gold marks in cash and 1,450,000,000 gold marks in kind, and requests a reduction in the cash payments, increasing, if necessary, the payments in kind.

It also proposes that the costs of occupation should be credited to the total sum in cash and kind paid in 1922 and that the other obligations in foreign currency arising from the peace treaty, especially clearing house obligations, should be mitigated.



The stairway in the picture was damaged by a black powder bomb exploded in the hallway of the building at 854 West Erie street last night. Phillip Vinci, owner of the building, told the police he had received several threatening letters.

Blame "Black Hand"

A bomb was exploded last night in the hallway of the building at 854 West Erie street, owned by Phillip Vinci. The front of Vinci's harness shop on the first floor was blown out and windows in the building were shattered. No one was injured.

Vinci, who lives at 4212 North Keystone avenue, had gone home shortly before the explosion. He told the police he had received several Black Hand letters demanding $2,000 but the letter never stated when or where the money was to be paid.

Two families live in the building on the second and third floors. Following the explosion they attempted to run to the street by the front way, but could not get out because of the damage to the front stairs and hallway. All fled to the street by the rear doors.

Mrs. Francis Sigismondo and her daughter, Marie, live on the second floor. Phillip Cutrona and his wife occupy the third floor.

Police Probe Mystery in Stabbing of Man

Mystery surrounds the stabbing of Orlando Josephs, 32 years old, 4941 Strong street, who was found by his father, George Josephs, in a bedroom of the latter's home at 2153 Emerson avenue, in a semi-conscious condition. The police were unable to learn whether the wound was self-inflicted or whether he had been stabbed.

HERE ARE TALES OF 1 RUM RIOT; 1 NO RUM RIOT

It's a Good Yarn for Wet or Dry.

While Judge Prindiville in the South Clark street court yesterday was sifting the "great loop rum riot," which, it may be inferred, was caused by rum, Police Magistrate Boyer in Evanston was endeavoring to get at the bottom of the great root beer riot, which, it may be deduced, was caused by root beer.

The case before the bar at South Clark street was that of John Wadzinski—John, the "fighting man from Canada"—who threw some 1,500 pedestrians into riotous mood Friday evening, at State and Washington streets.

Mrs. Murphy to the Rescue.

The police, suspecting that John had been imbibing of the laughing water, were hustling him into a patrol wagon. John, being something of a Gascon, was indulging in a vociferous panegyric of his deeds in the late sanguinary affair in Europe, whereupon Mrs. Iowa Murphy of Elmhurst, and the 1,499 others entered negotiations. Mrs. Murphy was arrested.

"Why did you strike the policemen with your mesh bag?" inquired the judge of Mrs. Murphy.

"Because they were hurting the poor man," retorted Mrs. Murphy. "They were trying to put him in the wagon headfirst."

"Ah-hhh," said the court. "Suppose they had been putting him in feet first?"

"I'd have done the same thing," said Mrs. Murphy wrathfully.

John Unable to Appear.

"Where is this fighting man from Canada?" inquired the court.

A policeman stepped forward with an affidavit from a physician; it stated John had been gassed in France and was unable to appear.

"Hm'm," mused the court. "Gassed, eh? Well, in that case I am going to discharge these defendants."

Then the judge fixed his eye on a lawyer representing John: "But," he said ominously, "but," with great emphasis, "I want you to tell John to see to it that he isn't overcome by that gas again when he's in State street. And," and he fixed his eye upon Mrs. Murphy, "and remember that war is what Sherman said it was. Let there hereafter be peace between Mrs. Murphy and the police department."

The scene shifts to Magistrate Boyer's courtroom. The inquisition of the rootbeer riot is in progress. Herman Als, Niles Center restaurateur, is charged with assault with a deadly weapon—they say he shot Mrs. George H. Crowe, wife of the proprietor of the Niles Center inn, across the street from Als' place, in the ankle. It is alleged that Henry Wolf, Mrs. Crowe's brother, was slugged.

"Herman and another fellow," says Mr. Crowe, "came into the inn. They asked for something to drink. I served them rootbeer. They drank it, made funny faces, and walked out without paying. I sent Henry out to collect from them."

"What happppened?" asked the magistrate of Henry Wolf.

"When I asked them for the money they hit me over the head with a club," said Wolf. "That's all I know. They knocked me cold."

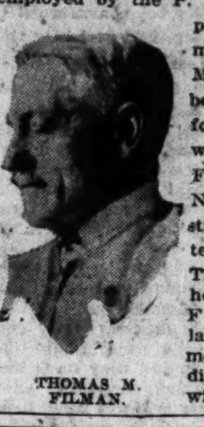
Well, sir, it appeared from the remainder of the testimony that a crowd of citizens did not like Herman's actions in the matter. It appeared they gathered in front of Herman's eating house with bricks, stones, rocks, cobbles, et cetera, and bombarded the windows and doors. Herman, wondering what was wrong, went to the door and looked out. A fusillade of rocks fell like hail about him. He seized his revolver and shot into the crowd, striking Mrs. Crowe in the ankle.

Mobbed by 100 "Maniacs."

"There were a hundred maniacs mobbing me," said Herman. "I had to shoot. If the police had been around I would have had the whole town arrested."

The judge then continued the investigation of the root beer riot until next Saturday. Before adjourning court he delivered a speech in which he called the country "booze crazy." He advocated a light wine and beer amendment to the dry law.

WIFE ASKS SEARCH FOR HER HUSBAND, MISSING A WEEK



THOMAS M. FILMAN.

Thomas M. Filman, a bookkeeper employed by the P. F. Volland company, has been missing since Monday. He has been despondent for weeks, his wife, Mrs. Lillian Filman, 2841 North Clark street, says. Yesterday she asked THE TRIBUNE to help find him. Mr. Filman had a large sum of money the day he disappeared, the wife says.

MRS. F. C. ABBOTT AND H. A. GRAMER MARRIED HERE

MRS. FANNY ABBOTT GRAMER. [Gibson, Sykes & Fowler Photo.]

Mrs. Fanny Coleman Abbott of Wyanet, Ill., was married yesterday to Henry A. Gramer of the same city at the residence of the Rev. and Mrs. W. B. Norton, 727 Foster street, Evanston. Dr. Norton officiated.

A noon luncheon was served to a small company of guests, among them Clark Abbott of the Concrete Engineering company, a son of the bride. Mrs. Abbott is well known in Mendota and Fulton, Ill., where she formerly resided. Mr. Gramer for years was connected with the United States postal service.

3 NEW TRUSTEES APPOINTED FOR SCIENCE CHURCH

Boston, Mass., Jan. 28.—Judge Crosby in the Supreme court today announced the appointment of Fred Lamson of Boston, William B. McKenzie of Cambridge, and James E. Patton of this city, as trustees of the Christian Science Publishing company.

They will succeed Herbert W. Eustace and Paul Harvey, both of whom recently resigned, and Lamont Rowlands, who was removed by the directors of the Mother church. Their appointment closes one phase of the long standing controversy between the directors and the former trustees.

Judge Crosby also acted on charges by the directors that certain expenditures from funds of the publishing trust were improper.

"I am constrained to find that the payments were purely gifts or gratuities and contrary to the terms of the trust and must be accounted for and paid over by the trustees to their successors."

(A Business Editorial)

The Automobile

The automobile business of the nation will have the platform during this week.

Is it a wonder that so much of interest prevails in the work turned out by this great industry? It appeals alike to all, with just a difference in degree in enthusiasm between youth and age.

A perfect, scientifically adjusted automobile is a noble work. It touches realms of thought which are higher than the mere business relationship.

Aside from profit, too much credit cannot be given to the man or firm that produces such a machine.

Whether or not one is ready to buy an automobile, there is distinct value and education in viewing the varied exhibits.

Not alone the finshed product but the accessories as well call for attention.

The individual that does not see such an exhibition is himself the loser. He has allowed a great value to pass him by.

UTAH INCIDENT "OUTRAGEOUS," SAYS ROBBINS

Blames Ex-Wife and Her Attorney.

Ogden, Utah., 3:20 p. m., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—"I'm daddy's boy. I'm glad he came here; now we can go on the train."

That was the answer of George Baker Robbins, 3½ years old, to the question as to whether he would rather be with his father, Cutler H. Robbins, or his mother, Mrs. Mary Robbins of Chicago. He was standing by his father's knee in the Reed hotel, the father caressing the child as he talked.

GEORGE B. ROBBINS JR.

"You know the boy wondered why I didn't come to him when he and Miss MacLane were taken to the police station, and when he was told that they would be let out of the room when I did come he asked if I had the key," said Robbins. "It was an outrageous experience. I blame no one except my former wife and the lawyer who is handling her case. I lack words strong enough to say what I think of that lawyer. I'm going to find out when I get back to Chicago which judge issued that complaint without finding out the truth regarding the divorce papers. The child is legally in my custody and Miss MacLane had a perfect right to bring him across the continent."

Miss McLane Reticent.

As he was talking, Miss Frances MacLane, who was arrested at the request of the Chicago police and held on a kidnaping charge until released by habeas corpus proceedings, smiled at the apparent happiness of the boy and the father who had been reunited when Robbins arrived this morning. She continued to decline to be interviewed and said that Robbins would do all of the talking for them both.

"It's just the same old story, some one trying to cause trouble," Robbins continued. "Two years ago I obtained a divorce from my former wife. I need not go into details about that. It is a matter of court record. I was given the decree, which specified that I was to have custody of the child. The mother was permitted to see the child at a certain place twice a week, between the hours of 2 to 6 o'clock, the child to have lunch and his nap before being taken to this place and to be returned in time for dinner. Besides, I was given permission to take the child from the state six weeks of each year. This is the first time the child has been taken from the state.

Just Good Friends.

"Miss MacLane and I are good friends. When I arranged to come west to see my father, George B. Robbins, in San Francisco, I decided that the child should come, too. So I arranged with Miss MacLane to come west, leaving a day later than I did, and to bring the boy. I had hardly arrived in San Francisco when I received the message telling me of this outrage. I engaged counsel for her and caught the first train for Ogden. I find that the Chicago police have found out their mistake and that she and my son have been treated with such courtesy here as possible under the conditions.

"It's horrible to think of them being locked up in the jail—but that's all over now.

"My plans are not fully matured, but I expect we will stay here a day or so, for I have traveled continuously now for some time. Then we will go to California to see my father and the boy will be back in Chicago in due course of time. I expect to return to Chicago as [illegible]n as my brief visit to California is completed."

SMILIN' NOW

MISS FRANCES MacLANE.
[Hyde Park Studio.]

Robbins has steadily declined to permit the photographing of his son and the little boy has been taught to "duck" the photographers, which he does with skill. Miss MacLane has done likewise.

Elder Robbins Dislikes Publicity.

"My chief objection to a picture is that my father objects to such publicity," said Robbins.

Robbins has kept thoroughly informed by telegraph regarding all proceedings and happenings in Ogden since Miss MacLane and his son were taken from the train here and today spoke of reviews received by telephone and telegraph of the various articles appearing in Chicago regarding their troubles.

When he arrived at the Ogden Union station this morning he was met by Miss MacLane and the boy, the latter running to his father and putting his arms around his neck. After breakfast he met his attorneys.

ATTORNEY LEONARD'S REPLY.

Morris G. Leonard, Mrs. Robbins' attorney, was undaunted by the declaration of the former husband to investigate the lawyer and the judge who assisted in temporarily delaying his son and Miss MacLane.

"There was nothing personal in the action, as far as I was concerned," he said. "I was acting to protect my client.

"The original diverce decree has been modified considerably since it was issued. Mr. Robbins has been fighting in the courts for several months to have his alimony reduced, without success. The courts also altered a provision allowing the mother to see the child between the hours of 1 and 7 on three days a week.

"Also, the child has been kept in Hinsdale with the father's relatives for long periods of time. We contend that the modifications of the provisions, nullify the original provisions allowing the father to take the boy from the state."

'FAGIN' MOTHER ARMS SON, SENDS HIM OUT TO ROB

Mrs. Mary Zgorski, 5119 Henderson street, was characterized yesterday as a "devil" by Chief Justice Kickham Scanlan in the Criminal court after three young boys, arraigned on charges of robbery, had told how they had been furnished with revolvers by her and told to go out and commit holdups.

The matter first came before Judge Scanlan three weeks ago, when Benjamin Zgorski, the woman's son, and Stanley Czudsinski pleaded guilty to robbery and were sentenced to terms of from three to twenty years in the penitentiary.

"These three boys," Prosecutor Smith told the judge yesterday, indicating Louis Stelmachow, Edward Dahl, and Ralph Jensen, "only committed one robbery each, and since they have been in jail they have been told that if they say anything about Mrs. Zgorski they will get their heads blown off. They told me, however, that she was the one who furnished them with revolvers."

Attorney Smith said that he expected to take the three boys, who were placed on probation, before the grand jury later in the week and seek an indictment again Mrs. Zgorski.

HONEYMOON VIA "RODS" ENDS IN S. CHICAGO COURT

A honeymoon tour on the rods of freight trains ended yesterday when John Bower and his wife, Helen, both 23 years old and living in Grand Rapids, Mich., appeared before Judge John F. Haas in the South Chicago court on charges of disorderly conduct.

Mr. and Mrs. Bower, the latter dressed in men's clothing, were arrested in the freight yards of the Michigan Central railroad Friday night by a special watchman. Judge Haas took up a collection of $15 in the courtroom that they might finish their journey via Pullman.

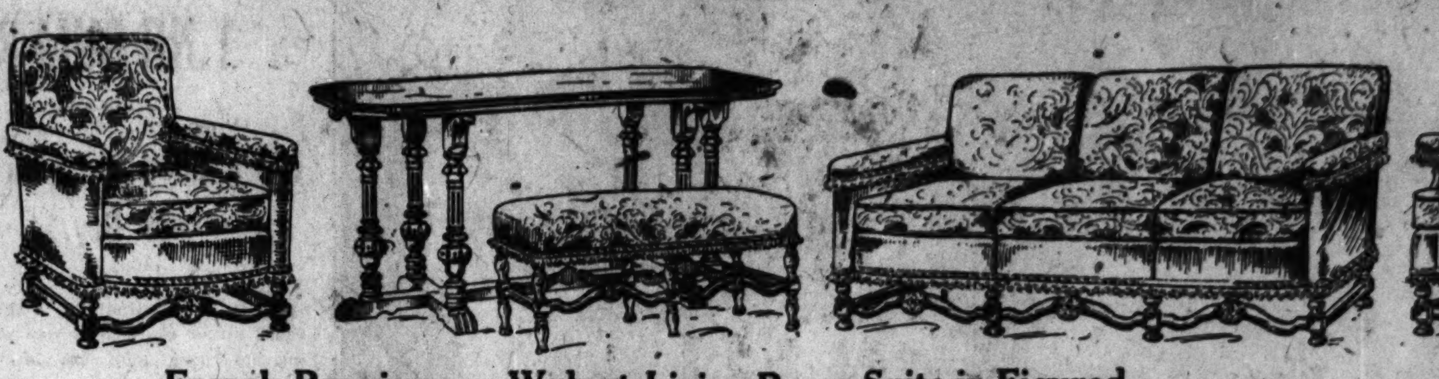
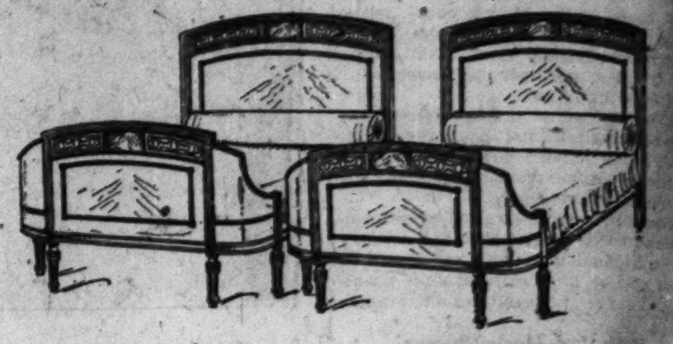
Scholle's Semi-Annual Sale of Good Furniture



French Renaissance Walnut Living Room Suite in Figured and Plain Mohair with Fringe Trim:

	Sale Price
Davenport	$210.00
Arm Chair	117.00
Reading Chair	117.00
Fireside Bench	$53.00
Table	68.00
Wrought Iron Reading Lamp	35.00



NOW comes our regular semi-annual sale of fine furniture; an event which is eagerly awaited by many of our friends and their friends.

It is worth something to you to know the following facts about this sale:

1. The goods are new, freshly bought, just received; with the exception of a few items which have been carried over from last season. It isn't a "clearance" sale in the sense of an attempt to dispose of "old stuff"; we haven't any old stuff.

2. The prices are very low; we want our customers to make a good profit on the things they buy. Much of the stock we offer was bought at very low prices from manufacturers who wanted the money quickly. We are passing on to you the advantages in buying which we enjoyed.

3. Everything we sell, now or at any time, is Scholle quality; there's nothing better.

4. Everything you buy here is "satisfaction guaranteed," which means, bring it back if you're not satisfied, and get your money. This policy doesn't change at "special sale" times.

If you need furniture now or later, this is the time to buy it

Here are some of the special items of interest for you

GUNS OF GERMAN MAKE FLOODING MARKET OF U. S.

Chicago Firms Import Them; Sell by Mail.

It's easy for a Chicago criminal to get a gun. He doesn't have to have a police permit, a deputy sheriff's commission, a license from a justice of the peace, or anything else. All he has to have is the cash. The dealer and Uncle Sam will do the rest. "Send no money—just pay the postman!"

TRIBUNE reporters have discovered in the last week that Germany, having failed to kill off the American army in France, is now doing her best to make Americans kill themselves and each other by sending huge quantities of guns of various calibers into the United States. Many of them—thousands of them—come to Chicago for distribution.

Magazines, Newspapers Aid Sale.

The dealers advertise in magazines and newspapers. The American Legion Weekly carries advertising of German guns. The Journal of the American Medical association does likewise. And newspapers are full of them. "Don't send money—pay the postman! Get a gun!" they urge. And in the last ten years there have been more than 29,000 murders in the United States with guns as against 257 in England and Wales.

Some Chicago companies advertise in papers printed here and elsewhere the sale of these German made guns—some of them forged for the use of German troops in the world war.

Among these are the Amerivan Novelty company at 2455-57 Archer avenue, a concern which doesn't even have a telephone listed, and P. von Frantzius, 828 George street, who does—under the name of Mrs. Margarete von Frantzius.

Now Importer of Guns.

Hans Peter von Frantzius is the son of the late Fritz von Frantzius, whose brokerage house of Von Frantzius & Co. crashed shortly after his death in 1917. The elder von Frantzius was born in Germany and until his death was a leader in Chicago German circles.

In these times of peace the younger Von Frantzius is an importer of German guns. He advertises in numerous periodicals, one of which is the Journal of the American Medical Association.

"Luger automatic pistols, extra clips, imported ammunition," are among his offerings. A TRIBUNE reporter visited him in his basement office at 828 George street and sought to purchase a gun.

A dozen rifles were displayed on a rack. On a nearby table were samples of half a dozen calibers of automatics. In a closet nearby were German Lugers—lots of them. The reporter asked for a newer make of Luger—.30 caliber.

How Law Is Evaded.

"I'm all out of them now—but I've got a shipment in the customs house," Mr. Von Frantzius answered. "They'll be here shortly—in ten days—"

"Will you sell me one of these?" the reporter inquired, handling a heavier type of gun. "Sure, but they're pretty strict on us now—you'll have to let us send it to Evanston by mail—or Oak Park or Wilmette or some other place," he answered. "Just as long as it goes out of the city limits—we can't be responsible for what happens to it after that, you know."

The reporter purchased the gun. He had it sent to the address of another TRIBUNE reporter in Evanston. It was delivered last night. But——

Early in the evening the reporter called Mr. Von Frantzius again. "That gun hasn't been delivered and I've got to go north on a trip tonight—can you let me have another one?" he inquired.

Mr. Von Frantzius hesitated. "Sure—I'll have to take a chance," he said. "You can come over and get it——"

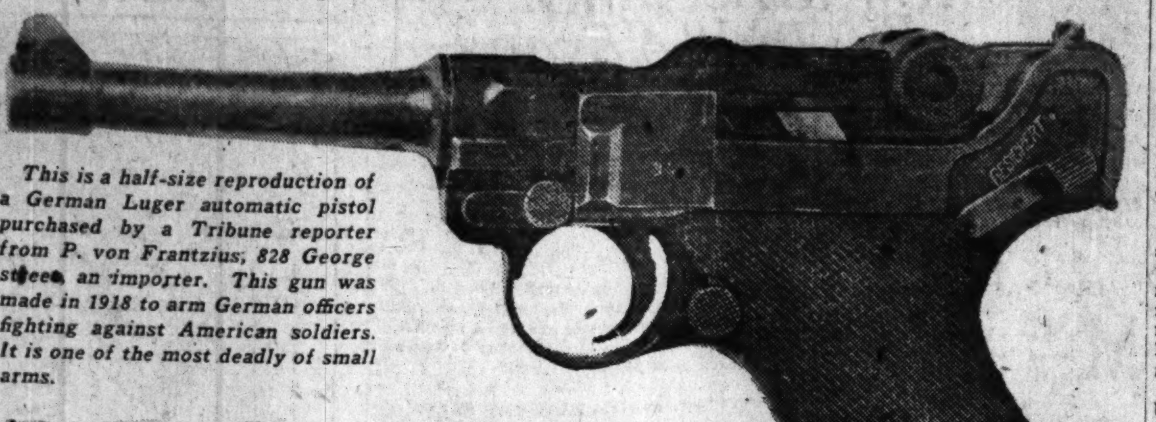
Suppose that TRIBUNE reporter had been a gunman with plans for a killing in his mind? Suppose he had got the gun in Evanston or Wilmette and had returned to Chicago with it and killed a public official or a citizen.

Chicago criminals can go to Gary, to Wilmette, to Evanston, and a dozen other suburban towns and have guns sent to them. "Tommy" O'Connor, hiding out in an Argo saloon or shack, could drop a postal card and have a United States mail carrier deliver him high caliber guns and hundreds of rounds of ammunition with which to battle and perhaps kill policemen, if he so wished.

Or a thousand men on the south or west side could send money orders to New York and have the United States mail service deliver them enough armament to attempt a revolution——

It's easy to get guns in Chicago.

GETTING GUNS FOR GUNMEN—IT'S EASY



This is a half-size reproduction of a German Luger automatic pistol purchased by a Tribune reporter from P. von Frantzius, 828 George street, an importer. This gun was made in 1918 to arm German officers fighting against American soldiers. It is one of the most deadly of small arms.

Above is a facsimile of the bill of sale given to a Tribune reporter Friday by Mr. von Frantzius when the reporter bought the Luger pistol pictured herewith. The gun was sold for $35. An extra ammunition clip cost $1.75. The gun was sent by mail to another Tribune reporter in Evanston, who received it Saturday. A Chicago criminal can secure a weapon the same way.

CRIME COMMISSION REPORT

Swift and certain enforcement of criminal laws is advocated and sentimental leniency to the murderer, burglar, and robber opposed in the annual report of Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the Chicago crime commission, made public yesterday.

In his report Col. Chamberlin points to the service of the commission in tabulating and maintaining accurate and impersonal reports on crime.

"At the close of its third year the commission finds itself an established institution and an important factor in the community," he says. "Its reputation for accuracy of statement, soundness of principle, fairness of judgment, and courage of performance has gained for it a degree of public confidence and support which commands the attention of police, prosecutors, and courts.

Want Causes Few Crimes.

"Privation and want actuate so few crimes in Chicago as to be almost negligible. Chicago criminals are criminals by choice. They participate in unlawful enterprises because it is profitable.

"While the punishment of the individual murderer, gunman, burglar, bandit, automobile thief, and other social vultures is necessary as a crime deterrent, it is of no permanent value unless the law acts with equal certainty and swiftness against all violators. And ably assisting these are the jury fixer, the man who refuses to prosecute, the man who evades jury service, the professional bondsman, and that most infectious agent of all—the unethical criminal lawyer."

GRAFT RAMPANT AMONG CHINESE, SPEAKER SAYS

The Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick of Union Theological seminary, New York, recently returned from China, warned his hearers last evening at a banquet at the Drake hotel not to be too sanguine about China as a republic. He spoke in the interests of the new Peking university under the auspices of four religious denominations.

"Graft, or squeeze," he said, "is a national institution. Every house servant expects his rake off. This being understood the practice can be taken into account in paying wages and is not a serious matter, but in politics it makes a real republic impossible unless conditions are remedied. The government is in chaos.

"There are still 70,000,000 pairs of bound feet among the women. Only 5 per cent can read and write. We must give China more time. Look at political conditions in Chicago and New York if you are inclined to condemn China too much for her slowness."

HARDING DENIES BOLIVIA'S PLEA IN ANCON MEET

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—The request of the Bolivian government for representation in the forthcoming treaty of Ancon conferences in Washington between Peru and Chile has been refused with regret by President Harding.

In his reply, which was made public today by the state department, Mr. Harding says that the matter of Bolivia's participation in the conference is a matter for the exclusive consideration of the two governments concerned and that, in the circumstances, he was precluded from taking the initiative recently suggested by the Bolivian government.

The President's message was in reply to a telegram received from President Saavedra of Bolivia, on Jan. 21, which contained an appeal in the name of the Bolivian people that the President listen to the claims of Bolivia and call that country to meet in conference with representatives of Chile and Peru.

POLICE BEATING QUIZ OFF; JUDGE WITHOUT POWER

Chief Justice Kickham Scanlan of the Criminal court, who, a week ago, promised a thorough investigation into charges of alleged brutality on the part of police officials, yesterday stated he did not want to shift responsibility, but he couldn't see any legal way whereby he could go into the question.

The matter first came before the judge on a motion in behalf of William G. Smith, who, according to his attorney, former Assistant State's Attorney James C. McShane, had become insane as a result of beatings by the police. At that time Judge Scanlan said he would go into the matter at length and when court opened yesterday several police officials and attorneys were on hand.

Acting First Assistant State's Attorney Edgar A. Jonas, said that the proper mode to proceed in such cases was for attorneys to make complaint to the state's attorney's office and a thorough investigation would be made. Several attorneys who were in court promised to bring cases of alleged brutality to the attention of the prosecutor's office.

Bandits Stage Fake Arrest; Rob Man of $50 in the Loop

A daylight holdup of a pedestrian in the loop was revealed yesterday when Jerome Sorce, 5263 Milwaukee avenue, asked the police to search for two young men who robbed him of a $50 check Friday. Sorce said he was waiting for a car at Washington and Wells street when the pair approached him, flashed stars, took him to the ninth floor of the Conway building, and robbed him.

THE TRIBUNE PROGRAM FOR MIDDLE WEST DEVELOPMENT

1. A Square Deal in Congress for the Middle West.

RESULTS OF THE WASHINGTON CONFERENCE.

Monday the Japanese diet opened in circumstances which must be gratifying to every one who hopes to see peace established as normal in the Pacific. A few weeks ago meetings were being held in Japan to protest against naval limitation. For months previous the vernacular press had been bellicose in its attitude and much making of war medicine was going on. Today the temper of the Japanese seems to have changed and not only have all three parties approved the Washington conference but the popular movement for a reduction of the army has been energized.

In other words, the Washington conference has reversed the situation in the Pacific. Prior to it the atmosphere of international relations was such as to make it increasingly hard to keep peace and increasingly easy to make war. The conference has produced a situation in which, we believe, it will be increasingly difficult to make war and increasingly easy to keep peace. No conference could abolish the possibility of war, but this conference has at least postponed the war danger and created conditions which if wisely utilized and developed will make war between Japan and the United States less and less likely.

There are unscrupulous influences in this country, as there may be in Japan and the far east, which are trying to keep the embers of international ill feeling burning. In this country, under pretense of protecting American interests, they are misinterpreting and even misstating the terms of the four power treaty. They are trying to defeat the naval building agreement also. They are willing to isolate the United States and assure the most powerful combinations against us. This propaganda reads like the pronouncements of the Pan-Germanists who wanted to overrun Europe and rule the world from Berlin.

We do not think the American people are in a mood to try experiments in ruling the world. They want peace and friendly relations whenever they can get them honorably and the Washington agreements offer a practical means so far as our most difficult relations are concerned. The naval pact, without compromising our defense, not only saves us billions which otherwise we should be compelled to expend on war preparation but avoids a naval rivalry the consequences of which would have been a final gigantic struggle for predominance. The four power treaty establishes machinery for friendly accommodations in the Pacific and creates a situation in which we can rationally follow a purely defensive policy in naval and military expenditure and management. It cancels the Anglo-Japanese treaty and the Philippines cease in the new circumstances to be a source of disquiet to Japan and a hostage to fortune so far as our peace is concerned.

War may come some day in spite of all forethought and self-control can do to prevent. But the Washington conference has postponed that day and laid foundations for a régime of peace among the powers of the Pacific; peace through conference, compromise, and the development of mutual interests. We have been saved the necessity of immediate expenditure on war preparation and the rapid drift toward international collision has been checked. If this does not meet the approval of the American people, regardless of party, we do not know them.

A LABOR RESERVOIR.

Arthur Evans has been giving readers of THE TRIBUNE a picture of what unemployment means, humanly speaking. He isn't theorizing or generalizing. He is just telling us what he saw and heard among some of the men out of work and out of luck. We should like to have every man in public life, every legislator, every leader of opinion, yes, and every man and woman who votes, read what Mr. Evans has to say. Then perhaps there would be steam enough back of our appeal for a labor reservoir, or work reservoir, perhaps we ought to call it, which would help to meet this evil of unemployment when it comes again. The Socialists think their system would solve this problem. We think it would not, or, at any rate, that it would create worse problems than it solved. But, however that may be, individualist or, as the Socialists call it, capitalistic society, has not solved the unemployment problem yet, and we think it is up to us to make more intelligent and persistent effort to solve it than has yet appeared.

We don't want the economic stabilization the Socialists think they can provide at the price which socialistic bureaucracy would exact. Under a régime of private initiative and personal freedom there are bound to be the expansion and contraction, the action and reaction, which are expressed in the alternation of good times and bad times. We cannot always foresee and, at any rate, will not prepare for these changes, but experience has taught us that they will come. We ought, therefore, to be able to make better provision to meet them, and it seems to THE TRIBUNE that it is possible to establish as a policy during periods of good times that plans and means for public works on a large scale should be prepared, such as road programs, drainage, and reclamation schemes, and public works of a nature not immediately necessary, so that as private work slackened, labor surplus could be taken up and much unemployment avoided.

This would result in an immense economic and social economy. The nation, states, and cities would be benefited by great public improvements, public wealth and efficiency advanced, demoralizing poverty would be ameliorated, and unhealthy political movements checked at the source.

We realize the complexity and difficulty of formulating and establishing such a policy. We realize there are dangers in its application. Nevertheless, unemployment is a problem which democracy ought to try to solve. It is a branch of the problem of conservation and we believe if it were addressed as vigorously as other phases of conservation, a partial solution at least could be found along the lines indicated.

SUBSIDY, PROHIBITION AND NAVAL STRENGTH.

The limitation of navy strength means that superiority will be measured by personnel, training and auxiliaries. If the United States and Great Britain have battle fleets of the same tonnage, the better fleet will be the one with the best trained men, the best gunners, and the best auxiliaries.

A country which has a great merchant marine will have ships which can be converted for war purposes. Its fast liners can be converted into airplane carriers, cruisers, etc. No one knows what aircraft will mean in the next naval battles. There is a dispute between air men and navy men over the validity of tests which have been made. There is an uncertainty, but the battleship has a new enemy in the air.

The navy aircraft need carriers. A carrier is the base of sea aircraft. They are no good without their base. Whatever the efficiency of the air fighters is to be on the high seas, it is based upon the efficiency of the carriers. The efficiency of the carriers is related to their numbers and their speed.

A country which has many fast passenger liners has in time of need many fast airplane carriers. Prevision can make the conversion from liner to carrier speedy and successful. Fast liners can be constructed with this emergency purpose in view. When they are added to a fleet, which otherwise has been maintained within the limitation agreement, its fighting strength is at once, and probably decisively, advanced over the strength of the fleet to which no such additions can be made.

Great Britain and Japan both are successful in maintaining merchant fleets. The United States is not. It is proposed now to do as both Great Britain and Japan do and subsidize the merchant marine.

American merchant shipping suffers in competition with British and Japanese because Americans must maintain much more expensive organizations. The crews are better paid and better treated. It costs more money to run an American ship than it does to run a British or a Japanese ship.

This is good for the American seaman, but it is fatal to the American ship. The ship cannot meet the competition of the British ship or the Japanese ship, which has both a subsidy and a lower pay roll. The American subsidy will remedy part of this, but it must be a subsidy large enough to overcome the lower cost of operation, to meet the foreign subsidies and then to maintain a passenger ship which many travelers will not want to take.

Naval auxiliaries must have speed. Much freight may go by slow boats. Time is not a necessitous element in their success. The great liners must have speed because the people of wealth who use them demand speed. That is an essential for the mails and for some freight.

Few foreigners and not many rich Americans will take a ship which is under the American prohibition. Most rich Americans drink. They have the money to get the liquor or they had the money to store it away in pre-prohibition days. When they go to Europe they want to travel speedily and they want freedom on board ship.

They will not sail under the Volstead act. Europeans of every degree of solvency drink and they will not take a ship which extends the prohibition law of the United States across the Atlantic. If they are coming in this direction it will be bad enough to meet prohibition face to face when they must. They will not anticipate their troubles.

Therefore the considerations which make fast ships profitable are eliminated from American shipping. The rich make fast ships pay dividends. The rich are not dry. The American ship is. This discussion has nothing to do with the merits of prohibition in the United States. It merely recognizes facts as they work out upon the future of the American navy under the limitations agreed upon.

If the United States is to develop its auxiliary service in a merchant marine, which plainly seems to be a national necessity, it must meet foreign competition on the sea either in normal or abnormal ways.

It must subsidize so that it can operate fast liners, convertible for war purposes, in spite of the fact that they will not be used by the people who want fast liners, or it must release its shipping from some of the disabilities.

If it cares to say that an American ship outside of the three mile limit is free to serve as other ships serve, it then can get down to equalizing the difference in cost of operation and to meeting the foreign subsidies. If it does not care to say this, then it must run a line of ships which will not be wanted by the people who might make them profitable.

We cannot afford to be without fast auxiliaries merely because we cannot get passengers on a dry ship. The Americans headed for Europe are less than six days from a drink anyway, and we cannot pursue them into wine cellars of London and Paris or dash the glass from their lips. We can say that the laws of the United States are for the control of people within its boundaries. We can do that or we can maintain fast ships artificially, footing the bills.

We shall be badly out of luck if in time of emergency we lack the ships and if our enemy adds to its fleet the fast ships from its merchant marine, converted into airplane carriers and into cruisers.

Whatever can be done from the air then will be done to our fleet, which will not be equipped with the carriers to provide a defense against attack from the air.

SMALL JOB BETTER THAN NONE.

[Waukegan Sun.]

It is a business axiom that it is easier for the man who has a job to get a better one than for the man who is out of a job to get any at all. The former is in touch with business and with other men who are working. He hears of chances and senses developments unrevealed to the man who is out of touch. He is in a position to give an active demonstration of his habits of industry.

For this reason a man may better be engaged in a distasteful occupation, or one which brings a lower wage than his ambition indicates, than to be out of work when good times begin. He is in line for the thing he wants.

WRITES Mr. Moore: "Mr. Insull said that every star of the grand opera company had been weighed and measured." So be prepared next year to read this from the critics: "Miss Garden was in magnificent voice last evening, but weighed only 127¾ ringside. Why the rôle should not have been intrusted to Miss Mason, who tipped the beam at 139½ just five minutes before the raising of the curtain, remained a mystery to the true friends of music. Miss Mason has resumed her road work and in 'La Bohême' will attempt to regain her title as welterweight soprano of America."

HEY! PROF, PUT ON YOUR CHAINS, YOU'RE SKIDDING!

IF—after having contracted to give lectures to seventy nurses from four different states on seven consecutive summer mornings at the Y. W. Camp on a placid lake, deep and cool and embowered; and if, on arriving one was hailed at the wharf by an hundred and nine nurses of five nationalities, possessed of pulchritude, teachable, charmingly deferential towards a medieval point of view, attending strictly to the business of the 9 a. m. assemblies, busy with note-taking, appreciative and voicing it in groups, at times in pairs, and once or twice or thrice, even individually—solitary and alone suppose we say; that the lecturer go swimming with them at 2 p. m. and go boating after the flag-lowering ceremonies in the sweet twilight and the treasonable moonlight; that all pedantry be eschewed and conventions canned; that the pelagic pavilion of the upper-deck of our doughty little boat be given over to more than mere pavan dancing; and, that after watching the yellow moon turn to silver and chariot towards an outpost star, while Indian love-songs floated across the waters and the ghosts of Indian men and maidens sent sweet signal from the soft shadows of the far shore—if a professor of prosey things, scholastic, a casuist in Sanskrit and Totempoles, should drink deeply of his environment and fill his dusty lungs with one sweet summer's fragrance and stay out one dreamy, deathless night 'till 9:45 by his accusing wrist-watch, should he be reprimanded for secretly praying in the month of December for another contract in June?

I winna tell you that.
And where I am? That too's taboo—
The world's my habitat.

But where I've been? Why, everywhere!
Down Never-Never's lane—
From Babylon to Timbuctoo—
In love and out again.

And how you'll know I'm really I—
Not too good to be true?

A VOICE FROM THE MISTY PAST.

R. H. L.: Was glad to see your picture the other day with Vangie and Hank. Your false whiskers didn't fool me. You were a lot thinner in the old days down in the old home town. People always thought we ran you through the press every day. I was a printer and you wrote the "High School Notes" and carried papers, and you were always hanging around the composing room. In that picture you are feeding the goat, but you didn't feed the goat in those days. You were always jeffing with tramp printers and feeding the kitty. Once you cleaned Thin Space Jones, Full Face Smith, and Box Carberry; then Full Face got mad and accidentally let a shooting stick drop on your head and caused an indention of five and one-half picas in the bone. I thought you had got all over that hurt until I heard you were a Col. Con. You were a dressy cuss. You always wore a seersucker coat, and you would come around to the composing room and get a handful of long primer em quads to put in the pockets to keep it from rolling up like a map. The other boys didn't know that trick and, anyhow, they didn't have any em quads to put in their pockets, and you would keep on wearing your seersucker coat after theirs had shrunk out of sight. Ah, those were the days! RIVER PIRATE.

SING ME A LULLABY.

O, sing me a lullaby,
Tender and sweet,
Some theme with a soothing air,
A soft chord to modify
Grief and defeat,
Like the hope of a simple prayer.

O, croon me a lullaby,
Compassionate
As love in a mother's breast,
Some measure to pacify
Trespassing fate,
With its fever of vague unrest.

O, chant me a lullaby,
Comforting, mild,
With the wings of a sweet content,
A love strain to fortify
Th' heart of a child,
And quiet its tired lament.

OLD FASHIONED ITCH.

MRS. K. W. "wishes the Danish itch cure for scabies, or old fashioned itch, which was published in your column some weeks ago."

REPLY.

Lomholt's method is as follows:

Dissolve three ounces of sublimated sulphur in six ounces of 50 per cent caustic potash in water. Gentle heating is required. The result is a clear, yellow solution called No. 1.

Mix three and three-fourths ounces of petrolatum with an equal quantity of water-free lanolin. Mix well, but do not heat. This is mixture No. 2.

Dissolve one-half ounce of zinc sulphate in two-thirds of an ounce of a 20 per cent solution of caustic soda in water. This is solution No. 3.

To seven and one-half ounces of No. 2 add six and one-fourth ounces of No. 1.

To this mixture of No. 1 and No. 2 add all of No. 3, and, after mixing well, add enough liquid paraffin to bring the amount of ointment up to one pound.

To this add about 30 grains of benzaldehyde or a sufficient quantity of some other deodorant or perfume to make the odor of the mixture less objectionable.

To use, take an ordinary warm soap bath at night. Rub the ointment over the entire body, except the face and head. It is not necessary to rub the ointment in as persistently as with other sulphur itch remedies.

Put on clean, sterilized night clothes. Sterilize all underwear.

The next morning wash the hands and neck with soap and water, but leave the ointment on the remainder of the body all day. Dress and go about the day's work as usual.

That night remove all the ointment by taking a hot water and soap bath.

The advantage claimed for this remedy is that it cures in one day, and the preliminary washing and rubbing is less than that required by other methods.

A short method, found very effective in one army hospital, was as follows:

First night—Scrub well with soap and hot water. "Get all the tops and scabs off."

Use an ointment consisting of balsam of Peru, 5 parts; official sulphur ointment, 30 parts. Rub in thoroughly. Fill all the scratches full. Get it down to the bottom of them.

The next morning give a bath and apply the ointment lightly. Give a light application of the ointment each morning for four to six days.

Sterilize all underwear, night clothes, and bedding with heat.

These remedies are for scabies or ordinary itch caused by a parasite. As a rule, plain sulphur ointment cures this disease, provided these requirements are met:

1. The preliminary scrubbing is well carried out.
2. The ointment is well rubbed in.
3. The insects in the underwear, night clothes, and bedding are killed by heat.
4. No member of the family is left uncured to reinfect the cured.

SHOULD GREASE THE SKIN.

P. A. F. writes: "The skin on my body is dry and scaly. When I am in a warm climate where I perspire freely it clears up, but comes back in the winter. This summer I was in a cooler climate and did not perspire much, and my skin stayed dry and scaly all summer.

"There is no itching or uncomfortable feeling comes from it. I have considerable stomach gas. Do you think this trouble could come from a bad stomach? I bathe regularly."

REPLY:

If you cannot remain in a place where the air is warm and moist, grease your skin.

Except in the arid districts, the outside air in winter is wet enough except on those days when the temperature is around zero.

ITCH SEASON IS HERE.

Mrs. A. M. S. writes: "Can you kindly give me a positive cure for scabies or 'itch'? Is sulphur a cure? If so, how is it to be used? If not, what will entirely eliminate this disease?"

REPLY:

Sulphur ointment will do the trick, provided you will play the game according to the rules. These are:

1. Every affected member of the family and every affected child in the schoolroom must be cured.
2. All underclothing must be sterilized by heat.
3. Every scab must be scrubbed off with brush, soap and hot water.
4. Every crack, sore and hole in the affected skin must be rubbed full of sulphur ointment.

MIGRAINE.

M. H. H. writes: "After reading your article on 'Digestion Headaches' I decided to write you regarding a particular kind of headache to which I am susceptible.

"In the beginning of these attacks either eye gets a blindness before it which passes across the vision and obstructs the view of that eye. This lasts exactly one-half hour. I have timed it, and it seldom varies.

"After the blindness passes over a pain comes above the opposite eye; then I get sick at my stomach. If I take something to make myself vomit then I am relieved, but a dull headache generally lasts the rest of the day if I have no opportunity of lying down during the attack. These attacks do not vary except which eye it starts with."

REPLY:

You have a typical migraine.

Every case must be studied carefully if the cause and cure are to be found. In some the eyes are at fault. In others, other organs. In still others the diet, or exercise.

Certain French physicians think they get satisfactory results from the use of peptone internally. Some cases are cured by leading a very strenuous outdoor life.

BRING IN THE COAL!

Chicago, Jan. 22.—[Friend of the People.]—We would like to ask if you would use your influence in having Lunt avenue, between North Campbell and North Rockwell, filled in so we can have our coal and provisions hauled in. The street mentioned is in an awful condition, and as it is imperative for the people in the vicinity to get the use of it as soon as possible will you not get quick action on this? J. P. R.

Lunt avenue at the location referred to is now being filled with ashes.

THOMAS H. BYRNE,
Superintendent of Streets.

GYPSY GOLD DIGGER.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I happened to drop in to a gypsy fortune teller one day. She saw I was all upset and began to tell me what she could do for me to overcome my troubles. I gave her what she charged, $6. She had me come back from time to time, each time requiring different sums of money. Then after all she told me to save up $100 for her to work with for four or five days. Altogether she took $245 of my money and has done nothing for me. What legal action can I take? I. G. S.

Apparently the most appropriate legal action would be to have a conservator appointed to take care of your money for you.

You might try reporting the facts to the state's attorney's office.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

ST. LOUIS AVENUE BRIDGE.

Chicago, Jan. 22.—[Friend of the People.]—Does the city plan to build a bridge over the north branch of the Chicago river at St. Louis avenue? We have heard rumors of it for some time and would like to know when it is to be started. P. F. L.

The city does not contemplate the erection of a bridge at this point and there has never been an appropriation for the project.

I also wish to say there is a foot bridge one block east of St. Louis avenue at Bernard street and a bridge at Central Park avenue, two blocks west of the point mentioned, for both foot and vehicular traffic.

ALEX. MURDOCH,
City Engineer, Bureau of Engineering.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A person signed a lease as surety for a social club incorporated under Illinois laws. Can the person expel the club without the consent of the lessor if he finds there is gambling going on?

2. Who will be held liable for the conditions, the surety or the board of the club?
3. If the board of directors has forbidden the practice, but the club overrules the action, what then?
4. What is the alternative to escape responsibility? T. O. G.

1. Not merely by virtue of his relationship to the lease. By reporting the facts to the police or to the state's attorney's office he might get action.
2. Primarily the persons doing the gambling.
3. Depends on additional facts.
4. Have the criminal law enforced.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

LAND GRANTS.

Chicago, Jan. 24.—[Friend of the Soldier.]—Can I take up a soldier's claim for land on my father's civil war discharge? My mother has married twice since the death of my father. What must I do to file on the land? H. M. C.

We know of no law providing land grants to the children of civil war veterans. If you wish to take up a homestead claim write for literature to the general land commissioner, department of the interior, Washington, D. C.

SAFETY FIRST.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A says it is not unlawful for him to keep a loaded revolver in his home for protection. B says that he could have A arrested if he wanted to and fined for keeping firearms in the home. Which is right? W. C. D.

A is right.

RETURNING TO THE "PECK CASE."

Chicago, Jan. 21.—Why did Maj. Peck inspect the 35th division just after it had come out of the Argonne? He inspected it because this division, which had sought relief from the front line, had suffered exceedingly heavy losses, and it was necessary to determine whether or not these losses had been unavoidable. It was further necessary to determine whether this division, if given replacements, could again be sent to the front where men were badly needed, or whether it must be sent to the rear for reorganization.

The lives of thousands of young Kansas and Missouri men hung on the nature of Maj. Peck's report. If he had reported that discipline was as good as could be expected after a hard fight, that the officers were capable of handling their men, and that the losses those men had borne were not due to poor leadership, in short, that the enlisted men of the division would have a soldier's chance for their lives, then this division, with replacements, would have again taken its place in the front line.

Such a report would have been easy to make; it was the one the division wanted, for they were brave men; but such a report would not have been the truth, and it would have sent men who are now living back to hopeless slaughter. Instead of this, Maj. Peck reported the truth as he saw it, the truth that is known and recognized wherever soldiers, be they of the national guard, the regular army, or the reserves, meet and talk, and that truth is that the majority of the officers of this division were not capable leaders and had no control over their men. Maj. Peck spared no one in his report. His condemnation of certain brother officers of the regular army serving with this division was just as severe as that directed against ex-officers of the national guard.

How did Maj. Peck judge as to the discipline, leadership, and care of men as exercised by these officers? He was a trained inspector and he judged in comparison with conditions as he had found them in other organizations which had also suffered heavy losses and which were tired and dirty from the fight, but whose officers had kept control of the situation and were inspiring their men to pull themselves together, for a good officer who is going to safeguard the interests of his men must at times save and guard these men, even from themselves.

Where did Maj. Peck inspect this division? He inspected it where he found it, which was in the rear of the line and where the division itself had asked to be sent. Maj. Peck wears on his world war ribbon more bronze stars for participation in major engagements than do the members of the 35th division. He first won his spurs as a soldier in hand to hand fighting in the jungles of the Philippines, and the frequent insinuations which have appeared in recent attacks on Maj. Peck to the effect that he made his inspection safe from hostile fire are unjust, unwarranted, and cowardly. Maj. Peck has been attacked as a "lily fingered West Pointer," a "Prussianized martinet." The facts in the case are that he is not a West Pointer, that he came as a private soldier to the regular army from the national guard, and that, far from being representative of a Prussianized military cast, he, through sheer ability and sterling worth, made his own way in the military game a shining example of what is possible only in a democracy.

On the day that Maj. Peck was called upon to make his report he faced one of the turning points in a man's life. One form of report stood for glory to a division which had fought hard and failed only through the incompetence of leaders; it meant the lasting gratitude of influential men, preferment and an insured career in the army; the other report meant that all his life he could contend against the hate and resentment of these men, but it meant the saving of the lives of thousands of America's manhood who were offering their all at the altar of patriotism. It is doubtful if any of these thoughts even flashed through the mind of Maj. Peck at that time. He is a soldier, trained to do a soldier's duty, and he reported the truth as he found it.

The wording of Maj. Peck's report is of little consequence. Whether or not it was tactfully written is a minor detail.

Today in Kansas and Missouri, the states from which the 35th division came, the states which are opposing the promotion of Maj. Peck, there are thousands of mothers, wives, and little children, who have their sons, husbands, or fathers home again with them because Maj. Peck had the courage to contend for the principle that men shall not go to the battle line unless they go properly led and with the fighting chance of a trained man.

ALLEN R. EDWARDS,
Major, United States army.

TO SETTLE BOTH THE ARMY AND THE CONSTABULARY QUESTION.

Green Lake, Wis., Jan. 19.—Gen. Pershing says that an army of 150,000 is needed for our security. There is a general feeling outside of army circles that more than 75,000 would be an unjustifiable charge on national finances.

THE TRIBUNE has repeatedly recognized the need of a state constabulary similar to Canadian Mounted police or Texas Rangers. THE TRIBUNE is emphatically right. Present motoring conditions show the necessity.

With enabling legislation, Gen. Pershing could have his army of 150,000. They could be detailed for active service in part. Others could be loaned to the various states to serve as state constabulary for not more than six months in the year, and serve the balance of the time as regular soldiers. The army now details officers to instruct cadets and state militia in various states. Is there anything inconsistent in using our soldiers for police service part of the time?

I. F. STRAUSS.

YOU'RE WELCOME.

Chicago, Jan. 24.—We very much enjoyed the concert and TRIBUNE news broadcasted by the Westinghouse Manufacturing and Electric company last night. POEMS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

HIGHLAND MARY.

By Robert Burns.

Ye banks, and braes, and streams around
  The castle o' Montgomery,
Green be your woods, and fair your flowers,
  Your waters never drumlie!
There simmer first unfauld her robes,
  And there the langest tarry!
For there I took the last fareweel
  O' my sweet Highland Mary.

How sweetly bloomed the gay green birk,
  How rich the hawthorn's blossom,
As underneath their fragrant shade
  I clasped her to my bosom!
The golden hours on angel wings
  Flew o'er me and my dearie;
For dear to me as light and life
  Was my sweet Highland Mary.

Wi' monie a vow and locked embrace
  Our parting was fu' tender;
And, pledging aft to meet again,
  We tore ourselves asunder;
But O! fell death's untimely frost
  That nipped my flower sae early!
Now green's the sod and cauld's the clay
  That wraps my Highland Mary.

O, pale, pale now those rosy lips
  I aft hae kissed sae fondly!
And closed for aye the sparkling glance
  That dwelt on me sae kindly!
And mould'ring now in silent dust
  That heart that lo'ed me dearly!
But still within my bosom's core
  Shall live my Highland Mary.

VATICAN READY FOR ELECTION OF NEXT POPE

Italians Give Mercier Big Welcome.

ROME, Jan. 28.—[By the Associated Press.]—With the arrival in Rome today of Cardinals Mercier, Kakowsky, Dalbor, and Csernoch, archbishops, respectively, of Brussels, Warsaw, Posen, and Budapest, every nationality which was expected to have delegates at the conclave which is to elect a successor to the late Pope Benedict XV., is now represented in Rome, with the exception of America.

Cardinal O'Connell of Boston is on high seas and Cardinal Dougherty of Philadelphia and Cardinal Begin of Quebec sailed from New York yesterday.

Only certain religious rites prescribed by canonical law, in which the cardinals will be participants, remain before the sacred college is locked within the Vatican walls to choose the successor of Pope Benedict XV. The apartments for the occupancy of the cardinals are now in readiness.

Three More Requiem Masses.

There will be three more requiem masses, in which four or five cardinals will take part, and after that the conclave will begin.

CARDINAL MERCIER.

On Monday mass will be sung in the Sistine chapel by Cardinal de Lai, while Cardinals Granito, Pompili, and Cagliero will assist. In the ceremony connected with absolution at the tomb Tuesday Cardinal Vico will be the celebrant, and Cardinals Francisca-Nava, Merry del Val, Cagiano, and Maffi will act as assistants. In the absolution ceremony on Wednesday the celebrant will be Cardinal Granito and the assistants Cardinals Gasparri, Mercier, Lualdi, and Lucon.

Most of Vatican Staff Barred.

The conclave will open on Thursday, when Cardinal Vannutelli, dean of the sacred college, will celebrate mass in the Pauline chapel. All the doors of the Vatican will be bolted and the palace will be shut off from the outside world.

Drs. Battistini and Cherubini, who attended the late pope, remain within the Vatican. The monks and the whole Vatican staff were notified that their services would be no longer needed until the end of the conclave. A very limited number of employés will be retained for indispensable service, and these will be sworn to secrecy and silence as the conclave opens.

Cardinal Mercier, primate of Belgium, arrived in Rome today after a journey across Italy that resembled a triumphal procession. His reception was especially enthusiastic at Milan, where large crowds greeted him at the station with cheers of "Long live Belgium," "Long live Cardinal Mercier."

Reports that the cardinal had been taken ill preceded him from Milan. The cardinal seemed distressed over this and said he had only a slight cold.

"Only my modesty suffered from the wonderful reception accorded me," he added.

Rome Crowd Greets Him.

Although his train was an hour and a half late, a large throng of the people of Rome awaited the cardinal's arrival at the station and cheered him when he emerged from his sleeping car.

None of the foreign cardinals has attracted such attention from the populace on his arrival as did the Belgian prelate. Cardinal Maffi himself, the most popular of the Italian cardinals, received no such welcome. Cardinal Mercier's arrival led to the fact being recalled that the last non-Italian pope was the Belgian archbishop of Liege, born in Utrecht and elected as Adrian VI. in 1522.

Cardinals Dougherty and Begin Sail to Vote for Pope

New York, Jan. 28.—[United Press.]—Dennis, Cardinal Dougherty of Philadelphia, and Cardinal Begin of Quebec sailed today for France on the liner La Lorraine on their way to Rome to attend the conclave which will elect a successor to the late Pope Benedict XV. Both cardinals expressed doubt that they would arrive before the election had taken place.

James Black, Wholesale Grocer, Dies of Pneumonia

James Black, 56 years old, 5202 Kimbark avenue, for many years identified with wholesale and retail grocery trade, died of pneumonia at his home yesterday. He was long president of the Home Grocery company, a chain system in the city, and a member of the firm of Black, Kelly & Co., wholesale grocers. He is survived by a widow, Mrs. Maude Black, and three children, J. Lawrence, James H., and Margaret Black.

Richard Westacott, U. S. Vice Consul in London, Dies

LONDON, Jan. 28.—[By the Associated Press.]—Richard Westacott, who has been American vice consul in London since 1897, died here today. He was born in Boston in 1849. Mr. Westacott had one of the largest lists of acquaintances of any official connected with the government service abroad. He was known by all the American habitual travelers in England.

MRS. MARY CROWDER, mother of Maj. Gen. Enoch H. Crowder, died at her home in Washington yesterday, aged 88 years.

DRUGGED?

[Daguerre Photo.]

Mrs. Margaret Mayer, 21 years old, 3414 North avenue, yesterday reported to the police that she had been robbed of $20 by two youthful bandits. One of them, she said, held his hand over her nose and mouth. She detected an odor similar to chloroform, she said. The police believe an attempt was made to drug her.

INSURANCE HEADS TELL LOCKWOOD BODY OF PROFITS

Admit Seeking All the Traffic Will Bear.

New York, Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Representatives of the largest fire insurance companies in the United States admitted before the Lockwood committee today that their object was to get as much profit "as the traffic could bear."

They also declared that in spite of losses of millions of dollars in speculative Wall street stocks they were in no way obligated to invest any part of their assets in real estate mortgages and that the companies were conducted by the directors whose actions did not concern the public.

Investment Records Revealed.

Figures indicating that investments of insurance companies over a period of fifteen years in real estate mortgages paid 20 per cent more than investments in stocks and bonds, and proof that a large part of the income of the fire insurance companies comes from policies on real estate, did not serve to shake the attitude of the officials against compulsory investment in real estate mortgages.

Reply to Committee's Appeal.

Those who gave the official answer of their organizations to the Lockwood committee's appeal for a change of policy so that the housing shortage might be relieved were Henry Evans, chairman of the board of the Continental and four other fire insurance companies, and Frederick C. Buswell, senior vice president of the Home Fire Insurance company, the largest in this state, with assets of $75,000,000.

Three More War Heroes Come Home Tomorrow

The bodies of three more Chicago heroes who lost their lives overseas will arrive at the Dearborn street station at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning. They are those of Private John A. Eaton of Battery D, 122d field artillery, next of kin Mrs. Gladys R. Eaton, 2509 North Clark street; Private John Andrew Dulski, Company E, 7th infantry, next of kin Andrew Dulski, 2715 South Kedzie avenue, and Private Herman J. Fransen, Company G, 4th infantry, next of kin Herman Fransen, 2650 North Racine avenue. Military funerals will be held under the auspices of the American Legion.

GAS HEATER NEARLY CAUSES DEATH.

Peter Blum, 72 years old, 536 North La Salle street, is in a serious condition at the county hospital from carbon monoxide poisoning. He lighted a small gas heater in his room last night and the oxygen in the room was rapidly consumed. He was found unconscious by Harry Gerber, owner of the rooming house.

HIGH SCHOOL MENTORS WANT SIX HOUR DAY

High school teachers of the city are protesting against conditions which require them to do extra work, and scores have signed pledges not to teach more than six hours, according to a statement issued last night from the offices of the High School Teachers' council, 64 West Randolph street.

"The congested condition of the schools has inconvenienced both teachers and students," said Supt. Peter A. Mortenson. "In many schools the pupils attend in 'shifts,' and a comparatively few of the teachers work as many as eight hours a day.

"However, the teachers know the board of education is in sympathy with aversion to more than six hours' work, and there is no danger of a 'strike.' The condition created by our effort to accommodate 45,000 high school students, or 6,600 more than we had last year, is being remedied as rapidly as possible."

1922 CONGRESS RACE LOOMS AS NATIONAL TEST

Harding's Administration Seeks Confidence Vote.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—The 1922 campaign to elect a new house of representatives and one-third of the senate and thereby test the confidence of the country in the Harding administration is already under way.

The Republicans are "pointing with pride" to the accomplishments of the administration in its first year, while the Democrats are "viewing with alarm" the Republican record and loudly are calling for the repudiation of the Harding régime.

President Harding and the Republican leaders in congress are striving to round out a completed program of legislation and administrative reforms that will command the unquestioning indorsement of the electorate.

Senate Control Assured.

There is no possibility of the Republicans losing control of the senate in this election, but they are prepared for the usual "off year" reduction of the majority in the house of the party in power, and their chief concern will be to prevent this reduction from touching the vanishing point.

Loss of the house would put a crimp in the legislative program of the Harding administration and would be regarded as damaging the prospects of Republican success in 1924.

Ohio Looms as Battleground.

Ohio, the president's state, will be the great spectacular battleground of the campaign. The Democrats regard conditions in Ohio particularly promising, not only for achieving a repudation of the administration, but for developing a presidential candidate of their own in the process.

Senator Pomerene, Democrat, one of the ablest members of the upper house, is a candidate for reëlection, without opposition in his own party. He will be a formidable candidate for even the ablest available Republican in Ohio to oppose. If he wins he will become at once a leading candidate for the Democratic nomination for president in 1924. The Pomerene campaign was inaugurated at a Democratic love feast at Trail's End, former Gov. Cox's home at Dayton, last Wednesday.

Fess to Seek Senate Toga.

Representative Fess probably will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for senator and Representative Burton, who formerly was in the senate, also may run. If both come out, it is not unlikely that Walter Brown of Toledo will jump into the race. Gov. Davis has announced that he will not be a candidate and Representative Longworth is not likely to run.

Senator Pomerene led the fight to unseat Senator Newberry and he intends to dwell on the question of enormous campaign expenditures in his canvass for reëlection. He made much of that issue in his successful contest with Herrick in 1916.

Excitement in Indiana.

Indiana is already seething with excitement over the contest between Senator Harry S. New and former Senator Albert J. Beveridge for the Republican nomination for senator in the primary on May 2. Senator New, who is up against the biggest fight of his political career, left here last week to remain until primary day, making his bid for renomination.

Mr. Beveridge has not made a formal announcement of his candidacy, but it is believed to be imminent. He has been touring Indiana for six months speaking, not on political questions, but on the Bible and moral topics, chiefly before women's clubs.

The former senator has an enormous following, but whether he has sufficient organization backing is the important consideration in his case. The Republican organization is backing New except in Marion county, where it was captured by the anti-New forces when Mayor Shanks was elected in Indianapolis.

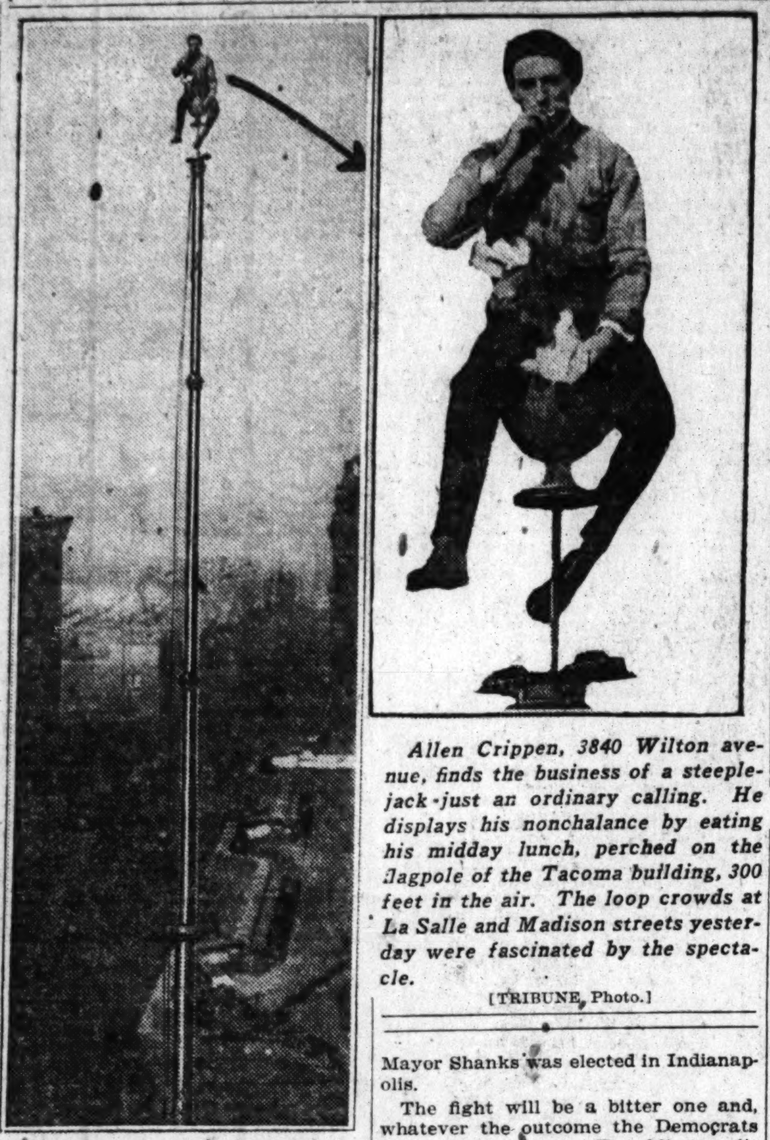
The fight will be a bitter one and, whatever the outcome the Democrats are counting upon a Republican split in the election sufficient to enable the Democratic nominee to walk in. They are trying to draft former Vice President Thomas Riley Marshall for their nominee, but he is balking.

In Michigan Senator Townsend is said to have a hard fight on his hands for renomination. John G. Emery of Grand Rapids, former national commander of the American Legion, has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination and Representative Kelley and Whitney Watkins of Manchester are regarded as posible entrants.

Possible candidates for the Democratic nomination are Woodbridge N. Ferris of Big Rapids, former governor, and former Representative Frank Doremus.

Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, who is so independent that he votes with the Democrats about as often as the Republicans, long has been a thorn in the flesh of the G. O. P. organization. To pluck it out is again the ardent desire of the Republican national leaders, now that the senator is a candidate for renomination. Senator Lenroot, whose reëlection La Follette fought two years ago, has been deputed to find a nemesis and is still looking.

Without a Parachute to Guard Him



Allen Crippen, 3840 Wilton avenue, finds the business of a steeplejack just an ordinary calling. He displays his nonchalance by eating his midday lunch, perched on the flagpole of the Tacoma building, 300 feet in the air. The loop crowds at La Salle and Madison streets yesterday were fascinated by the spectacle.

HUSBAND OFFERS TO DIE IN COURT TO PROVE LOVE

Asks Judge to Give Him Bottle of Poison.

Professing a fervent love for Miss Doris Esheldy, his divorced wife and a co-ed at the University of Chicago who caused his arrest several weeks ago because he annoyed her, Edward Graham of St. Paul yesterday offered to prove it by committing suicide before Judge Samuel H. Trude of the Englewood branch of the Municipal court.

"Just Fill a Bottle with Poison—"

"I love Doris, I love her sincerely," Graham told the judge, "and to prove it I will commit suicide right here if you will fill a bottle with poison. Send me to the county jail or anywhere. I want to go away and give Doris the chance she deserves. I have been holding her back. I thought she loved me, but now I know she doesn't."

Graham and Miss Esheldy were married four years ago in St. Paul. She divorced him shortly afterward, when he was sent to jail on charges of robbery. Several weeks ago he arrived in Chicago and began annoying the girl, she charges, while she attended the University of Chicago.

He professed love for her, threatening to kill her if she refused to come and live with him. The girl avoided him. Later he told her that he had made negotiations to aid a band of mail robbers, and as his reward the band had promised to kidnap the girl.

Hickson Finds Him Sane.

Following his arrest on the campus of the university, Judge Trude ordered him examined as to his sanity. Dr. William Hickson reported that he was sane. Yesterday Judge Trude fined Graham $200 and costs or six months in the house of correction, after the young man had said that he would not allow any one to pay the fine for him. After he has served his sentence, he said, he is going back to St. Paul and let Doris alone.

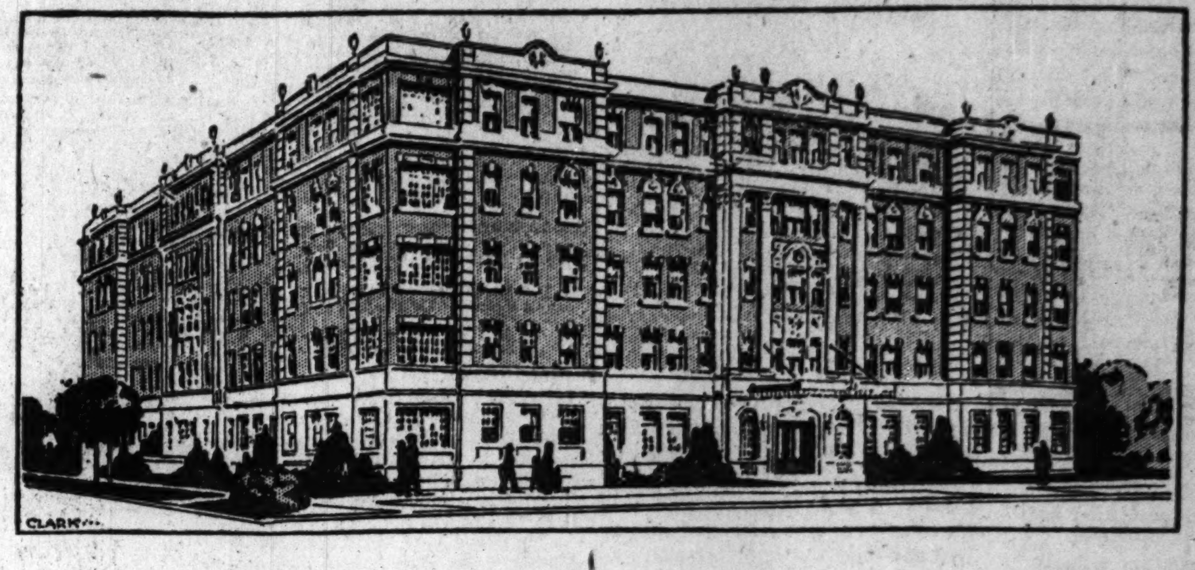
Oak Park Arms

WASHINGTON BOULEVARD AT OAK PARK AVENUE
Oak Park, Illinois



Announcing the Opening for Inspection

THE MANAGEMENT calls the attention of those who seek the refinements of an exclusive apartment hotel de luxe to the OAK PARK ARMS—without doubt the most perfectly appointed residential hotel in or around Chicago.

Beautiful without and commodious within—ninety-four servant-supplied apartments, from one to four rooms, are now available to responsible people. Utmost discretion will be used in the selection of tenancy, so that the high character of the hotel will be reflected in its guests. References will be required in every case.

The management will be personally directed by Mr. Henry Nuehold—formerly connected with the Blackstone and Sovereign of Chicago, the Savoy of London, the Continental and Grand Hotels of Paris, as well as the Grand Hotel of Vienna. The OAK PARK ARMS is destined to become a center of social activity.

You are invited to make a personal inspection at your earliest opportunity. Although everything is provided for your comfort, the tariff will be moderate in the extreme. Here, sufficiently distant from the smoke and dust of the business sections, you may enjoy life to the full. A request for further details and list of available apartments will receive prompt response.

START WORK ON WATER STREET IS PLAN BOARD PLEA

Urges Improvements Even at $20,000,000.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The Chicago Plan commission issued a booklet yesterday which urges that the South Water street improvement be started at once even at the estimated cost of $20,000,000.

The commission says that this improvement will save $12,000,000 a year, in that it will reduce loop traffic 16 per cent, save 16,000 market vehicle trips per day and generally benefit the whole city.

Did Not Include Widening.

"When the improvement was first suggested," reads the pamphlet, "it was estimated it could be made for approximately $7,000,000. However, this did not include the widening between State street and Michigan avenue along South Water and River streets, the construction of the upper level of South Water street between Wabash and Michigan avenues, and the supplemental connection with the lower level emerging in Market street between Lake and Randolph streets. These have increased the estimate to approximately $12,000,000.

"Since then the increased value of South Water and River street property due to the Michigan avenue improvement; and the increased cost of labor and materials, due to war conditions, have brought the present estimated cost up to $20,000,000."

No Mention of Experts.

The commission might also have included the increased cost of city experts. On this and other improvements five experts collected more than $2,742,000 in a trifle over one year, while one-twenty-fifth of that amount would have been liberal compensation, according to a recent proposal of the Chicago real estate board. But the commission glosses over the boost in expert fees with golden silence; and neither is mention made of the application of President Faherty to continue to hire experts this year on the excessive fee basis. The increase in the cost of city experting as well as the items named by the commission boost the cost of the improvement to the public.

Aside from the benefits to be derived from the improvement, the commission says that the order of the federal government to raise the height of the bridges over the river makes it highly expedient that the improvement be made now.

Must Raise Streets.

When the bridges are raised the commission says that "the streets must be raised, retaining walls must be built, new pavements must be laid and new sewers and sidewalks must be constructed." The commission says that property will be damaged thereby. This damage it estimates at $6,000,000 and the construction at $3,000,000.

This improvement is the construction of a two level street. The upper street will be 110 feet wide and extend from Michigan avenue to Market street, crossing every new north and south street at the new height required by the federal government ruling.

STUDENT RISKS HIS LIFE IN VAIN TO SAVE YOUTH

Swims Under Ice of Lake to Get Body.

For several years Evan Gottlieb, student in Northwestern university, has been wondering of what sort of stuff his heart was made.

Late yesterday came his test. Last night he lay swathed in blankets in his room at 729 Argyle street, fighting off the fever that threatened to result from what folks along the north shore were calling his "heroism."

Brother Cries for Help.

Gottlieb was skating on the lake near Argyle street when he heard a lad cry "help." A short distance away he saw Fred Brunette, 8 years old, waving his arms and heard him shouting at the top of his voice that his brother was drowning.

A minute later Gottlieb was standing near the edge of the brackish pool into which Raoul H. Brunette, 13 years old, of 1050 Foster avenue, had disappeared.

Hesitating for only a moment he stripped, unbuckled his skates, and plunged in the icy water.

Then while spectators waited for what to them seemed hours he swam back and forth under the ice in search of the drowning lad.

Pulmotor Applied in Vain.

"They'll both die," the spectators said.

A few minutes later Gottlieb appeared at the ice's edge. In his arms was Raoul.

The pulmotor was summoned. Their efforts, however, were futile. The boy was dead.

Gottlieb was near dead himself from exhaustion and exposure.

But last night he silenced those who were lauding him. "It was nothing," he said. "I'm only sorry that I found the lad too late."

Try Sulphur on an Eczema Skin

Costs Little and Overcomes Trouble Almost Over Night

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and smooth.

It seldom fails to relieve the torment without delay. Sufferers from skin trouble should obtain a small jar of Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.

Fill in the Blank.

A horoscope blank appears in another column of today's TRIBUNE. Such a blank will be printed in THE TRIBUNE every day and every Sunday. Write your name on the blank. Give your street address and the city and state in which you live, also the month and the day of the month on which you were born. You do not have to give the year, as your age has nothing to do with this casting of your horoscope. Send the horoscope blank, after you have filled it in to Doris Blake, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, 7 South Dearborn street, Chicago. Then watch THE TRIBUNE every day and Sunday for the names of the lucky winners.

I will cast these horoscopes. The letters in your name—the names of your father and your mother, the day of your birth, and the dates when your horoscope is sent and when received by me all count in my decision. Luck is constantly changing. If your name is not lucky one day it may be the next or the day following or next week. Don't give up. Keep on trying. Send in your name on the horoscope blank, not once, but many times, every day if you desire. Send in not only your name, but the names of your father, mother, brother, sister, or a friend's. Use the horoscope blank as printed in THE TRIBUNE, or a separate sheet of the same size.

The Date Counts.

Remember, the date of sending will count. The date when I receive your horoscope blank will count. The combination of letters in your name and your father's and your mother's name will count.

Fortunes in cash are to be paid by THE TRIBUNE. Big prizes will be awarded every day and Sunday. An additional prize of $10,000 will be paid to the person whose name I find to be the luckiest of all.

It costs nothing to enter your name. Everybody is eligible.

The names of the first prize winners will be printed in THE TRIBUNE next Wednesday. Other lists of prize winners will appear every day in THE TRIBUNE, including Sunday. Therefore, you will want to watch both THE DAILY and SUNDAY TRIBUNE after you enter your name, to see if yours is among the lucky ones.

You may win a share of the fortunes in cash to be paid. You may win the additional prize of $10,000 for the luckiest name of all.

Quarrel Over 10 Cents Leads to Man's Death

John Hall, 27 years old, colored, 4953 Federal street, was stabbed and fatally wounded last night by one of two colored persons in front of 4950 South Dearborn street, following a quarrel over 10 cents, which he is said to have owed one of his assailants.

Eight families were driven to the street when fire, supposed to have been caused by a defective furnace, started late yesterday in the basement of a four story apartment building at 3119 South Park avenue.

PLAN TO PLACE MORE NURSES IN RURAL DISTRICTS

In an effort to correlate the health activities, particularly those of nurses, in Cook county and outside of Chicago, a conference presided over by Dr. I. D. Rawlings, state director of public health, was held yesterday at the Chicago Nurses' club, 116 South Michigan avenue.

Among those who addressed the meeting were Dr. John Dill Robertson, commissioner of health, Chicago; W. A. Evans, health editor of THE TRIBUNE; Miss Harriet Fulmer, supervisor of rural health nursing of Cook county, and Miss Harriet Ely, superintendent of social service, Evanston. There were, in addition, approximately sixty health officers and nurses in attendance.

A committee was appointed to determine needs and to confer with the county board, the aim being to increase the number of nurses in the rural districts.

Hunt Wife Who Did Not Return from Store

Edward Barton, a glazier, living at 6148 Greenwood avenue, appealed to the police last night to aid him in a search for his wife, Pearl, 21 years old, who has been missing from her home since yesterday. Barton told the police that his wife went to a store to collect money due her for work.

Advertising Manager Wanted

An association of manufacturers marketing a successful product through the furniture trade is seeking a man of initiative and decision for the position of advertising manager.

They desire a man who is experienced in national advertising and in all forms of sales promotional work. He should have some ability as an organizer and be able to inaugurate effective co-operative work with dealers. His outstanding qualification should be common sense.

This man will be given the assistance of a capable advertising agency in his work, and will have support for every fundamentally sound idea he advances. His progress will be entirely dependent upon the results he gets. If you think you are the man, write for an interview, stating the salary you want and complete information.

THE DUO-ART REPRODUCING PIANO

Would you not be delighted to have Paderewski enter your home and play for you? Although you cannot command his presence, you still can enjoy the masterly playing for which he is known. The Duo-Art piano brings to you an absolute reproduction of Paderewski's playing. All the fire, expression, and technique with which he endows his performances may be enjoyed at will in your own home. A host of other famous pianists such as Bauer, Ganz, and Grainger also record for the Duo-Art. For lighter music it is equally rich in entertainment. In many instances the composers themselves play the master rolls of sparkling dance pieces which win instant popularity. The Duo-Art may be purchased in both upright and grand models. It is obtainable in the Steinway, Steck, Stroud, Wheelock, Weber, and Aeolian pianos. Prices begin at $750.

THE LYON & HEALY REPRODUCING PIANO

Here is an instrument which combines the highest expression of piano designs with the most improved reproducing action. Built in the justly popular Apartment Grand models, it brings within the modern home all the attributes of the large grand. It is also made in upright form. The playing of the great artists is reproduced by this instrument with lifelike accuracy. The personality injected into the original playing of the compositions is recorded in the rolls for your delight. Actually, when listening to the Lyon & Healy Reproducing Piano you would not be able to distinguish the original playing from the reproduction by the piano. The Lyon & Healy Reproducing Piano in upright form is priced at $1100. Grands from $1950 and up.

AN INTERESTING DISPLAY OF PIANOLA PLAYER PIANOS

A most interesting display of these instruments may be seen on our 3rd floor. The pioneer of the modern expression piano, it contains such fundamentally important features as the Metrostyle, the Themodist, and the automatic sustaining pedal. The Pianola puts it within one's power to control all the varied phases of musical expression. The remarkably sensitive action brings every note and every phrase of music under instant control. Its success has been remarkable. Be sure to make it a point to examine these features. They assist you greatly in solving your piano question. The Aeolian Pianola is obtainable in upright models in mahogany, oak, or walnut. The case designs are of the most modern type. Prices begin at $645.

NOTHING DOWN ON A PLAYER PIANO

Pay only for the first selection of rolls. Here is a most unusual offer. Never before has it been made. Just think what it means.

You obtain a high grade player piano for only a trifling present outlay. 30 months to pay the balance. Picture to yourself the pleasure you would have with this instrument.

ST. LAWRENCE PLAN UNDER NEW FIRE FROM EAST

Gotham Makes Last Stand on Canal Project.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

New York is redoubling its fight against the St. Lawrence seaway which the middle west and west is urging for the industrial and agricultural expansion of the midcontinent. Its opposition is based on the idea that to give Chicago, Milwaukee, Duluth, and other lake ports direct access to the Atlantic by a deep waterway would be detrimental to the New York barge canal and to the port of New York.

Following the recent submission to congress of the report of the international joint commission recommending the St. Lawrence project, the New York state waterways conference committee has just issued what it terms a "call to arms."

In a circular letter to chambers of commerce in the seaboard region it says:

Slated to Go Through.

"A member of our committee has been to Washington and reports that the St. Lawrence project has a majority in the senate and dangerously close to a majority in the house. He states it is slated to go through.

"Our field secretary is also in Washington now struggling with the situation. He has sent a call for help. Get your chamber of commerce and other civic bodies to act at once. Omit nothing which will have effect. We are too sanguine."

It suggests that senators and congressmen from New York be deluged with letters and wires to "get busy in opposition."

The Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Tidewater asociation, with eighteen states as members either through act of legislatures or proclamations of governors, has been analyzing from time to time the opposition from New York. One pamphlet received yesterday takes it up.

"The west," it says, "wants an open road to the sea, and New York says, 'No, you can't have that; instead we will build you another wharf.'

Substitutes Not Enough.

"If better facilities in New York were at all a substitute for this open road they would not be enough. The improvements now planned for New York, with rapidly mounting unit costs as size of terminal projects increases, are only sufficient for the present day traffic. They make no allowance for a United States with twice the present production.

"Make no mistake. A solution that is based on maintaining at New York a monopoly of the national export trade is no solution. Cleveland, Toledo, Detroit, Milwaukee, Chicago demand the right to grow and to prosper by serving the country that looks to each as its port. The west will not be deprived of its rights. The monopoly of export trade in New York is no substitute for this open road to the sea."

Day and Pitney, Supreme Court Justices, Are Ill

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28—Justices Day and Pitney were prevented by illness from attending today the regular weekly conference of the justices of the Supreme court. MRS. BRAUN SUES TO STOP SALE OF THEIR FURNITURE

Louis E. Hart, counsel for George P. Braun Jr., asked for a change in venue when he appeared before Judge Charles A. McDonald in the Superior court yesterday on the plea that he feared Judge McDonald was prejudiced against Mr. Braun.

The hearing was on the motion of Mrs. Ves... McFatrich Braun, to restrain her husband from selling or disposing of the furnishings of their $50,000 home at 1221 Astor street, which he had placed in storage.

The pending litigation is the outcome of a petition for separate maintenance filed by Mrs. Braun, who left her husband last August following conduct toward her which she alleges was unbearable. Her two children are with her.

Mrs. Braun stated through here attorney that she wanted the home kept for her two children and that she intends in her separate maintenance suit to ask that a trust including the homestead be created for them by her husband.

RATS FLEE FROM HUNGRY RUSSIA; STORM HUNGARY

BUDAPEST, Jan. 28.—Rats and mice are migrating in swarms from the Russian famine area, and Budapest is now overrun with them. The market halls, food stores, and warehouses are swarming with the rodents, which have bitten several merchants.

The situation is aggravated by the dearth of cats in Hungary. During the war, when food was scarce, thousands of families ate cats. The comparatively exorbitant price of 3,000 to 4,000 kronen is being offered for a kitten by shopkeepers.

In some villages the peasants have given up poultry raising and have turned to the more lucrative business of cat breeding.

'EGG KING'S' FALL LAID TO FIASCO IN CHICAGO 'FLIER'

News from New Orleans that Frank & Co., of which Leon Frank, "egg king," is head, has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $860,000 and assets of $256,000, opened up the story yesterday of the "king's" unsuccessful campaign to add Chicago and the middle west to his kingdom.

How Frank came to Chicago early in November with a fat bank roll and the announced intention of running the price of standard storage eggs to 60 cents was told by Russell J. Poole, head of the living costs committee.

"Frank testified before Judge Rush when application was made for an injunction to stop his gambling in eggs that he had made $36,000 a day for ten days through the bulge in egg prices," Mr. Poole said.

"Frank made $360,000 in ten days and the paper profit of himself and two other egg gamblers reached $1,500,000 at the high point. Then came the application for an injunction to stop the trading in 'paper eggs.' The facts came out and the open market caused the market to be glutted with fresh eggs, sending the price of storage eggs down to 20 cents.

and the paper profit the three big egg gamblers reached $1,500,000 at the high point. Then came the application for an injunction to stop the trading in 'paper eggs.' The facts came out and the open winter caused the market to be glutted with fresh eggs, sending the price of storage eggs down to 20 cents.

"The trio lost $900,000 in a week and the smash of Frank & Co. in New Orleans is one of the results."

SHOWDOWN THIS WEEK IN CON CON ON COOK COUNTY

BY E. O. PHILLIPS.

Cook county's delegation goes to Springfield tomorrow night solidly aligned against the attempt of downstate interests to restrict the legislative representation of Chicago and outlying suburbs in the new constitution.

C. H. HAMILL.

The showdown comes Tuesday or Wednesday on the adoption of the pending proposal, backed by the opponents of Chicago, that prevents the election of a majority either in the senate or house from Cook county and places permanent control of the legislature in the hands of the downstate.

To put over this proposal requires fifty-two affirmative votes that the Anti-Saloon League, and its child, the County Representation League, must deliver, to accomplish the purpose that has held the constitutional convention at "mark time," for more than two years.

What Failure Means.

Failure of the anti-Chicago forces to lineup the fifty-two votes means that immediate steps will be taken looking to a reasonable limitation of Cook county in one house and a representation in the other based upon actual population. It is probable that the Cook county members and between a dozen and twenty conservative downstate members rapidly will reach an agreement on such a proposal before the end of the week.

Success of the restrictionists in the judgment of most observers, means the finish of the constitutional convention forthwith, because of the belief that a draft of a new constitution carrying legislative restriction never can be ratified by popular vote.

Plans of Cook Delegates.

Charles H. Hamill has been made floor leader and campaign manager for the Cook county delegation in the impending proceedings.

The county representation plan now up to the convention, if adopted, would give at once 113 state representatives to the downstate counties and sixty-one to Cook county, with such other provisions that Chicago never could secure a majority in the senate or house. This in face of the fact that Cook county has 47 per cent of the voting strength of the state.

WANT CHICAGO RESTRICTED

The Franklin Typothetæ of Chicago through its legislation committee has sent an appeal to the downstate committee of the constitutional convention to restrict Cook county in both branches of the legislature. In its communication it says:

"The Franklin Typothetæ is composed of about 600 large and small firms of employing printers in the city of Chicago.

"In our judgment it will be nothing less than calamitous for the business interests of Illinois to fall into the control of Chicago politicians.

"The business interests of Chicago and, we feel, of the printing industry in particular, will be disastrously affected when certain classes of politicians of this city, unhampered by the stabilizing influence of downstate legislators, gain control of the lawmaking functions of the state.

"Hence our desire to be recorded as in favor of the limitation of Cook county in both the upper and lower branches of the state legislature."

The appeal is signed by William C. Hollister, chairman, and James McNally, Winfield P. Dunn, Jeremiah M. Cox, and Fred J. Riley, members of the legislation committee.

Sixty-five Ballots to Convict Postal Robber

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 28.—Thomas Hayes of St. Louis was found guilty of the $46,000 postal robbery at Wood River, Ill., last August by a jury in Federal court here today. The jury was out forty-seven hours and convicted Hayes on the sixty-fifth ballot.

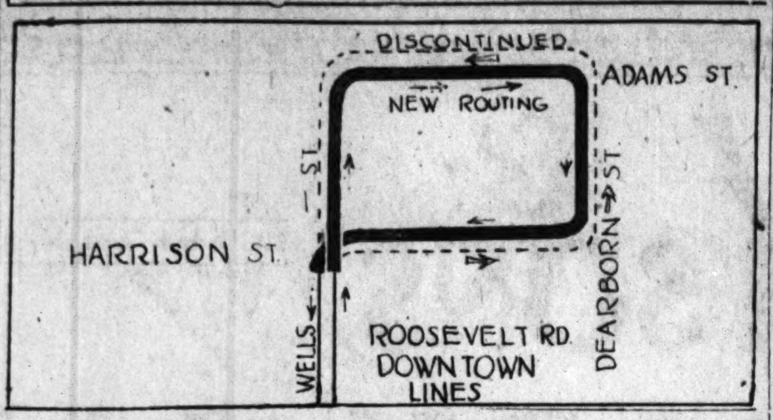
Oak Park Now Proposes War Memorial Building

A movement has started in Oak Park to abandon the idea of a statue as a war memorial in favor of a community building. Chairmen say they were unable to collect the $65,000 needed for a monument.

STILL GOING; MAN FOUND DEAD.

Police are investigating the death of Samuel J. McGuire, 4720 South Halsted street, whose body was found in the kitchen of his home yesterday. A moonshine still on a gas stove was boiling when the police entered.

YOUR NEW CAR ROUTE



The rerouting of nine street car lines in the downtown district will become effective today. By the new system it is claimed that the cars may be speeded up and more cars made available for the fare payers.

A map of each new route has been printed in The Tribune within the last week to serve the convenience of these particular car riders. The last of these maps is presented today—that of the Roosevelt road downtown line. This line has turned east into Harrison street from Wells, then north in Dearborn, west in Adams, and south in Wells. The new route is exactly the same, except that the direction will be reversed. The car will start on its loop where it now ends and end where it now starts.

POLITICAL NOTES

Primary petitions are in circulation for the renomination for state senator in the Third district of Senator Samuel A. Ettelson, corporation counsel.

In the Thirty-first senatorial district, including the south half of the Twenty-fifth ward and parts of the Twenty-first and Twenty-third wards, the Deneen-Brundage organization has slated Roy Juul for senator and Representative Carl Mueller and former Representative James A. Steven for representatives. Senator Willis H. Cornwell is a candidate for renomination. The city hall will have a candidate for the senate and will support Representative George A. Williston for renomination.

State Senator Thurlow G. Essington of La Salle county has announced his candidacy for renomination. The Small forces have been marked for slaughter.

State Senator Clarence F. Buck is reported as critically ill at his home in Monmouth.

Henry R. Rathbone, Republican candidate for congressman at large, has started upon a state-wide campaign. Former Congressman George Edmund Foss is said to be preparing to file his petition. Richard Yates, present congressman at large, will start his renomination campaign this week.

CITY HALL AGAIN GIVES "L" LINES A HELPING HAND

Ettelson Holds They May Lock Doors.

Once more displaying a friendly attitude toward the elevated lines, the Lundin-Thompson administration yesterday came to bat with a legal opinion which blocks completely efforts of the city council to pry open the locked doors on the Northwestern "L" line. The opinion, written by Assistant Corporation Counsel Carl J. Appell and approved by Corporation Counsel Ettelson, is directed to Chief of Police Fitzmorris. It tells him to disregard the council's resolution of Jan. 18 which ordered him to use the police, if necessary, to make the "L" road open its doors.

The council's resolution called the chief's attention to the danger to which passengers would be subjected in case of a fire or accident. Mr. Ettleson's opinion in effect advised Chief Fitzmorris to wait for an accident or other emergency before acting. It says:

"In the case of some sudden emergency, such as fire or other accident, probably nobody would question the right of the police to interfere and open the doors and gates or cause them to be opened.

"But in the absence of such emergency, where it is merely a question of a general policy as to the best manner of operating the cars, it appears to us to be a matter of 'regulation of a public utility,' in which the Illinois commerce commission is vested with sole and exclusive jurisdiction.

The Ettelson opinion will keep the doors closed for the present in the face of the council's order on Chief Fitzmorris that they be opened.

B. J. Fallon, general manager of the elevated roads, told an aldermanic subcommittee yesterday that the roads want permission to extend various elevated platforms where the steel work is already constructed, so that eight-car trains can be run on the Jackson Park-Evanston line.

Salesmen Wanted

Are you a retail salesman? The J. C. Penney Company needs capable salesmen for managers of its new stores. Would you like to be manager of a retail store in which you own a one-third interest—paid for out of the profits of the business?

If you are between 25 and 40 years old, have good habits, can give us the highest references, have had thorough experience in small or medium-size department store, or are experienced in general store work in special lines—either clothing, shoes or dry goods,

We Want You

While of course we want to secure the very best experienced men, we are not expecting the superman. Experience has taught us that some of the greatest successes come from the ranks of average men. We believe that every man has within him "that something" which will lead him to success if properly guided and given the right opportunity. Limited experience, plus character, a lot of ambition, industry and a desire to achieve are the prime factors we are looking for in young men. Investigation will prove that this is an exceptional opportunity.

The investment of money is not necessary for your success with us. The financial backing of our company is ample. What we need are young, healthy, vigorous and capable salesmen who are determined to go to the top while they have youth and energy. We pay you while you are proving your ability.

Here is our proposition outlined briefly:

Men come to us first as retail salesmen in one of our stores. During the period of proving their ability they learn the greater possibilities of co-operative effort. Their progress depends upon their ability and effort. As our new stores are opened, the managers are selected from our sales force.

When a man makes a success of the management, he is sold a one-third interest in a new store and becomes its manager. He may afterward acquire a partnership in other stores which are the outgrowth of the one in which he first received a financial interest. To those who do not possess the capital to purchase a one-third interest in a new store, the money is loaned by the J. C. Penney Company and is repaid from subsequent profits of the store.

The J. C. Penney Company, which was started in 1902 with one store, now operates 312 stores in 27 states (of which 14 are located in Illinois, 8 are in Indiana, 13 in Iowa, 14 in Michigan, 13 in Minnesota, and 11 in Wisconsin), selling dry goods, shoes, clothing for men, women and children, and kindred goods. Experience as a retail salesman in one or more of these lines is absolutely necessary for consideration. Do not apply unless you meet our requirements.

This beautiful closed car is the most attractive value ever offered by Hudson.

It is shown at the Chicago Automobile Show for the first time anywhere. It is bound to capture chief interest.

Come see it. It concerns you personally—and your plans for buying a car, whether open or closed model.

An examination of the Hudson Coach will pay you well.

The Coach will cost you less even than the open model of any car to which you compare Hudson in quality, performance and reliability.

And see how fully it meets your closed car requirements, at a saving of perhaps $800 to $1500. Think of a closed car on the famous Super-Six chassis, for $1795, f. o. b. Detroit.

That is less than 6 per cent above the cost of Hudson open models. It is a sensational achievement in car manufacture.

You need no other assurance with respect to the beauty, quality and smartness of the Coach than the fact that Hudson has always led in building fine closed cars. It has created styles that are patterns of the industry. The Coach is in keeping with Hudson's best traditions.

It is certain to be the most popular type Hudson ever built. Be sure to see it. It is just out. Early deliveries will be possible for those who place their orders at once.

SMALL ASKS AND GETS NEW DELAY ON MAKING PLEA

Wants Separate Trial Move Decided First.

Waukegan, Ill., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Gov. Len Small today was spared until Monday at least what his friends consider the "disgrace" of stepping up in open court and pleading to the conspiracy charges contained in the indictment against him.

THOMAS MARSHALL.

It had been expected that when his case was called before Judge Claire C. Edwards the governor would plead "not guilty."

But before the bailiff rapped for order, C. C. LeForgee, chief of counsel for the defense, had taken up this subject with attorneys for the state. He said he had been looking up the law and was convinced that his client's rights would be better protected if the pleas of the defendants were not entered until after the motions for separate trials for Gov. Small and his codefendant, Vernon S. Curtis, had been disposed of.

State Agrees to Delay.

Assistant Attorney General Thomas Marshall, in charge of this part of the case, consented to the delay, and Attorney W. W. Schroeder began the argument for the severance of the cases, the battery of cameras was dismounted, and most of the spectators left the courtroom.

It was reported further that when the pleas are entered the governor will not rise from his seat or say a word. This report is to the effect that when Judge Edwards calls upon him to plead the plea will be offered by his counsel, and because of the silence of the defendant the court will enter the plea of "not guilty" for him.

Pleas for Separate Trials.

Attorny Schroeder opened his argument by reading the affidavits of Gov. Small and Curtis in support of the separate trial motions. The former contended that his position as governor entitles the "people" to have him tried separately. The Curtis affidavit recited that newspaper articles dealing with the charges against the governor have created a prejudice which would injuriously affect him unless he were given a separate trial.

Following Mr. Schroeder's argument, Assistant Attorney General Marshall briefly discussed precedents and the legal basis for motions for severence.

Attorney Marshall talked until 3:30 o'clock, when court adjourned until Monday.

YOUTH, INNOCENT, HELD 8 DAYS BY POLICE AS THIEF

An investigation of the arrest of a 19 year old boy and his retention in various police stations and the county jail for eight days, during which time he was not allowed to communicate with any one, was ordered yesterday by Judge Michael L. McKinley in the Criminal court when it was learned that he was not the person wanted by the police.

The boy, Hazen Griffin, 748 East 37th street, who served three years in the navy, was arrested a week ago Friday as he stood at the corner of 38th street and Cottage Grove avenue. He was waiting for his mother, who was on her way home from work, when police drove up in an automobile and asked him his name.

He told him it was Griffin and was arrested. The police took him first to the Stanton avenue station, where he was kept a while, and then transferred him to the station at 48th street and Wabash avenue. He was kept there for two days, then taken to the Hyde Park station, and a day or two later to the county jail.

Yesterday he was brought into court on a writ of habeas corpus obtained by Attorney John D. Tyrrell. The youth told the judge that he had no idea of what he was being held for, and then Policeman William Whitwell told Judge McKinley that a mistake must have been made.

MAN STRUCK BY STREET CAR.

While walking behind a street car at Clybourn avenue and Larabee street, Kai Rasmussen, 22 years old, 2011 North Racine avenue, was struck by another street car and slightly injured yesterday.

JUMPED ON HER NECK, SHE SAYS; SEEKS DIVORCE

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 28.—Charging that her husband, George C. Hickox, prominent clubman, theater owner, and head of several coal companies, "jumped on her neck," threatened to kill her, and "made love" to Mary Bagby before his wife, Mrs. Marjorie Hickox today filed suit for divorce, alleging cruelty.

Mrs. Hickox's bill described her husband as a "free spender" whose income is at least $40,000 a year. She said he threatened to kill her if she did not get a divorce.

Mrs. Hickox said her husband refused to put in writing an offer of $400 a month in addition to $20,000 insurance with her as the beneficiary. The wife said her husband told her he expected to marry Miss Bagby as soon as he was free.

RUSSIA TO ASK ANNUAL LOANS OF $400,000,000

Also Wants Pact to Cut Down Army Costs.

MOSCOW, Jan. 27.—[By the Associated Press.]—Russia is going to Genoa "to discuss facts and not principles," declared M. Sokalnikov, acting commissary for finance, in an interview today with the foreign newspaper correspondents. Sokalnikov is the man who in 1917 was allotted the task of nationalizing the private and other banks of Russia.

Many experts are now compiling data, he added, for submission to the Genoa conference, showing that the reconstruction of Russia possibly would involve a loan of $400,000,000 annually and showing that the cost of foreign interference in the revolution would perhaps equal that of Russia's old debts.

Cannot Pay Without Loan.

"If Russia is not given a reconstruction loan we cannot pay her debts," he declared. "The problem of stabilizing Russia's paper rubles is similar to that of the whole of Europe, and it is only possible through the long work of reconstruction. Under favorable conditions Russia may in three to five years reduce the amount of her paper and return to gold coinage.

"It is not true that Russia's gold reserve is now $30,000,000. It is upwards of $200,000,000 gold rubles (about $100,000,000). Russia is anxious to reduce her expenses, such as maintaining her army, which is costing annually the equivalent of 500,000,000 gold rubles.

Make Russia Safe for World.

"At Genoa we shall ask that war cease. If this is settled then Russian concessions to foreign capital will be safe. If not then the world situation will be too uncertain for capitalists to invest in Russia."

Regarding the establishment of foreign banks here, M. Sokalnikov said for the present it was not necessary for each bank to admit participation by the soviet government in its management. Alluding to private property, he said the soviet government was interested in preserving the nationalization of mines, oil, and coal fields, railways, and forests, but not real estate.

CAPT. JAMES RUSSELL ELECTED COMMANDER OF BLACKHAWK POST

James Clayton Russell, formerly a captain with the wars plans division of the general staff corps, was elected commander of Blackhawk post of the American Legion at a special meeting. Mr. Russell is now directing activities for the annual reunion of the 86th division. He was recently one of the leaders in a suit against a German newspaper. He is a captain in the reserve corps and a member of the Yale Club of Chicago and the American Geographic society. Much of the important business of Blackhawk post for the last year was handled by Mr. Russell.

Two Boys, Each 13, Held as Purse Snatchers

Two boys, each 13 years old, were arrested yesterday after they had snatched a purse from Mrs. Anna Hertz, 1352 West 13th street. They are being held for the juvenile authorities. Their names are Alfred Palnero, 1346 Blue Island avenue, and Bennie Kahabsky, 1133 Newberry street.

FORTUNE SPENT BY MRS. ROGERS, CORONER IS TOLD

With the receipt of two letters yesterday, one from the Louisville Trust company and the other from George F. Thompson of Junesboro, Colo., Coroner Peter M. Hoffman announced that he would soon have a complete accounting of the $300,000 fortune which passed through the hands of Mrs. Ursula Thompson Rogers, former north shore society girl.

Immediately following the finding of Mrs. Rogers and Alfred Nichols, an actor, dying of poison in a Grand avenue rooming house nine days ago, search was begun for the fortune of Mrs. Rogers.

Inquiry from her brother, George Thompson, revealed that he had taken over most of her estate. He set the amount of money which she had in her possession while in Chicago at $13,000. His inference was that she had inherited a large fortune, but had dissipated it.

In a letter received yesterday Louisville bank officials said that Mrs. Rogers had spent most of her fortune. Their estimate of the value of her property six months tgo was $35,000.

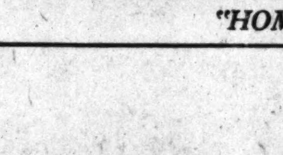
"HOME OF THE BABY LOBSTER"



The North American Restaurant is the most distinctive sea-food restaurant since the days of Rector's, which was under the same ownership and management. Also, it is the only Chicago dining place where fried chicken, hot from the pan, is ready every minute of the day.

At prices 100% or more higher no "service" restaurant can improve on North American's food quality

Suggestions:

Breakfast:

Half big grape-fruit 15c
Fresh toast and butter 5c
Coffee cake, sweet roll or Zwieback 5c
2 eggs, fried in butter, and 4 strips of bacon 30c
Honey waffle, with butter, 3 strips of bacon, pure maple sap or honey 25c
Individual pot (2-cups) of coffee 10c

Lunch:

Oyster stew, made in an individual dish, with big New York Counts, an entire bottle of Certified milk and a big piece of butter 35c
Halibut and peas 35c
Pork tenderloin 40c
Chicken salad, all white meat 50c

After Shopping or Matinee:

French pastry 15c
Ice cream and ices 15c
Combination salad 30c
Fresh crabmeat salad 50c

Dinner:

Half-dozen Cotuit oysters on the half shell with cocktail sauce 25c
One dozen fresh shrimps, with cocktail sauce 30c
Breast of Chicken with bacon and cream gravy or giblet sauce 65c
Tenderloin steak 75c

After Theatre:

Fried oysters—7 New York Counts fried to your order with Tartar or Chili sauce or ketchup 35c
Fried Frogs legs with Tartar sauce 50c
Chicken a la King 60c

It is an actual fact that by dining here (where you pay only for the food you eat, plus merely the cost of preparing it) you can get food of the highest quality at a cost at least 40 to 60 per cent less than any high-class dining place must charge to include "service." Often your saving is as much as 100 per cent.

You probably spend at least $4 or $5 a week for meals downtown. A saving of only 40 per cent means a saving of $2 a week. That's $100 a year. And that amount will pay the premium on a good fat insurance policy. And that's the least you will save. Here there is no one to be tipped and that gives you another saving. And you make a further saving when you have guests.

Remember our food portions are all big and generous. Most of them are ample for two people and there is no extra charge for sharing them. So it is possible for two or more people to get a splendid lunch or dinner here (by sharing portions) for even less than half what the same food would cost in any other high-class dining place.

Perhaps there is no reason for you to figure out how you can save money. But with most people there is, and lots of reasons. If so, this is the restaurant for you. Here you get just the food you wish—and it is always the very highest quality. And by serving yourself you save from forty to sixty per cent.

Bring the "Kiddies." They are welcome.

GRIFFITH LEADS IN BATTLE TO RULE SINN FEIN

Majority of the Delegates Backs Free State.

BY PAUL WILLIAMS.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]

DUBLIN, Jan. 28.—The fight between the faction demanding an Irish republic or nothing and the leaders supporting the Irish Free State will be resumed at the convention of the Sinn Fein which will be held here on Feb. 7.

Of the 1,485 Sinn Fein clubs in Ireland about one-half have elected their two delegates and reports indicate a majority of the delegates have been instructed to uphold Michael Collins and Arthur Griffith and the provisional government. With this element in control, the Sinn Fein constitution will be amended and the organization will name candidates at the election of the first parliament who will sustain the free state.

De Valera to Renew Fight.

Eamon de Valera will seek the adoption of a resolution binding the members to name only candidates for the parliamentary election who will bind themselves not to take the oath of allegiance to the king.

Mr. de Valera has counselled tolerance regarding possible differences of opinion, but the press favorable to him is openly hostile to the efforts of the provisional government. The De Valeraites are called upon to remain true to their cause and to oppose the free state compromise.

Collecting Defense Fund.

A defense fund is being collected "to uphold the Irish republic." Leading the movement are the fifty-seven members of the Dail who refused to approve the agreement creating the free state.

It is the intention of the De Valeraites to send at least one speaker to the United States to seek financial support from the American association for the recognition of the Irish republic, of which there are 850,000 paid members, according to officials here.

Suicide Avenged; Rival Kills Stolen Wife and Self

Muscoda, Wis., Jan. 28.—John Swanda, farmer, shot and killed his wife and then committed suicide today, erasing the last two sides of an "eternal triangle." Two years ago Matt Havlak shot and killed himself after a quarrel with Swanda over Havlak's wife, Sonia. Havlak claimed the other man had been too attentive. Shortly after Swanda married the widow. Neighbors reported the couple had been unhappy and had quarreled frequently.

HONORED TODAY

William McKinley, martyred President, in tribute to whom thousands today will wear carnations, his favorite flower.

TOO MANY FEED AT PUBLIC CRIB, PLEA OF LOWDEN

Niles, O., Jan. 28.—"Let the proportion of public employés continue to increase as rapidly as they have in late years and we will within a reasonable time witness this phenomena: our population divided into two classes, those holding public office, a minority, it is true, and all others working to support the minority in office. From that condition to the soviet form of government is but a single step," Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, said here tonight in addressing the McKinley day banquet.

"Whatever the nominal purpose, the keenest activities of public employés' organizations are directed toward an increase in pay. These organizations have come to be so powerful that they exercise a very great influence upon legislative bodies.

"Though a large majority of our people still earn their own livelihood in private pursuits, the minority which derives its sustenance from the public treasury has become large enough, thoroughly as that minority is organized, to frighten city councils, state legislatures, and even congress into complying with its demands."

FIGHT AGAINST CANCER WINNING, SPECIALIST SAYS

Atlantic City, N. J., Jan. 28.—Marked results already have been observed in the fight against cancer, Dr. Harvey Gaylor, director of the New York State Cancer Research laboratory, today declared before the American Roentgen Ray society in session here.

Despite the progress noted, however, Dr. Gaylor asserted, a large number of cancers are met with that will not yield to the new methods of treatment.

During the day the society held a symposium upon the value of the X-ray and radium in the treatment of cancer. The physical factors concerned in the work were reviewed by Prof. John F. Shearer of Cornell university.

NATION TO HONOR McKINLEY TODAY WITH CARNATIONS

79th Anniversary of the Birth of Martyr.

Thousands of Americans will wear carnations today in honor of the birthday of William McKinley, twenty-fifth President of the United States, who was born just 79 years ago.

The carnation was President McKinley's favorite flower.

Because of Mr. McKinley's preference, the Carnation League of America was formed in 1903 by Louis G. Reynolds of Richmond, Ind., as an annual memorial to the martyred President and dedicated to national patriotism. Through the league's activities, the wearing of the carnation has become prevalent on Jan. 29 throughout the nation.

Revell Pays Tribute.

Some of the qualities which made the former President a leader of the first rank were outlined in a statement issued yesterday by Alexander H. Revell, a member of the board of trustees of the league.

"William McKinley was always willing—always patient," he said. "He took one step at a time. He strove to do the work at hand—the task that lay nearest. Some called him an opportunist, but few of our Presidents have achieved more of their objects than he, or arrived more certainly at the goal they had in mind.

How He Would Meet Task Today.

"There are many tasks today which, if Maj. McKinley were here, we know he would face herocically, without fear and trembling. The spirit of McKinley—to reiterate—the spirit of patience—waiting and doing the work that lies nearest—the spirit that sees the goal, but is content to take one step at a time for the people, is that American spirit which, if Americans would abide in, would win victories for themselves, their country, and for civilization."

Maj. McKinley was elected President in 1896. Four years later he was re-elected by the largest majority given to a President up to that time. He was assassinated in 1901.

GOVERNORS MAY AIR VIEWS ON TAX FREE BONDS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Governors of all the states will be asked by the house ways and means committee to give their views on the proposed constitutional amendment prohibiting the future issuance of tax exempt securities by states and municipalities.

Although it has been supposed that there would be considerable opposition to the proposition from the states, the opponents have failed to put in an appearance at the hearings which have been in progress. Before taking action the committee desires to know just what the sentiment is among state officials.

Further hearings have been postponed until a soldiers' bonus bill is acted upon.

They want to know why Franklin sold twice as fast as the industry in general during 1921.

The 32nd February furniture sale at savings decidedly worth while

The conditions under which this sale was organized were more propitious than any in years. Already there has been a substantial advance over manufacturer's price prevailing at the time we bought. Many lots we secured even below the market, for the manufacturers sold them to us on the basis of the lower costs of lumber stocks on hand. Moreover, we have continually readjusted prices on our regular stocks, until now every piece of furniture on our floors is quoted at a lower price than in 1921

The comprehensive assortments afford you a broad choice of artistic period and modern designs in furniture for every room—all substantially built, serviceable and well finished—and however much or little you buy your savings will be decidedly worth while.

Furniture designs of our own origination are an important feature of this February sale. These exclusive creations have been brought out in response to a demand for furniture of individuality, yet conforming to the canons of good taste.

The "Aisle de Luxe"—The "Galleries"

Along the "Aisle de Luxe," seventh floor, are faithful reproductions of antique furniture, richly upholstered in hand loomed and needlepoint covers. The "Galleries," ninth floor, are a suite of artistic interiors, furnished in harmonious period designs, or adaptations—a Chicago "show place."

Three furniture floors filled with remarkable values

The seventh floor, State, is devoted to living room and miscellaneous furniture, a discriminatingly chosen assemblage of the best, in quality, design and finish.

The upper seventh, Wabash, contains bedroom and dining room furniture in remarkably complete assortments. Notable values featured here for February.

The lower seventh, Wabash, displays fiber, reed and painted sun parlor and breakfast room furniture in one of the largest and most comprehensive collections to be found anywhere. Juvenile furniture—an attractive assortment—is also featured on this floor.

SOUTHERN CLIMES TO BE VISITED BY FIELD SCIENTISTS

Six Expeditions Planned by Museum.

South America will be the field of four out of six scientific research expeditions to be sent out by the Field Museum of Natural History during the next five years. Two of these expeditions will gather geological specimens in the area from Brazil to Patagonia, and two, one zoölogical and one botanical, will study the animal and plant life of Peru.

An archæological expedition will visit the isthmus of Panama and the state of Colombia and at the same time an ethnology expedition will go to the Malay peninsula. All expeditions will go before summer and will be gone for a period of two to five years.

Plan Five Years Gem Study.

The department of geology plans to extend its expeditions over a period of five years. The first of these, headed by Dr. Oliver C. Farrington, curator of the department, will proceed to the gem producing localities of Brazil. One of the objects of this expedition is to obtain a full series of minerals associated with the diamond.

Two later expeditions under Dr. Farrington's direction will visit the important gold and iron mining districts of Brazil and the silver and copper producing districts of Peru and Bolivia. The latter expedition will take specimens from the important nitrate and vanadium deposits of Chili.

Specimens of prehistoric vertebrate life will be searched for by the second of the geological expeditions. This expedition will visit the Santa Cruz beds of Patagonia, certain areas of the Pampean formation of northern Argentina and some cave deposits of Brazil. It is hoped to secure specimens of the great ground sloths, the pampas horse and other types of vertebrate life of South America. The expedition will be under the direction of Mr. E. S. Riggs of the department of historical geology of the museum.

Will Visit Amazon Region.

The zoological and botanical expeditions will work together in the interior of the Sierras of central Peru and in the region of the sources of the Amazon.

Dr. Wilfred Osgood, curator of zoology of the museum, will head the expedition to bring back new specimens of animal life. The botanical expedition will be under the direction of Mr. J. Francis Macbride, assistant botanist of the museum. The region the expedition will cover is almost unknown as far as its plant life is concerned.

The archæological expedition under the direction of Dr. J. A. Mason will endeavor to solve mysteries of the interrelations of the great ancient civilizations of the Americas and to establish proof of a connecting link between the ancient Maya and the Inca of Peru.

The department of archæology also plans to penetrate the Colorado desert next summer and to work among the eastern Apache and Navaho Indians.

Leaves in June.

The expedition headed by Dr. Fay-Cooper Cole will leave in June for the Malay peninsula to study the origin and migration of the Malay and Negrito races. Before returning to this country Dr. Cole will attempt to penetrate into the interior of Borneo.

Dr. B. Laufer, curator of the department of anthropology, is planning a trip to China to study the aboriginal tribes of the island of Hai-nan. He will also make an archaeological survey of the province of Fu-kien and Manchuria in order to enlarge the Chinese collections of the museum.

MAY RESIGN.

Dr. Antonio Jose D'Almeida, president of Portugal.

LISBON, Jan. 28.—[By the Associated Press.]—It is understood that President Antonio Jose D'Almeida intends to offer his resignation at the assembling of the new parliament in February. Dr. D'Almeida assumed office Oct. 6, 1919, succeeding Canto Castro. It was reported in October last that he would soon resign because of ill health.

FIRST RULE FOR DANCE TEACHER: "GET THE MONEY"

Instruction Secondary to "Dates" and Tips.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES.

Learning to teach. It's an important phase of the dance question in Chicago.

A study of the opportunities for clean, safe dancing which the city offers Anna, a lonely Chicago girl with no "gentleman friend" to take her places, led to the discovery of an auxiliary problem—that of the assistant instructor in the public dance hall. After an evening's experience as one of a group of a hundred girl assistants at Dreamland, Instructor No. 40 thought it might be valuable, as preliminary to obtaining steady employment in the business, to be taught how to teach.

Accordingly, on the advice of her fellow assistants, Instructor 40 went to a small dancing school in the Wilson avenue district, kept by a woman who "knows the ropes." Give the public what it wants is her motto—sailor's hornpipe for the kindergarten class, waltz and two-step and a simple one-step for the married classes, the newest and craziest and freakiest steps for the high school boys and girls who form a large part of her patronage, and "a little dancing and lots of 'personal attention' to the man with plenty of money."

"Get the Money," First Rule.

The first and fundamental rule laid down by the dancing mentor was simple. "If you want to make money as a dancing teacher in a public dance hall, dont' pay too much attention to dancing."

"The director will tell you," said this instructor of instructors, "you should know when to 'step, cross'; when to 'step, cut'; how to do the double turn in the Scandal, and when to reverse in the Tramp walk. But the real thing to make money, and they all know it, is a good 'line.'"

"Kid 'em along and you'll get the jack," is the way a girl at the Mador-Johnson school of dancing, 443 North Clark street, phrased the axiom.

How Instructors Are Paid.

A few of the better class public dance halls hire instructors for two nights a week, pay them a regular salary, and give them a percentage on each private lesson they teach. The majority pay no salaries. It is up to each girl, therefore, to book as many "privates" as she can. Under some proprietors the total cost of the lesson goes to the instructor. In the greater number the girl splits with the house on a 50-50 or 60-40 basis.

But there are other ways of adding to the income.

"Work for tips" is the second rule laid down by the dancing teacher who knows. She has made as high as $200 a week, she boasts, at the dancing game, but that was last year, when money wasn't so tight.

"Don't Be Choosey."

"Don't be too choosey as to where you work or the kind of 'privates' you have," is rule No. 3. For, as she explains, the prosperous looking men often haven't a cent.. "They'll try to give you phony real estate," she warned.

But the foreigner is highly recommended. Not so attractive to make a date with, perhaps, but always comes across with good tips. Play him. The ex-instructor's advice was echoed by instructors at various halls.

"And if they don't come across with the jack," advises the little blonde at the Mador-Johnson school, "tell him to bring you something, gloves, stockings, blouses. But the jack's better."

Many of the girls, Instructor 40 learns, have arrangements with a nearby florist and confectioner whereby they may sell the candy and flowers they receive. It's a regular business, the teacher explains.

Rule No. 4 urges girls not to let "a guy get too fresh on the dance floor, because you never can tell when there's a social worker in the hall. She'll report you, and you'll get fired."

The fifth rule was variable, admitted the woman who knows. It's about corsets. Some places, she said, make their instructors wear them. Others don't say anything one way or the other. Some prefer that you'd check them.

And the last rule taught that evening was "Stay away from women pupils. They're cranky. They don't give tips, and they don't date you up."

Chiropractors May Seek Licenses in Higher Court

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Unlicensed chiropractors of Illinois are expected to carry to the state Supreme court their fight to compel the state department of registration and education to name a separate examining board for them. Judge Smith in the Sangamon Circuit court today sustained a demurrer to the original petition for mandamus, and Attorney Arthur for the chiropractors was given until Feb. 10 to amend the original bill. The petition was filed by Dr. Mary E. Davenport of Chicago.

How Do You Carry Your Second Spare Tire?

Do you strap your second spare tire on the side of your car or tie it on the back to the first spare? Did you know that the constant rubbing, which comes from the jolts the car receives, will wear soft spots in the casing if carried this way.

Get an Erp Spare Rim Carrier from any first class motor accessory dealer to carry your second spare tire on. You bolt it on the rim of the first spare with an ordinary wrench. Both spares can be removed without detaching this device.

Made To Fit Any Size Rim Or Tire

The Erp Spare Rim Carrier has the three point suspension, inside grip so that there can be no chafing at any point. There are no straps, no rattle and no soft spots on a tire carried this way.

The Complete Set For $3.50

The whole set comes complete in a box no larger than a pound box of candy, ready to install. Over 100,000 motorists now carry their second spare tire on the Erp Spare Rim Carrier. Manufactured by the Sedgwick Sales Co., 1405 Sedgwick Ave., New York City.

Ask your motor accessory dealer or garageman about a set today. If he don't stock it he can get it for you.

This illustrates one of the three units of the Erp Spare Rim Carrier which completes the set. Securely bolted to tire rack found on the car. Second spare removed instantly by turn of one nut.

Accessory Distributors
WANTED

A known manufacturer of Automotive Specialties who has perfected a new Ford accessory for which there is an established demand, is now ready to market it and wants to connect with reliable Automotive Accessory Distributors who have Sales Organizations covering territory.

Much time and money has been spent in thoroughly testing this device and it is pronounced superior to any one of the great National successes of like nature.

The sales plan is unique and is designed to assure maximum sale to consumers. It will be backed by a general advertising campaign.

This account should prove a valuable one to those distributors who can qualify for territory and their appointment will not be governed by quantity purchased.

The Sales Manager will be glad to discuss details and territory with live distributors at the Hotel La Salle Monday, January 30th, and Tuesday, January 31st, 10 to 12 A. M. and 1:30 to 5:30 P. M. Ask for Mr. Thos. A. Lind.

Receiver's Sale of Lincoln Motor Company

Pursuant to order of the United States District Court, all properties of the Lincoln Motor Company, a Delaware corporation, will be sold at Public Auction to the highest bidder at the Company's plant, Detroit, Michigan, on February 4, 1922, at 9:00 o'clock in the forenoon, Central Standard Time, by W. S. Sayres, Jr., Special Master.

The property offered will include all real estate, buildings, and personal property, wherever situate, excepting cash, free and clear of mortgage and taxes, but subject to rights and liens of vendors under land contracts, drafts, et cetera.

The property will be offered only in one parcel and as an entirety.

Bidders will be required to deposit, at least twenty-four hours in advance of the sale, $250,000.00 in cash, or $500,000.00 principal of approved claims against the Lincoln Motor Company.

No bid of less than $8,000,000.00, which is the upset price fixed by the United States District Court, will be accepted.

Purchasers are required to assume all outstanding commitments of the receiver.

Upon confirmation of the sale, the purchaser shall make such further cash payments as are directed by the Court.

The business is being conducted by the receiver, and will be sold as a going concern. Full details of the property to be offered and of the Order for sale will be furnished on application to the undersigned, receiver.

Look in the Basement First

A bad heating boiler is just as useless to the human family as a bad egg. No one is wearing medals for making bad eggs good. In the language of Mary the Manicure, "It isn't being done." And if there is ary a gent who can make a bad boiler better, we'd like to put his picture with the wax cross on the What-Not.

The only place for a bad heating boiler, whether it is tin-plate, cast iron or paper mashay, is in the ice house. It doesn't make any difference whether it's there or not. But to put a bad boiler in a real nice flat—that's what Senator Borah or Tom Watson would call "an industrial crime." That's daring your tenants to stay.

You tenants are the actual consumers of heat. It's vital to you to know what kind of boiler is in the basement. Your landlord doesn't care. He doesn't live with you—he lives somewhere else and is probably warm and cosy over a Kewanee all-steel boiler, which is made of boiler-plate, riveted together in one piece at the factory, and won't crack or leak during Arctic nights. LOOK IN THE BASEMENT FIRST—ask for the Kewanee Boiler—and keep on moving until you find one.

Write the Old Man Behind the Boiler some time today and ask him how to make flat-life a poem instead of a howling nightmare.

RAILROADS MUST REFUND HALF NET EARNING OVER 6%

New I. C. C. Order Refers to 1920-1921 Period.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—Railroads which earned more than 6 per cent upon the value of their property used in transportation during the period from Sept. 1, 1920, to Jan. 1, 1921, are required under an order issued today by the interstate commerce commission to turn half of the excess so earned over to the government.

The order as issued by the commission makes effective sections of the transportation act of 1920 and prescribes rules for the application of those sections.

Earned a Great Deal More.

Railroads during the four months' period specified in the order are understood to have earned a considerable amount in excess of the 6 per cent limitation prescribed by congress, but the valuations not having been given out for the individual lines the amounts cannot yet be calculated.

The transportation act, in addition to providing that until March 1, 1922, rates should be made by the interstate commerce commission sufficient to give the railroads at least 5½ per cent on their properties, provided for the recovery by the government of half of all the amount earned by any road over 6 per cent.

General Increases Granted.

General increases were granted in rates in 1920 and during the last four months of the year. While traffic volumes were large railroad earnings were reported in excess of the 6 per cent clause, but for all of the months of 1921 and so far in 1922 the returns have not indicated that any sums could be collected by the government under the law.

The statute also provided that in case excess earnings were recaptured by the government, the money should be paid into a special fund for the purpose of lending to railroads and repaying advances made by the government to the railroads.

Girl Cashier Gives $1,500 Bond on Larceny Charge

Miss Blanche Fellows, former cashier of Miss Hastings' Tea Room, 159 West Monroe street, was held to the grand jury yesterday when she waived examination on a charge of larceny in the Englewood police court. She was released under $1,500 bonds. Miss Fellows was charged with taking $1,600 from the tearoom at various times. Miss Fellows maintained she "never took one penny."

THE BANK OF KINDNESS

Draw a Check on It for the Unfortunate.

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.

MISS EDITH L. EMINGER.

Miss Edith L. Eminger, who lives at 1015 North La Salle street and is a saleswoman for the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance company, in a contest with men won a prize of $50. Straightway she came to the office of the near east relief committee, 19 South La Salle street, and said she wanted to help, provided she could be shown that the money was being rightly applied and economically administered. Frederick J. Michel, executive secretary of the near east relief committee, gave her the necessary proof. She then turned over the original check for the $50 prize and was enrolled as a friend of needy orphans. Mr. Michel took pains to have it understood that Miss Eminger does not know the tale of her beneficence has been told. The American people, through the near east relief organization, are feeding in soup kitchens 500,000 daily and caring for 100,000 orphans in 175 orphanages. Of the total of $15,000,000 Illinois is expected to raise $1,000,000. Former Gov. Frank O. Lowden is chairman and George M. Reynolds is treasurer of the committee.

BATTIS ELECTED HEAD OF ARYAN GROTTO NO. 18

After a campaign during which he was referred to as "Mayor Thompson's man Friday," and "the city hall pet," Roy James Battis, chief clerk in the city controller's office, has been elected Monarch of Aryan Grotto No. 18, Mystic Order of the Veiled Prophets of the Enchanted Realm.

Battis was the most successful and daring of city hall salesmen of Lundin-Thompson Riverview jubilee tickets, and this caused strong opposition to his election to the fraternal office. In his speech of acceptance he said he felt as if he had been through a campaign "for mayor of the South sea islands."

Other officers elected for the year were Dr. J. H. Carpenter, Maj. Hamlet C. Ridgway, Harry W. Lindenthal, Harry W. Ordway, and Henry R. Kent. The grotto has 5,000 members.

PLAN $3,000,000 OFFICE BUILDING FOR LOOP CORNER

BY AL CHASE.

Another great loop office building is contemplated as a result of the Clark-Monroe Building corporation obtaining additional property south of its holdings on the southwest corner of Clark and Monroe. On the 90x189 site a $3,000,000 twenty-one story structure designed by D. H. Burnham & Co. is to be built. No definite date has been set for beginning work.

119 Year Lease Negotiated.

The corporation yesterday closed negotiations for the 119 year leasehold of 40x90 at 122-28 South Clark street from Eleanor Andrews, by Louis C. Mowry, conservator, Helen A. Mowry and William A. Andrews, calling for a ground rental of $15,000 annually for the first two years and $20,000 for the balance of the term, or 117 years. The four story building was not considered in the deal.

Owns Standard Bank Block.

The Clark-Monroe Building corporation last August paid in excess of $900,000 for the Standard Trust and Savings bank sixteen story building and leasehold on the corner. Lee J. Lesser & Co. represented the sellers in both deals and with Hedberg & Bistor jointly represented the buyers. Louis C. Mowry was the personal representative of the sellers.

D. H. Burnham is president of the Monroe-Clark Building corporation and his brother, Hubert Burnham, is secretary. Roger Sherman is treasurer.

Concealed Gun Toter Gets Year in Jail and $1,000 Fine

William Farrell, 1012 North Clark street, was fined $1,000 and costs and sentenced to one year in the house of correction yesterday in the Chicago avenue court on a charge of carrying concealed weapons.

CHICAGO WOMAN TELLS OF VIRGINIA RAPPE'S HEALTH

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Miss Virginia Rappe, Chicago movie actress, who died a few days after the party in Roscoe Arbuckle's suite at the St. Francis hotel, was given a "perfect bill of health" today.

Mrs. Katherine Fox, 840 East 51st street, Chicago, testified the girl "never had one human ailment" during the time she knew her.

"She never suffered an ache or pain in all the time you spent with her?" asked Gavin McNab, leading the defense.

"No," the witness answered.

Mrs. Kate Hardebach, Miss Rappe's housekeeper, also testified to the young woman's marvelous state of physical well being. She did tell about an operation, and that Virginia went to a Dr. Lucas and a Dr. Devon.

The state has seven more witnesses to call in rebuttal, four from Los Angeles, to testify as to Miss Rappe's health.

320 POLISH KIDS WAVE OLD GLORY AS SHIP LEAVES

New York, Jan. 28.—[Special.]—With each of them clutching a stubby American flag in one hand and a toy in the other, 320 Polish children, ranging in age from 5 to 12 years, raced around the decks of the United States liner Princess Matoika and jabbered to one another in mixed Polish and English as the steamer slid out from pier one, Hoboken, and started down the harbor on its voyage to Danzig today.

Father Krakowsky and Father Olinski heaved sighs of relief as the steamer left, sighs fervently reëchoed by four men and two women who, with the priests, have had the large family in charge.

These six latter persons had routed out of bed 320 sleepy children during the morning, had slipped on 540 stockings, or thereabouts, and washed 320 healthy young faces.

When the party reaches Danzig a government commission will seek to restore the children to their relatives.

Read the Amazing Story of the New Velie Car

With our own Velie-Built Motor

Never in the history of National Automobile Shows has one single exhibit made such a sensation as the New Velie Car with Velie-Built Motor at Grand Central Palace, New York. From the opening day to the close, Velie space was crowded with dealers and with a shrewd, experienced motoring public. Even competitive manufacturers came to pay tribute to Velie's signal triumph. By unanimous consent the Velie is the outstanding feature of 1922.

Here is the supreme achievement of the Velie's fifteen years of building Quality Cars—

The Velie's own Six-Cylinder Motor built in the Velie's own Motor Plant — the exclusive equipment of the Velie's New Model 58 Car

Ever since the advent of Sixes the Velie has used the best motors the industry afforded.

Good as they were, none of them measured up to the Power, Flexibility, Silence and Solidity the Velie knew to be possible.

Two years ago the Velie purchased one of the largest and best equipped Motor Plants in the country. All motors previously built in this plant were discarded. Velie engineers, with a clean slate, concentrated on the most efficient and enduring motor modern engineering could produce. Results:

New Automatic Lubrication—New Freedom from Vibration—Dirt, Grit and Dust Proof

A wonderful motor! With the Velie's advance in overhead valves—all enclosed—running in oil. The most direct power application. With the Velie's perfection of a force-feed oiling system positively lubricating every moving part, even the piston pins.

With the Velie's big rigid crankshaft with four bronze-backed bearings—a bearing next to every connecting rod—giving solidity and balance that distinguish the Velie motor from all others.

Know for yourself what all this means. TRY IT! DRIVE THE NEW CAR. It is an experience you never had before.

A motor smooth, silent and solid. As vibrationless when maintaining sixty miles an hour as at sixteen.

And Now—the Model 58, a Car Worthy of Such a Power Plant

With the marvelous Velie motor we also present an entirely new car of just the right size, design, distinction, wealth of detail and refinement, surpassing even the Velie's former notable creations. This is the car that dealers from all over the United States hailed with the most unanimous approval ever given a new model.

Everything is new. New rounded radiator, soft-flowing body lines, genuine solid walnut finishing rail, solid walnut instrument panel, full crowned fenders, rich upholstery, drum-type headlights with lenses, parking lights, nickel trimming throughout—complete equipment, even to such things as motometer, with specially designed radiator cap and scores of interesting details, even to handsome new monogram hub-caps.

The car gives you a thrilling sense of the ultimate success in automobile building, revealing what can be accomplished by every resource, financial and otherwise.

Velie—the Car of Permanent Values

Values never before possible in a Six. A car complete, that you yourself would price hundreds higher. Both open and closed models. See them at the Chicago and all following shows or see them at your nearest Velie dealer. We can only hint at the amazing story of all the development that has led up to this marvelous Six.

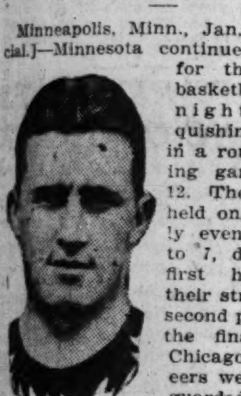
Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Minnesota continued its dash for the Big Ten basketball title tonight by vanquishing Chicago in a rough, exciting game, 25 to 12. The Gophers, held on practically even terms, 9 to 7, during the first half, hit their stride in the second period. In the final stanza Chicago basketeers were so well guarded that they failed to count one field goal, gleaning only five points at the foul line.



"BILL" McGUIRE.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

It was the fifth straight victory for the Gophers. Dr. Cooke's men uncorked some brilliant teamwork in the second half by the use of a short, baffling pass, scoring often from under the basket.

Maroons Kept on Defensive.

Perfect handling of the ball gave the Gophers a decided advantage in this half, the Maroons being kept on the defensive.

Hanson, closely guarded in the first period by Capt. Halladay, broke loose as the second half got under way, shooting three baskets in rapid succession. Kearney and Severinson also did some nifty sharpshooting.

Bill McGuire's brilliant foul shooting is all that kept the game from being a rout. The Maroon star caged eight of ten tries from the foul line. Romney made one goal from the center of the floor, while the other Chicago goal was made by Dickson, who took a perfect pass from Halladay under the basket.

Severinson Is Spectacular.

Severinson's two sensational one-handed shots from the side lines and Hanson's work under the basket were spectacular features of the winners' game. Lineup:

PURDUE 27; IOWA 26

Lafayette, Ind., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Purdue defeated Iowa in a thrilling game, 27 to 26, which kept the Boilermakers undefeated in the running for Big Ten honors. The Hawkeyes were ahead, 26 to 19, with barely three minutes left, but a Boilermaker rally led by White and Gullion overcame the lead, Gullion's winning basket being scored with thirty seconds to play.

Shimek was the outstanding star of the Iowa five, scoring twelve points and playing a great floor game. Iowa led for the first half, 13 to 11. White of Purdue led in scoring with fifteen points, ten on field goals. Lineup:

$100,000 SUIT AGAINST CHAMP JACK SETTLED

Batavia, N. Y., Jan. 28.—Suit for $100,000, brought by Frank P. Spellman, former showman, against Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight boxing champion, has been settled out of court, it was announced today by counsel in the case.

Spellman sued for a share in the proceeds of a moving picture in which Dempsey was the star. A jury which heard the case disagreed.

The terms of the settlement were not announced, but it was understood to involve about $20,000.

THROWING POINTS IS TOO POLITE, NET BODY RULES

New York, Jan. 28.—[United Press.]—Throwing of points in tennis tournament matches to offset umpires' errors will be officially discouraged in 1922. The Tennis Umpires' association, which provides officials for the country's leading matches, today issued a statement pointing out the futility, whatever the sportsmanship, of the practice.

FOOTBALL PROS SHOW GREEN BAY THE DOOR; TRIBUNE STORY CAUSE

CANTON, O., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Magnates of the American Professional Football association, in session here today, ousted the Green Bay (Wis.) Packers club from membership, because the Packers last fall used players still in college, thereby violating the rules of the association.

A rule was adopted providing for a deposit of $1,000 by each club to guarantee observation of this rule. No agreement was reached on a standard salary. A player limit of eighteen was also adopted.

George Halas, with Decatur Staleys last fall, was granted a franchise for the Chicago Bears, to operate at Cubs park.

The assembly included representatives of fifteen cities—Rochester, Buffalo, Philadelphia, Canton, Akron, Columbus, Dayton, Chicago, Louisville, Rock Island, Minneapolis, Decatur, Illinois, Racine, and Milwaukee, Wisconsin. Chicago was represented by both the Cardinals and the Bears.

The foregoing message was sent to The Tribune by Joe F. Carr, veteran sport promoter of Columbus, O., and manager of the Columbus Panhandles, who was re-elected president of the pro league. The action of the American Professional Football association was the direct result of an exposé by The Tribune of conditions prevailing on the Green Bay team.

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

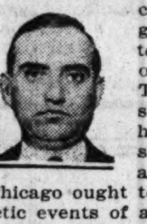
The Question.

If given an opportunity, would you vote for boxing in Chicago?

Where Asked.

Corridors of county building.

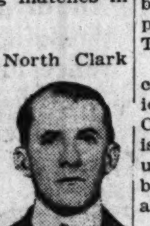
The Answers.



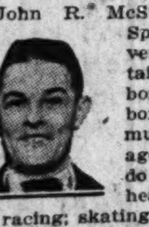
Joseph Keefe, 901 West 12th street, clerk—Yes. I would be glad to have a chance to cast a vote in favor of boxing in Chicago. There is no good reason why we should not have bouts in this city, say up to ten rounds to a referee's decision. Chicago ought to be a center for athletic events of all kinds. It would be worth much to us if this city were world famous for its athletic events.

Bernard J. Conlon, 163 East Chicago avenue, representative, Twenty-ninth district—I was a member of the state legislature for five terms, and I never lost an opportunity to vote for boxing. I am in favor of sports of all kinds, and boxing in particular is one of the best recreations in the world for young boys. Boxing is a healthy, manly sport, and ought to be permitted in Chicago.

John E. O'Brien, 26 West Illinois street, bookkeeper—I certainly would vote for boxing if given an opportunity, and we ought to be given the opportunity. I am in favor of sports of all kinds. A large proportion of our city and urban population is interested in sports, as the attendance at the various athletic events will show, and a large number are particularly interested in boxing. They should not be deprived of the privilege of seeing matches in Chicago.



John R. Horan, 139 North Clark street, attorney—I certainly would vote for boxing in Chicago, and the laws should permit ten round bouts to a referee's decision. It is a clean, healthy sport, and should be encouraged. Besides, it is a mighty good business proposition for us all.



John R. McSweeney, 316 South Springfield avenue, advertising expert—I certainly would vote for boxing. I approve of boxing, and the community should encourage it the same as they do other popular and healthful sports, such as racing, skating, and swimming.

JACK-WILLS GO STIRS INTEREST; SURE TO BE HELD

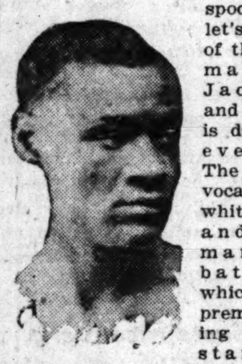
Champ Must Remove Colored Man from Path.

ERADY PUTS UP COIN

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—[Special.]—By way of showing his sincerity, William A. Brady today deposited $50,000 in a bank here to bind a match between Jack Dempsey and Harry Wills, the fight to be held in America on or before next July 4. Brady demands a similar deposit be made by Dempsey or his manager, Jack Kearns, to clinch arrangements for the contest. Dempsey's share of the purse would be $150,000 and Wills' $50,000.

BY HARRY NEWMAN.

New York, Jan. 28.—[Special.]—While some of the boys have been spoofing lately let's not lose sight of the fact that a match between Jack Dempsey and Harry Wills is drawing closer every moment. The campaign advocating that the white champion and the black man should do battle to see which one is supreme in the boxing world was started several weeks ago and now all over the country demands are being made that these fighters come together to see which is the better one.



HARRY WILLS.
[Amer. Press Assn.]

That Wills and Dempsey battle is a sure thing! Why not? Who else could there be for Dempsey than this giant negro, Wills, or his nearest opponent, Kid Norfolk, with whom he will measure strides in the Garden next month. Let's play fair all around. The public knows what it wants, and is willing to pay for it, but it has grown weary of sending in its long green for uneven battles which Mr. Dempsey has been engaged in for several years.

Wills Stands in Jack's Path.

There isn't any questioning Mr. Dempsey's skill as a fighter. He stands head and shoulders over every other white man that has faced him, and right now there appears to be only one obstacle in his path. That man is Harry Wills. The writer has no desire to hold any brief for any principal. We advocate a square stand up fight between Dempsey and a man who will prove a formidable opponent, or in other words, an even match. That man now appears to be Harry Wills.

William A. Brady, of theatrical fame, is in accord with the plans for such a battle. Mr. Brady has offered $200,000 for a bout between the white champion and his big black rival. The offer of Mr. Brady is the first large offer since the campaign started, but no doubt the rest of the fight promoters throughout the country, realizing that the feeling against a mixed match has abated, will be clamoring for a chance to stage the contest, just as they did with the Dempsey-Carpentier match.

Kearns Pulls Cute Joke.

The best joke of the week came along when Jack Kearns, manager of Dempsey, blew in fresh from Chicago and declared that an English syndicate was angling for a return bout between Dempsey and Georges Carpentier. Of course, Jack was spoofing. That's habitual with him.

It will be remembered that he created a Cuban syndicate just previous to the signing up of the Dempsey-Carpentier scramble. Quite a rascal is Kearns, when it comes to digging up these mythical concerns. You can't beat him, and we know the old story about Jesse James having a horse.

What in the world would a Dempsey-Carpentier return match amount to? That's a joke, and Kearns knows it.

Carp Not Expected in U. S.

We are now almost convinced that Carpentier does not propose to return to this country. Furthermore, we are inclined to believe that he knows way down deep in his heart that if he comes here to keep that engagement with Tom Gibbons he will be knocked for a goal. The Frenchman is wise. He is going to stay in Europe where the traveling is much easier.

However, the issue is Dempsey and Wills. That is the scrap the fans insist on and you can go and bet something pretty that it is going to be held. As sure as faith Jack and the gigantic Wills will settle their differences before another winter is upon us.

NEW YORK MEN RETAIN DOUBLES RACQUETS TITLE

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 28.—Clarence Pell and Stanley Mortimer of New York retained the national doubles racquets championship today by defeating Jay Gould and J. W. Wear, representing the Philadelphia Racquet club. The scores were 12—15, 17—15, 15—7, 7—15, 15—3. In the fifth game Pell, who is the singles champion, made ten straight aces which practically clinched the match.

ENTRIES PICKED FOR PIN CLASSIC HERE FEB. 9-25

Six bowlers who for the last five years have established averages better than 200 in A. B. C. tournaments are among the twenty-four picked for competition in the first annual world's classic tournament, to be held at the Coliseum annex Feb. 9 to 25.

The two dozen selections were announced last night by Louis P. Petersen, president of the tournament committee. They are:

Fourteen from Chicago.

Fourteen of the twenty-four are from Chicago, but the eligibility committee, of which Dave Luby is chairman, cites that there is nothing local or sectional in the choices. High averages compiled for the A. B. C. tournaments for five successive years of competition show that five of the six leaders are from alleys in this city.

Mort Lindsay has the highest composite five year average in the American Bowling congress. His mark is 205 41-45. Phil Wolf has 201 27-45, Joe Hradek, 201 13-45; Jack Reilly, 201 23-36; and Dominick de Vito, an even 201. All except Lindsay are from Chicago. Compilation of the records of many bowlers was made to secure the leaders.

Each Will Roll 115 Games.

Each of the bowlers picked will have to roll 115 games, five game matches, with his twenty-three opponents. A combination of total pins and games won will be used in securing the standing. A new point system has been devised by Louis Petersen, and will be in vogue at the tourney.

The purpose of the tournament is to pick the actual world's champion, and the endurance test is believed by promoters of bowling to be the best method.

ROCKFORD TEAM IN LEAD IN PIN MEET AT AURORA

Aurora, Ill., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—The eighth annual interstate bowling tournament, in which more than 1,100 bowlers will compete for $6,000 in cash prizes, opened at the Sylvandell alleys here today. There are 145 five man teams from Chicago entered. The first Chicago teams are scheduled to shoot tomorrow.

J. Scheidt of Rockford is leading temporarily in the singles with 625. His scores were 225, 211, and 189. The Lewis Branch five of Rockford is leading in the fives with 2,593, and the Grand B. and B. quintet, also of Rockford, is second with 2,594. The Standard Auto Supply company five is high with 2,569 in the team competition.

There are 220 five man teams, 572 doubles, and 1,073 individuals entered, some of them from as far as the Pacific coast.

One of the fives shooting was made up of women and it managed to defeat the Rockford city hall team, on which Mayor Charles Greene rolled, by two pins. The women also defeated several other man teams. The women bowlers were:

Mrs. Edward Wigand, Mrs. Kate Martin and Mrs. E. Kasid of Aurora, and Mrs. Gertrude Dornblaser and Mrs. Jack Rejly of Chicago.

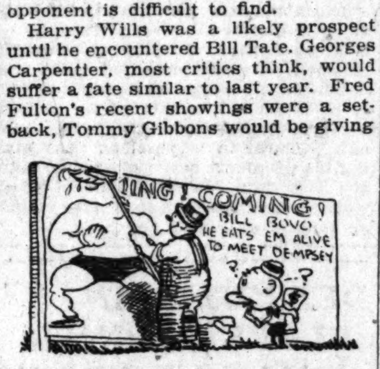
IN the WAKE of the NEWS

DEMPSEY'S PREDICAMENT.

JACK DEMPSEY, willing to fight in defense of his heavyweight title, is forced to remain inactive until an opponent can be groomed who will draw an attractive gate.

Note we say groomed. There is not in sight a boxer whom the public thinks has a real chance against Jack. The public must be "educated" by publicity to flock to a bout between Dempsey and his next opponent. That opponent is difficult to find.

Harry Wills was a likely prospect until he encountered Bill Tate. Georges Carpentier, most critics think, would suffer a fate similar to last year. Fred Fulton's recent showings were a setback, Tommy Gibbons would be giving away chunks of weight. Jess Willard's age is against him, but he probably would do as well as any of the others. Bill Brennan already has been beaten, but might be trotted out again on the strength of his previous battle when Jack supposedly was not in top form. It's not a promising outlook.



IT'S COMING! COMING!
BILL BOVO HE EATS EM ALIVE TO MEET DEMPSEY

Dempsey would be a more popular champion if there were a number of real aspirants for him to meet. Some way, the public resents his easy victories. Possibly it's human nature. Jack's preëminence over other contenders in his class is a handicap!

An ace is considered an asset
When held with a pair of its kind,
And I note the fellow who has it
Quite frequently comes from behind.

I greet such a hand with approval,
And I scorn the fool who objects,
For the bird who attains my removal
Is welcome to all he collects.

I make but one reservation—
He shall play them open and fair,
And grant me a slight intimation
By drawing three cards to his pair.

But my pulses at once beat quicker
And I rage like a tortured bull
When he holds an ace for a kicker
And cops with a beautiful full.

880 yards—Cornelius Emert, McKinley; George Dougherty, Austin; Howard Storch, Senn.

JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL.

440 yards—Robert Fidler, Hyde Park; L. Drach, Lane; Sears Bergren, Hyde Park.

880 yards—S. Schuler, St. Cyril's; Edward Carmen, Lane; O'Neil Farrell, Austin.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL DIVISION.

220 yards—Russell Gunderson, Ryerson playground; S. Robinson, Fiske playground; W. Taylor, Henry playground.

440 yards—Grover Mahoney, St. Catherine's; Willerd Winningstadt, Lincoln school; H. Miller, Lemoyne playground.

BY FRANK SCHREIBER.

The schoolboy skating team to represent Chicago in the big intercity ice tournament with teams of five other cities, which will be run off at Garfield park next month, was selected yesterday after a series of elimination races in Columbus park. Eighteen racers out of a field of 144 boys called for tryouts were selected for the team.

The team includes nine of last year's championship outfit which defeated teams i nCleveland, New York, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh on an eastern trip. These "ve erans" are:

Willard Winningstadt, Russell Gunderson, Robert Fidler, Sears Bergren, Howard Storch, O'Neil Farrell, Leon Emmert, Claude Brignall, and Cornelius Ewert.

Duluth and Detroit Enter.

Duluth and Detroit yesterday notified E. C. Delaporte, in charge of the events, of their acceptance of the invitation extended them to compete here. New York, Cleveland and Milwaukee accepted bids several weeks ago.

Plans for the big tourney are rapidly being completed. The expenses of the visiting teams will be paid out of a fund being raised by subscription among business houses of the city. All visiting teams are scheduled to arrive on Feb. 22. Parochial school skaters are included in the teams this year.

According to agreement made last year, the New York and Chicago teams will engage in a dual meet Feb. 24. The big tournament, with the six teams competing, will be staged Feb. 25.

Races in Three Divisions.

The intercity races will be in three divisions, with two races in each. Races in the grammar school division will be at 220 and 440 yards. In the junior and senior high divisions the distances will be 440 and 880 yards.

The trials yesterday brought out some keen competition, and officials declared this year's team would be even faster than the outfit which won the championship last season. Russell Gunderson of Ryerson Playground and Grover Mahoney of St. Catherine's were the winners in the two grammar school events. In the junior high division Robert Fidler of Hyde Park and S. Schuler of St. Cyril's were first place victors, while Claude Brignall of Englewood and Cornelius Ewert of McKinley won the senior high races.

Two fleet members of last year's team, Howard Storch of Senn and O'Neil Farrell of Austin, were unable to compete on account of illness, but places on the team were reserved for them.

ENTRIES TO DATE 1,060, WITH MORE EXPECTED TODAY

High Class Officials Will Supervise Races.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

When Col. John V. Clinnin, well known local sportsman and a great booster of amateur athletics, who will referee, blows his whistle at 1 o'clock next Sunday afternoon at Humboldt park to signify the start of the annual Silver Skates Derbies of THE TRIBUNE, the largest field which ever answered the starter's call to the mark in any skating event will be present.

COL. JOHN CLINNIN.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Although the official entry list does not close until midnight today, 1,060 nominations have been received for the four derbies. This is by far the largest entry known by skating enthusiasts who have followed the steel blade sport for over thirty years. The total entry will be increased with the receipt of today's mail and that of tomorrow as any mail bearing a Jan. 29 postmark will be accepted.

Will Break All Records.

In practically every sporting event of importance an average of 70 per cent of the total entry reports for the events. If this number of entrants put in an appearance, it will be the largest field in any skating event in this country.

Interest taken by the boys and girls in the silver skates derbies, which are recognized as one of the country's leading ice fixtures, may lead THE TRIBUNE to expand next year. Advisability of adding another derby to be known as the intermediate is being considered. If this race is added it will be open only to boys over 16 years of age and under 18.

THE TRIBUNE realizes the injustice done to boy skaters who have just passed 16 years to have them placed in the senior derby where they are compelled to race against class A fliers. Most of the 16 year old boys have not been graduated from the novice class, let alone step up into class C, and then into B. The boys, however, are urged to race this season because the experience gained will aid them materially in whatever race they enter next season.

What Persistence Will Do.

Roy McWhirter of the Alverno A. A., who recently annexed the national amateur skating championship, was compelled to race in three senior silver skates derbies before he finally won the handsome trophies. The same is true of William Steinmetz of the Norwegian A. A., victor in last year's feature.

To John A. Mock, director of Henry playground, goes the honor of making the largest entry. Nominations of the playground were received yesterday and Director Mock will send ninety boys and girls to the mark in the four races.

Harry F. Collins, director of Fiske playground, who has had great success with skating teams in the citywide tourneys, made a large team entry, as did Edward O. Elste of Lloyd playground, and K. H. Kalmback of Eckhart park. Other playground directors and managers of club racing teams have supported the derbies in such magnificent shape that Chicago should retain its position as the leading city in the country when it comes to producing ice skating champions.

Real Officials on the Job.

With such a large field, a competent corps of officials must be selected to handle the event. Col. Clinnin is a past master in acting in the capacity of referee and his keen judgment together with his faculty of handling masses makes him an ideal man for the important position.

Success of any athletic event whether it be a track and field meet, automobile race, wrestling or boxing shows or horse races depends upon the clerks of the course. All the judges and timers in the world are of no avail if the contestants are not sent to the starting mark. For this reason Edward Mahlke, secretary of the International Skating union has been appointed chief clerk. He will be ably assisted by men who have acted faultlessly in this important position in former TRIBUNE derbies.

Julian T. Fitzgerald, president of the International Skating union and Western Skating association, will act as starter. There is no stronger booster of ice racing in America than Fitzgerald and he can be relied upon to send the skaters away to fair and even starts.

Theo Gross Chief Judge.

Theo A. Gross of the playground system will be chief judge, a position he has held ever since the derbies were inaugurated. Men connected with local skating clubs have been asked to serve under Gross' direction.

James McWhirter, an expert timer, will have charge of the men who will time the races. Among his assistants will be E. C. Delaporte and Herman Fischer, sports directors in the Chicago Public Schools Athletic league.

Maj. Oliver D. Steele, well known to local followers of amateur and college athletics, will do the announcing. It will be Maj. Steele's ambition to carry the races into the audience by informing the spectators of the results and starts of every race, whether it be a trial heat or final.

Henry Utpatel, a great booster for outdoor sports, will present the prizes immediately after the contests. Nick Halvorsen will have charge of the inspectors or patrol judges, while Capt. Gus Thoma of the west park police will be in charge of those delegated to keep the track clear of spectators.

Race on Six Lap Track.

A track six laps to the mile will be laid out by Paul Staff, Vernie Oie, H. A. Stade, and T. Klinghoffer, official surveyors of the Western Skating association.

Following is the list of officials who are requested to report for duty as near noon as possible on the day of the derbies:

COLUMBIA COLLEGIANS TRIM LOYOLA, DE PAUL

Columbia college from Dubuque, Ia., had little trouble copping from both Loyola university and De Paul here yesterday, winning from the former, 37 to 15, at St. Ignatius gym in the afternoon, and then hiking to Broadway armory to slam the De Paul five, 33 to 25, before a record crowd last night.

"The Hawkeye five took the lead against De Paul at the beginning of the game, but Coach Haggerty's men, led by Capt. Fisher, passed the visitors and set the pace most of the first period. Several long shots by Noonan gave Columbia the long end of the score, 20 to 17, at the intermission, and De Paul was unable to head the Iowans the rest of the game.

In the afternoon, Noonan was the feature performer against Loyola, with nine baskets. Lineups:

"Y" COLLEGE 30; KNOX 23

Chicago Y. M. C. A. college last night defeated Knox, 30 to 23, in a fast game at the "Y" gym. The "Y" five played one of its best games of the season, stoppng the short passing game of the Knox team and turning back the final scoring spurt of the visitors. Albro was the feature performer for Knox, caging two baskets and nine of thirteen free throws. Lineup:

FOR PLAYERS OF WHIST

by A. R. METCALFE

AUCTION bridge is the finest game that ever was devised for the delight of mankind. It is also highly educational, giving the best of training to the faculties of memory, observation and logical deduction, besides developing the imagination and teaching practical psychology.

But the iconoclast is never idle, and the poisonous ideas that now are being urged would make the game shunned by all self-respecting people. These offensive ideas are all bidding conventions. In Europe, bidding conventions are wholly condemned, including even the double of one, which is the only one used by the writer. The various bids of clubs and diamonds, meaning everything conceivable except what they naturally would mean, would fill a fat volume. Some of them are so unfair that it is remarkable that any respectable player could hear them without protest.

For instance, a bid of one diamond has been used to indicate that the bidder held the ace of diamonds and one other ace. Certainly a bidder has no right to inform his partner that he has any particular card or cards. A few years since a gentleman informed me that they were using a new bid in his club, i. e., an original two no trumps indicated that the bidder held 100 aces, and he asked me what I thought of it.

I told him they should get thirty days, and that a bid of that sort should be classed with porch climbing and second story work. Incidentally, a bid of two no trumps from such a holding is a fool bid, never to be made when the declarer holds strength in all four suits.

Some time players will learn that no better information may possibly be given than to have the bids mean precisely what they sound like. When you add to that the important fact that the partner may always support a natural bid, it should be easy to see that not only will none of the present unnatural bids pay, but that no phoney bid can ever be devised which will equal natural bidding.

Many books have been published which claim to reduce bidding to a fine art. Page after page of card combinations giving exact values for original bids, secondary bids, and the support of partners are published. Unfortunately, these can be of value only when a game is found in which each of the four players is equal in play and bids alike under all circumstances. And that never happens.

The main consideration in bidding is and will ever be the characteristics of the other players at the table.

No trump bids are the greatest game getters. The declarer has a distinct advantage over his adversaries, because his assets are visible the moment the dummy is exposed, while his opponents frequently fail to find the best suit in their combined hands until too late to save the game. A player should, therefore, consider his hand from a no trump standpoint first.

The minimum holdings for original no trump bids are as follows:

Two aces and a guarded king; an established suit of clubs or diamonds and a card of reëntry; a hand above the average in high card strength, with protection in three suits.

The first of these requires a little explanation and covers, of course, a holding of three aces. When bidding no trump on two aces and a king it is not necessary for the king to be in a third suit. Do not hesitate to bid no trump from such a hand as this:

Spades—Ace, nine, five.
Hearts—Ace, king, four, deuce.
Clubs—Ten, six, three.
Diamonds—Eight, five, four.

Hands like the above are a delight, and I have found that when the bid of one no trump is not opposed the game is nearly always a certainty. There is, of course, a possibility that the second player may hold an established suit of clubs or diamonds, and not bid. In that case you lose, but you are not expected to win always.

The usual formula for the second rule is an established suit of clubs or diamonds, and another ace. This no trump bid, according to all authorities, would be proper from the following:

Spades—Ace, seven, two.
Hearts—Six, four.
Clubs—Jack, five.
Diamonds—Ace, king, queen, nine, seven two.

This is a natural no trump bid, to which there is almost no risk. The writer goes a little further in changing the outside ace to a card of reëntry, and would recommend the bidding of no trump on the above hand with the king of spades instead of the ace. Such a bid is, of course, a gamble, but game when successful.

The third rule seems a little harder for ordinary players to undertand. An average hand would include one ace, one king, one queen, down to the deuce, but since in figuring no trump strength only the honors need be considered, a hand is above average strength when it holds anything more than one of each of the five honors sufficiently protected by small cards. Thus a hand of Spades—Queen, jack, five, three.

Hearts—Ace, four, two.
Clubs—King, jack, seven, six.
Diamonds—Five, four.

would be slightly above the average, and therefore worth a bid of one no trump. The hand above would be an exact average, if the ten of clubs were substituted for the jack.

The above are general rules which apply in almost all cases. When there is great disparity in playing strength between partners, no exact rules are possible. A player thinking himself to be much the weaker player should avoid no trump declarations when any suit declaration is possible, thus giving his partner a better chance to take the play into his own hand. When your partner is a dub it is wise to bid no trump on almost anything.

CHAMPAIGN HIGH BEATS OAK PARK IN 26-22 BATTLE

Champaign, Ill., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Champaign High defeated Oak Park tonight in a desperately fought game, 26 to 22. Champaign led from the start of the game until the middle of the last quarter, when Oak Park slipped ahead by one point. Two fresh Champaign guards then were inserted and by close guarding aided Champaign to cage four baskets in a row during the last five minutes of play. Oak Park was puzzled by the low ceiling of the Champaign gymnasium. Lineup:

DETROIT MAN PLAYS CHECKER CHAMP 3 DRAWS

GLASGOW, Scotland, Jan. 28.—Play began here today betwen Newell W. Banks of Detroit, Mich., and Robert Stewart of Glasgow, for the world's checker championship. Three games were played, all them resulting in draws. The match will consist of forty games in all.

The checker match between Banks and Stewart has been hanging fire for five years, ever since Banks defeated Alfred Jordan, English champion. Stewart at that time contested the title, but refused to leave Scotland to defend his claim.

Garibaldi Wins Main Event on Lincoln Park Traps

Fine weather brought a squad of forty-two shooters to the Lincoln park traps yesterday. Over 5,000 targets were used during the two events. F. C. Garibaldi won the main event, 75 targets at 16 yards, breaking 70. In the 25 target event John Coppersmith won with 23 breaks. Leading scores:

75 targets, 16 yards—F. C. Garibaldi, 70; Thompson Ross, 69; C. P. Sheldon, 69; Ed Buchan, 69; G. A. Smith, 69; H. Otter, 68; C. G. Burmeister, 67; F. C. Letts Jr., 67; W. J. Burghardt, 66; F. E. Mueller Sr., 66.

STATE SEMI-FINALS IN 3 CUSHIONS TOMORROW

Play in the semi-finals for the state amateur three cushion billiard championship will start tomorrow at Mussey's Monroe street rooms. Eight district champions, representing the high men of sixty rooms who played in the preliminaries, will compete.

By a ruling the tournament committee all ex-state champions are eligible to compete in the semi-finals. This ruling allows George W. Sunde to enter. The three high men of the event will play for the state title and the diamond medal donated by the Illinois Billiard association.

These Men Compose Field.

Following is the list of the district champions:

North side—A. G. Swanland.
Northwest side—W. J. Holstern.
South side—Roy Herschman.
West side—Jack O'Neill.
Loop—Richard Forrey.

The five players named above will compete with the following three downstate qualifiers in the state-wide semifinals:

Rockford—Loren Kendall.
Champaign—H. R. Woodcock.
Lawrenceville—E. Hamlick.

JACK SCHOLZ BEATEN BY NEW YORK KID IN BROOKLYN MEET

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Harold C. Cutbill, the "flying parson of the Boston A. A.," won the featured Brooklyn college 1,000 yard race in the annual games of Brooklyn college at the 106th infantry armory tonight. His time of 2:17 4-5 was nearly two seconds slower than his victorious time last year.

The 75 yard handicap was captured in handy fashion by Craig La Vin of Poly Prep of Brooklyn, 220 yard interscholastic champion of Greater New York. Jackson Scholz, the former University of Missouri star, got a chance to display the form that brought him fame, but, like his two recent starts under the N. Y. A. C. colors, his attempt was a failure.

The University of Pennsylvania relay team ran off with the one mile intercollegiate relay race in handy style.

Alumni Fail to Show for Meet with Maroon Varsity

The practice track meet between the University of Chicago varsity squad and an alumni squad scheduled to be held last night was called off. The alumni athletes failed to appear in sufficient numbers to form a team.

Gordon Beats Eisenberg in Kenwood Chess Tourney

Mr. Gordon defeated Mr. Eisenberg in the first round of the chess tournament at the Kenwood Chess club.

GARY "Y" BOOSTERS WIN.

Michigan City, Ind., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Gary "Y" Boosters defeated the Michigan City Y. M. C. A. basketball team, 35 to 24, here tonight.

AUSTRALIAN BIKE STAR ENTERS SIX DAY RACE

ALEX McBEATH.

Alex. McBeath, the Australian, who with his partner, Frank Corry, gained a lap on the field about the middle of the last six day bike race here, will start in the 144 hour grind at the Coliseum Feb. 12. His entry was received last night. It is not known yet who will ride with McBeath, as Corry is in Australia. However, he will be paired with a rider who will be good enough to stay up at the front all the way, barring accidents.

Twenty-seven entries for the amateur sprint races on the night of Feb. 11 were received last night from the Franklin Skating and Athletic club. It is expected the Alverno A. A. will have as many more, and the Belgian-American, Norwegian-American, Calerton, Twenty-fourth Ward, American Wheelmen, and other clubs are yet to be heard from.

Contracts will be let this week for the construction of the ten lap track in the Coliseum, and for a new seating arrangement for the first floor.

De Paul Loses 3 Basket Games to Lake Forest

De Paul academy basket teams were defeated three times by Lake Forest academy at Lake Forest yesterday. In the bantam game, the score was 11 to 9. The De Paul lightweights were defeated, 12 to 8. The Lake Forest heavyweights emerged victorious from a rough game, 20 to 14.

De Paul lost Werdell and Plunkett on account of personal fouls in the chief contest, while Lanipe of Lake Forest was forced to leave the game for the same reason. Patterson made fourteen of Lake Forest's points while Dahl led for De Paul.

MAROONS SINK MILWAUKEE A. C. IN MEET, 38 TO 30

Coach Joe White's University of Chicago swimming team defeated the Milwaukee A. C. tank team, 38 to 30, in a dual meet in the Bartlett gym pool last night. Capt. Ed Blinks won three events, the 40, 100 and 220 yard free style swims, leading the Maroons, scoring with 15 points. Maroon swimmers won six of the eight events.

Victory over the Milwaukee team stirred Midway hopes of a second successive conference swimming title, as the Cream City squad already had won over Northwestern university natators.

In a water basketball game played after the meet the Maroons defeated the Milwaukee team, 3 to 1. Summaries:

160 yard relay—Won by Chicago [River, Gleason, Van De Venter, Blinks]. Time 1:21 2-5.

Fancy diving—Won by Byler, Chicago; Koch, Milwaukee, second; Sterling, Chicago, third.

40 yard swim—Won by Blinks, Chicago; Crawford, Milwaukee, second; Bechstein, Milwaukee, third. Time :20.

200 yard breast stroke—Won by Koch, Milwaukee; Benson, Milwaukee, second; Lyons, Chicago, third. Time 2:51 4-5.

220 yard swim—Won by Blinks, Chicago; Thomsen, Milwaukee, second; Nightengale, Chicago, third. Time 2:39.

Plunge—Won by Hedeen, Chicago; [illegible], Chicago, second; Bloodgood, Milwaukee, third. Distance 60 feet, in :32 3-5.

150 yard back stroke—Won by Thomsen, Milwaukee; Hildebrant, Milwaukee, second; Ivy, Chicago, third. Time 1:57.

100 yard swim—Won by Blinks, Chicago; Crawford, Milwaukee, second; Gleason, Chicago, third. Time :54 1-5.

OAK PARK BEATS CRANE ON TRACK

Oak Park High's junior track team yesterday defeated Crane, 53 to 24, in a dual meet at Oak Park. The home lads placed first in six of the eight events, winning all three places in the 220, 660 yard runs, high jump, and shot put. Royer of Oak Park scored 11 points with victories in the 35 yard dash and low hurdles, and a third in the 220 yard dash.

BUCKNER BACK AS SOX TRAINER

William Buckner has been reëngaged to look after the aching muscles of Kid Gleason's white hosed athletes. Secretary Harry Grabiner announced yesterday that the veteran trainer would be back, in place of "Doc" Stephenson, who has decided to remain at Postl's gym. Buckner served as Sox trainer for a number of years and was let out about four seasons ago.

WHEATON HIGH WINS TWO.

Wheaton High school basket tossers copped both ends of a double bill from West Aurora last night, the heavies winning, 35 to 8, and the lights, 14 to 11. Palmer of Wheaton Majors sank eight baskets.

We Invite You to View the Most Conspicuous Development in Motor Construction

WE ARE justifiably enthusiastic over the gratifying results obtained through all these years by owners of our cars. We desire that all lovers of good automobiles, who judge a fine motor car as a Kentuckian judges a thoroughbred horse, shall see our exhibit and refresh their knowledge of our new motor.

THE R&V KNIGHT six cylinder motor is further developed than anything previously attained in gasoline engine construction. The records of thousands of motors, covering millions of miles, show that R&V Knight owners have never had a valve miss, pit, warp or stick. They have never had a valve ground or a cylinder rebored.

THIS RECORD has been established since 1913, the year we adopted the Knight type motor, and certainly is worthy of the most serious consideration of every one who owns a car or intends to own one.

IN EVERY RESPECT the features of the R&V Knight Six are in full keeping with the demonstrated mechanical supremacy of the motor. The visual appeal of the car, also, is most pleasing. The design of the bodies, the exquisite finish, the inviting comfort—all these outstanding features indicate the insistence upon the highest quality in materials and workmanship which is a fixed principle in our organization.

THEREFORE, in the utmost hospitality, we ask you to visit our space and personally view the new R&V Knight models—both Sixes and Fours. These will be attractively displayed in the main aisle, First Regiment Armory, and every courtesy will be extended to all.

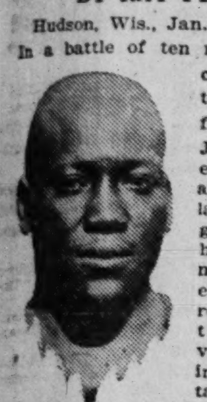
SHADE VICTORY FOR J. JOHNSON OVER P. JACKSON

This is one of a series of articles describing mythical fights between boxers who never have met. Many arguments are caused by fans attempting to compare stars of the past with those who later achieved fame in the ring, and these stories are meant to convey what might have happened had such bouts been possible when the contestants were in their prime.

The story of an imaginary battle between Jack Dempsey and Jim Jeffries will appear next Sunday.

BY RAY PEARSON.

Hudson, Wis., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—In a battle of ten rounds in which cleverness was the outstanding feature, Jack Johnson outscored Peter Jackson and won the popular decision. These great colored heavyweights might have traveled for fifty rounds as well as ten, so well versed are they in the interrelated tactics of this fighting business, but Johnson won because he ruled superior in cleverness and outsmarted his opponent.



JACK JOHNSON.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

There never was a moment of the time they were in action that a knockout seemed likely, and the final clang of the gong found both smiling and fit to battle along indefinitely.

Neither Shows Punch.

It was a fight in which the punch was conspicuous by its absence. Neither man gave evidence of possessing the wallop to end the contest with a single sock, in fact neither landed hard enough during the ten rounds they were in the ring to cause the other the least distress. It was a battle in which two clever men—not the cleverest in the world, but still worthy of being rated clever—were on display and gave an exhibition of clever performing seldom seen in any ring.

Heavyweights who punch do not usually travel fast, but Johnson and Jackson demonstrated that fighters who don't punch can move at a dizzy pace. It was the pace at which they traveled, the speedy footwork, the fast hitting and the clever defensive work that made this contest a thriller for the fans. It was not a fight, as we know that term. It was a boxing contest, with all the thrills thrown in and it satisfied the spectators.

Johnson Best Boxer.

Peter Jackson, the man who stood off James J. Corbett for sixty-one rounds in a struggle which resulted in a draw decision, is a great boxer, but in Johnson he met a greater boxer. At that the margin by which Johnson earned the verdict was small. Some critics might have been generous enough to call it a draw bout, but the business of being generous doesn't belong in pugilism, and Johnson's margin on points was sufficient to earn him the verdict.

The fistic school which made boxers who battled with the light gloves weighing little more than three ounces was represented by Jackson; the school which turned out a glove wielder more versed in the science of the game was represented by Johnson. It therefore was a victory for a modern mode of milling, as well as a triumph for Jack Johnson.

Fast Start by Jack.

The left jab and the right cross—the one two—did not dazzle Jackson, but it was a point getter for Johnson. For the greater part of the opening round Johnson found it easy to connect with Peter's head with his punches. But Jackson found that Jack had no sting in his blows and profited in that session by devising a way to escape the attacking force of the opposition. He found a way in the second round by taking the lead away from Johnson and taking a hand in the attacking business. After that Johnson's attack was far less effective and Jackson actually earned the honors in the second session.

The third round found Jackson cleverly speeding, but he found Johnson moving faster and the session was an even one.

Spurt by Jackson.

The next four rounds saw Johnson outboxing Peter by a small margin, but neither was damaged. Then, in the eighth and ninth, Jackson spurted again, and in these sessions, by punching Jack in the body and shooting snappy right handers to Johnson's head, he gained the shade. The tenth and final round was a hummer. They stood toe to toe in the center of the ring and punched, blocked, and ducked while the crowd yelled wildly until the gong ended the round, which was won by Johnson.

Chicago Passenger Club to Roll in Milwaukee

More than fifty members of the Chicago Passenger club will journey to Milwaukee today to root for their four bowling teams which are to compete with the Milwaukee Passenger club. The Chicago teams include:

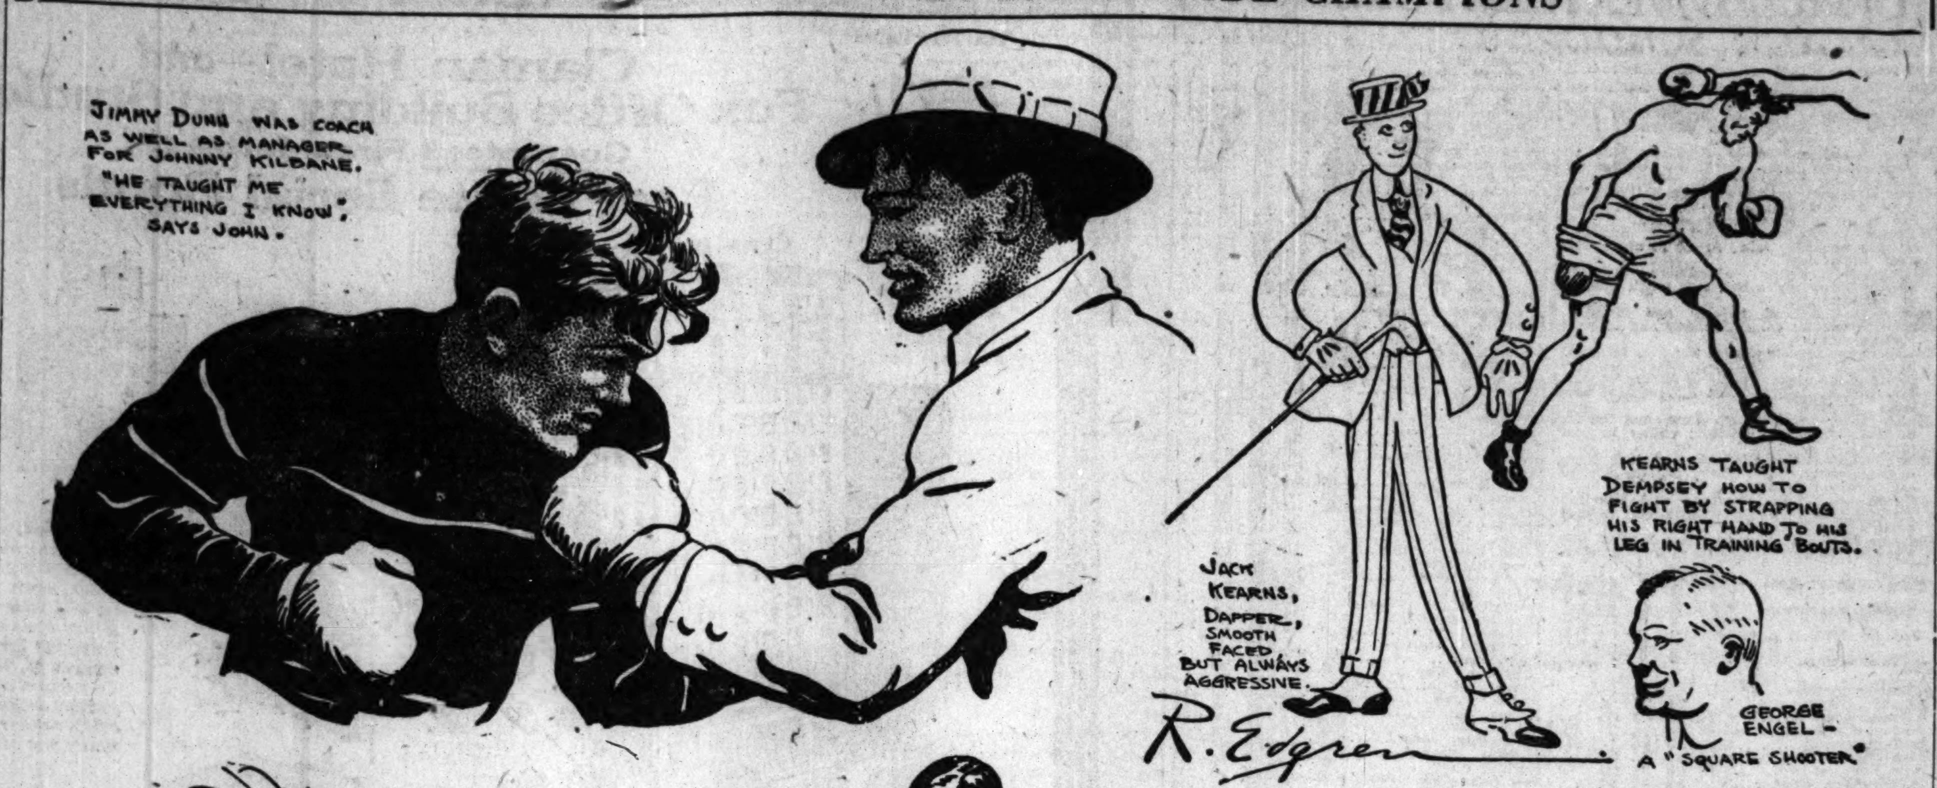
Women Bowlers in Match for $50 Purse Tonight

A special bowling match will be rolled tomorrow night at the Irving alleys between the women's teams from Stewart Warner Company and from Proctor & Gamble's. The match will be for a purse of $50, three games with total pins counting.

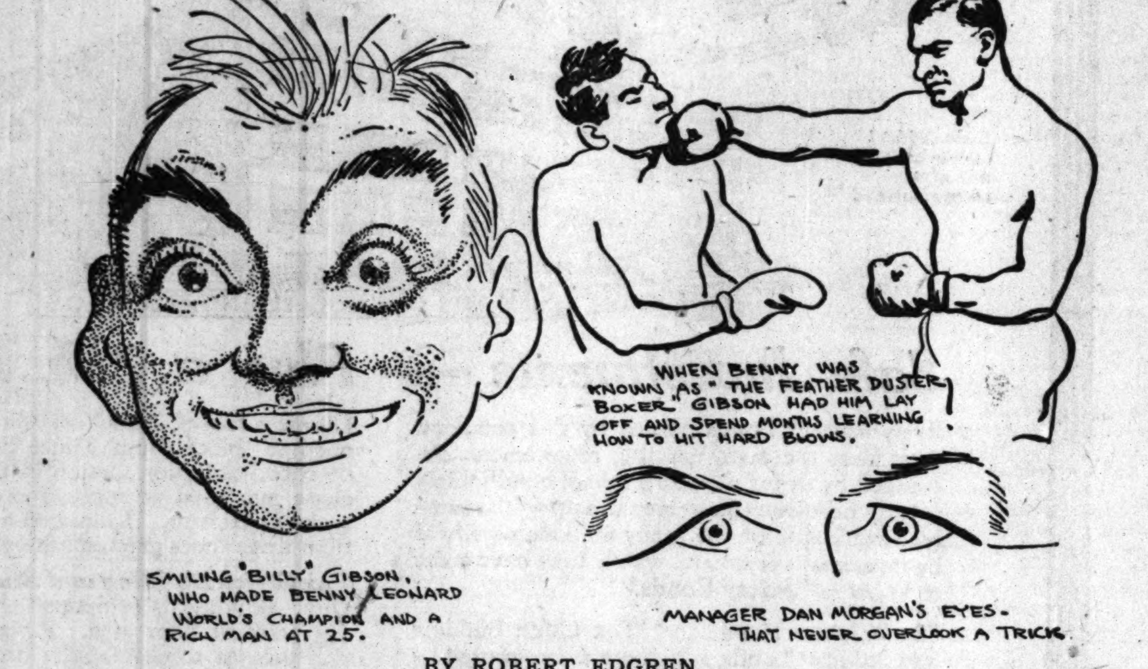
Double Header Today in Windy City Indoor League

A double header will be played in the Windy City Indoor league at St. Alphonsus hall this afternoon, the home team and the Barrys in the feature contest and the Belle Plaines and Murleys in the afterpiece. Halas day will also be celebrated in honor of the veteran twirler of the Barrys.

MODERN MANAGERS WHO HAVE MADE CHAMPIONS



JIMMY DUNN WAS COACH AS WELL AS MANAGER FOR JOHNNY KILBANE. "HE TAUGHT ME EVERYTHING I KNOW," SAYS JOHN.
JACK KEARNS, DAPPER, SMOOTH FACED BUT ALWAYS AGGRESSIVE.
KEARNS TAUGHT DEMPSEY HOW TO FIGHT BY STRAPPING HIS RIGHT HAND TO HIS LEG IN TRAINING BOUTS.
GEORGE ENGEL - A "SQUARE SHOOTER"
R. Edgren



SMILING "BILLY" GIBSON, WHO MADE BENNY LEONARD WORLD'S CHAMPION AND A RICH MAN AT 25.
WHEN BENNY WAS KNOWN AS "THE FEATHER DUSTER BOXER" GIBSON HAD HIM LAY OFF AND SPEND MONTHS LEARNING HOW TO HIT HARD BLOWS.
MANAGER DAN MORGAN'S EYES - THAT NEVER OVERLOOK A TRICK.

BY ROBERT EDGREN.

A "DUMBBELL" may become a fairly good fighter, if he has a strong back and hard fists, but no "dumbbell" ever made a good manager. A successful manager must have brains.

The most successful manager today is Jack Kearns, who handles Jack Dempsey's affairs, from matchmaking to finance. Kearns was a clever featherweight years ago and fought through a long list of opponents before he suddenly decided that fighting was a better business for the manager than for the fighter.

After handling a "stable" of boxers in San Francisco, Kearns went to Australia with two or three good men and had his share of success in the boxing boom started by McIntosh and continued by Snowy Baker. He just missed getting Les Darcy, the wonderful Australian middleweight, on his staff.

Discovers Jack Dempsey.

Returning to America and looking around for championship material he heard about a big youngster who had tried fighting and had quit the sport to go back to a steady job. He found Jack Dempsey standing on a corner outside a cigar store after work one evening and made him a proposition.

"It's no use, Mr. Kearns," said Dempsey. "I'm a bum as a fighter—no good at all—and any way I've got a good job now and I need the money too much to leave it."

A few months later circumstances made Dempsey change his mind and he let Kearns get him a match with "Phat" Meehan. Kearns tried Dempsey out, found that he had a good right hand punch, but no left and no defense. So he had Jack's right tied to his side, and made him fight his sparring partners with the left alone.

That's how Dempsey developed the terrific left hooks that knocked out so many big men, and having no right to block with he acquired a habit of swaying and bobbing his head under punches. That swaying, shifting attack of Dempsey's made him world's champion. It was new. No opponent could solve it.

How Leonard Started.

Another great manager is Billy Gibson, handler of Benny Leonard's fistic career. Gibson for many years ran the Fairmont A. C. in the Bronx. There he developed many great fighters. One night a skinny youngster beat his way in and asked for a chance to box. Gibson put him on in a preliminary, and he knocked out Mickey Finnegan in three rounds. This was Benny Leonard's start. He won a lot of fights with quick knockouts at the Fairmont, and Gibson took a personal interest in him and made all his matches.

Gibson owned a café and made book at the tracks, but after a while Leonard's affairs became his chief business. After the first year Leonard lost his punch and became "clever." He achieved some sort of fame as "the feather duster boxer," because he was fast and clever, but couldn't hit hard. Gibson told Leonard that his only chance to become a champion was to develop a knockout punch. He got sluggers for Benny's sparring partners, and for months made Benny study the delivering of hard blows. Benny astonished every one by knocking out Joe Mandot, and after that made a remarkable knockout record.

Land Title Go for Leonard.

Gibson went after a match with Freddy Welsh, lightweight champion. Twice Leonard boxed him, with only fair success. Gibson persuaded Welsh into another match, and Leonard knocked Welsh out. Since then Leonard's matches, made by Gibson, have earned him a fortune.

Jimmy Dunn of Cleveland is another skillful manager. Dunn used to be a very clever lightweight and, like Kearns, decided that managing was better than fighting. He always has a large stable of fighters, but his chief success was with Johnny Kilbane, featherweight champion. Dunn developed Kilbane, and taught him to box. Kilbane tells me Dunn taught him "everything he knows." When Johnny was going along pretty well Dunn took him to California, where he knocked out Joe Rivers and got the match with Attel that made him world's champion.

Dan Morgan is manager of Jack Britton, welterweight champion. Morgan is a character. He's a keen Irishman and by good matchmaking came within an ace of making Knockout Brown a world's champion — and Brown was only a thick little Dutchman with an awkward punch. When Brown "blew" Morgan took on Britton, who could box like a streak, but had no financial luck. Morgan got Britton matches every week, matched him into the welter championship, and into winning it back after losing it to Kid Lewis.

Britton is also a wealthy boxer. But while Morgan makes money for the men he handles he never achieves much of a bank account for himself. He either gambles away or gives away his share of the profits as they come in.

One of the most successful managers of fighters is Francois Descamps, who has Carpentier and Ledoux.

There are a few other managers around who have had a bit to do with champions, but they are hardly in a class with those mentioned. Jimmy Johnston managed Kid Lewis, and may be remembered as the coiner of the phrase, "dashing, crashing, smashing Kid," which was descriptive of Lewis' fighting style.

Jones Had Three Champions.

Then there was Tom Jones, "the Kewanee barber," who had several champions, but is not exactly to be classed among the "moderns," as his last champ was Jess Willard when Willard beat Johnson in 1915. Jones had Billy Papke when Papke beat Ketchel, and when Ketchel licked Papke and took the title back. He had Ad Wolgast through that great little fighter's career as lightweight champion. And he had Jess Willard.

Jones must have had a sort of genius for managing. Otherwise why the three world's champions?

Killilea is manager of Johnny Wilson—and successful in getting a world title with such poor material.

Engel One of the Best.

George Engel was one of the best of the semi-modern managers of champions. He put Frank Klaus through some great fighting as middleweight champion in this country and abroad. Engel had Klaus when he beat Carpentier and Pake in France.

There were some great managers in the old days. We'll tell about them in the next chapter.

ANOTHER RECORD IN RIFLE SHOOT FOR TRIB TROPHY

The ninth match in the series for the championship and a leg on THE TRIBUNE'S city championship rifle trophy last week brought forth a better brand of shooting than any similar match in the city's history. Twelve men turned in perfect scores, against the best previous record of nine. Fourteen others missed a possible by one point.

Men to shoot "possibles" for the first time during the series were C. H. Davis, M. L. Krumrey, and E. J. Moberg. W. C. Kaiser of the Chicago team turned in his sixth tournament "possible." Ten others have hung up three or better. This is in marked comparison with two years ago, when only three perfect scores were turned in by all shooters during the entire tournament.

T. G. Lively of the Irving Parkers maintains a two point lead as high individual marksman. Team standing:

	Ninth Match.	Aggregate.
Irving Park Rifle club	998	8.965
Chicago Rifle club	997	8.960

Boy Scouts

BIRTHDAY OF SCOUTS.

THE twelfth birthday of scouting in the United States will be celebrated in Chicago March 29-30 at the Hotel La Salle. Over 500 prominent men, delegates from all over the country, will meet at that time to review the last year's work and plan the coming year.

Though initiated into the United States in 1910 the scout movement today embraces almost 500,000 scouts and 100,000 volunteer men leading them—the largest uniformed organization in the United States today. Yet with all this growth the movement has only begun. Literally thousands of boys, 12 years and older, stand in a waiting line to enter scouting. Eight million boys in the United States have not yet had a chance to become scouts, largely because enough big men have not stepped forward to become scoutmasters.

Northwest District.

Field Executive Sowerby has announced a contest to be run off anniversary week, Feb. 8 to 15, in first aid, signaling, knot typing, drill, wall scaling, fire by friction, and lean-to building. Preliminary contests will be run off in each of the three sections—the dates to be announced later. The "all district contest" will be held later.

West Side.

The district scoutleaders' conference will be held on Monday evening, Feb. 6, in the parish house of the new First Congregational church, Ashland and Washington boulevards, at 7:30 p. m.

The district scribes' conference will be at the Legler branch library, Crawford avenue and Monroe street, Wednesday, Feb. 8, at 4:30 p. m.

The district first class court of review will be held Tuesday evening, Feb. 21, at 7:30, at the community house, 23 North Karlov avenue.

The district court of honor comes on Thursday, Feb. 23, at 8 p. m.

Calumet.

Troops all over the district are busy preparing for the annual district scout contests, which take place at Palmer and Bessemer parks early in February.

A new form of entertainment is being provided by various district groups. Each troop presents an original vaudeville stunt. Over 300 people applauded stunts at Bessemer park last Friday. Scouts of the Pullman division have just produced a similar "stunt night."

North Shore.

Patrol leaders' school at Independence park on Tuesday at 4 p. m.

The district annual meeting will be held at the Ravenswood Methodist church on Feb. 9.

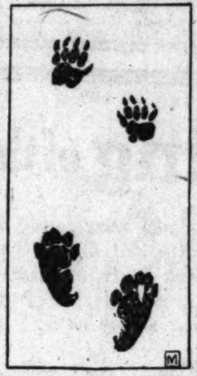
The district rally will be at the Lake View High school Feb. 10, at 7:30 p. m. Gen. Le Roy T. Steward will present the address, "Twelve Years of Scouting in Twelve Minutes." Presentation of awards will also take place.

Southwest.

A public court of honor will be held at the Lewis Champlin school, Englewood avenue, near Princeton, tomorrow. The Rev. George R. Stair, pastor of the Englewood Baptist church, will be the speaker.

Woods and Waters by BOB. BECKER

TALK about your pestiferous, odoriferous skunk, and his unpopularity, but he totes around one of the most valuable little pelts to be found in the middle west. Add to this fact that the skunk is quite numerous, easy to trap, and found in civilized areas, and you can see why the trapper each year feels like singing a little song of praise to the slow-witted skunk.



TRAPPER'S GUIDE.
This is the way Mr Skunk's tracks show up in the snow, making it easy for the trapper to trail him to his den.

Skunks are easily satisfied, as far as their home is concerned, one of their chief characteristics being their fondness to live near man. They often choose a home close to the farmer's house. Sometimes they dig up a place under the corner of his barn, under the corn crib, or they may camp under nearby hay stacks.

Although guilty of raids on poultry, the old skunk behaves pretty well and does far more good than harm on the farms. He eats thousands of harmful insects and rodents, and in this respect is a regular cleanup guy. When a kid, we used to think that the most beautiful skunk skins and the most valuable were those with the large white patches on them. But we soon found out that such was not the case. Broad white striped skins are number fours. The best grade skunk pelt is the one in which there is no white or in which the white area does not extend beyond the head and neck. In other words, the blacker the skin, the more valuable is Mr. Skunk.

Skunks are ordinarily classed by furriers as black, short stripe, long, narrow stripe, and broad stripe, or No. 1, No. 2, No. 3 and No. 4.

It is a good plan for the young trapper to dope out all of these grades and be familiar with them when the fur buyer comes along. There's the little spotted skunk, commonly caught by the western and southern trappers, which usually is called the Civet. Midwest trappers do not run on to the little spotted fellows often.

Trappers in this section get many of the whoppers that fall into No. 2 class, the kind with the long, narrow stripes that branch out just back of the shoulders. Because of their size, the narrow striped skunks bring a higher price than the short stripe, grade No. 2.

Trappers are now on their last lap chasing down skunks, for there are only a few weeks left to get the skunk when the skins are prime. They usually are prime from November to February.

Business has been picking up for the trappers recently. It has been great fun since the recent snows for the trappers to "spot" the old skunks away from home and trail them to their dens. It's great sport for both the old and young trappers to do a bit of sleuthing on the skunk when there is a light snow on the ground. Snow has been so scarce in the southern part of the midwest this winter that locating the dens has been a hard job.

If you are familiar with the skunk's tracks the dens are easily found. Skunk tracks planted in the snow are easily read by the veteran trapper. An inch or two of snow, so the skunk's tracks can be seen, is just as valuable to the trapper as the tourist's road map.

Enough of the old skunks dodge the trapper every year to propagate their kind in large numbers, and there's still a good sized family of skunks left in this country. They turn over a big stack of furs to us every year, usually around 2,000,000 or more pelts each season, ranking next to the muskrat.

When it comes time to take him from the trap, the skunk often has his bluff in on the young trapper, but old timers fasten their traps to the end of a long pole and drown or strangle him to death.

LOCAL ANGLERS FORM A CHAPTER OF WALTON CLUB

Chicago anglers yesterday obtained the first charter in the newly incorporated Izaak Walton Club of America at a luncheon in the Chicago A. A. Prominent anglers from all sections of the country to the number of 150 attended the birth of the local organization and the first step taken by the national body to become an active unit.

The Izaak Walton Club of America was incorporated in Illinois on Jan. 19, and plans to have locals in all sections of the country. The purposes of the organization are to protect game fish, and through essential legislation stop the pollution of streams and protect the great outdoors for coming generations. Officers elected for the local chapter were:

Will H. Dilg, president; Frank K. Reilly, vice president; Fred Peet, treasurer; R. P. Corse, secretary. Directors are Albert H. Hopkins, Thomas Ambrose, and Alex Friend.

National officers, temporarily chosen, are:

Will H. Dilg, chairman; James Alexander Henschall, president emeritus; Leonard Hopkins, secretary, and Fred N. Peet, treasurer.

Prexy Borchert Increases Milwaukee Club Holdings

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 28.—Otto Borchert, president of the Milwaukee American Association Baseball club, who has held a controlling interest in the organization for some time, today announced that he purchased minor interests held by William F. Kinsella and E. W. Krueger. Three other Milwaukee men still have a small interest in the club.

OLYMPIAS PLAY CANADIAN CLUB THIS AFTERNOON

The leading Olympias of the Chicago Soccer league face a busy time when they hook up at 2 o'clock today with Canadian Club in a league match at Bricklayers' park. The Canadians will have three new men in the lineup—Bill Rattery, formerly of the famous Queens Parks of Glasgow; Allan Hendry, also an ex-Scottish league player, and J. Fleck of Toronto.

Rattery and Fleck are half backs, while Hendry is a forward.

Olympia has yet to admit defeat in a league match, but lost to the Brickies in the National cup.

BURMAN V. SCHAEFFER LOOKS LIKE K. O. BOUT

The mooted boxing question of whether a good little man can win from a good big man will be answered to a certain degree on Friday night, when Joe Burman, recognized as a bantamweight, will go out of his class to meet Frankie Schaeffer, who has been advertised as a junior lightweight in most of his fights.

JOE BURMAN.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

This contest will be staged by John Wagner in his Kenosha auditorium, and from the interest in local fight quarters a capacity crowd will be in the building. Burman has permitted Schaeffer to make 126 pounds at 3 o'clock on the day of the contest, which will mean Frankie probably will scale around 130 pounds when he steps into the ring seven hours later.

Burman May Weigh 124 Pounds.

Burman, however, will be a few pounds over his natural weight. Joe has not boxed in months, and during the layoff has taken on weight. His friends expect him to weigh 122 to 124 pounds when he steps on the scales at 3 o'clock.

Burman and Schaeffer are working at the Arcade at different hours. Schaeffer is working with Sam Langford every day at 2 o'clock and Burman trains one hour later. Both are doing road work and will submit to examinations by Walter H. Linginger, secretary of the Wisconsin state boxing commission, on Wednesday.

Tickets are on sale at 153 North Clark street, where Sammy Wolff has the exclusive loop sale. A ten round semi-windup and an eight round preliminary will support the main event.

Pal Moore, local bantamweight, and Manager Harry Hochstadter returned yesterday from Sioux City, Ia., where Moore defeated Earl McArthur last Thursday. According to Manager Hochstader, Moore will meet Tommy Ryan of McKeesport, Pa., at Louisville on Feb. 13. It will be a twelve round bout, the weight to be 118 pounds at 3 o'clock.

Duffy Boxes Six Rounds.

Jack Duffy, who will trade punches with Goats Doig of Spring Valley, Ill., in the main event of Jimmy Keyes' boxing show at La Salle, Ill., on Thursday night, boxed six rounds at the Arcade yesterday. Three other contests have been arranged by the promoter.

Tom Gibbons, St. Paul heavyweight, matched to meet Pat McCarthy in Boston on Thursday night, will stop off in Chicago tomorrow to work at the Arcade. He will leave for the east in the evening.

Amateur contests and presentation of medals to former winners will take place at the Arcade this afternoon. In the amateur local bouts at Ferretti's gym yesterday afternoon, results were:

Gene Flynn and Ed O'Brien boxed a draw at 100 pounds.
Charles Regashus beat Eddie Stanley three rounds at 125 pounds.
Sam Sculman and W. Johnson boxed a three round draw at 130 pounds.
Ben Africh beat W. Tosch, three rounds, at 140 pounds.
Tom Grippo beat E. McFadden, three rounds, at 120 pounds.
George Vyhnalek and Mickey Laflin boxed a three round draw, heavyweights.

FOSTER TO LEAD COLORED LEAGUE

Andrew ["Rube"] Foster of Chicago, owner of the American Giants, yesterday was reëlected president and treasurer of the National Negro Baseball league in the windup of a three day session here at the Appomatox club. The circuit will be composed of eight clubs this season, as follows:

Chicago, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Indianapolis, St. Louis, Kansas City and the Cuban Stars of Havana.

Chicago Giants and Bacharach Giants of New York were taken into the league as affiliated clubs. Cincinnati and Columbus of last year's circuit were dropped. The reports of the secretary showed that during the 1921 season the league played to over a million paid admissions. Besides Foster the other officers elected are:

C. I. Taylor of Indianapolis, vice president; J. L. Wilkinson of Kansas City, secretary.

CUB PITCHING IS BIG PROBLEM FOR MANAGER BILL

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Aside from having to boil about fourteen pitchers down to a half dozen mound toilers of worth, no real problems confront Bill Killefer, the Cub boss. Although his 1922 model will be far different from the one willed him by John Evers in mid-stream last year he will have no trouble putting it together, for the simple reason that certain minor leaguer stars were purchased to fill certain positions, and these favored recruits will be given regular jobs right from the jump.

BILL KILLEFER.

Statz and Miller the Goods.

Featuring the additions will be Arnold Statz and "Hack" Miller, admitted to be the two leading fly-chasers in Pacific coast circles last season. Both men would have gone elsewhere in the big show had the Cubs overlooked them. The fact that practically every scout and ball man of consequence that looked them over reported favorably is an indication they are the goods.

Statz will be given the left field job and Miller the center post. Both are fast on their feet, good throwers and sure fielders of anything coming their way, either via the air or ground route. They displayed ample hitting power in coast league companies.

Keeping them company in right field will be the old reliable Max Flack, a survivor of the Federal league.

Ray Grimes a Fixture.

Because the present roster does not appear likely to turn up anything sensational for first base, it is safe to figure Ray Grimes a fixture at the position. He isn't a Chase or a Sisler, but is fairly steady and he learned considerable last season. The other infield hangover is Charles Hollocher, a shortstop any club would be proud to possess.

The prospect for second base is Barney Friberg, recalled after six months of seasoning at Kansas City. Friberg, although he has played the outfield a great deal, is a capable man for the inner defense. He can cover to either side, is quick on his feet, and can work fast in a double play. He will have no easy task supplanting Zeb Terry, but will be given the chance. Terry, while a fine ball player, is just a bit too slow getting around the bases.

Kelleher Slated for Third.

John Kelleher is slated for the third base job. He played there part of last season, but never had a chance to do himself justice because of differences with Evers. When Killefer assumed charge of the team Kelleher was a changed athlete, and during the coming race he probably will show a lot of stuff the north side fans never suspected he possessed. What will become of Charles Deal, last season's far corner guardian, remains to be seen, but unless there is a hitch he will be shipped to Los Angeles.

With practically a new ball club, the Cubs will stir up a lot of interest, even though they may not press anybody for the pennant. Young blood in the team's makeup makes it a certainty there will be plenty of pep and confidence, and sometimes the latter combination collects more than plain natural ability.

Two Dependable Pitchers.

Just how far the team is able to climb in the race depends on the pitchers. Killefer has only Alexander and Martin as a nucleus. Jones, Cheeves, and Freeman survive from last season, when they turned out some beautiful games. With added experience they may be able to take regular turns this year.

The other hurlers are youngsters, fresh from the sticks. One is Howard Keen, now at Maryland university. He is considered an excellent prospect. Others in the same class are George Stueland, from Sioux Falls, S. D., and Tony Kaufmann, from Winnipeg of the Canadian league.

Marketability.

Most bond buyers demand a higher degree of marketability than they really need. An investor who purchases with the purpose of holding his security until maturity has, as a rule, no need of ready convertibility. At most he will need but a fraction of his holdings in immediately convertible securities to meet an emergency. Nevertheless the average investor purchases a security that is readily convertible, notwithstanding the fact that the price of convertibility is lessened income. Although every investment security should have an absolute assurance of the payment of its principal and interest, it does not follow that all securities possess an equally ready marketability. The bonds of a small city may possess the highest degree of safety, but its narrow and inactive market might make it difficult to sell if an immediate sale were necessary. A forced sale would probably mean a sacrifice in the sale price.

A great many corporations must, of course, keep a certain amount of funds in such form that they can readily be converted into cash in an emergency. In such cases convertibility is essential, as the corporation may suddenly and unexpectedly be forced to call upon all its available resources, and at the time of such a crisis it would be costly for it to have securities that could not be quickly converted into cash without a large sacrifice. But with the average individual investor the same reason for a ready market for his holdings does not exist. American investors are sacrificing a great deal by paying for ready marketability when it serves them no purpose. European investors are not so ready to purchase something they do not need. They are purchasing a security to hold it until maturity, and are content with the safety of principal and interest, and the slower market is compensated for by a higher rate of return.

WAGNER & CO.'S CREDITORS TAKE PROTECTIVE STEP

A creditors' committee to look after the interest of Board of Trade houses which had trades with E. W. Wagner & Co. has been formed. It is composed of J. C. Murray, F. S. Cowgill, G. B. Van Ness, Fred S. Lewis, and John H. Jones. John Hill Jr. is acting as secretary and Jacob Ringer attorney.

It is said that the Wagner indebtedness on the Board of Trade is around $75,000, while they have profits in their trades of about $20,000. The creditors are endeavoring to protect their interests as well as other claimants by a speedy settlement of the complicated affairs of the Wagner house. The committee's operations will conflict with those of the receivers in bankruptcy and its work is not to be confused with the administrative work of the court.

The receiver is preparing a financial statement of the Wagner affairs and expects to have it ready within a short time.

Bonds in $100 $500 $1000 Amounts

An Indian, it is said, sold New York City to a white man about 400 years ago for $24.00. But today these same lands possess enormous earning power, and their values steadily multiply. Bonds to be secured by the New York properties here shown combine a wide margin of permanent security with an excellent interest return. With the present declining interest rates, these bonds represent an investment opportunity you cannot afford to overlook.

Safe Investments — Plus a 7½% Income

Every issue of Bonds offered by this company must meet the many exacting requirements demanded by us for the protection of bondholders—each new issue must measure up to the same high standards of the many millions now held by investors everywhere, which they have come to know as "Safety Bonds."

The "Claman Hotel" and "Fox Office Building and Studios" bonds, which are to be secured by the properties shown above, combine both the elements of safety and attractive interest yield.

Claman Hotel, New York City—to be erected one-half block from Times Square, generally described as busiest section in the world. Land alone appraised at approximately one-half the entire bond issue. Estimated net income more than three times greatest annual interest charge.

Fox Office Building and Studios, New York City. Building is completed and occupied; has 4⅘ acres of floor area. Payment of principal and interest to be guaranteed by a corporation whose net earnings in each of past two years have been well over 100% of entire bond issue.

SHARP ADVANCE IN BUENOS AIRES SENDS WHEAT UP

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

A sensational advance of 7c in wheat in Buenos Aires, making 17c recently, due partly to a difference in exchange and a bulge of 1⅝d in Liverpool led to heavy and general buying here, which carried prices up sharply to a new high on the present movement. Closing trades were about the top with net gains of 1¾@2⅝c. Corn and oats were influenced by the action of wheat and closed with gains of ⅞@1⅛c on corn and ⅜@½c on oats. Rye was up 2⅛c. Packers' brokers bought lard and it advanced 20@27½c while short ribs were up 20c.

While the wheat market was inclined to be easy a good part of the week, the persistent advances shown abroad finally started general buying and the close Saturday was at the highest prices, with net gains of 1⅜@2⅞c, with May leading. Corn closed ⅝@¾c higher and oats ⅝@½c higher, both being about the best figures of the week. Rye gained 2⅛c. Bullish sentiment predominated in provisions and the close was strong with lard 22½@30c and ribs 7½@20c higher.

Liverpool Gains Surprise.

At no time were wheat prices as low as the close of the previous day. The advance in Liverpool was a surprise to the trade and commission houses and the local element took the bull side freely, with some buying of May and July for foreign account, partly to cover shorts. The advance was checked for a time at $1.17½ for the May on selling on resting orders, but after the senational upturn of 6½@7c in Buenos Aires became known the opposition to the bulge was quickly swept aside and stop loss orders were uncovered on the way up.

The world's situation is attracting more attention than for some time past as the result of the continued strength abroad. Private and semi-official reports suggest that the bulk of the world's available supply is in the show windows. The bulge in Buenos Aires put offers of grain from that country materially above what hard winter at the Gulf could be secured at.

Russia was reported as after 3,000,000 bu Canadian wheat at Montreal and London also reported that country as a buyer. Bearish news was ignored throughout the day. Forecast was for rain or snow in the southwest and the May-July spread widened to around 14½c, the greatest difference so far.

Corn and Oats Active.

Corn and oats showed more activity, and while the greater part of the strength was derived from wheat there were less favorable crop reports on corn from Argentina and a higher range was easily attained. Bulk of the trade was of a local character.

Exporters continue after corn at the seaboard, and a fair business was put through, while Minneapolis made fair sales of oats for domestic shipment. The trade generally look for a fair increase in the visible supply of corn to be shown in Monday's statement, and a decrease in oats. Cash prices were higher in sympathy with futures. Deliveries on January contracts were 10,000 bu corn.

Buying of rye for seaboard account, combined with the strength in wheat and reports of a good business with Europe brought about a higher range. Houses with northwestern connections were fair sellers.

Cash Provisions Advance.

Cash trade in provisions was reported as better, and with buying of lard credited to packers, prices advanced easily. Selling on resting orders checked the bulge. Eastern commission houses were fair buyers early. Deliveries on January contracts were 250 brls pork and 300,000 lbs lard. Packing at Chicago for the winter season to date aggregates 1,593,000 hogs, compared with 2,081,000 last year. Prices follow:

BUSINESS NEWS IN BRIEF

[Copyright: 1922: By Fairchild News Service.]

NEW YORK.—The Commercial Standards council has been organized by officials of trade associations national in scope. Its object is to fight the "corrupt and growing practice" of commercial bribery.

NEW YORK.—Wholesalers and retailers report a growing fad for hand made handkerchiefs. Consequent movement of linen piece goods is expected to grow.

NEW YORK.—A wholesale house is understood to have sold 500,000 dozens of children's lisle half and three-quarter length hose, fancy topped, at $2 to $4 a dozen.

NEW YORK.—Representative of Chicago retail houses here warns merchants against holding neckwear stocks. He looks for entirely different patterns this spring.

NEW YORK.—High prices for raw furs are hurting sales, a skin operator declares. "Outside markets are asking higher prices of us than we expect to ask our customers," he complains.

BUENOS AIRES.—Reappearance of American buyers in the Argentine wool markets is causing the belief that some grades in America are short. Price rises in the United States is aiding in a reduction of piece goods stocks held here. Resumption of textile export trade is believed possible.

PHILADELPHIA.—Cotton yarn price decline is not yet felt in the cotton underwear market. One manufacturer is advancing Balbriggans $1 a dozen to conform to cost of yarns taken at higher than present prices.

NEW YORK.—American flower and feather markets are strengthening. German competition is declining as German prices rise.

NEW YORK.—Medium sized shapes predominate in millinery imports so far. Most merchandise is in black with touches of color.

MILWAUKEE.—Bookings for the spring trade for silk sweaters exceed anticipations. Reorders already are coming in. The season has progressed much farther than it had this time last year.

PARIS.—Madeleine Vionnet, Paris couture house, has started suit against the Butterick Publishing company, it was learned Saturday. The Paris house alleges the American pattern company sold patterns of Vionnet models.

TIMOTHY HAY WANTED

Buyers took hay freely Saturday and the receipts of 22 cars of timothy were about cleaned up, with No. 1 $21.00@22.00, and other timothy $14.00@19.00. Alfalfa fair sale at $14.00@22.00, with one car in. Prairie in fair supply and slow sale, with southwestern Nebraska and South Dakota $14.00@17.00, and other prairie $12.00@15.00. Receipts 5 cars southwestern, 4 Nebraska, and 3 packing, the latter ranging at $9.00@11.00. Straw in good demand at $14.00@15.00 for rye, $12.00@13.00 for oat, and $11.00@12.00 for wheat. Receipts, 1 car wheat.

Seeks Longer Life for War Corporation Act

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—[United Press.]—A bill extending the provisions of the War Finance corporation act for relief to agriculture and live stock dealers until July 1, 1923, was introduced in the senate today by Senator Kellogg, Republican, Minnesota. The act, as it now stands, would suspend such relief on April 5, 1923.

DRY GOODS MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—The largest producer of wool dress goods announced today its fall lines had been sold and withdrawn for the season. The largest lines of 32 inch dress ginghams made for fall have also been sold and withdrawn. Cotton goods and yarns quiet; linens firm; burlaps steady; silk production continued below normal.

A Safe Investment in a Company Which Refused to Recognize Hard Times

Eureka Vacuum Cleaner Company
Highest Possible Award
EUREKA
Electric Vacuum Cleaner
OFFICIAL AWARD RIBBON
PANAMA PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION SAN FRANCISCO GRAND PRIZE
EUREKA

Some business firms last year refused to think in terms of hard luck and poor business. One such—the Eureka Vacuum Cleaner Company—believed that a good product well advertised and sold at a fair price, would sell even in a time of depression. So it went right ahead and, while others were shutting down their factories, did the largest business of any year in its history.

Such an accomplishment as this requires a good product (the Eureka cleaner has won first prize at five World's Fairs), and skillful management (in twelve years the company has grown from a capital of $1,000 to one of the three largest vacuum cleaner companies in the country, with a net worth of $1,000,000, and its product on sale in every civilized country in the world).

An Unusual Investment Opportunity

Up to the present time, this company has never added outside money to its original capital of $1,000, but has increased its capital solely out of earnings. It now offers to large and small investors an opportunity to profit by its success.

8% for 15 Years

Its 8% notes selling at 100 and interest will pay you 8% for 15 years. They are callable only at a large premium. They are backed by a mortgage on valuable property and by a pledge to the Trustee of leases, factories, equipment, patents, rights, etc., greatly in excess of the amount of the notes.

For the past four years, net earnings available for interest and Federal taxes have averaged 7½ times the amount needed to pay interest on these notes. Last year—the year of depression for many others—they were 14 times requirements.

It can be seen from this what a wide margin of safety there is in these notes. Holders of the notes may convert them at any time into 8% Preferred Stock, participating up to 10%.

We offer these notes in denominations of $100, $500 and $1,000 at 100 and interest to yield 8% for 15 years. If not convenient to call at our office, mail us the coupon.

Population—

is the accepted basis for estimating earning possibilities of interurban electric railway properties.

Chicago, Milwaukee and intervening Cities and Towns served by the

CHICAGO NORTH SHORE & MILWAUKEE RAILROAD

—have a population estimated at about 3,500,000. This growing North Shore District has become one of the most populous residential sections of the Country contiguous to any great City.

The First Participation Shares of the Chicago North Shore & Milwaukee Railroad in our opinion have a sound basis for a permanent investment. They are entitled to cumulative dividends at the rate of $5.00 per share from January 1, 1918.

DISTRIBUTOR WANTED

A REPUTABLE $750,000 AA1 St. Louis Corporation seeks a reliable man with sufficient working capital to take over one of the most successful auto safety devices on the market. This device has been examined and indorsed by safety commissions and traffic authorities of Chicago.

A state law now introduced to the Legislature soon will make it compulsory on most cars. It is selling well now wherever introduced. Every co-operation will be extended. A yearly profit of $20,000 is a conservative estimate of what this proposition will yield to the right man. Size of investment required, $10,000 to $12,000.

Any special experience is unnecessary, as applicant will be carefully taught all phases of the business. Every possible assistance will be permanently extended by the manufacturers. National and local newspaper advertising will be maintained at the manufacturer's expense, high class descriptive literature will be furnished free of charge, and free merchandise for advertising purposes will be allowed.

Mr. A. Schlessing, the manufacturer's field manager, is at The Drake Hotel, Room 502.

All details will be submitted and rigid investigation invited.

Phone immediately for appointment—Superior 2200.

Assistant Sales Manager

One of the largest financial institutions in the United States offers an unusual opportunity for a man to act as an assistant manager in its Bond Sales Department.

Previous experience in bond selling would be an advantage but is not necessary. The applicant should be the type of man who is fitted to represent a national House of established reputation. He should have some experience in handling men, and some experience in Sales Correspondence. Some knowledge of the office detail of a sales department is requisite.

Replies will be considered in strict confidence.

WORLD'S·GRAIN MARKET·NEWS

The advance in all grains Saturday to the highest prices of the week with the strong close created a better feeling and encouraged traders to look for a further hardening of wheat values. Should the latter hold, coarse grains are expected to follow. The impression of the wheat traders is that the foreigners are waking up to the real situation and are not only covering their short sales but going long. There were orders of both kinds from London and Liverpool here yesterday. Sentiment favors higher prices with any encouragement in the way of help of buying orders from the outside.

There were more big buying orders for wheat in the market yesterday than have been seen for a long time. On the advance there was profit taking by commission houses, with offerings well absorbed. It was said at the close that a buying order for 1,000,000 bu July was received a fraction under the market. The leading short interest was credited with buying early and selling on the bulge.

A feature in the corn trade was the liberal buying above 54c for May. On previous advances the market has met selling orders around that price. Leading holders were credited with absorbing the bulk of the offerings.

The movement of corn is unusually large. In the last two weeks Chicago has received 16,152,000 bu wheat, compared with 12,568,000 bu last year. Last week receipts were the largest at this time in recent years, being 8,330,000 bu, while shipments were 4,493,000 bu. Exports from the seaboard yesterday were 1,308,000 bu, compared with primary receipts of 2,187,000 bu.

Bulk of the trading in oats is largely confined to spreading operations at ⅛@1c difference between May and July. Yesterday there was selling of July and buying of May. Recently the operations have been reversed.

"The wide distribution of hog receipts and the broader consuming trade at home, coupled with stronger markets abroad, reveals small accumulations everywhere, and proved the nonexistence of any large amount of anticipated buying," says W. L. Gregson.

Wheat stocks in all positions in Kansas, as estimated by Allan Logan of Kansas City are 31,600,000 bu, including 19,000,000 bu on farms. The latter is equal to 15 per cent of the crop. Reports from country elevator men and mills show the new crop to be in poor condition and an average of 19 per cent of the acreage seeded last fall was reported as dead by thirty-three mills.

In commenting on the reports to the leading railroads in the four northwestern states which showed small reserves on farms C. E. Lewis & Co. said: "The northwest raised around 35,000,000 bu durum wheat in 1921 of which a considerable percentage still remains in interior elevators and on farms. This grain which is not wanted by mills, is included in the holdings. The northwestern situation has become more acute every day."

About 5c of the 6½@7c per bu advance in wheat in Buenos Aires Saturday was due to the difference in the rate of exchange. February wheat in Buenos Aires was quoted at $1.14 and March at $1.13.

Semi-official estimates indicate that while France has an excellent wheat crop this season import needs will be around 20,000,000 bu at a minimum. Consumption of the new crop started immediately after harvest. Outlook for the 1922 crop is regarded as poor.

"The United States is already overexported, considering that a carry over of 70,000,000 bu wheat is below normal," said William C. Weigand with the J. Rosenbaum Grain company. "Growing crop conditions leave much to be desired, with the probability of a crop scare as serious as any ever experienced. Any improvement in economic conditions would tend to strengthen an already very strong situation."

FINANCIAL NOTES

The long awaited rate divisions decision, which is of such vital importance to the New York, New Haven and Hartford and other carriers in the New England district, is expected this week. Various rumors tend to the opinion that it will be favorable to the New England roads. If this is true, the conclusion of negotiations for taking care of the New Haven $27,500,000 European loan, which matures April 1, should be handled with comparative ease. The attorney general is said to be favorably disposed toward a modification of the dissolution decree of the New Haven in connection with its trolleys, which are now in the hands of the federal trustees, and this also is expected to strengthen the company's treasury position.

Judge John M. Killits in United States District court in Toledo, O., yesterday signed an order fixing the time limit for the filing of all claims against the Willys corporation as April 1, 1922, in any of the courts having jurisdiction in the case. There are four receivers for the corporation, two in New York, one in New Jersey, and one in Toledo. Claims must be filed with only one of the courts, which will report a certified list of claims to Judge Killits, who then will furnish back a completed list of creditors to each of the courts.

Dun's review says basic industries hold most of the advance of recent months and in some instances have made further recovery, but the revival at manufacturing establishments remains the conspicuous exception. Bradstreet's says trade reports in the east, south, and far west are slightly shaded; collections no better and a slight quieting down seems evident in industry. There were 644 commercial failures last week, compared with 646 during the previous week, and 429 during the corresponding week last year.

The Great Northern railway has been granted authority by the interstate commerce commission to issue $30,000,000 general mortgage 5½ per cent bonds, due Jan. 1, 1952, which are to be sold at not less than 93¼ per cent of par. Of the proceeds $15,000,000 will be used to repay a government loan, $4,000,000 for new equipment, $7,000,000 for additions and betterments and $3,800,000 to redeem Minneapolis union station bonds.

The Texas company has called for redemption on March 1, 1922, at 101, $5,000,000 of the $28,000,000 three year 7 per cent gold notes outstanding. The notes mature March 1, 1923. The company will be able to meet the call out of its own funds and will not do any borrowing. The Columbia Railway, Power and Light company will redeem on March 1 all of its three year 8 per cent sinking fund mortgage bonds then outstanding. A premium of 2 per cent will be paid.

Directors of the Keystone Tire and Rubber company have agreed on a plan to change the capital stock from $10 par to shares of no par. Stockholders of the Ajax Rubber company have subscribed to practically the entire block of 200,000 shares of its new capital stock, offered to them at 12½.

Plans are being made to list Sweets Company of America on the New York Stock exchange. The listing application is now being prepared. Earnings are running at the rate of $20,000 to $30,000 a month. Book loans are down to about $125,000. Quick assets are about two and a half times the bank loans, over $200,000.

The Chicago federal reserve bank reports the weekly movement of credits as follows: Debits to individual deposit account reported for the week ending Jan. 25, by 202 banks in 24 leading clearing house cities in the seventh federal reserve district, aggregate $833,330,000, compared with $956,469,000 a week ago. Aggregate debit to individual deposit account amounted to $833,330,000, compared with $962,876,000 for the corresponding week last year.

Production of the Mother Lode Coalition company in December amounted to more than £2,000,000, bringing the total for the year to approximately £19,000,000. The cost of the copper in December was slightly in excess of 7c per pound.

The West Side Bankers' club, which was discontinued during the world war, was reorganized at a meeting yesterday, and Frank A. Alden, president of the Garfield Park State Savings bank, was re-elected president of the club.

Directors of the Reliance State bank voted to transfer $40,000 from undivided profits account to surplus account, making total surplus now $100,000.

The Federal reserve bank of San Francisco has reduced its discount rate on all classes of paper from 5 to 4½ per cent.

7% First Mortgages on Improved Farms

In the Dairy Belt Counties of North Central Wisconsin. GUARANTEED BOTH AS TO PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST by a 40-Year-Old Firm with a reputation for taking care of its customers.

FARM MORTGAGES APPEAL TO THE careful, conservative investor. Insurance companies, who are known to be among the most conservative of investors, are large purchasers of farm mortgages.

Our Mortgages in each case are less than 50% of the actual value of the farm and are all on going farms, in a district that has advanced steadily with no abnormal sudden boom and later terrific decline. The farms securing our mortgages are mostly in Taylor, Lincoln, Langlade, Marathon and Clark Counties; all high grade dairy counties.

No buyer of a Loeb & Hammel Mortgage ever suffered a loss of either principal or interest. We have built up a high class investment clientele.

Ask for our free list. Call, write or phone. It puts you under no obligation. We do not send salesmen, unless you request it. Your request merely puts you on our mailing list and you will then receive our lists from time to time.

These Mortgages range in size from $1,000.00 to $8,000.00 and run 5, 7, and 10 years; interest payable semi-annually.

We hold our Clients because we give them Service.

The New York Times.

New York, Jan. 28.—[Special.]—All of the markets fell into what might be described as a condition of lassitude and inertia today; the natural inactivity of a Saturday business being emphasized this time, not only by the smallness of the outside interest, but by the pretty general suspension of activities by even professional speculators.

On the stock exchange transactions were the lightest of the year to date; business in the bond market was smaller than usual and even the more active commodity markets moved in a perfunctory way. Fractional advances occurred in the stock market, which, however, ended with a large majority of net declines for the week, running from fractions up to 3 or 4 points.

Several Specialties Advance.

One feature today was American Ice common, which on moderate dealings jumped 3⅝ points to a new high record of 89½. May Department Stores was another specialty which attracted attention with a rise of 3⅝ points. Other issues which were higher included American Can, Atchison, Union Pacific, and Consolidated Gas.

With one or two exceptions the bond market continued firm. Government bonds were active and fractionally higher, and most of them have made up all of the losses established during the early part of the week. Comparison of closing bond prices with those of a week ago shows much greater irregularity of movement, with more net advances than would have been commonly expected from the day to day course of the week's markets. Declines outnumber advances, but the whole appearance of the market has been more that of a halt in a forward movement than of a change in either direction.

Foreign Exchange Is Steady.

Foreign exchange moved as a rule little today; in that market, however, the striking comparison was with the rates of a week ago, the advance of this week having been substantial, although not in most cases going above the month's previous high level. Sterling did not touch Friday's high price again, but held reasonably firm at a fraction under $4.25.

The Reichsbank's statement of German paper currency in circulation reported the third successive week of decrease. This is, however, nothing more than the reduction which, in Germany, as in other countries, follows completion of the year-end financial activities; only, with the money valuation of everything on the inflated scale which has now been reached in Germany, the figures of decrease are relatively as great as those of the preceding increase.

Surplus Bank Reserves Fall.

The New York clearing house bank statement today showed a decrease of $18,890,020 in surplus reserves for the week, bringing the total down to $20,735,950. Loans decreased $27,969,000 and deposits $22,887,000. Reserves of member banks in the Federal Reserve bank decreased $21,414,000. There was only a slight change in the aggregate of government deposits. Details of the statement with comparisons follow:

"The Investor and the Income Tax"

How does the Revenue Act of 1921 differ from the previous Act?

What exceptions are there to the rule that losses in stocks and bonds are deductible?

What is "fair market" value?

What about securities acquired by gift or bequest?

What is a liquidation dividend?

Are cash dividends, stock dividends, scrip certificates, stock rights taxable?

How are gains and losses figured on short sales?

OUR 64-page tax booklet answers these and many other perplexing tax questions confronting the investor.

It also contains a surtax table and a handy form for listing profits and losses on securities.

KENWOOD HOTEL
First Mortgage Gold Bonds

Corner 47th Street and Kenwood Avenue

Denominations $50, $100, $500 and $1,000
Cash or Easy Payment Plan

A DIRECT closed first mortgage on land and building secures this $300,000 Bond Issue.

Also a first lien on the income accruing therefrom. One-twelfth of the annual interest and principal payments are deposited monthly with the Chicago Title and Trust Company to meet the interest and principal requirements when due.

We estimate the sustained gross annual income on a conservative basis at $102,000—which is over five times the maximum interest charges.

The Kenwood Hotel is of fireproof construction throughout, seven stories in height, located in the fashionable Hyde Park section of the city, and enjoying capacity business at all times. Transportation facilities unexcelled.

The Hotel Company owned by Montgomery Brothers, well rated elevator manufacturers of Moline, Ill.

We offer these bonds with our unqualified recommendations.

For a limited time, on all purchases of the unsold portion of Kenwood Hotel Bonds, interest will be adjusted as of Jan. 1st, 1922, and the purchaser will be entitled to such interest without cost to him.

Without obligation to you, we will mail DESCRIPTIVE CIRCULAR 25 upon request, giving detailed information concerning these 7½% Gold Bonds.

Another upturn of 10@25c in hog values carried the average price to $8.80, showing $2.20 gain over low day in December, being highest in over four months. Competition was brisk with some shipping orders left unfilled. Top light reached $9.25.

Receipts of hogs at Chicago last week at about 207,000 stands third largest since February last year, being 14,700 smaller than thep revious week and 20,900 larger than the eleven year average, while shipments from Chicago at 76,800 were smallest in nearly two months. Estimate average weight of hogs last week at 230 lbs stands 1 lb heavier than the previous week and 8 lbs heavier than the eleven year average.

Hogs Up; Cattle Down.

While hogs advanced sharply late in the week, closing cattle trade was lowest of the week, yet the wee's average price of good beef steers gained 20c, compared with the previous week. Top heavy steers early the week reached $9.50. No choice yearlings were offered, being quotable around $10.00 for fancy.

Sheep and lambs met with a brisk call, closing values being highest since 1920. The week's average price of fat lambs moved up 55c, standing highest since September, 1920. Best sold as high as $13.85, nearly $5.00 higher than low period late in 1921.

Receipts at Chicago for Monday are estimated at 18,000 cattle, 58,000 hogs, and 19,000 sheep, against 18,703 cattle, 66,512 hogs, and 19,713 sheep the corresponding Monday a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 58,000 cattle, 190,000 hogs, and 75,000 sheep. A year ago hogs totaled 240,449.

Various estimates place next Monday's probable hog receipts at 50,000 to 68,000. E. E. Waterbury marked 68,000, Lester Armour 66,000, Edward Morris and J. M. Waters 62,000, F. W. Waddell 58,000, E. R. Gentry 57,000. F. Gehmann 55,000, and G. M. Nicoll 50,000.

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

Less activity was displayed last week in the unlisted securities market and an easier tendency reflected in prices. Butler Bros., after selling at 34, reacted at a close of 33 bid, 33½ asked. Kellogg Switchboard and Supply was neglected at 40½@41½, ex-dividend, while Northwestern Yeast was also quiet at 324@327. Some trading took place in Avery preferred at 43, but the common was neglected at 18@20. Consumers preferred was 2 points lower at 56@58, and the common also easier at 4½@5. Inland Steel showed a net decline of approximately 3 points for the week of 51 bid, 52 asked. McCord common was erratic, selling from a low of 2⅞ to high sales of 4, closing 3¼@3½.

There were some exceptions to this trend, namely U. S. Gypsum common, which continued in good demand and sold up to a close of 33¼ bid, with little stock offered, the preferred was fractionally higher at 96¾ bid, 97¾ asked. Burroughs Adding also improved to 131 bid, 133 asked, while Wahl preferred was steady, selling at 92. Gossard Corset improved to 17½ bid, with stock offered at 21½. The motor issues were practically unchanged at the close.

Public utilities generally on light volume of trading reacted to lower levels. Adirondack Electric Power common at 15½ showed a net decline of 1½ points for the week, while the preferred was neglected at 84@85. American Light & Traction common was an exception to the general list, rising approximately 7½ points for the week, with high sales at 117; the preferred improved a point at 92 bid, 93 asked.

American Public Utilities common was fractionally improved at 7½ bid, 9 asked, and bids of 18 for the preferred failed to bring out stock. Sales of Cities Service common were made at 167@169; preferred 54½@55; bankers 18½@19. Odd lots of Middle West common sold at 27@27¼ and the common was somewhat easier at 13¼ bid, 13¾ asked, while the preferred was neglected at 41 bid, 43 asked. Sales of United Light and Railway common ranged between 35¾@36½, while the preferred was steady at 76 bid, 76½ asked.

COTTON MARKETS

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—Cotton prices advanced and closed 2@4 points below the high point of the day, with gains of 20@36 points. Selling pressure was lighter and the market had a better tone with week-end evening up and furnishing a large part of the buying and strength. Cables from Alexandria reported an improved political situation.

An Open Letter To

Charlie Chaplin

Dear Mr. Chaplin:

The newspaper clipping reproduced above indicates that you had a credit balance of approximately $100,000 with a stock brokerage firm which recently was forced into bankruptcy.

We have no means of knowing, Mr. Chaplin, whether or not you will lose all or any part of this money. But it does seem evident that your $100,000 is in danger of loss.

You are a young man, Mr. Chaplin, only 33 years old, if our information is correct. Life insurance tables show that you have a "life expectancy" of over 33 years, that is, that you should live at least to the age of 66. Let us show you then what your $100,000 might have done for you!

Your $100,000 Might Have Been Made $1,000,000, Mr. Chaplin!

If your $100,000 had been invested in our 7% First Mortgage Real Estate Serial Gold Bonds, and if you had reinvested the interest as received, in 10½ years you would have had $205,943; in 16 years, $300,670; in 23 years, $503,728; and in 33 years, that is, at the age of 66, you would have had $1,002,313.

Your $100,000 would have become $1,000,000 — without adding one cent to it except what the money itself earned!

You are more fortunate than most of us, Mr. Chaplin. Even if your $100,000 should prove a total loss, you have other financial resources. But can you—or anyone else—afford to make speculative investments when money safely invested increases itself with such wonderful rapidity?

Let this experience, Mr. Chaplin, teach you a profitable lesson. Plainly, it is this:

Invest in Bonds of Proven Safety—in 7% First Mortgage Real Estate Serial Gold Bonds secured by the highest grade real estate in Chicago and safeguarded by a house that time has shown to be trustworthy.

Behind the bonds we sell are 87 years of experience in Chicago real estate investments. No investor in these bonds ever lost a dollar. As you have seen above, the 7% interest from these bonds will double your money in a little over 10 years, triple it in about 16 years, multiply it five times in 23 years and ten times in 33 years!

Act on this suggestion, Mr. Chaplin, and you will never have an investment regret. You will enjoy complete security. You will get the largest income that anyone can get from investments of the very highest degree of safety and your fortune will rapidly increase.

Yours very sincerely,

H. O. STONE & CO.

111 West Washington Street, Chicago.
January 28, 1922.

P. S. As this letter will undoubtedly be read by many who are unable to invest in amounts of $100,000, we might mention that our bonds are sold in denominations of $1,000, $500, $250 and $100, and also on systematic payments of 10% down and 10% a month, enabling anyone, Mr. Chaplin, to take advantage of the investment suggestions we make to you.

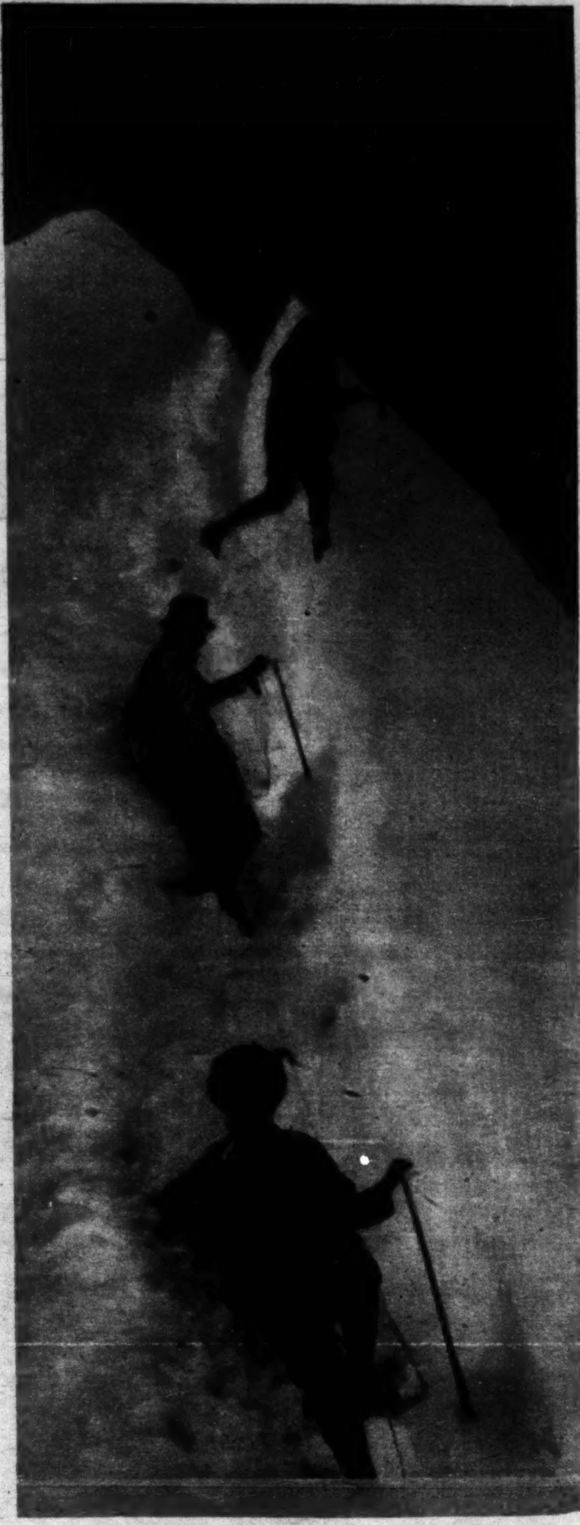
TWENTY-THREE THOUSAND FEET UP!

New Himalaya Pictures Show Highest Point Reached by Col. Howard Bury's Mount Everest Expedition.



TWENTY-THREE THOUSAND FEET ABOVE SEA LEVEL, declared to be the highest point ever reached by mountain climbers, this picture of three of the exploring party was taken. They were then 6,002 feet from the summit of Mount Everest, as far as they found it possible to go during the present expedition.

THESE FANTASTIC ICE FORMATIONS, resembling coral growths, were photographed on the huge Khombu glacier, 18,800 feet above sea level, by the members of the expedition.

THE KEY TO MOUNT EVEREST is this titanic saw-tooth ridge, which begins with Makalu peak and extends to Everest, at the right. In the foreground is the Kama valley, and beneath a sea of clouds is the Arun valley. The picture of these Himalayan peaks, the tallest in the world, was taken far above the clouds.

Which of these two men has learned the secret of 15 minutes a day?

The secret is contained in the free book offered below. Until you have read it you have no idea how much 15 minutes a day can mean in growth and success. Send for your copy now.

HERE are two men, equally good-looking; equally well-dressed. You see such men at every social gathering. One of them can talk of nothing beyond the mere day's news. The other brings to every subject a wealth of side light and illustration that makes him listened to eagerly.

He talks like a man who has traveled widely, though his only travels are a business man's trips. He knows something of history and biography, of the work of great scientists, and the writings of philosophers, poets, and dramatists.

Yet he is busy, as all men are, in the affairs of every day. How has he found time to acquire so rich mental background? When there is such a multitude of books to read, how can any man be well read?

The answer to this man's success—and to the success of thousands of men and women like him—is contained in a free book that you may have for the asking. In it is told the story of Dr. Eliot's great discovery, which, as one man expressed it, "does for reading what the invention of the telegraph did for communication." From his lifetime of reading, study, and teaching, forty years of it as president of Harvard University, Dr. Eliot tells just what few books he chose for the most famous library in the world; why he chose them, and how he has arranged them with notes and reading courses so that any man can get from them the essentials of a liberal education in even fifteen minutes a day.

Send for this FREE booklet that gives Dr. Eliot's own plan of reading

The booklet gives the plan, scope, and purpose of

Dr. Eliot's Five-Foot Shelf of Books

The Fascinating Path to a Liberal Education

Every well informed man and woman should at least know something about this famous library.

The free book tells about it—how Dr. Eliot has put into his Five-Foot Shelf "the essentials of a liberal education," how he has so arranged it that even "fifteen minutes a day" are enough, how in pleasant moments of spare time, by using the reading courses Dr. Eliot has provided for you, you can get the knowledge of literature and life, the culture, the broad viewpoint that every university strives to give.

Every reader of this page is invited to have a copy of this handsome and entertaining little book. It is free, it will be sent by mail, and involves no obligation of any sort. Merely clip the coupon and mail it today.

Every normal skin needs two creams

One cream to protect it against wind and cold Another to cleanse it thoroughly

To prevent chapping apply a little Pond's Vanishing Cream before going out

To keep the skin really clean, rub Pond's Cold Cream on at night

CERTAIN complexion flaws require a cream that protects the skin without adding a particle of oil.

Windburn, roughness. Extremes of heat and cold, sharp winds, dust and dirt and smoke, all leave their mark upon unprotected skin. To guard against the devastating effects of wind and cold, protect your skin with Pond's Vanishing Cream before you go out. It acts as an invisible shield, preventing dust and dirt from clogging the pores and guards against windburn and chapping. This softening cream cannot possibly make the face shiny, for it disappears the moment you rub it on and there is not a particle of oil in it to reappear.

Shiny skin. If you use Pond's Vanishing Cream as a powder base, rubbing it on your face and neck just before powdering, you will not be embarrassed by a shiny nose or forehead. This dry, greaseless cream is absorbed at once by the skin, leaving a soft, velvety surface which holds the powder many times longer.

Tired, lifeless skin. When your skin needs instant freshening—when it feels tense and drawn and tight, smooth a little Pond's Vanishing Cream into it. Notice how quickly the tired muscles of the face relax, how the color brightens and the very texture of the skin takes on more vigor. Pond's Vanishing Cream is based on an ingredient famous for its softening, soothing qualities.

For the following flaws a cleansing oil cream is needed

Blackheads. Blackheads require a deeper, more thorough cleansing than ordinary washing can give.

Before retiring, wash the face with warm water and pure soap. Then rub Pond's Cold Cream well into the skin. This rich oil cream works its way so deep into the pores that it gets at all the dirt and purges the skin of every particle of grime. Do not omit this nightly cleansing if you would have a clear, lovely skin.

Wrinkles. Only a cream with an oil base can successfully fight the fine lines that are the beginning of wrinkles. Oil lubricates the skin and restores its elasticity, keeping the little lines from fastening themselves on the skin and becoming real wrinkles, which are almost impossible to eradicate.

At night rub a generous amount of Pond's Cold Cream into the skin. This rich cream acts as a tonic, rousing and stimulating the skin and supplying the oil that is needed to ward off wrinkles. Particular attention should be given to the fine lines about the eyes and mouth and at the base of the nose. Rub with the lines, not across them. Too vigorous rubbing is often harmful, but gentle, persistent rubbing is always helpful, no matter how sensitive the skin.

Start today to use these two creams

Begin today the use of the two creams every normal skin needs. Both creams are so delicate in texture that they will not clog the pores. Neither cream will encourage the growth of hair. They come in both jars and tubes in convenient sizes. Any drug or department store can supply you. The Pond's Extract Co., New York.

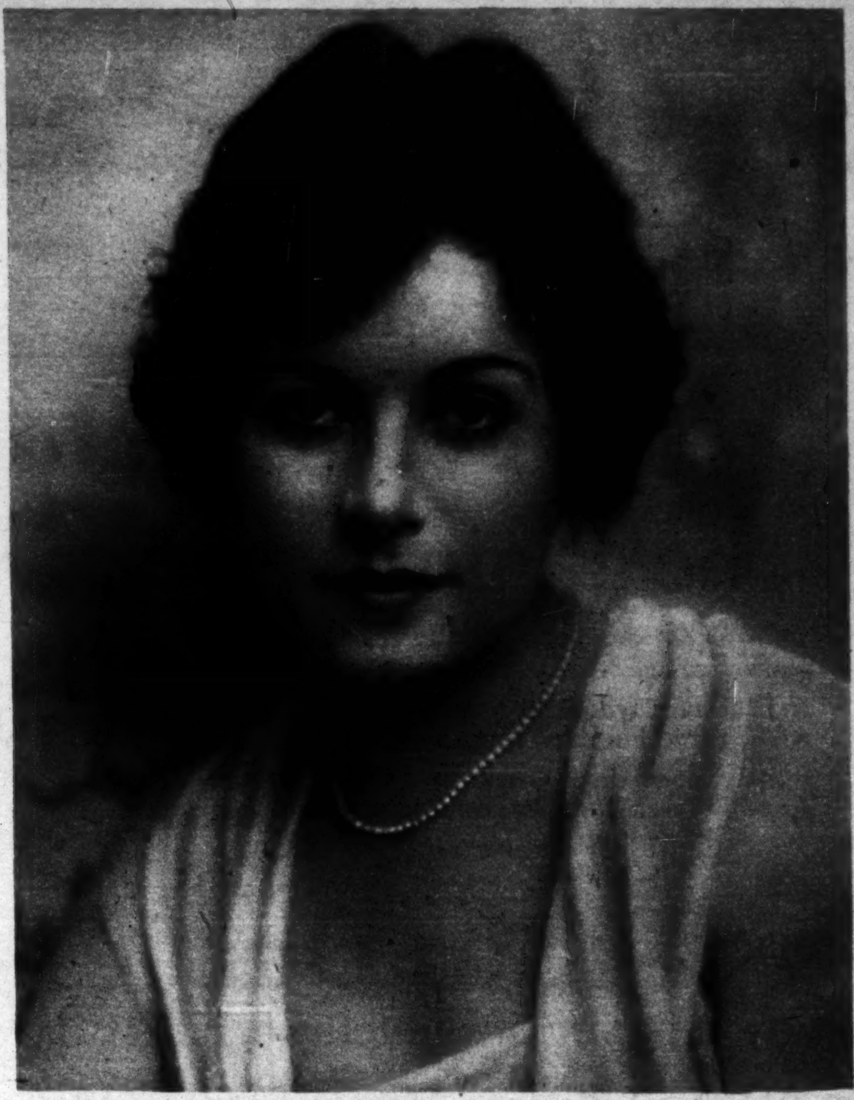
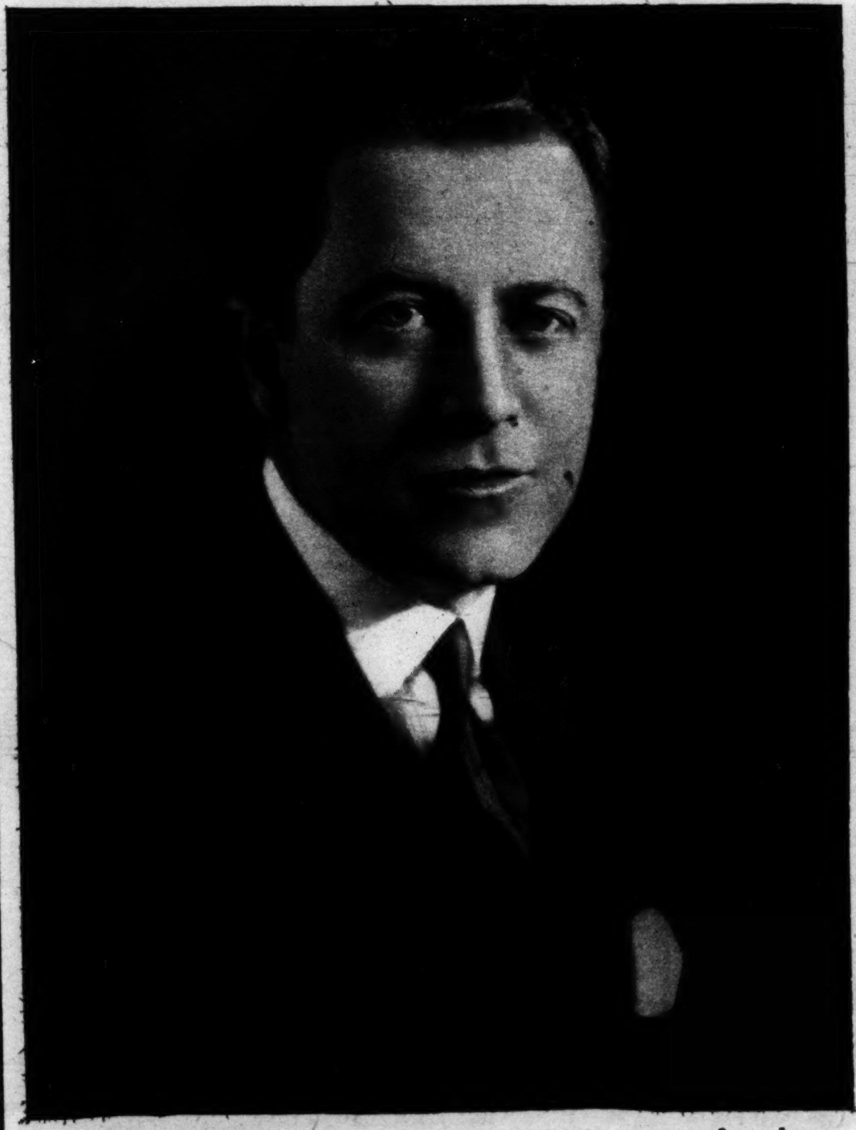
MISS GENEVIEVE HAMPER'S arduous task is that of acting in a different play nearly every night. She is Robert B. Mantell's leading woman and, incidentally, his wife.



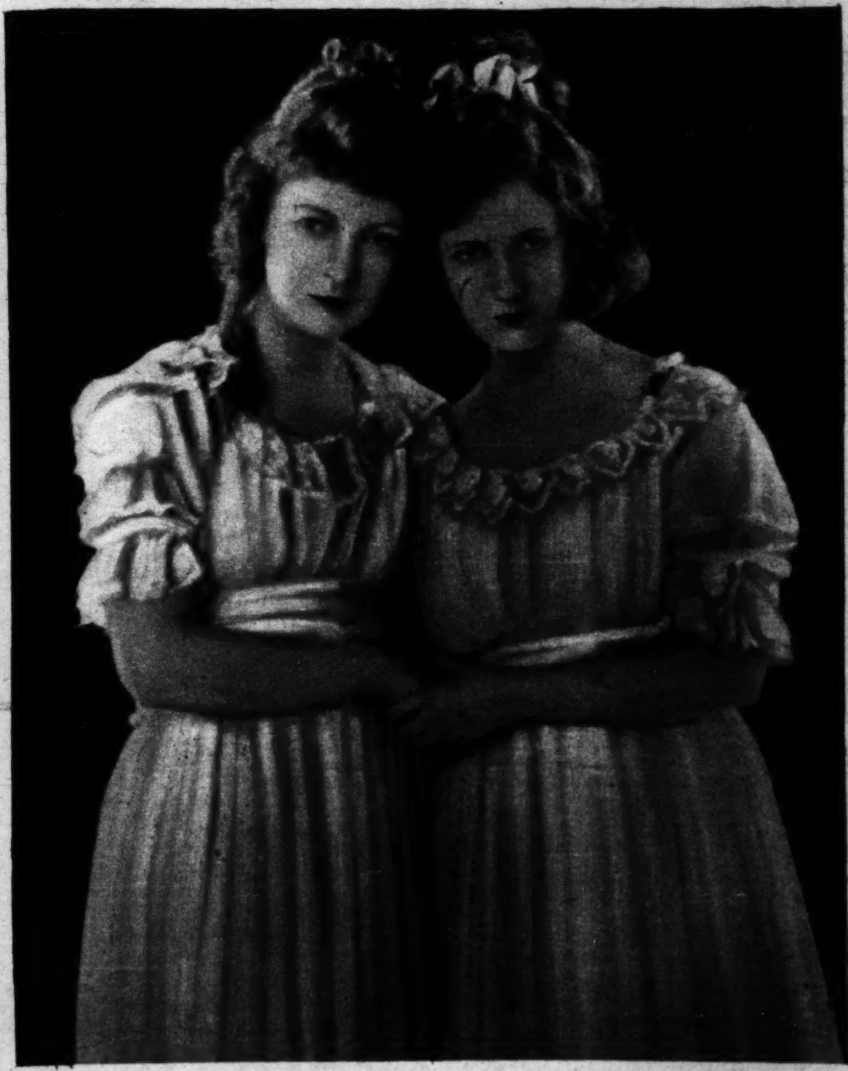
MISS SYDNEY SHIELDS appears in "The Hindu" as an English secret service operative, participating, with Walker Whiteside, in various sinister and disturbing incidents.

(Photograph from Lewis-Smith.)



EUGENE O'BRIEN has not appeared in these pages for a long, long time. He was. however, such a good boy (didn't pat his tummy or anything) in "Chivalrous Charley" that we're going to make you a present of him. Here he is, all nice and wistful and everything.

Mae Tinee.



THE GISH GIRLS, Lillian to your left and Dorothy to your right, are shown here as they will appear in Griffith's "Orphans of the Storm." In this adaptation of "The Two Orphans" Lillian plays the part of Henriette and Dorothy of Louise. Take a special note, if you please, that little Mrs. Dorothy Gish Rennie has gotten rid of the black wig and is sporting her own hair once more.

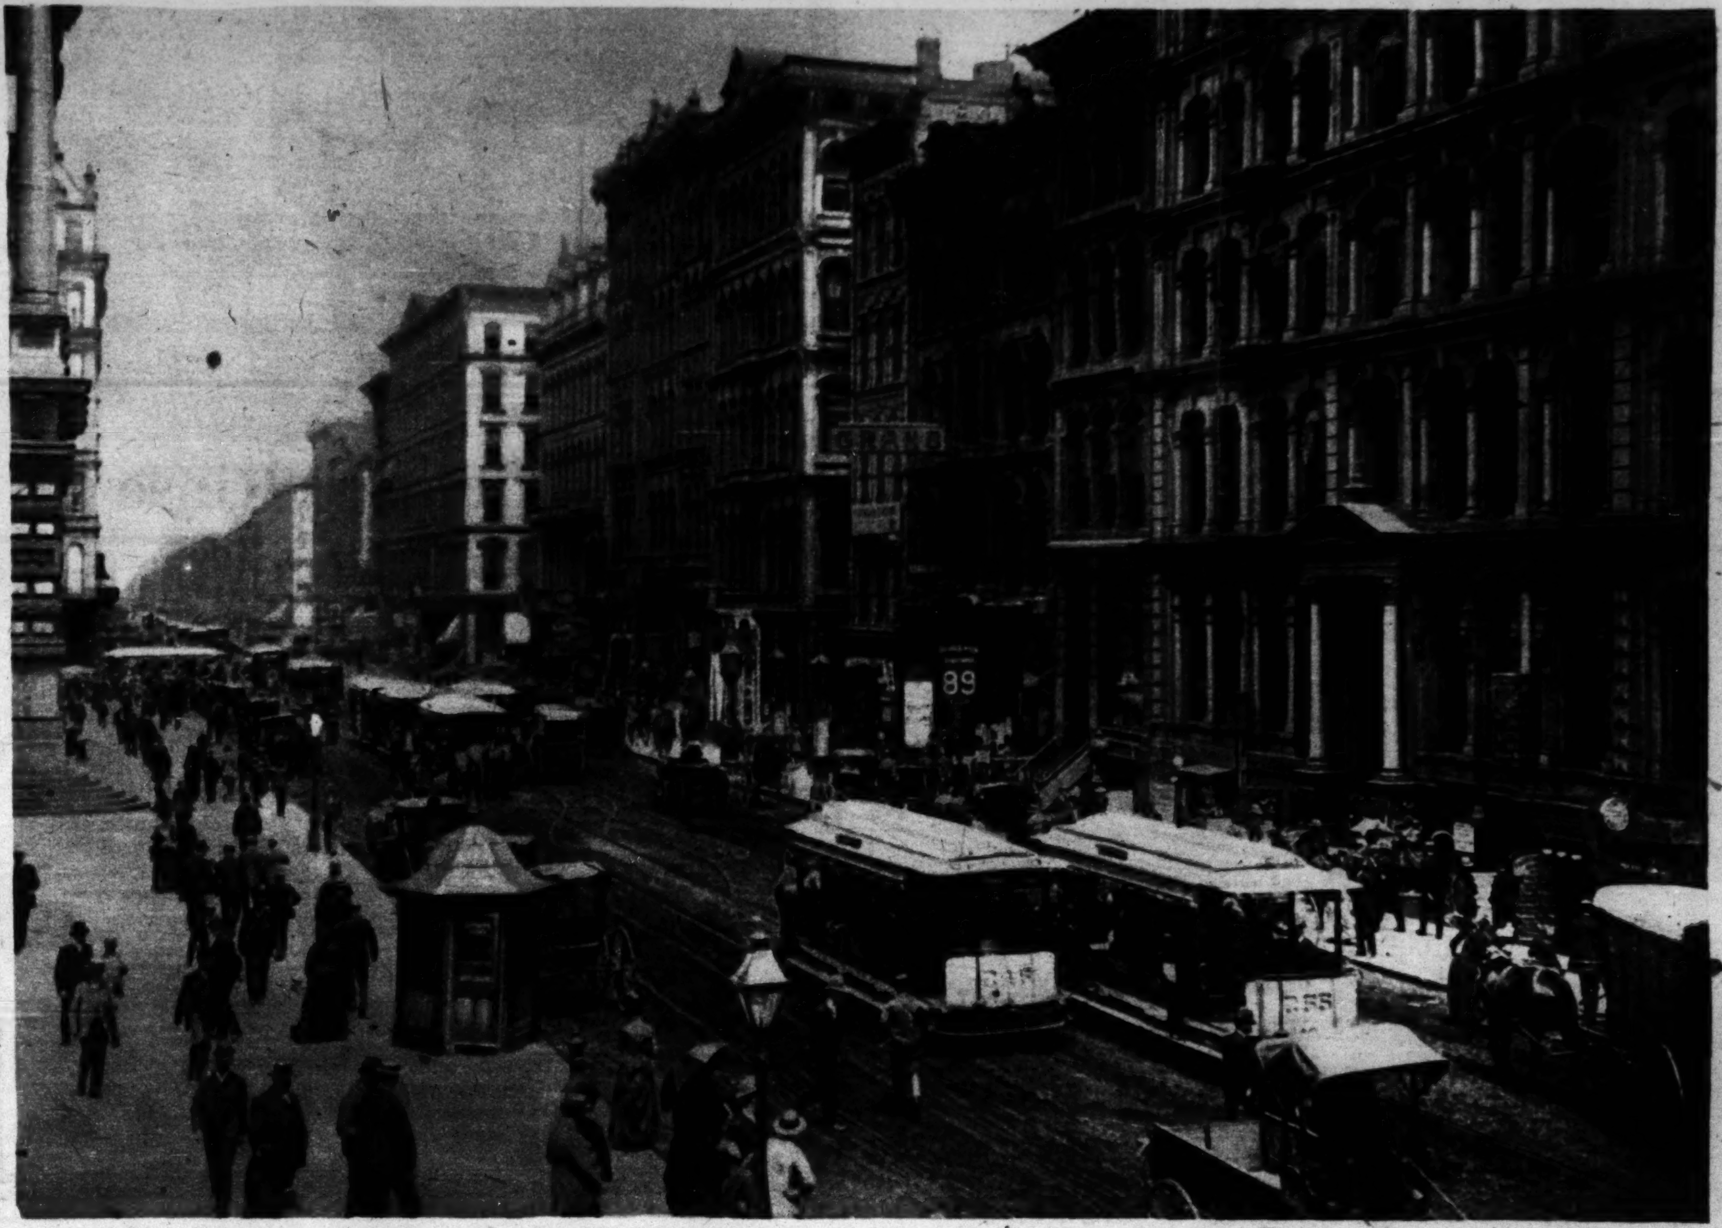
DO YOU REMEMBER WAY BACK WHEN—



CLARK STREET, BETWEEN RANDOLPH AND WASHINGTON STREETS, looked like this in 1887? There were horses a-plenty in the loop in those days, and long skirts and bustles, too. And if you look closely at the lower right of the picture you can find a cigar store Indian. Puzzle: Find an auto or a trolley car.

(From the William D. Kerfoot collection at the Chicago Historical Society.)

HELEN HOLMES appeared as the heroine in "The Virginian" in 1905? The play was one of the successes of the theatrical season.

QUEEN WILHELMINA and Prince Henry of Holland looked like this? It was at the time of their marriage.

Fleischmann's fresh yeast increases the action of the intestines

The familiar tinfoil package with the yellow label is the only form in which Fleischmann's Yeast is sold.

HUNDREDS of men and women have already found freedom from laxatives by eating Fleischmann's fresh yeast.

Doctors are now agreed that proper elimination of waste matter should be brought about by food. One doctor comes right out and states plainly that the indiscriminate use of cathartics is one of the causes of constipation.

Physicians all over the country are recommending Fleischmann's fresh yeast because it is a fresh food, rich in those elements which keep the intestines healthy.

Try it out for yourself. Begin today by adding 2 or 3 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast to your everyday diet. Keep it up and see how normally and regularly your intestines act. You can get Fleischmann's Yeast fresh daily from your grocer.

Heals Almost Like Magic

To heal cuts, sores, boils or burns in a fraction of the usual time, apply Kloria. Free trial. Dozens of home uses.

KLORIA gives the quickest healing ever known for cuts, sores, boils and burns—often in one-fourth the usual time. Test it on a boil. Notice how it destroys the pus, ends the soreness, stops the trouble from spreading and heals with amazing promptness.

Keep Kloria ready to use for injuries. It guards against infection and brings clean, sure, quick healing, more positively than iodine, peroxide or any old-time antiseptic or salve.

This is the new and wonderful antiseptic, discovered in the world war, which, by scientific test, is 40 times more germ-destroying than carbolic acid. This great germicidal power is what makes it so effective.

Yet Kloria doesn't burn or irritate, is soothing, pleasant and absolutely safe because not poisonous.

Applied to sore, bleeding gums (pyorrhea), Kloria usually ends the gum soreness and bleeding in one week. As a mouth wash and gargle it quickly proves its superiority. Notice how quickly it relieves sore throat and canker sores—how clean the mouth feels. Mark how it soothes sore, inflamed or itching skin, itching scalp or itching anywhere. Apply it to eczema, barber's itch or almost any skin disease and watch the trouble fade away. Wet the scalp with it a few times and dandruff disappears, yet it is harmless as water to the hair. Safe and soothing, yet far more effective than any poisonous antiseptic for personal hygiene.

Dissolve a few Kloria Tablets in water, and instantly you have, at a cost of a few cents, a large bottle of liquid antiseptic which is clean, colorless, stainless and virtually odorless.

All druggists. 50c. Money refunded if not satisfied.

Free Sample A sample of Kloria, enough for a convincing test, will be gladly sent free. Write for it. The results will be a revelation.

Playing Against Odds

Alarming as the figures are, statistics show that four out of every five persons who reach the age of forty are afflicted with Pyorrhea. Unless you take proper care of your teeth the odds are four to one against you.

Are you willing to gamble with your health?

Pyorrhea is preventable. Your first duty to yourself is to go regularly to your dentist for teeth and gum inspection.

Then buy Forhan's For the Gums and use it every morning and night. The results will repay you greatly.

Pyorrhea begins its evil work by attacking the gums. If they are tender, if they bleed easily when brushed, take care! Those are Pyorrhea's symptoms.

If you neglect such warnings, you may pay with your health and with your teeth. For Pyorrhea's work is thorough. It loosens the teeth until they drop out or must be pulled, and it causes pus pockets at the roots, which distribute disease germs throughout the system.

If you are wise you will not gamble. Stop at your druggist's and get Forhan's For the Gums today. Use it just as you would use any other dentifrice. It keeps the teeth clean and white and the gums healthy.

Brush Your Teeth With Forhan's—How to Use It

Use it twice daily, year in and year out. Wet your brush in cold water, place a half-inch of the refreshing, healing paste on it, then brush your teeth up and down. Use a rolling motion to clean the crevices. Brush the grinding and back surfaces of the teeth. Massage your gums with your Forhan-coated brush—gently at first until the gums harden, then more vigorously. If the gums are very tender, massage with the finger, instead of the brush. If gum-shrinkage has already set in, use Forhan's according to directions, and consult a dentist immediately for special treatment.

35c and 60c, in the U. S. and Canada. At all druggists.

The Greatest Rinse

That Any Woman Ever Tried

PUT the juice of one lemon into a quart of water and pour over the hair after shampooing — the best "Beauty Shops" do this.

It removes a curd formed by soap which is otherwise always left on the hair afterward. The hair is sticky and unclean in comparison when the lemon rinse isn't used. Note the difference. Simply feel the hair. Also note its lustrous, fine appearance.

That test will convince you. You'll always use the lemon rinse. It is harmless and most effective. Try it now.

Get California Sunkist Lemons. They are rich in juice. All first-class dealers sell them.

Free "Beauty Book"

We've prepared a little booklet called "Toilet Uses for the Lemon—How it Helps to Beautify." We will send a copy free to any woman on request. Just send a post card with your name and address and get one by first mail. Learn the many valuable uses of the lemon.

Good society never pardons poorly kept nails

With this new five-minute manicure on your dressing table, no excuse is needed

No matter what excuse you may have, good society never pardons nails which are not immaculate.

For this reason thousands of business women, women who love outdoor sports, drive their own car, or ride, have adopted the new Glazo Manicure.

They know that no matter how soiled their hands may become, they need but bathe them with warm, soapy water, and touch each nail lightly with Glazo Liquid Nail Polish to make them presentable, anywhere—and the time required is five minutes at the most.

Glazo dries instantly, giving the nails a lasting polish of unusual beauty—no buffing is required. Soap and water, soil and stains will not affect it, and each time the hands are bathed its beauty is renewed. When, after several days, its lustre begins to fade, the nails may be quickly cleansed with Glazo Remover, and a new polish applied.

This dainty Cuticle Cream completes your Manicure

Before beginning your manicure, press back the cuticle and shape it with an orange stick dipped in Glazo Cuticle Massage, working the cream well into the nail sheathes. If the cuticle is badly inflamed or broken, massage the cream in before retiring and leave it over night. A little care will quickly reward you with smooth, velvety fingertips.

Any of the better toilet counters have the Complete Glazo Manicure —ask for it today. The Glazo Company, 31 Blair Avenue, Cincinnati.

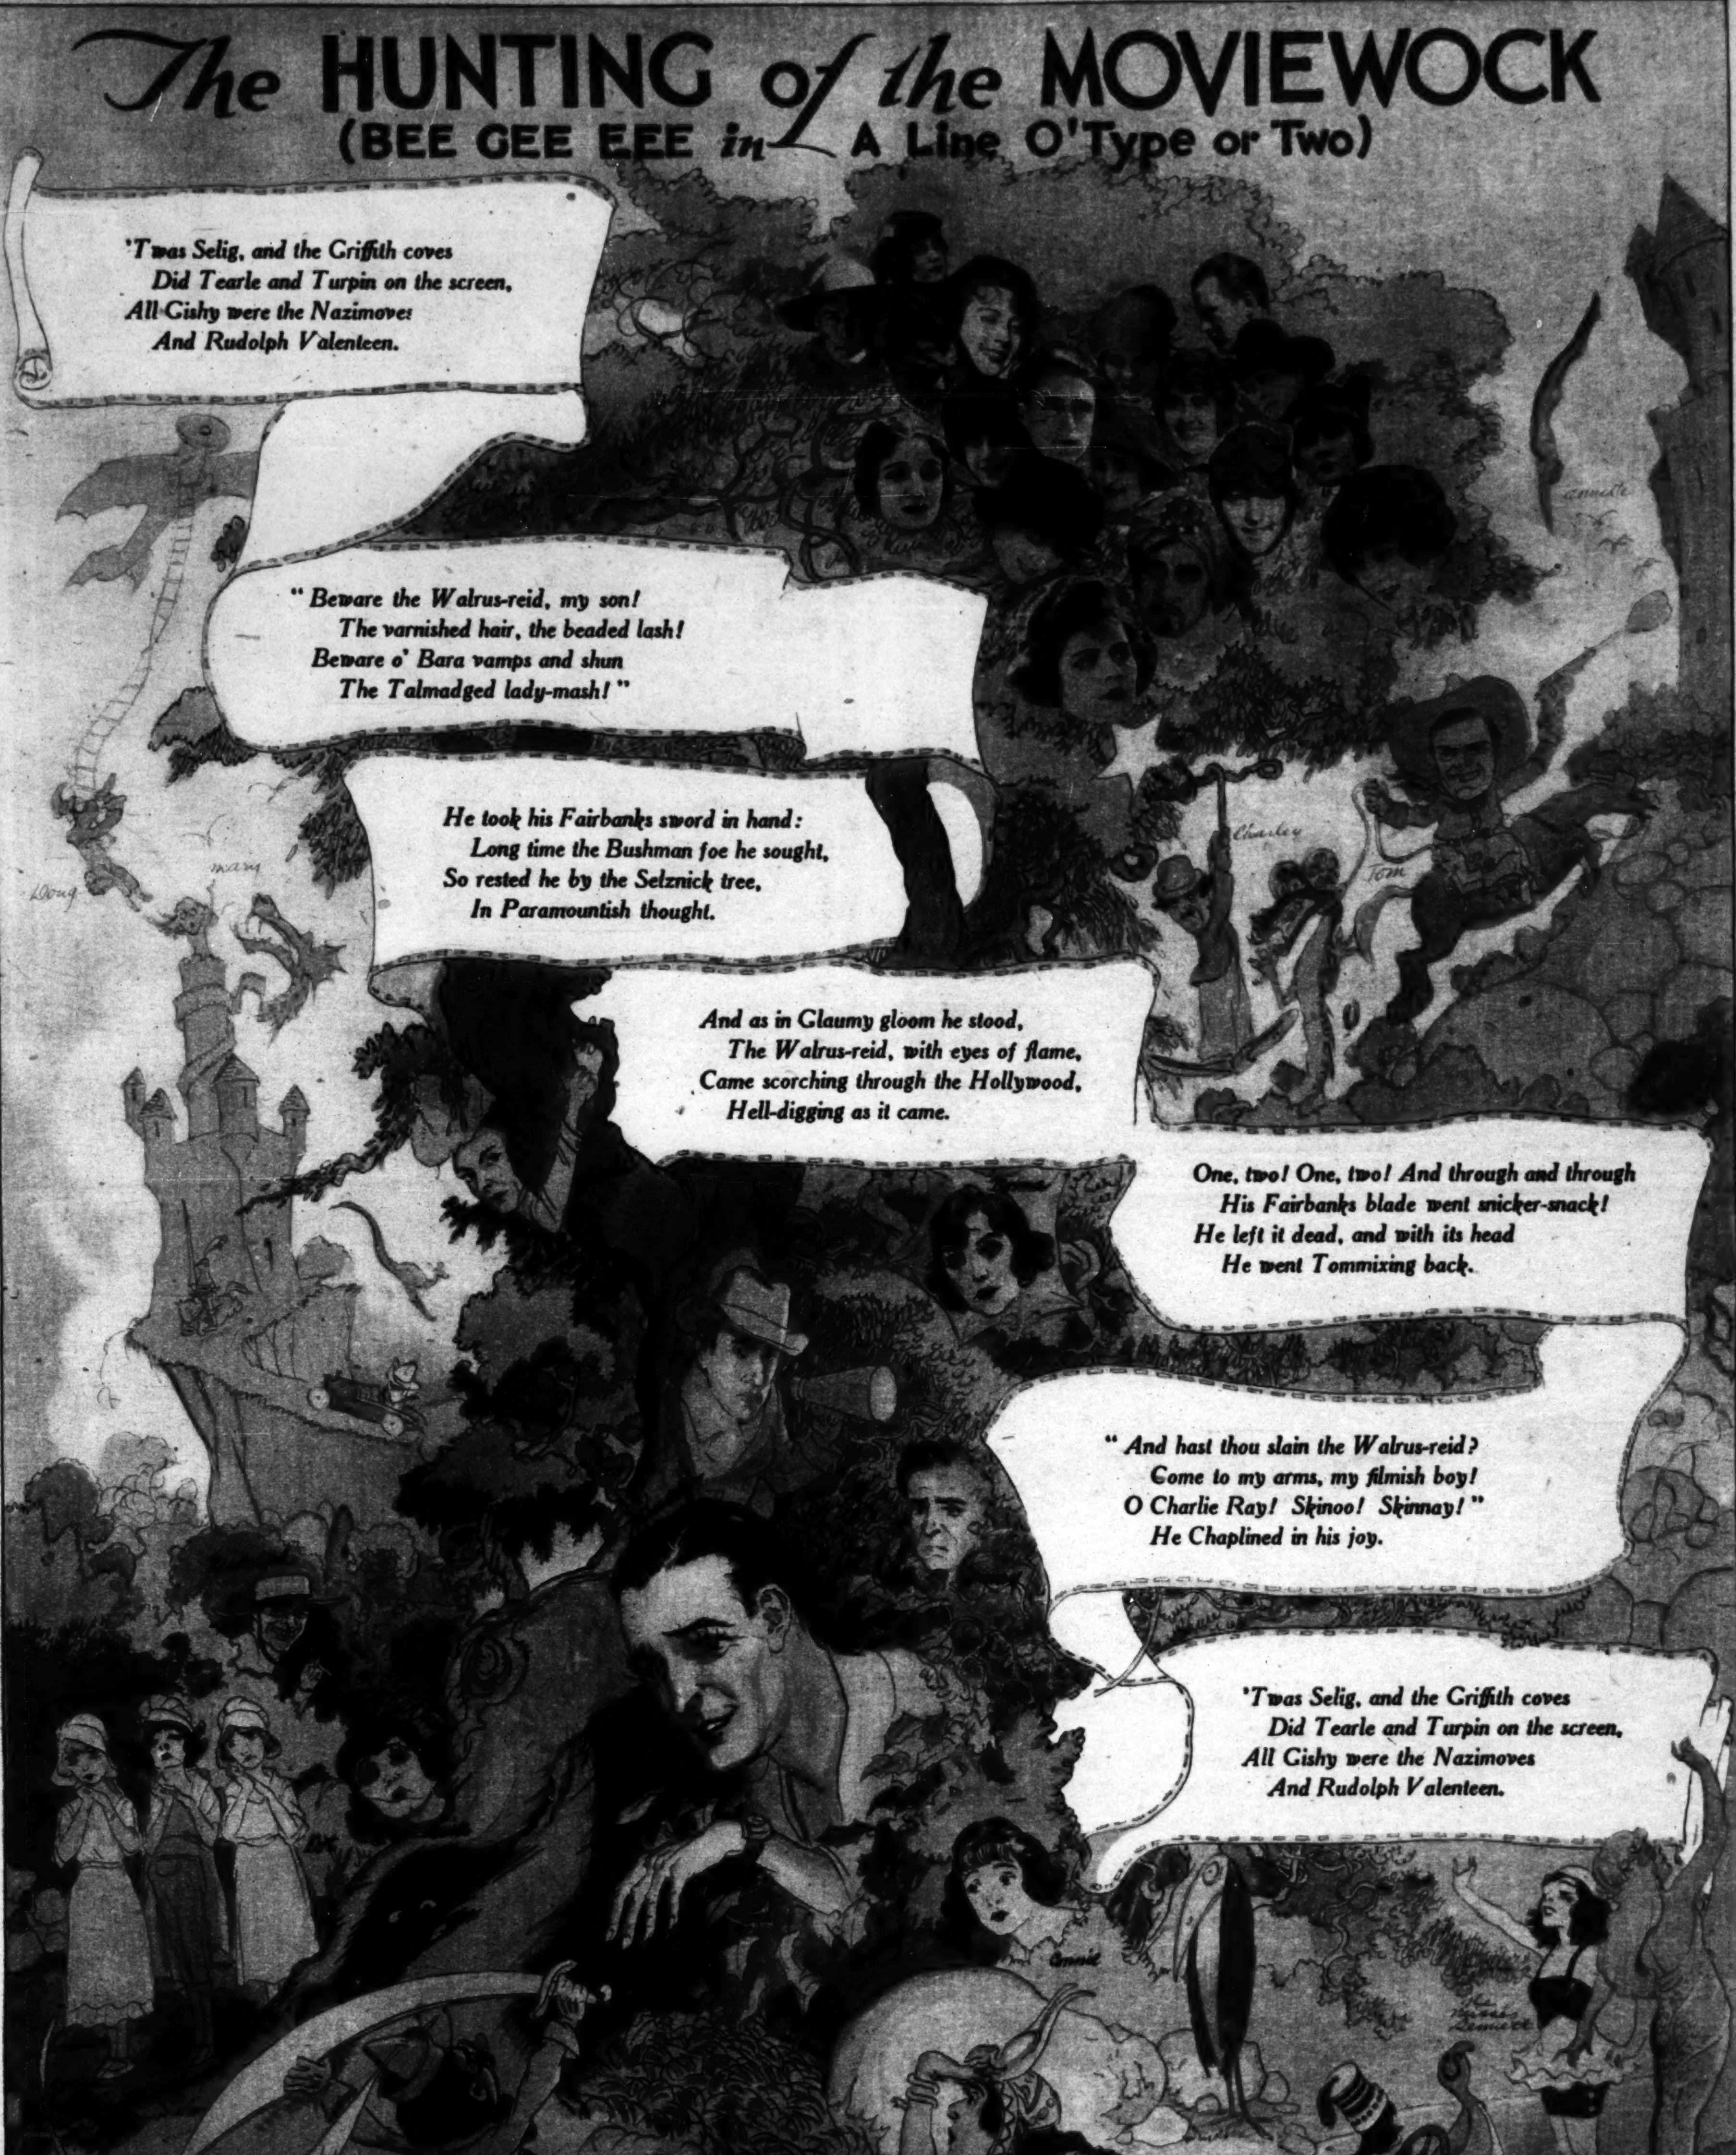
The HUNTING of the MOVIEWOCK

(BEE GEE EEE in A Line O'Type or Two)



'Twas Selig, and the Griffith coves
Did Tearle and Turpin on the screen,
All Gishy were the Nazimoves
And Rudolph Valenteen.

"Beware the Walrus-reid, my son!
The varnished hair, the beaded lash!
Beware o' Bara vamps and shun
The Talmadged lady-mash!"

He took his Fairbanks sword in hand:
Long time the Bushman foe he sought,
So rested he by the Selznick tree,
In Paramountish thought.

And as in Glaumy gloom he stood,
The Walrus-reid, with eyes of flame,
Came scorching through the Hollywood,
Hell-digging as it came.

One, two! One, two! And through and through
His Fairbanks blade went snicker-snack!
He left it dead, and with its head
He went Tommixing back.

"And hast thou slain the Walrus-reid?
Come to my arms, my filmish boy!
O Charlie Ray! Skinoo! Skinnay!"
He Chaplined in his joy.

'Twas Selig, and the Griffith coves
Did Tearle and Turpin on the screen,
All Gishy were the Nazimoves
And Rudolph Valenteen.

THE PIG IN THE POKE by Ethel Storm

Everybody's Troubles Were Her Troubles—and Then She Was Married to a Man Who Had No Troubles!

PERHAPS it is just as well there are not many people like Angela Lee in the world. Every one wasted so much time wondering why she did it—why she kept it up. When after years she was taken hopelessly for granted, I did hear it said that had she chosen to hang out a sign she might easily have taken in a smart little revenue. But Angela was nothing if not uncommercial: she never had the faintest idea of selling her personality. She gave it away. It floated among her friends as seductively as a flower perfume. And not friends alone. Oh, dear me, no! Anything from bellboys to dukes.

Even so, I am certain that she never consciously made any differentiation in sex. But she was marked for man. One look at her was enough to tell you that. And yet she was not without her following among women. In our school days, I remember, when she began holding those closed courts, there was not a girl in the Barber seminary who didn't go to Angela with her trouble, her fear, her hope or joy (provided the latter was sufficiently exciting.

But the real rush came later. And then I must admit that most of her claimants were of the opposite sex: young men, old men, boys. They all found her out sooner or later. They all "went" to Angela. And not one of them came away empty hearted. The girl was a veritable genius in patching up wrecked lives. Of course, they all fell in love with her. But aside from a few unfortunate flareouts she managed with amazing dexterity. The only thing she couldn't and didn't manage was a well poised life. Happy, comfortable people bored her. She said so frankly. They gave her nothing to act upon. She demanded a furious past, or at least a dazzling future. But pasts were her specialty.

I often wondered how her little head could hold so many tales of life—how she kept each drama separate. And some of them, many of them were sordid. Of that there was ample proof. Ours was a large town, large enough to have its average number of divorces and small enough to make them everybody's business. Angela's business in particular. She handled many such cases cleverly, sent any number of those recalcitrant couples back to keep their homes and their children together. The wives, naturally, never admitted as much as a photograph of Angela on the drawing room table, but I suspected her likeness was hidden somewhere among each husband's possessions.

She went further than divorce. When Jimmy Stadler robbed the bank she spent as much time as the law allowed with him in the county jail; she was with him through the last hour before he went up to serve his sentence. Afterwards she sighed to me:

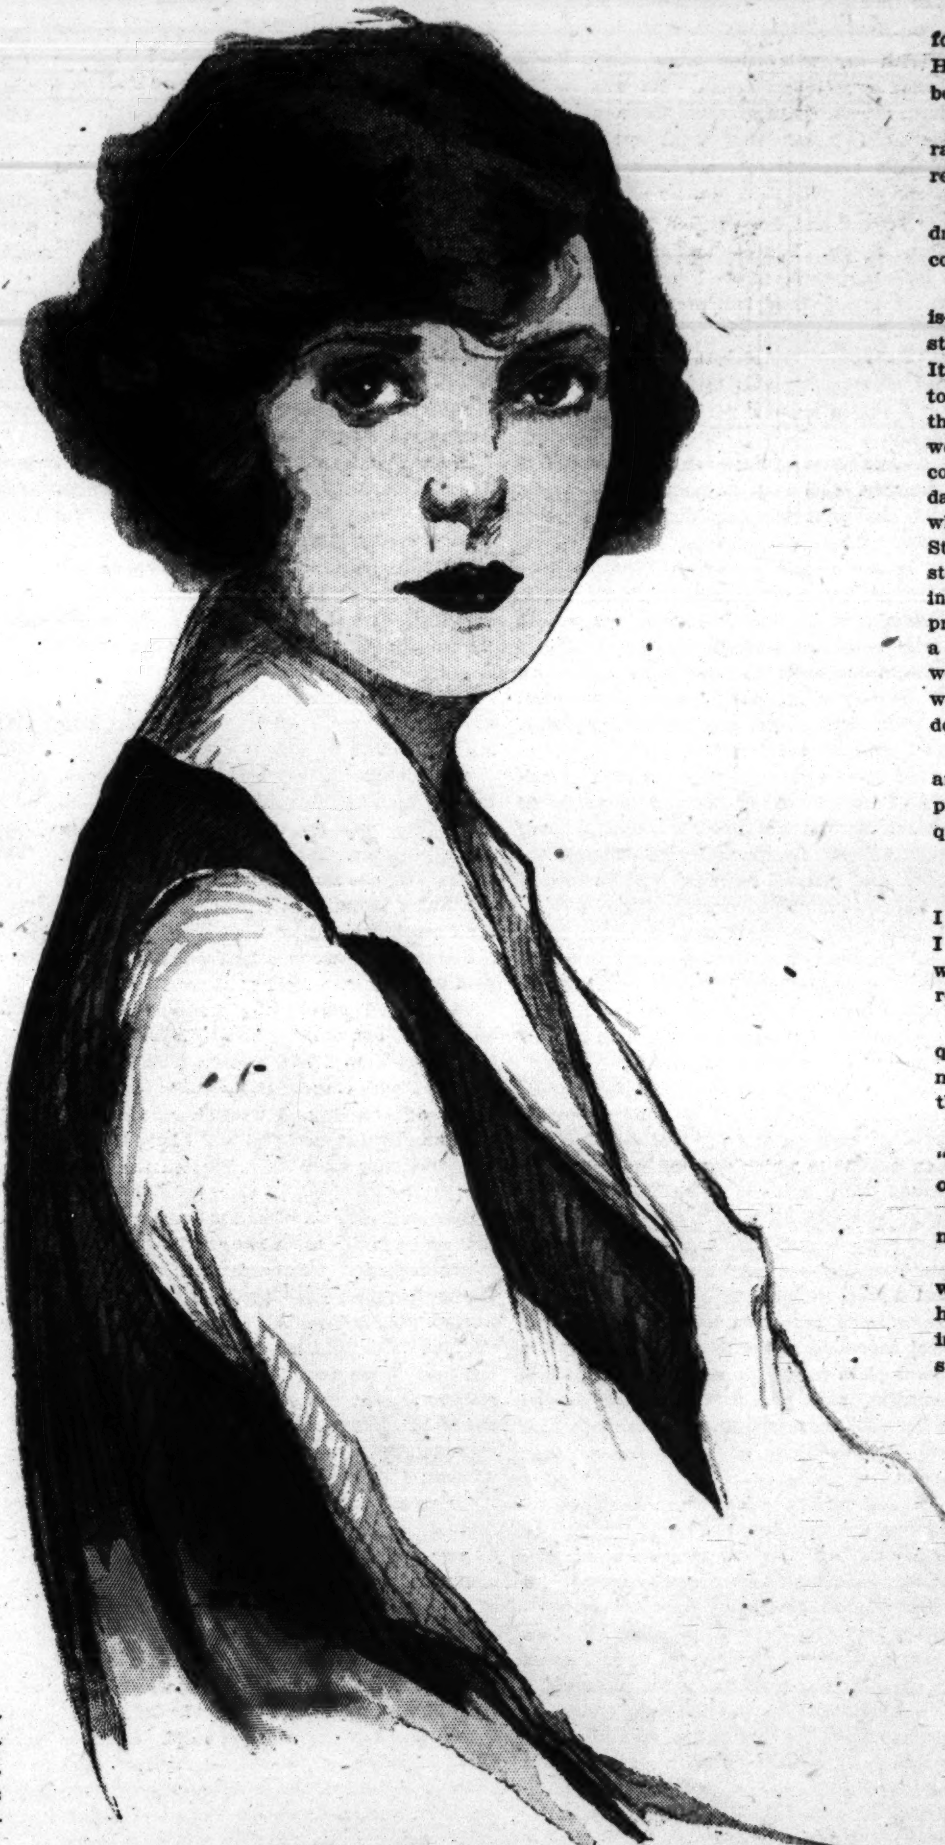
"Poor Jimmy. I couldn't do much for him but wear my best clothes. You know his taste in frocks is perfect."

She let some tears fall out of her sober gray eyes, but her mouth denied them immediately: her mouth was full of surprises. Her smile was quaintly apologetic when she murmured:

"Silly old dear. He never made a mistake in frocks, but he chose the wrong girls to put them on. Too bad."

Whereupon the case of Jimmy was locked away among all the others.

However, she brought it out a few months later, for as a result I had a stormy call from Byron McQuade. Byron was a Scotchman and a lawyer; an impervious combination where women are concerned. But he was in love with Angela. At the time I was not sure that he was aware of the fact, but I was sure he was the only man for miles about who had never given her his confidence—never made himself one of her collection. As for trials and complications, I knew of none in Byron's life; of course, he might have had all kinds of a past, but the notion of disclosure, on his part, even to Angela, was beyond imagination.



Angela was a veritable genius in patching up wrecked lives. Happy, comfortable people bored her. She demanded a furious past, or at least a dazzling future.

He was so evidently stirred when I came into the drawing room that I scarcely knew what to expect.

"Well——" he demanded, glowering at me from the hearth rug.

"Have you heard?"

I admitted that I hadn't, and he frowned more savagely than before. I could feel how it went against his grain, his gritty, sandy grain, to open without help the subject of Angela. I knew, at once, that was his subject. But I counted myself a match for Byron McQuade. I loved to see him struggle in his corners of reserve. He was uncomfortably red at the moment, but before he spoke his face became alarmingly white.

"She wants to go to Sing Sing—to visit that blighter Stadler!" He pitched the words at me.

"And you," I said maliciously, "as prosecuting attorney for that case, have never forgiven Angela's attendance at the trial. Her presence all but spoiled one of your best speeches. Didn't it?"

When Byron was put to it he invariably ran his fingers through his hair; his hair was red and had an electric upstanding quality.

"Perhaps," he admitted absently. He dropped with a crumpled helplessness on the couch beside me.

"All that is beyond the point. The point is—when is she going to quit this nonsense—stop carrying every scoundrel in the county! It isn't this case—it isn't Stadler I object to. It's the whole bally lot of them. Eating the life out of the woman. It isn't as if she went at it from a social worker's angle—she couldn't do that. Isn't in her. She's too damned personal. Too sympathetic. Why, when she came to see me about this hound, Stadler, you would have thought she had stolen that money herself! When is she going to get a chance to live her own life? Express herself! Why," he turned on me with a singular beam in his clever blue eyes, "that woman is talented, I tell you! She could write or paint——" And then his voice ran down to a monotone.

"She would make a marvelous mother for any number of children." This reflection presently faded out with that time worn question about Angela:

"I wonder why she never has married."

I was immediately disappointed in Byron. I had given him credit for more astuteness. I had thought, for some time past, that he was the one person, besides myself, that really got Angela, accounted for her ways.

"Can't you see," I ventured, "how quite, quite intoxicating it is to be able to give so much to so many people? More thrilling than any single talent or marriage."

"That's all very well," he put in quickly, "while she's young. But it won't last. The other things would last."

I said, honestly, what I thought, that I was not so sure about their lasting—with Angela.

Byron resented disagreement. His word was so generally final. But he suppressed his irritation with only a shuffling change in position. However, he was bound to pursue the subject.

"I must say she has a poor lot to pick from."

"So!" I said to myself, "he doesn't let himself into the running. Thinks he is safe from Angela!" And then, foolishly, putting his fattened egotism to the test, I said:

"Angela once told me that she hoped some day to find the kind of a man she could marry."

"And what kind of a man was that?"

"A man whom she wouldn't have to carry. Who would give everything and expect nothing in return, who would never tell his troubles—even if he had them."

He smiled sheepishly, and of course I thought he knew she never had meant a word of it—that, being Angela, she couldn't mean it. But not at all. His face became terribly serious. He tugged unmercifully at his stubbly, bristly mustache, and presently gathered his lanky length together and said he must be running along.

"And what about Sing Sing? Can you keep her from going?"

"That," he said with great dignity, "will be managed. I have a plan."

I hadn't a doubt about his plan; it was perfectly clear. His intention had crystalized before my eyes. As far as he was concerned the wedding bells had rung. He was already deeply engaged in being Angela's husband; employing the process of his marital rights by putting an end to all the silly business of her life. His assurance was sublime. He couldn't know how absurd he was. How beyond the point he had let himself go in planning to manage Angela by any such elementary process as marriage.

……

Angela was probably the most convincing person in the world, in that for the time being she honestly believed whatever her

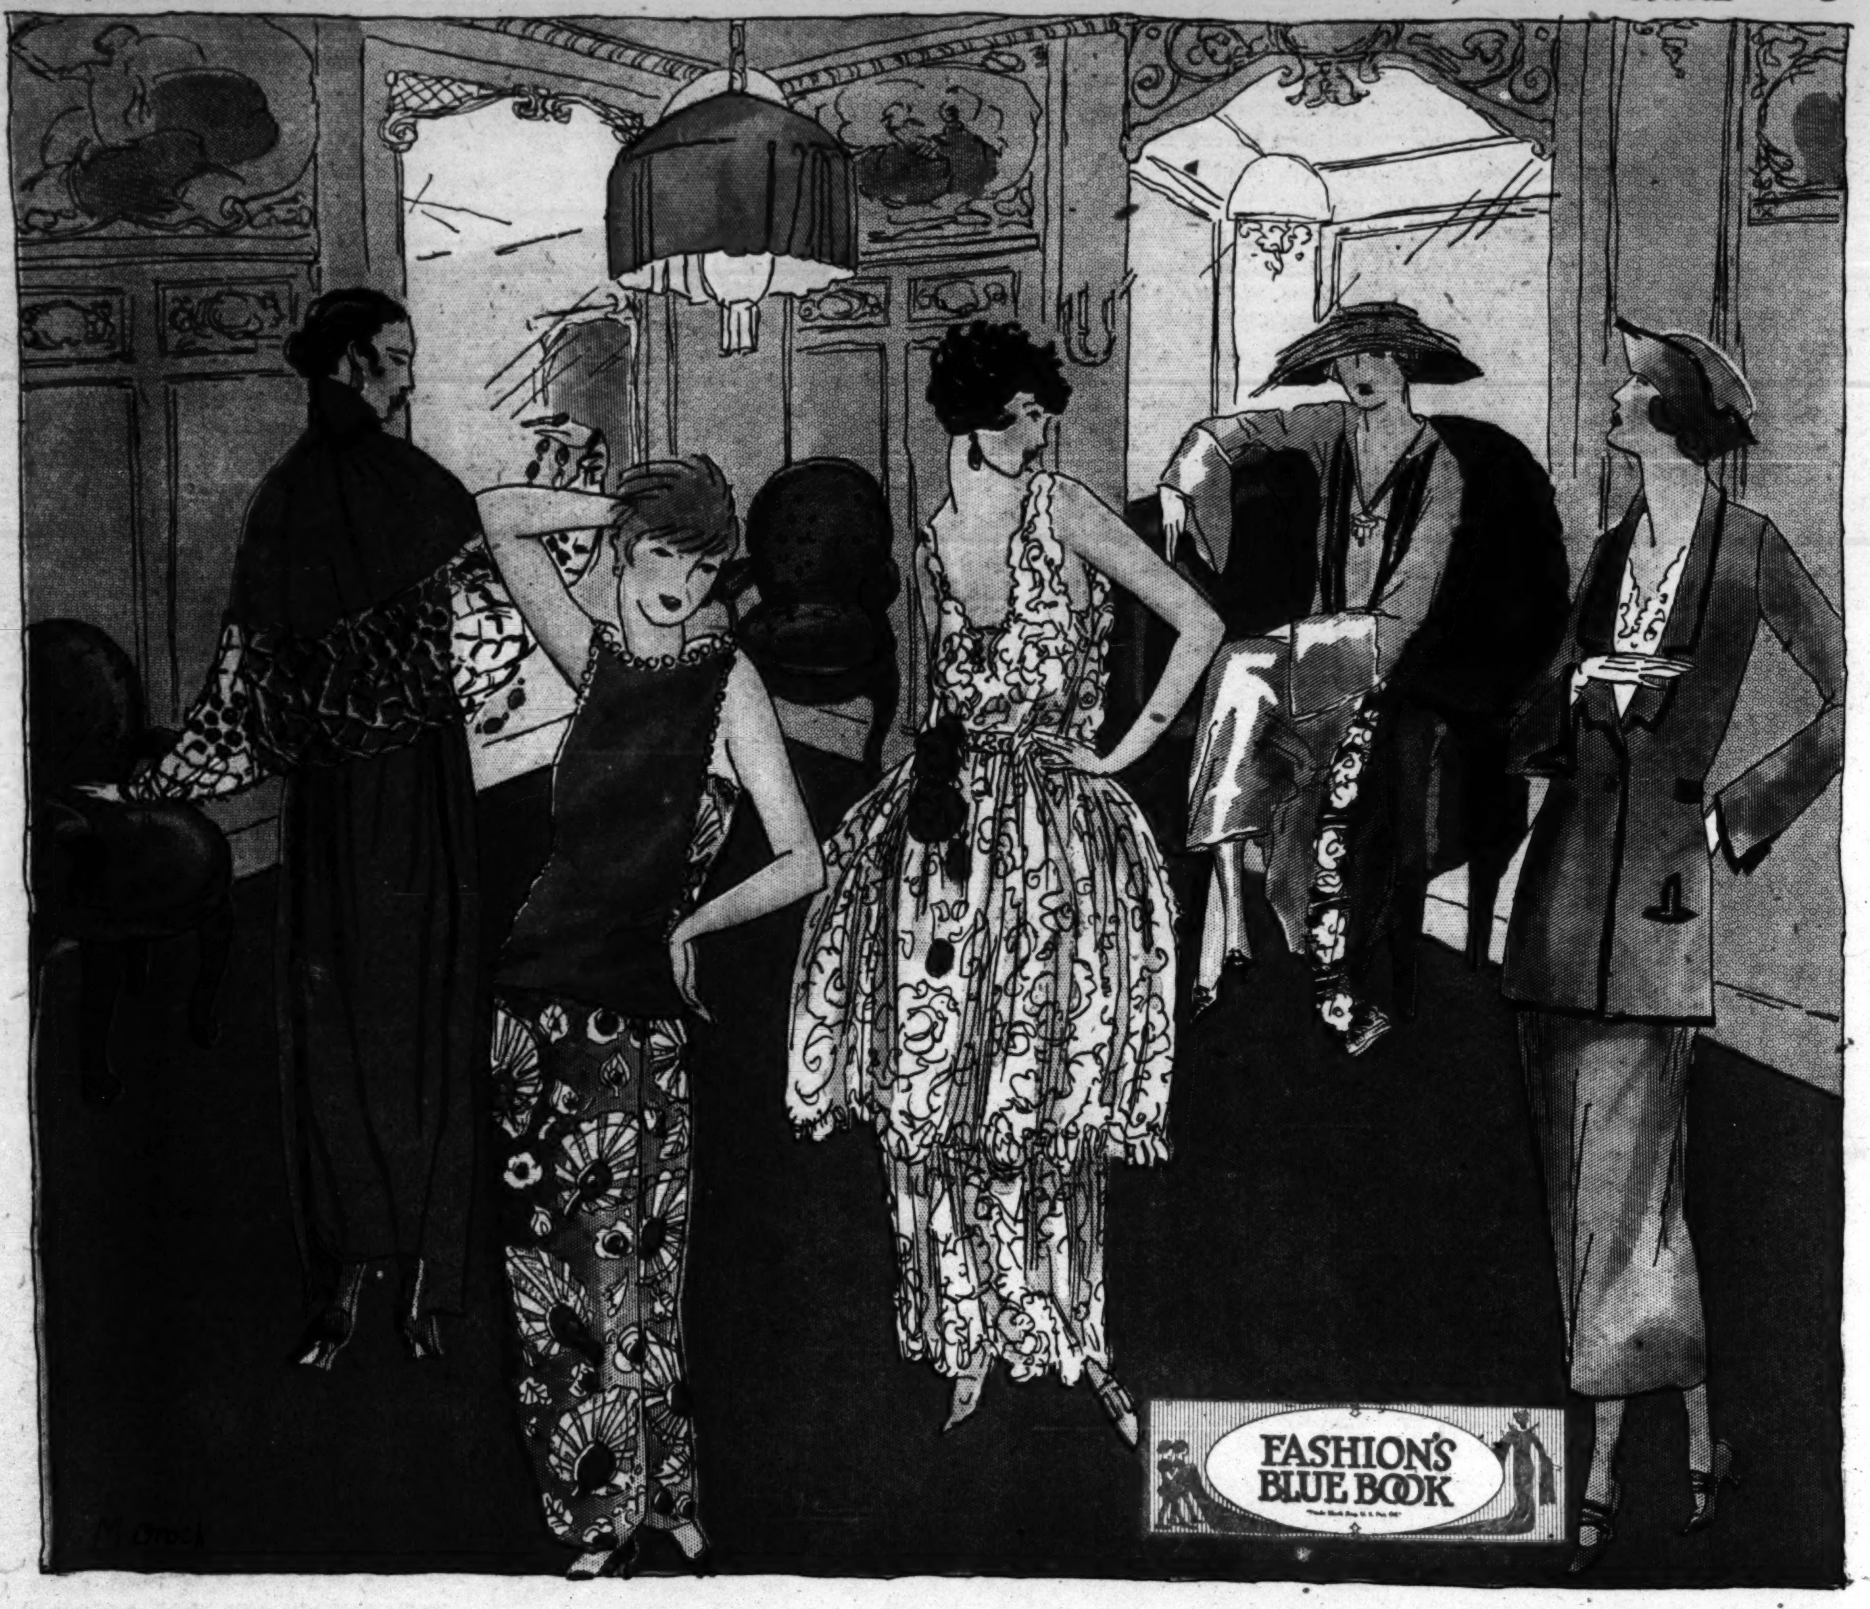
THE BRIDE SELECTS HER TROUSSEAU

by Corinne Lowe



The copper tint emphasized in mid-season collections is shown in the evening frock of copper lace veiling a copper satin in the center of the page. The trimming of this consists of brown satin roses. At the right is a tailored suit of black kaska cloth bound with black cire braid. A suggestion for the formal afternoon frock is found at the left in a sapphire colored crepe with a cape effect forming sleeves and an ornamentation of woven jet. Next to this, red velvet and a stunning brocade in black, gold, and red are combined for evening wear. The seated figure is in a frock of black crepe satin allied with black georgette, the latter forming long side panels showing a design of black and white roses.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Selecting one's true love is perhaps a less exacting task than selecting one's trousseau. Particularly is this applicable when the achievement is appointed now, this month, before the spring styles have been formulated. For there is still a deep haze enveloping the clothes landscape.

Are the French impresarios going to perpetuate the same slinky lines mingled with the bouffante skirts which have now completely prostrated the fashion writer's vocabulary? We hope not. We hope they are going to scramble the silhouette—here and there. But no one can prophesy. All one can do is to register a few tendencies of the midseason mode.

Many of the intermediate models presented both here and abroad showed little change from those of the fall. Perhaps the circular skirt was more in evidence. And undoubtedly spring is not going to emphasize so vitally the everlasting side panels longer than the skirt itself. In place of these Jenny, for example, substitutes narrow bands of contrasting material — white piqué or navy serge being a radical instance—and suspends them moodily from shoulder or waistline or front or back. A number of other designers stress the skirt with the sides plunging down into peaks. These elongated sections are cut in one with the garment, and hence they make for a circular effect. These latter garments were seen, of course, in the fall, but they are seen more just at present.

However, the side panel continues good, and one is inspired with a confidence in its rugged pioneer constitution. The way it has lasted makes us think it will last still longer. And we present it in the stunning sapphire blue crêpe worn by the mannequin at the left of the page. This has a high collar and a cape bordered with jet.

As for crêpe, old dog Tray Chic is still listening to his master's voice. No trousseau is complete without one or two crêpe models. Speaking of this, one notes a tendency toward crêpe Romain, which is now used even for the fashionable blouse. However, all crêpes are worn, and often the new models present us several types of crêpe assembled in the same model. Beading and disks are used lavishly on the formal types, and among these one notes as perhaps the smartest the gelatin forms sponsored by Renee. Lace also appears freely as on a balcony in old Madrid. This is often dyed to match the gown, but ecru tints are frequently contrasted with the fabric.

For the frock which every bride needs for the restaurant lunch we present the black frock worn on the page by the heroine of the occasion. Here on this seated figure you will find a combination of black crêpe satin and black georgette, the latter particularly conspicuous in the sleeves with their deep satin cuff. Braid is applied on the corsage, and the two long side panels of georgette show a design of black and white roses.

Incidentally do not forget that black, particularly for this type of frock, remains the choice of the most fashionable women. Apparently, indeed, we have all succumbed to the illusion that color might take away our appetites. At all events, we continue to lunch in black.

There have been quite a number of changes in suits. Among others one notes in the midseason collections from abroad the prevalence of the real three piece suit—that is, of skirt, coat, and separate blouse.

Many of these have the wide sleeves. Others introduce a pleasant effect by a shirring achieving a puff below the elbow. Some have the everlasting little box coat. But more striking models show a soft waistline influence, often effected by shirring at the sides of the coat. Among the cloths, twill, gabardine, serge, and kasha are conspicuous in navy, tan, black, and gray. A number of these three piece suits, however—particularly for southern wear—are in silk. Matelasse effects are stressed by the French designers, and a new weave is baronet satin with charmeuse finish.

She who wants a "safety first" suit will not indulge in one of these more fanciful products. If she is wise she will select the conservative black suit worn by the mannequin at the right. This, a copy of a Jenny model, is in kasha and is bound with black ciré braid. The notched collar is good on these tailored suits. So is the slightly flaring sleeve. For the trimming of the new suits one notes, by the way, much ciré braid, much grosgrain ribbon, and some patent leather. The later is often plaited and mingled with silk braid. Another device beloved by the French designers consists of strips or loops of self-material binding cuffs and jacket hem.

Among the evening frocks copper is shown nowadays by the most exclusive establishments. And on the model in the center of the page copper lace is draped over either copper colored satin or metal cloth. The back has a bloused effect, and a garland of brown satin roses forms the only accent of trimming. Long streamers of flowers, by the way, are encountered constantly on the new evening frocks. Another device consists of rosettes made of tiny little ribbon made flowers.

The last model on the page is an evening frock with a red velvet bodice fitting down over a skirt of red, black, and gold brocade. Gold beads outline the neck and the front panel of the corsage.

fancy prompted. She had, like others of her feather, a dishonest mind coupled with a profoundly honest heart. For years I had watched her exaggerated flights; it became a fascinating mental sport to spot the truth and follow her wild rides about it. I was no novice at the game. I had played it long and seriously. I thought I had Angela placed. But I hadn't counted on the extent, the finish of her genius. Within the month she convinced me that she loved Byron McQuade; that a life of marriage with him was the one thing necessary to complete her life.

"For you see," she said, "I've dissipated so many precious years. Given myself away so uselessly. Fearful waste. I want to learn to concentrate, expand, put all the experience of my life into some form of self-expression. I can do it with Byron. He understands. He knows just what I need. Long periods of quiet, peace—time for reflection. Already I am wonderfully rested."

She leaned back in her chair and closed her eyes. The effect of her drooping lids was like a drawn curtain that left a spiritless mask on her face. This new repose spread a strange film over her iridescent features; those features that had the effect of bubbling wine that deliciously pricked the nostrils. I had never been given time before to know that Angela was not strictly beautiful. Her mouth was too large. And surely that questioning, tilted nose had nothing whatsoever to do with the calm expanse of forehead. The forehead was again denied by frailly arched eyebrows that couldn't possibly take care of the wide span between her eyes.

She sat up suddenly and looked at me intently. I felt ashamed of my technical adventure among her features. I had been wrong. She was beautiful. Ravishing.

"You know," she beamed, "it is most astonishing, but Byron has never told me a thing about himself. Never once dragged me through the mire of his troubles." She sighed and touched the deep waves in her dark hair with her finger tips.

"Of course, he has had all kinds of things to fight in his life. Women are mad about him." She paused a moment and perhaps she caught the flickering question in my mind. Perhaps not. In any case she tucked a wistful smile in one corner of her mouth and proceeded.

"Poor darling. He's so beautifully unselfish. Unlike all the other men I have known."

She came swiftly and knelt beside my chair. It was then that I believed she loved Byron. The shining beauty of her was irresistible. I had to believe what she said. She brought me closely facing her with her hands on my shoulders.

"Sally, old dear, I'm going to be a real woman. A real wife. With one man to love. It's such fun, so exciting, to love one person. I never thought I could do it."

She sank away suddenly and sat poised on the floor like a bird ready for flight.

"I may write and I may paint. We are going to some quiet place in Europe to get away from people."

. . . .

They came to see me a few days after their wedding. Byron had insisted on a quiet wedding; insisted that Angela was not to go through the strain of a large affair. But I happen to know that she didn't have a moment to herself for days before the event. All the old hangers-on simply couldn't let her off without her last word on their personal, particular problems. Be that as may, I had never seen her more radiant than at the moment she became Mrs. Byron McQuade.

I hadn't expected to see them again before they sailed. Byron somewhat testily explained that Angela had insisted on their coming, in spite of the fact that she was tired to death.

"You see," he said, "she doesn't really know yet how all this constant seeing of people had taken it out of her. She needs rest. I mean to see that she gets it in Europe."

Angela, through all this, had listened quietly. So quietly that her stillness was perturbing. The kind of electrical, fermented stillness that fills the air before a storm. She did look tired. Curiously so. Her eyes kept following Byron about the room with a questioning adoration. But, somehow or other, I felt the question superseded the adoration.

When some people came in for tea it was natural enough for Angela to be cornered by one of the men and become immediately deep in conversation. Not deep enough, however, to keep her voice now and then from drifting into my ear. Angela had one of those floating voices that caromed inconveniently. At first I smiled indulgently when I heard her bring Byron's name into the talk. And then, presently, I was shocked. Could it be that she was asking questions about her husband! Searching questions, with an unpleasant essence in their demand. Yes. She was positively putting Howard Blair through such a catechism. But I must say she got no result. I couldn't hear what he said, but I knew from the increase of pique in Angela's eyes that her outrageous venture had been unsatisfactory.

With my wits once more about me I looked around for Byron. He was in the library, well out of earshot. I was thankful for that. Before they went away Angela actually managed to erase most of my discomposure. She said, frankly enough:

"Howard and I have been having a chat about Byron. You can't know what a silly I am about that man." Here she looked up at me with nothing but pure naïveté in her smile.

"He makes me feel as if I had a great box of presents, still unopened."

"A pig in a poke, perhaps?" I suggested archly.

A slight frown ruffled her brow, but passed instantly. She went on with perfect candor and the most winning tenderness in her voice.

"So few people understand Byron. They just take him for granted—all his cleverness and success; they think he was born with a lucky spoon in his mouth; that he hasn't had to fight and work and struggle like the rest of them—just because he never talks about himself. Never asks any help or sympathy. He's perfectly wonderful to me."

And when they came together to say goodbye, I found myself looking intently at Byron. For the first time I wondered if there could be any obscure story of struggle beneath that grizzled reserve. The perfection of his poise might cover anything.

They sailed the next day. I had a short note from Angela written from the steamer. It was conventionally bridelike. Full of underlined love and happiness. In the end she spoke again of those talents of hers still to be developed—after she was rested.

But Angela was not convincing on paper. Then and there I doubted her ability to paint, write, or take on any form of talent other than the one in which she was so supremely gifted. Hers was the great human manuscript, in which all were free to collaborate; more massive and important than any amateur dabbling she might accomplish alone. And Byron thought to put his hands and brains upon her—turn her out like a neat legal document tied with a blue ribbon. Yet it was plain enough to see that he was fast becoming just a man that had never written in her book. An unwilling collaborator. And still, I believed that she loved him—on that account alone.

Several months passed before I heard anything of them. Then, not by personal letter or message. Merely one of those circuitous, garbled accounts accumulated by continental drifters. The McQuades were dramatically situated in the Swiss mountains. A place difficult of access. And, from what I could gather, the voyageur who managed to make the ascent was not so frantically welcomed upon arrival. They were, in each case that came to my notice, old friends of Angela's who attempted these visits. They made no bones about the fact that she was changed. But the exact manner of the change I couldn't make out. It was clear that they came away empty hearted. That her gift of resuscitation had either rusted or was being held for another purpose.

I asked about that—whether she was studying, or writing, or painting, or what. The answers were comical in their disparity. One had her surely drifting into neurasthenia. Another said she was perfectly healthy and looked fit enough to raise the devil—had she wanted to. And then Alec Westcott came and sat beside my fire with his friendly pipe, and attested:

"Sally, there is something queer about that pair. About Angela, anyway. Byron's the same old scout—almost the same. I was there for a week and it seemed to me that girl was eating her mind out about something—not her heart, her heart is all right. She hasn't a thought or a look for any one but Byron. That's right enough. But the way she keeps her eye on him makes a fellow jumpy. It did me. And I think old Byron's getting up a funk about it, if I'm not mistaken.

"Then, too, she asked me such a lot of questions about how well I knew Byron in college; whether he was popular; whether I had known much about his life subsequently; whether I didn't think his fight, his struggle, were perfectly superb. She ended up with some sort of half allusion to his fascination for women. I was irritated. You know Byron has never looked at any other woman than Angela. I told her so. I also told her that he had never had any struggle to arrive where he was—that he was just naturally born horribly clever. And that as far as I knew he had always been free from the pitfalls of ordinary man. In fact, I gave the old boy the clean slate that he deserves. I thought she would be satisfied. But not at all! She looked as if all was lost.

"Then she suddenly veered around and, without saying a word, made it clear that she thought I was lying. She even went so far, by the fastness of her look, as to make me feel that I had been lying! I'll confess, she got me to such an extent that I presently let myself in for some asinine inquiries about Byron. Absurd bit of funk. Of course, nothing to it. What do you make of it all, Sally?"

"Nothing," I shrugged, "except that I don't think Angela has changed very much."

A few days later I had a letter from Byron. I was surprised to see it postmarked Paris.

"We have come over here," he said, "for a little change. Angela has not been doing well in the mountains. I have begged her to see a doctor, but instead she's having a round of visitors from one day's end to another. As for myself, I'm well, but rather longing to get back to work."

I laughed a little over Byron's letter, but I might more easily have cried. Poor dear silly. Couldn't he see!

And then, with only a few posts between, came a dashing, high spirited page from Angela. She was having a glorious time in Paris. Clothes. People. Lots of old friends. In the end, she said, Byron had gone back to the Swiss mountains. That he didn't care for French cooking.

For the next two months I was fairly occupied with my own affairs. A word, now and then, drifted across the water about the McQuades, but nothing of any moment. At Christmas time I had a card from Angela inscribed with a melancholy verse, evidently of her own making. I wrote her at once in acknowledgment, and said that I hoped, soon, for something more light hearted from her pen.

Heaven knows at what kind of a moment that note of mine must have arrived. It was weeks before it was answered. Then she threw back at me my own thoughtless words, "Light hearted!" How could I expect her to be light hearted when Byron had left her. Gone away, she said, with a brief statement that there was something about her he couldn't stand another moment. That was all. There was no further explanation. At first, I thought:

"It's nothing. She expects him back any day. A lover's squabble." Then I read her letter again. Its very brevity made it final. And that statement of Byron's—he never made extemporary statements. His speech was always carefully planned.

But did Angela, herself, know just what he meant—know what the something was that he couldn't stand another moment? On second thought it was clear that she did. She understood perfectly. She went further than that. She took it for granted that I, too, would understand. In any case, I accepted their separation as final by cabling Angela asking her plans. I followed the cable by letter, suggesting that she come home at once and stay with me if she cared to.

I had nothing but silence for answer. Not a word from either of them. Presently, I met one of Byron's partners at a dinner. We were, both of us, determined not to question, but he did finally bring out the information that Byron was coming back to resume his practice.

Gossip about the McQuades was just beginning to be current talk about the town. Naturally, as Angela's best friend, little of it was brought to my ear. But I did learn, on good enough authority, that Byron was not coming back, that he had settled in Paris to study French law. The town would have it that this move on his part was only preliminary to an easy divorce.

And all this time, three months it must have been, I knew nothing of Angela. I daresay I had only to go across the street to hear plenty of tales about her. But I didn't want such information. I wanted Angela, herself. I was piqued that she didn't want me. Then, one raw afternoon in the early spring, I came in from a walk to find her sitting beside my tea table.

"I was cold," she announced, "I didn't wait. I'm having my tea." At that, she laid aside her cup with reckless swiftness and came to put her arms about me.

"Sally, old dear, I've treated you pretty shabbily. I couldn't come before, or write, or anything, because I wasn't miserable enough. You would have been disappointed if I hadn't been miserable. Wouldn't you?"

It was afterwards that I remembered the absurdity of her question. At the moment I thought, only, what a lovely fragrant thing she was. I hurried from her embrace so that I might have a long, tip-to-toe look. She was used to such interruptions. She took them with easy simplicity. She stood perfectly still, then turned slowly about.

"The back is the best part of this frock. Picard always makes flawless backs." It was her conclusive word on the matter, and she settled again beside the tea table. She at once went about pouring my tea and even remembered not to put in any sugar.

"You see," she pursued, "I was not miserable enough to come before. I'm thoroughly miserable now. I can't imagine what to do about it."

"Staying just where you are is the first step," I essayed hopefully.

She looked across at me quickly and I saw there were lines of suffering beginning to shadow her mouth.

"It can't be patched up—if that's what you mean—by the first step. There isn't anything to patch. Never was. That's the trouble. I've made sure of that." She laughed with a strange brightness that had the effect of stripping away her last curtain of defense. I felt that Angela had, perhaps, found the truth at the bottom of her cup.

"It's funny," she said, "that I should care to travel three thousand miles to tell you something that you already know. You are the only person, beside myself, that possibly could know. So I thought talking to you might ease me up a bit. Between us it can be fearfully simple. You know how I was—how horribly bored I was with any one without a past. How dull I thought them." She sighed, and I fancied the flickering, edged smile was one of self-pity.

"I married Byron in a sort of fever of curiosity. I had never really been curious about any man before. Never had to be. They always gave themselves up immediately—if there was anything to give. Byron became the big exception. I would have it that there was something immense behind his reserve. I concluded marriage was the only way to make him surrender. So, just to push myself off, I talked out loud about love and became intrigued with his idea of turning me into an artist; thought it would be fun to try. It was all frightfully easy. I didn't know why at the time." Here she paused and I hated to have her eyes meet mine. The bare truth of her words found me unpleasantly critical. But she only straightened in her chair, as if more thoroughly to swallow her self-administered medicine.

"I very soon found out the man had nothing to tell. His life was a clean white page. I began to know it immediately the rush of our marriage was over. I was working myself into a state when we came here to see you before sailing. I wasn't going to admit myself fooled. I couldn't give up a past for Byron; I was determined that he should have one. And I managed gradually to assure myself that he did--have one. A glorious, lurid, desperate past. I honestly believed that time would bring the whole thing out. I didn't let it go at that. I made investigations. I questioned his friends and mine—outrageously. And I watched, watched incessantly, for the writing on his face; a deepened line—an unconscious fleeting shadow of expression that would tell me his story. You know I am clever about faces. But that watching was what finally sent him away. That was the thing he couldn't 'stand another minute.' I don't blame him; I overdid it. After he had gone (you can't imagine how final his going was) I felt no other sensation than relief. For the first time in my life I spent a solid month alone. I ate ravenously. I walked miles about the country. I slept ten hours every night. I never thought at all. But I woke up one morning and found everything changed. That was three months ago—three months of utter wretchedness."

I was nodding gravely as if to say, why shouldn't you be wretched! when Angela made a gesture of protest and swept me completely off my feet by saying:

"Oh, it wasn't shame or remorse that I woke to on that morning. Only the unalterable hand on the other's shoulder. He, too, in youth had known such bitterness of spirit, though it stirred now only as the far, faint echo of an old pain.

"Arthur," he said at last, gently, "you told me, once, that you never shortened sail for your wife, didn't you? Don't begin now!"

The only tears that Arthur was to shed were shed at that moment. There, with the kind old man's hand still upon him, in the quiet shelter of the old man's private office, he broke down and sobbed terribly. But there was nothing child-like or healing about this flood of sorrow. He rose from it a sadly embittered man.

His next voyage was to China. Old Blinn, rating high the Lethean virtues of change, believed that a new run might help the forgetting process. But he reckoned without the fixative quality of hatred. Arthur forgot nothing. He had loved Jane so well that he could visualize her presence, recall her voice, as easily as he could remember the way of the sun in the heavens. And with every resurgence of Jane's memory came, also, the memory of little Arthur and the face, the voice of the man who had sent them to death.

As alone in the world now as Jane had been before him, with no more personal address than his firm's headquarters, into the search for his unknown enemy Arthur Stanham poured all the force and energy of his love starved nature. He worked, perforce, elsewise lacking money to pursue his object; he did his work well alike from honor and habit. But in his heart he lived only to punish the man whom God already had begun to punish. For the captain of the Caledonian, never quite free from his obstinate Scotch conscience, never sure that he had not committed manifold murder, paid a long, slow penalty for his wrongdoing. And always, although he knew that his identity had remained hidden, he felt an avenger on his track.

For long and long Stanham found no trace of him, however, though he sought him in many parts and ports of the world. Memory of a face, a voice, is so little to go on.

"Queer beggar, Stanham," captains in many harbors said of him, long before his search was rewarded in the slightest. "Used to be so sociable, now so silent and grouchy. Seems to be always looking and listening, what?"

He was. He was always looking and listening. But he never willingly looked at or listened to a woman, and he with difficulty dissembled, when necessary, his strange, sick shrinking from a child.

Seven years had slipped, like a troubled dream, into the silent shadow of eternity before, standing at the door of a sailor's haunt in Hongkong, a sudden flare of light showed him the face of his quarry at an intersecting corner. To that corner he made all speed, to find all trace of the quarry vanished. Nor, though he scoured the locality every available minute until his own ship cleared, did he find further hint of the man he wanted. But just as the Pamlico, already a little behind her schedule, rode out of harbor another vessel, a big and handsome liner, also was detached from the throng of masts and shipping. The two vessels ran alongside, close together, for a little. And suddenly, from the bridge of the liner, rang out a terse order. The captain of the Pamlico heard it with limbs grown suddenly stiff.

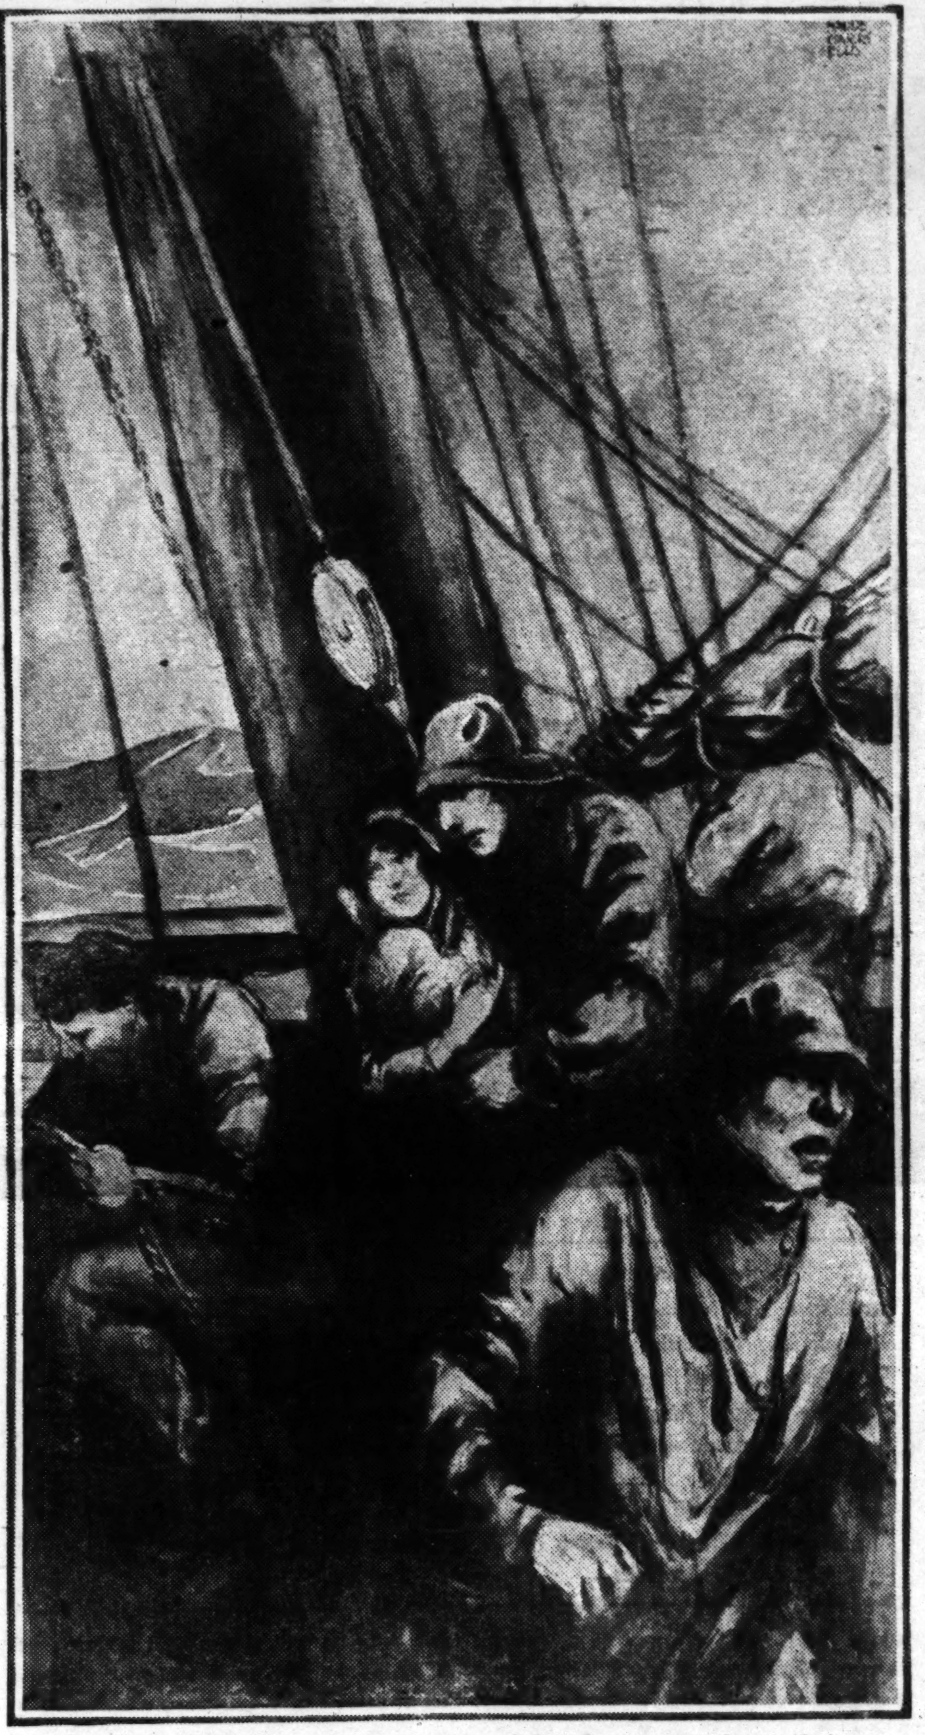
"What ship is that?" the Pamlico signaled next, as though with a message to deliver.

"The Dunstan, Dunraven line, Capt. James Brewster, Hongkong to Glasgow," came the regulation reply.

Nothing more could be accomplished then. The Dunstan, a speed steamer, would have stayed her course for no mere tidings. Stanham had no chance for action. But at least—and at last—he knew his enemy, and his heart was oddly lightened. If he had not years since foresworn all thoughts of a God who had permitted Jane and the baby to perish, who had left a decent man nothing to love but a tiny canvas suit and a fading daguerrotype of a village girl in her wedding dress, he would have prayed and given thanks.

All the way home he plotted and planned his meeting with Brewster, but he arrived in Liverpool to find, as he had more than half expected, that the Dunstan, her mighty engines far outdistancing his uncertain sails, had been in, out, and in again during the interval. She had just started on her second outbound voyage. And almost the same thing happened at Hongkong.

A year of such maddening misses. Then Stanham, consumed with inward fever, made application to his company for a steam command. Further delays while technical requirements were fulfilled and complied with. Then—the Liverpool-Hongkong route, under steam, only to learn that Brewster, now certain that he was being hunted, had changed his line and was presently conducting the Lucy, Barry line, from Liverpool to Australia. Chances of harbor meeting had been something more than halved.



It was two o'clock before the pumps showed that there was no danger, before Jane could go below with the baby. It had been eight when the steamer struck.

Stanham's air of looking and listening now had been lost in an air of fell determination that perceptibly strengthened under this latest disappointment. Hate is poisonous fare, and he looked far older than he had any right to. His health had begun to lose its original splendor. He would have given way, possibly, but for a morsel of news that gave fresh life to his spirits. Brewster, he learned, had recently been married, and a baby boy had been born.

Stanham's informant was Portuguese Joe of the long-gone Pamlico days, for some time lost sight of, now also promoted to the steamship department and ready, as always, with all the harbor gossip. Joe, knowing nothing of Brewster's identity or the soul searing chase of his new old master, wondered a little that the Cap'n, with whom he was so glad to sail again, should be so interested in hearing of Brewster's baby. He would have crossed himself swiftly, muttering prayers to all his saints, had he dreamed Stanham's interest merely due to the thought that the wife and baby offered richer opportunities for revenge.

From Jim Burgess, who, by some chance, came on board as first officer the next time the British Hero got home, Stanham gleaned a little more gossip. Brewster, it seemed, upon casual inquiry, was rather notorious for maintaining his schedule at any cost, even, now and then, of safety. But his audacity apparently had proved profitable. He had risen swiftly, had passed from one line to another to marked advantage. His wife, of good English family, had brought him money. He had "bought into" the company he served, and insisted that his family travel with him, contrary to the company's rules and regulations. There was a kid, Burgess added, with a quick, shy glance at his captain's down bent head.

Stanham made no answer, nor did he again speak of Brewster either to Joe or to Burgess. He talked little to any one, indeed, though he was glad to have Burgess with him. A good lad, Burgess, and a good sailor. Had earned a captain's commission, long ago, though, no steam ship being presently available for him, he was sailing again as first mate. A good man, Burgess, to have on board—in case of need.

To China and back Stanham and Burgess sailed together several times, and still nothing happened, though Burgess, endowed with the sailors' sixth sense, felt always the shadow of something sinister looming. One night as they neared home the shadow seemed almost obvious. The sea, which had been rough, was like glass; the night was clear and cloudless. Overhead the stars hung, like distant jewels, in a field of true midnight blue, marvelous, deep beyond description. Around them the sleeping ocean smiled and dreamed and dimpled. Everything aboard was just as it should be. Yet Burgess, unwitting why, felt his skin creep and crisp and crackle. Whereby, though not abnormally superstitious, he knew the dim danger near.

All at once, without recognition, he saw it. Saw, that is, a ship, a big ship, bearing swiftly down upon them, traveling under steam. Burgess was on watch, but Stanham was on deck, and it was at his command that questioning signals were hoisted. Stanham's own skin had been crackling all night.

"What ship is that?" asked the British Hero.

"Lucy, Barry line, Capt. James Brewster, Liverpool to Sidney," came the answer.

Then Burgess, lacking the clue that would have conveyed understanding, saw death but a handbreadth before them. For Stanham, taking command by a gesture, gave orders to steer such a course as must take them into inevitable collision with the oncoming vessel, insisted, despite the open-mouthed amazement of the man at the wheel, of all those about him, that such course be held.

"Captain!" called Burgess, daring mutiny charges, "Capt. Stanham! We shall strike!"

At first Stanham never so much as blinked, but at Burgess' third desperate cry he turned his head slowly, to show a face like that of a dead man, save for the burning, bloodshot eyes. Burgess, who later bore witness that he believed Stanham suddenly stricken with insanity, knew at sight of those eyes that Stanham's brain would neither hear nor heed mortal voice or persuasion. Lost to all sense of the present, he was gloating over the swift approach of that other vessel, whose inevitable disaster not even her helmsman's daring reverse action now had power to stay.

On the deck of the British Hero all hands were tense and breathless. An uncanny quiet pervaded the atmosphere. But from the all but deserted deck of the other ship rang out a voice only too well remembered by Stanham, that even to Burgess, all ignorant as he was, sounded vaguely reminiscent.

"Come up, Alice! Come up, for God's sake!" it cried, much as in that long past night on the Pamlico Stanham's own voice had called to his own beloved, "Come up! We're going to strike!"

They did strike, an instant later. The impact was terrific. Every one on both decks was thrown prostrate. The British Hero paid off, trembled, and, driven always like an avenging judgment, came on again like fate. But just as the second destroying impact seemed inevitable, just as the two captains, deck to deck, saw and knew each other, at the top of the Lucy's companionway appeared the wavering, shadowy form of a woman bearing a child.

Capt. Brewster, at the sight, threw up his arms in impotent despair. He knew well deserved Nemesis hot upon him, remembering the woman and child dimly discerned on that other abandoned vessel. In Stanham the sight also evoked violent if dissimilar emotion. To his disordered brain the woman was not the wife of Brewster but his own beloved Jane. The baby was little Arthur. And in that strange, revealing instant the soul of Arthur Stanham, not dead though long uneasily sleeping, woke to poignant comprehension of his deed.

With a desperate shout he sent the wheel sharply over, so sharply that the British Hero, loyally answering her helm, this time struck a mere glancing blow that did little damage to the Lucy, badly injured but in no real danger. Then, as the big ships glided silently past each other, so close that those aboard each could see each other's faces, he beckoned Burgess.

"Take command!" he ordered, and leaped from the rail into the sea.

VENGEANCE IS MINE by Ethel M. Colson

There Had Been a Dance on the Ship; Captain and Crew Were Drowsy; Then Came a Collision.

"WELL, if I must wait now, dear, you'll come to me as soon as your mother's—better?"

"Dead" was the word in his mind, but he felt that she could not bear it.

"Yes, dear, of course I will, so gladly, when—when I'm not needed at home."

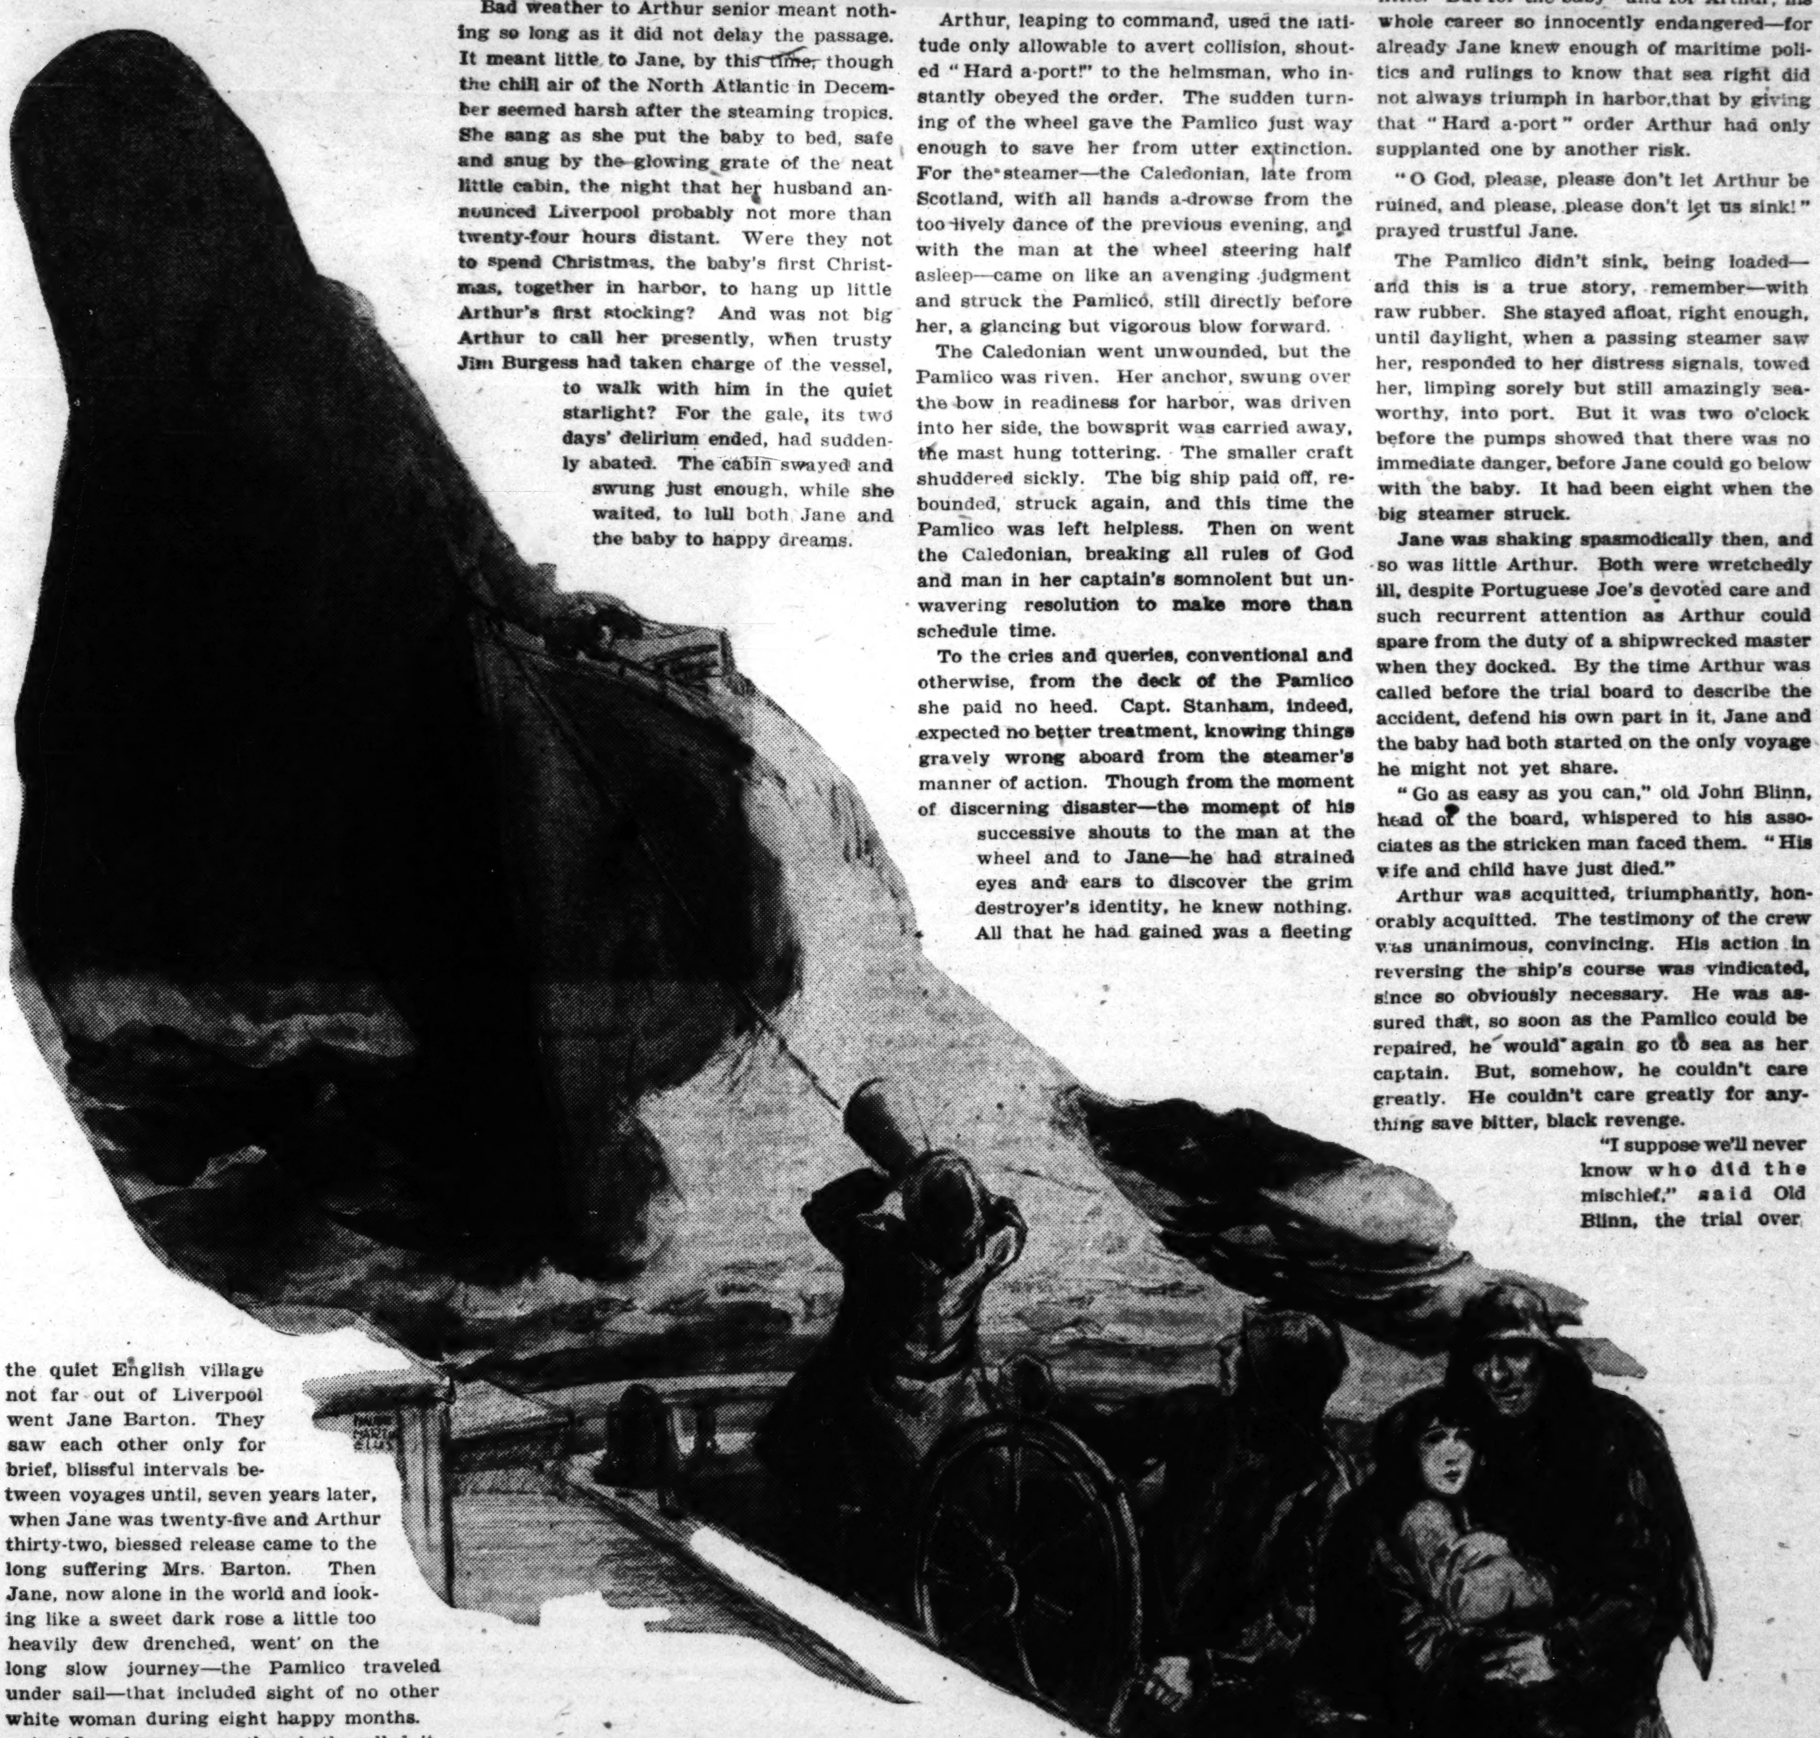
So off to the South Seas sailed Arthur Stanham, newly promoted captain of the English merchant ship Pamlico, and back to the quiet English village not far out of Liverpool went Jane Barton. They saw each other only for brief, blissful intervals between voyages until, seven years later, when Jane was twenty-five and Arthur thirty-two, blessed release came to the long suffering Mrs. Barton. Then Jane, now alone in the world and looking like a sweet dark rose a little too heavily dew drenched, went on the long slow journey—the Pamlico traveled under sail—that included sight of no other white woman during eight happy months.

An ideal honeymoon they both called it, though they behaved so circumspectly that only two or three of the time-ranking members of the crew—Portuguese Joe, the steward, the second mate, Jim Burgess, and a couple of steady old before-the-masters—knew that the Cap'n was just married.

To Arthur his bride's presence on board seemed the sweetest of miracles, though it was his proud boast—and hers—that he never shortened sail for her—and he was known for something of a driver. To Jane, the first, love comforted thrill of sea fear over, the entire experience was delightful. She made three wonderful voyages with her gallant husband before it seemed best that she should stay on land for a season. Then she missed only one voyage. By the time the Pamlico, fresh from Brazil, was back in Liverpool harbor Jane and the doctor deemed it safe to take the baby to sea.

It was a fine baby, a boy and a bouncer, with the paternal fair skin and crisp curls and the beautiful eyes of the plump, dark little mother. Also, it was ineffably good natured. The sailormen were all daft about the baby. They "borrowed" him often, when off duty, and once they made him a tiny canvas suit of regulation sea clothing, cap, jumper, and all. Portuguese Joe, the steward, who wore a caul around his neck and thanked his saints he would never be drowned, was especially devoted to little Arthur. And though the tropic heat of Para, where the pitch started from the seams of the stanch little Pamlico as they waited for her load of raw-rubber, was hard on the nerves of his elders, the baby minded it no more than the long, horrible calm that followed or the terrific gale awaiting them in the English Channel, whither, the calm over, they were swept by a splendid, steady wind.

Bad weather to Arthur senior meant nothing so long as it did not delay the passage. It meant little to Jane, by this time, though the chill air of the North Atlantic in December seemed harsh after the steaming tropics. She sang as she put the baby to bed, safe and snug by the glowing grate of the neat little cabin, the night that her husband announced Liverpool probably not more than twenty-four hours distant. Were they not to spend Christmas, the baby's first Christmas, together in harbor, to hang up little Arthur's first stocking? And was not big Arthur to call her presently, when trusty Jim Burgess had taken charge of the vessel, to walk with him in the quiet starlight? For the gale, its two days' delirium ended, had suddenly abated. The cabin swayed and swung just enough, while she waited, to lull both Jane and the baby to happy dreams.



Then on went the Caledonian, breaking all rules of God and man . . . All that Stanham had gained was a fleeting glimpse of the captain, looking heavily down from the near rail of the fast retreating vessel, as, for an instant, it seemingly hung poised above its victim.

Then, suddenly, sharply shattering the silence, a discordant clash and clatter of startled exclamations, a harsh cry of "By God, she's going to strike!" Then, at top of the narrow companionway, Arthur's voice pitched high in desperation.

"Come up, Jane, for the love of heaven! Come up! We'll be struck!"

"All right, dear," answered Jane, with pounding heart but unbroken quietude of manner. "I'll just get a shawl for baby first."

The shock came as she reached the head of the companion. The impact was strong and she suffered serious bruises. But little Arthur, though rudely awakened, was uninjured, crowing in her arms.

Of Arthur senior she saw nothing for some time. That impulsive shout had consumed all the time the conscientious captain could spare for his family. His attention was needed elsewhere.

All ready to summon Jane for their nightly promenade, he had been stayed by the lookout man's announcement of a big vessel coming up swiftly. He had waited to watch her pass, waited with no shadow of anxiety, since the Pamlico's lights were in order and the night so clear and open. Jim Burgess, in charge, had made due note of the big steamer, all hands had gazed idly at her. And then, when she should have sheered off duly, they all saw that she was not changing her course in the slightest. She was bearing straight down upon them! There was not time to escape!

Arthur, leaping to command, used the latitude only allowable to avert collision, shouted "Hard a-port!" to the helmsman, who instantly obeyed the order. The sudden turning of the wheel gave the Pamlico just way enough to save her from utter extinction. For the steamer—the Caledonian, late from Scotland, with all hands a-drowse from the too lively dance of the previous evening, and with the man at the wheel steering half asleep—came on like an avenging judgment and struck the Pamlico, still directly before her, a glancing but vigorous blow forward.

The Caledonian went unwounded, but the Pamlico was riven. Her anchor, swung over the bow in readiness for harbor, was driven into her side, the bowsprit was carried away, the mast hung tottering. The smaller craft shuddered sickly. The big ship paid off, rebounded, struck again, and this time the Pamlico was left helpless. Then on went the Caledonian, breaking all rules of God and man in her captain's somnolent but unwavering resolution to make more than schedule time.

To the cries and queries, conventional and otherwise, from the deck of the Pamlico she paid no heed. Capt. Stanham, indeed, expected no better treatment, knowing things gravely wrong aboard from the steamer's manner of action. Though from the moment of discerning disaster—the moment of his successive shouts to the man at the wheel and to Jane—he had strained eyes and ears to discover the grim destroyer's identity, he knew nothing. All that he had gained was a fleeting glimpse of the captain, betrayed by his uniform, looking heavily down from the near rail of the fast retreating vessel, as, for an instant, it seemingly hung poised above its victim, a single sound of the captain's voice, raised in a terse and angry order.

Then, as suddenly as the commotion had sprung from the peaceful sea quiet, it all died away in darkened silence. For a dense fog closed in, rolling up from the landward horizon, as the lights of the murderous steamer sank with her hull down flight.

"But I'd know that face and voice in hell!" Arthur told Jane, for the first time profane in her presence, a little later. "And I'll send him to hell when we meet!"

"Hush, dear, hush!" Jane soothed him, softly, shocked at his hitherto unsuspected temper. "God will look after him and us, too."

For Jane's was the faith that sustains in untoward circumstances and trying. It sustained her through the terrible hours that followed, with the pumps manned, the boats swung on the davits—all but the one that had been carried away—and provisioned, with every soul on board tense with terrorized suspense and anxiety. It sustained her, more yet, with the babe in her arms shivering despite the shawl she had lingered below to procure, under the knowledge that, do as she might, he was catching a dangerous cold. For the strong shivers that shook her own frame, but lightly clad for the night winds and fog of December, she cared little. But for the baby—and for Arthur, his whole career so innocently endangered—for already Jane knew enough of maritime politics and rulings to know that sea right did not always triumph in harbor, that by giving that "Hard a-port" order Arthur had only supplanted one by another risk.

"O God, please, please don't let Arthur be ruined, and please, please don't let us sink!" prayed trustful Jane.

The Pamlico didn't sink, being loaded—and this is a true story, remember—with raw rubber. She stayed afloat, right enough, until daylight, when a passing steamer saw her, responded to her distress signals, towed her, limping sorely but still amazingly seaworthy, into port. But it was two o'clock before the pumps showed that there was no immediate danger, before Jane could go below with the baby. It had been eight when the big steamer struck.

Jane was shaking spasmodically then, and so was little Arthur. Both were wretchedly ill, despite Portuguese Joe's devoted care and such recurrent attention as Arthur could spare from the duty of a shipwrecked master when they docked. By the time Arthur was called before the trial board to describe the accident, defend his own part in it, Jane and the baby had both started on the only voyage he might not yet share.

"Go as easy as you can," old John Blinn, head of the board, whispered to his associates as the stricken man faced them. "His wife and child have just died."

Arthur was acquitted, triumphantly, honorably acquitted. The testimony of the crew was unanimous, convincing. His action in reversing the ship's course was vindicated, since so obviously necessary. He was assured that, so soon as the Pamlico could be repaired, he would again go to sea as her captain. But, somehow, he couldn't care greatly. He couldn't care greatly for anything save bitter, black revenge.

"I suppose we'll never know who did the mischief," said Old Blinn, the trial over, more to make talk with the man he had always liked than for any other reason. "Half a dozen ships cleared Liverpool that evening. Might have been any one of 'em. No, Arthur, I suppose we'll never know."

"I'll know," Arthur answered him, grimly, "and I'll send that damned captain to hell!"

The old man hesitated a little, placing his would have collapsed again if Matt's athletic arms had not encircled her. Thus supporting her, he gave her a vigorous shake.

"Stop it!" he cried. "You're scaring me to death!"

"I can't—I can't," wailed Nancy, and started in on a fresh paroxysm.

"You stop that!" cried Matt desperately, "they'll hear you!"

"I—I—d-don't—c-c-care!" shrieked Nancy wiith so piercing a note that Matt's alarm was augmented, if possible. Her cloth hat had fallen off, and her head with golden hair tumbling about her ears lolled back against his encircling arm. Despite his great concern, Matt was also conscious of the demoralizing quality to her uncommon prettiness. Her face flushed from the exercise, with eyes closed and long lashes flashing with tears, suggested the face of a Bacchante. Matt shook her again.

"Now stop, and tell me what it's all about," he commanded sternly.

But this adjuration had about the same effect in abating Nancy's stampeded emotions as might have had the extinguisher if charged with gasoline in putting out a fire. And then Matt, as a last resort and as it seemed a sort of instinctive one, stooped down and kissed her.

The effect of this was all that could be desired, rather more, in fact, for Nancy's exhaust came under such swift control as to be alarming. She stopped short, freed herself with a sudden violent effort, then swinging at the angle of Matt's jaw, landed there a slap which would have pleased an athletic trainer.

"How—how do you dare?" she cried, and faced him, tense and quivering.

"That's better," said Matt. "Now stand fast, or you'll get another."

"You brute," said Nancy, and drew the back of her wet hand across her lips.

"Desperate situations require desperate measures," said Matt. "If you'd gone on much longer, you'd have shaken yourself apart."

"I'll shake you apart before I get through with you," said Nancy.

"Well, something had to be done," said Matt. "If you lose all control of yourself, I've got to take measures to get you back where you belong." He looked into her flashing eyes, and observed the set of her white even teeth. "And I must say, you seem to be there," said he. "Now let's try to forget the treatment long enough for me to learn what sent you so completely off your track."

"I'll tell you nothing," said Nancy, and turned her back.

"All right," said Matt, grimly, "then I'll go and find out for myself."

He stepped past her, taking the extinguisher from the sack as he did so. Nancy gripped him by the shoulder.

"Hold on!" she said. "I suppose I brought it on myself by slipping my self control when alone with the sort of man you've shown yourself to be."

"We'll discuss that later," said Matt. "Carry on, then, and be quick about it. Because somebody's going to pay for that side swipe and mighty soon."

"Listen, you idiot," said Nancy. "That is Sylvia in the cabin and the man that has kidnaped her—is—is—is—" she began to choke again.

"Look out," warned Matt, "or you may get another dose. I've got as many of those in the clip as I have shots in the extinguisher—and then some."

This warning checked effectually what might have been another outburst. Nancy swallowed once or twice like a little girl fetched up by a round turn.

"Well—is—who?" Matt demanded.

"Sam Sprague!!" said Nancy.

It took a second or two for this statement to percolate its way to Matt's inner consciousness, but even then it was adulterated by a good deal of foreign matter.

"Sam Sprague," said he, trying to remember what he had learned about this rough actor from his flivver informant. "Sam Sprague! So he's in the business, too, is he? Well," he rubbed his chin, "everybody's doing it nowadays—but I'd scarcely have thought it of Sam."

"Doing what?" demanded Nancy.

"O, bootlegging—and stealing girls and other outdoor sports."

Nancy ground her heel into the sand.

"Nonsense, stupid!" said she. "Sam hasn't anything to do with this bootlegging stuff."

"Then he's in a worse business," said Matt.

"He's nothing of the sort. He's told Sylvia right along that she wasn't going to marry this fool of a Freddy Griscom, and being a good deal of a man he's gone and played a bold stroke to prevent it."

"O, he has, has he?" growled Matt. "Then our ideas about boldness must agree as much as they do on other topics. If you call it boldness for a big husky brute of a man to waylay and capture a young girl just out of college and carry her off to sea and then back to a desolate scrap of sand and moor and nearly kill her father with grief and worry, why, then, I suppose Sam's is a bold and dashing stroke."

"That brutal male stuff sounds well from you," said Nancy.

"I didn't bring you out here," said Matt. "I did my best to keep you from coming here. But since you butted in and then started to throw a fit of hysterics at the crucial moment, it was up to me to shock you out of it. It was a choice between that and using the extinguisher. If Sylvia had been playing fast and loose with Sam, he wouldn't be so much to blame. But, although not officially announced, 'folks say' that she was practically engaged to this Griscom Johnny."

Nancy seemed a little subdued by Matt's unquestionably sincere and righteous anger. "I'm not quite sure," said she, "that Sylvia could be considered entirely innocent of the charge of playing fast and loose with both of them."

Matt looked at her, searchingly. "If that is really true," said he, "then she's got what was coming to her. But that doesn't excuse the rotten mean trick on her father."

"The chances are," said Nancy, "that Mr. Gates will get word that she is safe soon after that boat reaches shore. I remember now seeing it in Sam's shipyard one day when I went there with Sylvia. It had just been finished for some one's order. What I think is that he may have been brooding over Sylvia's marrying Griscom, and determined that it was better to take a chance than to have her ruin both their lives, Sylvia's and Sam's."

"In that case," said Matt, "the symptoms would seem to indicate that he has lost his bet. Serves him right, too. This Viking stuff would not be so bad if it could be confined to the two principally concerned. But Sylvia might go home and find her father on his death bed as a result of this, and a jolly kind of old father, too."

"I must admit that part of it seems pretty raw," said Nancy. "The chances are that Sam intended to send word that she was safe but hadn't counted on the big fleet of boats patrolling off shore."

"Well," said Matt, "he'll soon have a chance to tell all that to the judge," and at the sudden harshness of his voice Nancy glanced quickly at him with the first pang of actual misgiving which she had yet felt in his cheerful presence.

THE PIG IN THE POKE

fact that I love Byron and don't give a fig for anything else in the world. It is extremely inconvenient. I can't think how to manage my life. I appear to have lost my taste for pasts. The future looks horribly dull. And there you have it."

I hadn't imagined Angela's truth could be quite so bald, so uncompromising. I was awkwardly silent, but presently ventured, feebly:

"Perhaps something can be done."

She had risen from her chair and stood looking out of the window. There was a drooping pitifulness about her back, in spite of the lines of Picard's gown. But she turned with a sudden springing attention in her whole person and a very certain flash in the darkness of her eyes.

"Please don't speak again of—doing anything. Everything has been done. That's the pity of it. If I had run away with another man, or Byron with another woman, you might begin to patch; that has been known to succeed. But this! Never. This is outside the realm of patching. An absurd atrocity."

"But you admit you love him——"

"Certainly," she put in quickly, walking toward me with beautifully poised step. She sat on the arm of my chair and ran her fingers along the plaited frill of my blouse.

"I love him and he bores me to death. I must have loved him from the beginning. That's why I wanted so frantically to have him qualify. I wanted something to forgive and forget—something to act upon. You can't act on perfection. It's dull."

"Well, in any case," I snapped, "you can go ahead on one of those lines—you can forget Byron, I should think, without any trouble at all."

"No," she sighed, "fate has served me a pretty trick. I love his perfection—always will—but I can't live with it. I've been trained in another school."

To give Angela credit for the weeks that followed would only be to state that she stuck to her point. That is to say, she never mentioned Byron, and, though she was constantly surrounded by people, mostly men, there was a certain falling off in her concentrated interest. She stayed in my house through all those weeks and I must admit she had pluck enough. Only the keenest observer could possibly know she was eating her heart out. Her clothes and her wit were still flawless, but I knew she didn't sleep. I heard her padding about her room at night and when I remonstrated she smiled and said she had a great many letters to write—that she could think at night. She sent off and received dozens of letters from Europe. Some of her recreants, I thought. But I had to notice after a time that all her continental mail was in the same handwriting; a woman's, without doubt.

Not long after that deluge of mail began she moved, rather abruptly, back to her own flat.

"I'm ready now," she explained, "to face those old surroundings. I'm quite myself again."

But she wasn't. And when I met her on the street a week later I was shocked at her appearance. Absurd, to mention age in connection with Angela; but the signs were there. Lines about her eyes and mouth. Perhaps a gray hair—I don't know. But I went right home, and without giving myself time to think I wrote to Byron. I told him he was needed; that he must come back at once.

There had been, all this time, scarcely a current word about Byron; except that he was settled in Paris. And once settled anywhere he was not likely to draw attention. In any case, Angela's unexplained return had kept the town talk busy. She absorbed the day. They were sure enough of Byron to forget him, for the moment.

I was, I'll admit, surprised, when he answered my letter by cable. "Coming," was all he said. But it threw me into a panic. What on earth was I to say to him when he did come? My summons could hardly be explained by the possible fact that Angela had one gray hair!

I worried right up to the day of his arrival, and, as usual, without purpose. It was all so thoroughly taken out of my hands. I might even have spared myself the agony of that first half hour, when I blunderingly tried to explain to Byron why I had sent for him—how Angela, really, was looking. I imagine he didn't hear a word that I said; he was so frightfully occupied trying to sort out his own confession. I remember, now, that his head was buried in his hands, and that he groaned, once or twice, when I said that Angela was not dying, but looking worn and tired and, yes, a little old. At that he sprang up, lifted the fragile chair beneath him, and tossed it aside like a discarded toy. It was then that I realized his ferment; there was something of vast importance that he had to bring out. I had never seen him so bristled and full of fight. And yet, the edges of his vigor were dulled by a fugitive, beaten aspect. His voice was deep with gloom when he spoke.

"Sally, I'm just like all the others. A rotter. There's no escape for that poor girl." And then, while I was trying to imagine what he meant, he pounded his fist on my choicest inlaid table and made his statement with hoarse finality.

"No. I can't go through with it. I can't tell her. At the first word I came running—like the rest. I'm like them, but I'll hang before I'll admit it!"

"Admit what?" I questioned flatly. At that he began wildly to pace the room in a terrible disrespect for its careful arrangement. But the perils of my furniture were as nothing at the moment. I followed Byron to the far end of the room, and there stood facing him.

"Don't be a fool," I said. "There is too much at stake. Everything depends on what you may be able—to tell."

He looked at me blankly, as if surprised at the tenseness of my interest, as if conscious for the first time of my presence. Only for a moment could he take me in; he was too fatigued to search the import of my words. He let it all go with a gesture of despair and sank, with his own thoughts, in a deep corner of the couch.

"Try and think out loud, Byron," I suggested. "It might help."

My voice, to him, was only a bell, ringing in the distance; but the summons took effect. His story began to come out in the form of a silhouette, a shadow lined portrait. The profile was only a matter of a few blurted words. Paris—lonely—a woman. A stroke of imagination, and you had the rest. But he couldn't let it go at that; once started he tried to fill in the whole picture.

"I haven't the least bit of an excuse to offer. Except that I was so desperately—alone. I had failed with Angela; there was something she kept wanting that I couldn't give her. I don't know what it was. I almost lost my reason trying to find out. Then, this other thing—this woman came along. She wasn't a bad sort. Beautiful, gay, reckless. We both had failures behind us; it was easy to romp into a fortnight's success with each other. It did us both good. It didn't seem sordid, wasn't really, until your letter came and woke me up. Then I felt like a confounded hound and cut out of Paris by the first train."

"And—the woman?" I observed acidly.

"Oh, I told her all about it. She advised me to go. Advised me to make a clean breast of the whole affair."

I started, at once, to second that woman's word, but Byron held me back.

"No," he said, "now that I'm here I can't go through with it. Angela may be able to forgive the rest of them—but not me. Never"

"I think she might forgive you, Byron. It's your only hope. Try it." He looked up with a sudden return of his old reserve. He had, in those few seconds, slipped beyond further estimate. Perfectly poised, he said:

"I must go now. I shall, of course, see Angela; we naturally have a number of business matters to settle up."

Poor fellow, I knew he hadn't a chance to escape confession. But I thought I could count on Angela. She was pretty sure to be true to her type.

I was not much surprised when she turned up the next morning and was announced with my breakfast tray. Even at that impossible hour I saw at once that her face was free from a single harrowed line or shadow.

Muffled in her gray furs, she perched at the foot of my bed, for all the world like a softly alighting carrier pigeon. And while I poured my coffee she announced:

"I've come to say good-by. We are leaving for the west tonight."

"You surprise me," I said tartly.

"Not altogether," she smiled. "It was nice of you to send for Byron. I couldn't have stood it much longer."

"No. Perhaps not," I agreed. "Yet, on the other hand——"

"O, you needn't worry," she put in rapidly. "He needs me now. You know what the poor dear has been going through in Paris. He said he told you. Such a wretched time! He was so pathetic and splendid about it. He looks dreadfully worn and tired; I can't wait to put him all to rights again."

"Well," I sighed, "I'm glad you're satisfied." Then, in the face of her fresh confidence, I had to add: "Are you sure—that brief episode in Paris is enough of a past to keep you two going? From what Byron told me it didn't appear so fearfully blighting."

"Perhaps—it wasn't," she said. I looked up and saw that Angela was blushing. She never blushed. I felt strangely confident that she had, at last, met her Nemesis. She came and kissed me good-by, and then with more hesitancy than I had ever seen her display she said:

"In justice to Byron I think you should know that that woman in Paris was an old friend of mine—not exactly a friend but a girl that I had helped on and off the stage. She was out of a job and I sent her to Paris with explicit directions as to what she was to do—how far she was to go—with Byron. I never trusted her for a moment. But I had to take the chance. I got just what—I deserved. O, yes, I have, I think, about enough to forgive—and—forget to last me the rest of my life."

"After all," I said to myself as she closed the door behind her, "all that you know about his brand new past is what he has told you himself, my dear."

$100,000.00 Reward!

Blue Ribbon Fiction

SYNOPSIS.

Matthew Holmes' speed boat is wrecked while he is on his way to interest his uncle, Jeremy Taylor, in a new fire extinguisher. Landing at the old Putney place, he is greeted by three ferocious dogs and a mysterious foreigner. He turns the extinguisher upon all four and leaves. He learns that Sylvia, heiress of Hiram Gates, the millionaire, and fiancée of Freddie Griscom, has disappeared while canoeing. Matt is greeted warmly by Uncle Jerry, who has risen from his supposed deathbed to marry May Upton, his pretty nurse. Matt had been in disfavor with both, but now Uncle Jerry regards him as a rescuer, as beautiful Nancy, his wife's sister, is "running the place." Nancy asserts Sylvia either has been drowned or has eloped with Sam Sprague, the shipbuilder. Matt declares she has been kidnaped for ransom, having in mind the foreigners at the Putney place. They find a reward of $100,000 has been offered for Sylvia's return. Accompanied by the fire extinguisher and Nancy, Matt visits the Putney place and sees a launch glide out. "Sylvia is being taken away," he thinks. But the launch takes no passenger. Soon it returns and three men load its cargo of wooden cases into two limousines. "Whisky runners," cry Matt and Nancy, and go home. Nancy advances the theory the bootleggers may be holding Sylvia captive, and the two trail a suspected "bootleggers' ship" to a nearby island, then turn back, much to Nancy's disgust. Next day they raid the Putney place, but too late. The foreigners have fled. Matt goes to the island to trap the bootleggers. Tiring of his vigil and the driving rain, he hunts up a cabin, but as he nears it he sees a light. It is Nancy, who has refused to be left behind. Matt and Nancy find footsteps in the sand and a rope, which, they suspect, leads to the bootleggers' cache. The rain begins again and they seek refuge in a cavern. Matt is bringing in supplies when he sights a boat, hears a scream, and sees Nancy struggling with two men, while two more are approaching. The kidnapers, he concludes. They overpower him after he has nearly blinded Nancy with the sand clogged extinguisher.

EIGHTH INSTALLMENT.

Thrills and Surprises.

NO words of Matt's could have produced the same effect as the look of blank astonishment which overspread his face as the meaning of his captors remarks regarding the $100,0C0 reward sank into him. He stared dumfounded at the captain of the smack, then at Nancy.

"Good Lord," he gasped, "they think you're Sylvia!"

"Well, why shouldn't they?" cried Nancy. "They've been searching for her, and they found me here alone in this cave. I told them they were wrong, but they were too excited to listen. If you hadn't been in your usual frantic rush to jump at a conclusion you might have made them understand."

"All the same, they are the bootleggers we ran into night before last," Matt began, angrily, when he was interrupted by the grizzled captain.

"Who ees bootleggers?" he demanded, fiercely. "Not us, younga gentleman. We is honest-a-men and make-a da beer and wine we dr'rink our-a-selves."

"You've guessed wrong again, Sherlock," said Nancy, cuttingly. "These men look like good, square, substantial fishermen. I don't believe they've had anything to do with the bootleggers at all."

"Datta what, Mees," said the captain with a vigorous nod. "Nighta before last we come outa here and anchor to waita for da fog to clear. Next day I go ashore and finda zis in da paper."

He took a black, shiny wallet from an inner pocket and extracted a newspaper clipping which bore the marks of greasy thumbs. Unfolding this, the fishing skipper thrust it under Matt's nose. Nancy stepped up to look at it over his shoulder.

It was an article which gave more details of Sylvia's disappearance and in which the reward for her safe recovery was officially offered. There was a close description of the missing girl, her physical appearance and costume, with a portrait of her which was announced as the nearest to her general appearance at the time as could be had.

Nancy glanced at this with an exclamation of surprise, for no doubt because the photograph had been taken most recently and in the same sailor gown Sylvia had been wearing on her disappearance, Mr. Gates had given the reporters a print which included Nancy also, and the compositor had failed to cut this out, contenting himself with the caption, "The missing girl, Miss Sylvia Gates," then in parentheses—"left."

Both portraits were clear and distinct likenesses, that of Nancy to be recognized as readily as Sylvia's.

"So that's the reason you were so determined to drag me off," cried Nancy to the skipper.

"Sura ting, Mees," said he. "Hera is your picture in da paper, and hera I fine you in da island sittin' on da rocks. What I gotta tink?"

"But don't you see," said Matt, "that underneath it says—left."

"I no read da Inglisch," growled the disappointed captain, and a look of gloom spread over his square, swarthy face as he saw the great reward slipping through his net. "I see da face and fine da younga lady in da rocks on da leetle island way offa da shore."

Matt could not in all justice blame the honest fellow. The fishermen, on the off chance that the missing girl might have been driven on the island, and not knowing how thorough a search of it might have been made, had decided to look it over for themselves, and it was natural that with a portrait fixed on their visual memory they had leaped to the conclusion that the bedraggled girl sitting alone and dejected in a niche of the rocks must certainly be she. In their excitement and exultation they had paid no heed to her protestations, no doubt assuming these to be in the nature of ravings as the result of a mind deranged from fright and hardship or fright at their rough appearance. They had decided to return her with all dispatch, and on encountering Matt's frenzied rush had leaped to the conclusion that he must be her abductor.

An emphatic explanation and the legend of the portrait soon convinced them of their error, when, being simple, honest men, they bravely swallowed their disappointment and offered their apologies. Nancy looked at Matt with a bitter, scornful face.

"And you might have blinded them all," said she, "if you'd been able to manage it, just as you nearly managed to blind me. That's what comes of your inspired impulses."

"I've got to admit you are right," said Matt, dejectedly. "Well, since this seems to blow up the theory that brought us here, I suppose we might as well ask them to set us ashore."

"You can do as you like," said Nancy, "but now that I'm here I'm going to wait for Murphy."

"What's the good of that?" asked Matt.

"Never mind," said Nancy. "I've got a theory of my own."

Matt perceived immediately what was in her mind. The rehabilitation of the cabin required some explanation. If Sylvia had been abducted, there was the possibility that her captors might have anticipated a search of the island, but might yet bring her there when they felt safe to do so. This seemed very little to go on while yet offering some slight clue.

"Then I'll stay with you," said he.

"We seem to have changed our tune," said Nancy. "I must say I think you owe these men something to pay for your vicious and unwarranted attack on them."

Matt thought so, too. His blows had fallen heavily, although quite warranted in a violent offensive at sight of Nancy being dragged away; still, the fishermen were acting with honest purpose. He took from his pocket the roll of bills with which Uncle Jerry had supplied him, peeled off two twenties, and handed one to each of the men he had bowled over in his onslaught.

"That's to pay for your eye—and your jaw," said he. "Our launch is coming for us pretty soon, so we'll wait here for it."

There being not much else to say, the sorely disappointed fishermen took their departure, when Matt and Nancy returned to the cave.

"I'm afraid this cooks it," said Matt despondently.

"You nearly cooked me," said Nancy. "Why were you so long?"

Matt reached in his pocket and handed her the thermos.

"I stopped to make you some hot tea," said he. "Thought it might cheer you up while I was getting a fire started."

Nancy looked a little mollified. "You are the most thoughtfully thoughtless person I ever knew," said she. "What happened to your old extinguisher anyhow?"

"The nozzle must have got plugged with sand when I threw it down," said Matt. "Lucky thing it did as matters turned out—I mean for the fishermen," he added, hastily.

These latter had returned aboard their smack, which was now putting off under power. Matt looked thoughtfully after it.

"All the same," said he, "this doesn't explain that line to the shore."

"Why didn't you tell them to haul it up?" Nancy asked.

"Didn't think about it, to tell the truth," said Matt. "My mind was too occupied with other things."

The next maneuvers were most puzzling to account for. The big man scrambled out

"That seems to be the trouble with your brilliant brain," Nancy retorted. "It seizes one idea and rushes at it like a salmon trout at an artificial fly."

"And then I get the gaff," Matt muttered. "Well, anyhow, we know there were some bootleggers because we saw them land the stuff, and this island is just in the right place to serve them as a depot. We may yet make a haul if they don't come before Murphy gets here."

Nancy rose. "I think I'll go back to the cabin and lie down," said she. "My eyes and nose smart and I've had about enough excitement for one day."

"Did they hurt you?" asked Matt, solicitously.

"No, but you did. I wouldn't use that thing on a dog. Speaking of dogs, I saw a big Newfoundland on that smack. It must have been the one we heard the other night."

Matt groaned. "There goes the last shred of evidence against those people," said he. "Just the same, if you'll kindly lend me a hairpin I'll get the good old extinguisher in working order again."

"Then for heaven's sake, dilute it with some water," said Nancy. "There's no telling on whom your impulse might lead you to use it, and if a little spray from it can do what it did to me, the solid stream might blind somebody for life."

"All right," said Matt, rather chilled at his narrow escape from having possibly done this very thing. He cleared the nozzle with the hairpin Nancy handed him, then pumped out a few jets, and, unscrewing the cap, filled up the cylinder with water from the bucket of this superfluous commodity that he had brought on his first trip from the cabin.

"I'll go back with you and get a bite to eat, then return and take up my permanent residence here until we leave this Isle of Dreams. You won't be afraid to pass the night alone there, will you?"

"No," said Nancy, "but you might leave me the extinguisher."

They shared the tea, then, feeling considerably refreshed, set out across the moor, Matt remarking that before long he should have worn a path.

They walked back on to higher ground. The weather showed no signs of changing, though it had grown light and the drizzling shower for the moment ceased. Then as the gray sea came in sight for a distance of two or three miles out, Matt let out a yell which was followed by a groan.

"Look there!" said he. "Here comes another outfit."

For just emerging from the wind flung haze was a small vessel of the sea going motor cruiser type, about fifty feet in length, full bodied and spacious, with high bows and roomy cabin accommodations—almost a houseboat, in fact, such a type of floating home as is much in vogue for winter cruising in southern waters, and combining safety, comfort and speed. It was apparently heading to cut in close to the eastern end of the island and might, for all they knew, have no intention at all of stopping there, but be laying a course for any point in shore. The mere fact of its being out there at all in such disagreeable weather, however, appeared to argue against pleasure cruising.

"That's not the boat we got a glimpse of," said Matt, "but it might be the one to bring the booze here for the other to distribute, though I don't see just why they should want to take the trouble of trans-shipping their stuff."

"Perhaps it's the campers coming back," said Nancy, with a worried look. "I must say I'd never counted on anything like that."

A short lapse of time seemed to prove the truth of this catastrophe, for the yacht passed around the end of the island, cutting in close with the assurance of a pilot to whom those waters were familiar, then rounded up under the lee of the slightly higher ground where the cabin was placed, and came to anchor in good shelter about two hundred yards off the shore.

"Let's try to have a look at them without being seen ourselves," said Matt. "Here comes the rain again," and come it did in a drenching shower, with a darkening of the atmosphere.

The pair of sleuths, dejected at this new development and the compulsion of sharing the snug cabin even with harmless campers, made their way cautiously along the moor. A big bowlder offered an ambush from behind which they might reconnoiter the strangers. They saw a dinghy dropped into the water, and a man step into it; then Matt gasped.

"Look!" said he. "Isn't that one in the yellow slicker a girl?"

Nancy stared eagerly. A second figure in a long oilskin overcoat and sou'wester pulled down practically to hide the head, was getting into the boat. Another person, unquestionably a big man, followed her. The first then picked up the oars, shoved off the boat, and started to pull in to the rocks with the short, jerky fisherman's stroke. Nancy turned to Matt a face which had suddenly paled.

"It's a girl or woman," said she, "but I can't see her face."

"A hundred to one on Sylvia," said Matt. "They carried her off shore until the search was over, and now they've brought her back here. Let's see what happens next."

But the next maneuvers were most puzzling to account for. The big man scrambled out and offered his hand to the girl, who appeared to disdain it as if in anger. She clambered out unassisted, and the two made their way amongst the loose bowlders and up toward the cabin. Once or twice the girl stopped and flung out her arms as if in furious protest. The man in the dinghy had shoved off and rowed back alongside, where, not bothering to hoist out the boat, he occupied himself getting in the small kedge anchor. The other two made their way toward the cabin, walking some distance apart.

"Now he'll be coming to get the booze," said Matt. "But I wonder he didn't go there first so the other fellow could lend a hand, and there's not a thing I can do to prevent."

"O, bother the booze," said Nancy, impatiently. "If that is really Sylvia, you've got quite enough to do ahead of you."

But, contrary to all expectation, the man in the cruising boat, having brought his anchor to the bow, went aft, and a moment later there came a churning of water under the stern, when the swift if bulky craft swung off shoreward, presently to disappear in the penumbra of the driving rain. Matt and Nancy stared at each other bewildered.

"Now, what's the meaning of that, Sherlock," she said. "Why should they leave them there with no chance of escape?"

"I'm afraid your first guess was right," said Matt, dismally. "That may be some chap and his wife with a taste for solitude"—he looked about with a grim smile—"paradis a deux, I don't think. Perhaps they're honeymooning."

"Then from those gestures of hers," said Nancy, "I should say the moon was in the wrong quarter."

"They're going to get a jolt when they see our duffle," said Matt, and this prophecy was immediately fulfilled. The pair had disappeared in the direction of the cabin, which was not visible from the swale where Matt and Nancy were watching. But now the man suddenly appeared upon a knoll, waving his arms and gesticulating violently at the disappearing boat. These semaphoric signals were either undiscovered or disregarded, however, as the course of the departing craft was not altered, and almost immediately it dissolved in the aqueous solution of the atmosphere.

"He's discovered that the place has other tenants, and it's put a crimp in him," said Matt.

"He's not the only one," said Nancy. "This thing has put a regular marcel wave in me. I didn't bother about the reputation part of it before."

"But now that you see that abstract quantity doing a fadeout, it assumes some little value after all."

"It surely does," said Nancy. "I can't go there and let those people see me. They'd be certain to find out about me later, and then good-by, Rep. I've been promised a professorship in England in a fashionable girls' school, and I can see what that's worth now. There's only one thing about it, Matt, I've got to hide out."

Matt shook his head. "You can't," said he. "In the first place, there's no place to hide, and the second, you'd perish of exposure. Better the snug cabin without a character, then the cold, cold field with a wobbly one. Besides, it might be Sylvia, after all."

Nancy wrung her hands in despair. "It's nothing of the sort," said she. "They wouldn't dare leave her here like that. They're much more apt to have landed her as you said. It's a couple come out here to camp and they've had a fight."

"Perhaps," suggested Matt encouragingly, "our being here might jeopardize her own rep, and they'd be only too glad to enter into a secret treaty."

To his consternation Nancy burst into tears. Matt was profoundly sorry for her. Up to this time he had resented her mad escapade and registered a vow to tell Uncle Jerry what he thought about it, even at the risk of another quarrel. He had felt no gratitude at all to Nancy for desiring to share his lonely vigil, because he had ascribed her motive entirely to a meddlesome and foolish insistence on missing no possible episode in the adventure. But now he was bound to appreciate how serious the affair might prove to her. He hoped that the newcomers would make allowances when the position was explained to them, and that they might be decent enough to pledge themselves to silence and to keep their promise. Otherwise, and this thought occurred to him with a curious thrill, which he would have found some difficulty in explaining to himself, he might be in honor bound to make the spirited if ill advised girl an offer of marriage; though he could not for a moment imagine her acceptance of such a proposal. Matt was convinced that she detested him, looked upon him as an unballasted fool who had made a muddle of clues which any person of sense might have employed successfully, and no doubt she really had felt that she could be of indispensable service.

Nancy's brief shower of tears passed quickly, though that of the elements continued in a sort of businesslike way that promised to make a thorough day's work of it, and no doubt a night's of it for that matter. And there were nearly thirty-six hours ahead before Murphy could be expected with the launch. There was no combustible with which to build a beacon except the cabin, and they had need of that. Besides the chances were against the weather's clearing sufficiently for such a beacon to be seen upon the far distant shore.

"Darn it!" said Nancy, presently. "I suppose there's nothing to do but go up and face the music. It's raining harder every minute, and I never yet had a waterproof that was anything like proof. This thing of mine doesn't shed the water, but merely filters it."

"Well, then," said Matt, "let's sneak up and reconnoiter. Mind you, Nancy, it's not as if we'd come out here for our health or for love in a cottage, like those two."

They made a little detour along the shore so as to approach the cabin from the rear, Nancy scoffing bitterly at this precaution; then climbing the bank they executed a flanking movement, until under the cabin's lee.

"You peek in the window," said Matt, "and see if it's anybody that you know."

Nancy obeyed in silence. Matt, watching her, observed the sudden tautening of her features as she thrust her head cautiously around the edge of the window's rim. Her pretty profile was presented, and it seemed to Matt that this hardened like a cameo. Then her head was quickly drawn away and she staggered back, and into his supporting arms, for her knees appeared to be buckling under her. Matt drew her behind the cabin.

"Good heavens, Matt," she gasped. "It is Sylvia!"

Matt felt for an instant as though he had swallowed an alarm clock which had gone off on landing under his ribs.

"Jumping James!" he breathed. "Are you certain?"

"As certain as I am that I am I. She is sitting in front of the fire drying her skirt and she looks like a newly captured tigress."

"Did you see the man?" asked Matt.

"No," said Nancy, "he must be in the little room."

"Look again," said Matt, and loosened a strap of the haversack in which reposed the extinguisher.

Nancy repeated her espionage. But this time Matt was at a loss to account for the singularity of her expression. Her pretty chin dropped to leave her mouth agape, and so it remained for some moments when, to Matt's further bewilderment, she closed it with a snap, swallowed once or twice, then lurched back to where he stood and, clapping her hands over her face, sank down behind the cabin in such a gust of evidently hysterical laughter that Matt feared the excitement had overwhelmed her grip upon herself.

"Nancy," he whispered anxiously, and gave her a little shake. "My dear girl. Stop it. You sit here and I'll go in and put that kidnaper where he belongs.."

Nancy struggled to her feet. Then, still jerking convulsively, her strong little hand fell on his wet wrist.

"Come," she choked, "come quick or I'll burst. Come down here under the bank where I can have my laugh out without their hearing it."

So violent was Nancy's paroxysm that Matt, now thoroughly alarmed, was obliged partly to carry her. They reached the edge of the sandy bank, partly lost their balance, or at least Matt did, for Nancy had no longer any equilibrium at all, went down it pell mell, and landed in a tangled heap at the bottom, which was fortunately soft sand.

The disorder of this retreat appeared, if possible, to lend fresh force and volume to Nancy's convulsions of mirth. Mirth is perhaps not quite the word, for she was in the throes of a real good oldfashioned fit of hysterics. She sat there, rocking to and fro, tears pouring down her cheeks, and Matt, watching her in fright and dismay, was sure that her screams of laughter must be heard in the cabin. But if so they might have been mistaken for the screaming of gulls of which a flock had taken refuge in the sheltered lee.

Nancy appeared to have passed the limits of all self control, and Matt while intensely worried (as bachelors invariably are under such alarming conditions) could not greatly wonder at this nerve storm. As a writer of imaginative fiction with some knowledge of psychology, he could appreciate the reaction to be expected from the loosing of the varied strains under which the girl had been since the beginning of the episode.

First, grief and distress at what seemed to be the tragedy overtaking her dearest and most intimate friend, then the nocturnal expedition to the old Putney place and the sinister encounter with the dogs, and observation of the bootleggers' maneuvers. Quickly followed the offshore scouting of the enemy craft, a return in which shipwreck was several times missed by a hair's breadth, and probably no sleep to speak of during the rest of the night.

Then had come the disappointment of finding the birds flown, the discouraging consultation with Donovan, and the offering to the stricken parent of hopes which were so insecurely based. And after that their sojourn on the island and the recent dire foreboding over the position in which the girl had so rashly and impetuously placed herself.

And now here was this discovery of Sylvia in the flesh, and so far as one could tell, unharmed, but in the custody of some ruffian of whose intentions toward her she could feel none too secure.

But what puzzled Matt was to determine where the laugh came in, for Nancy's hysteria was evidently more composed of mirth than anger or anxiety. Whatever the solution of the problem, it struck Matt that of all times for levity this seemed about the most misplaced, and he could scarcely wait for Nancy to get herself in hand to tell him the answer.

The girl's condition seemed then to go from bad to worse. She struggled to her feet and

MOTORDOM STORMS CHICAGO AS SHOW OPENS

CAPITAL BIDS FOND FAREWELL TO HORSE ERA

President Taft Led Motor March.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 23.—[Special.]—Not even the changes wrought by the war have made the difference in Washington brought about by the coming of the automobile.

PRESIDENT HARDING.

Only a few years ago motor cars were a novelty; then came the time when a dozen or more would be parked on the east front of the capitol when congress was in session; then began the passing of the carriages and other horse drawn vehicles from the business and residence sections, and today cars are massed solidly around every public building, and parking space on every street is at a premium.

Official Washington, from President Harding down to the clerk who has been crowded out of Washington to a bungalow across the district line, drives, or is driven, in cars ranging all the way from the presidential limousine to the clerk's "lizzie."

Taft First to Use Auto.

Prior to the Taft administration the only White House automobile was the runabout driven by Miss Alice Roosevelt, now Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, who was the first woman to take out a license to drive a car in Washington. Mr. Taft was the first President to make use of a motor car, and then and since the only horses in the White House stables have been the riding horses used by his sons and daughter, afterward by Miss Margaret Wilson, and now by President Harding and his secretary, George Christian.

The White House now has three cars for the use of the President and his family—a touring car, limousine, and landaulet.

F. H. GILLETT.

Since 1912 congress has provided an automobile for the Vice President and also for the speaker of the house. Much debate has accompanied the voting of appropriations for the speaker's car, and one congress, while providing for the car, refused to vote an appropriation for its maintenance. This occurred while Champ Clark was speaker, and Mr. Clark never used the car. Mr. Gillett, the present speaker, not only uses an automobile, but, though more than 70 years of age, drives it himself.

Wallace Sole Survivor.

All the department heads have automobiles except Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, who for short trips

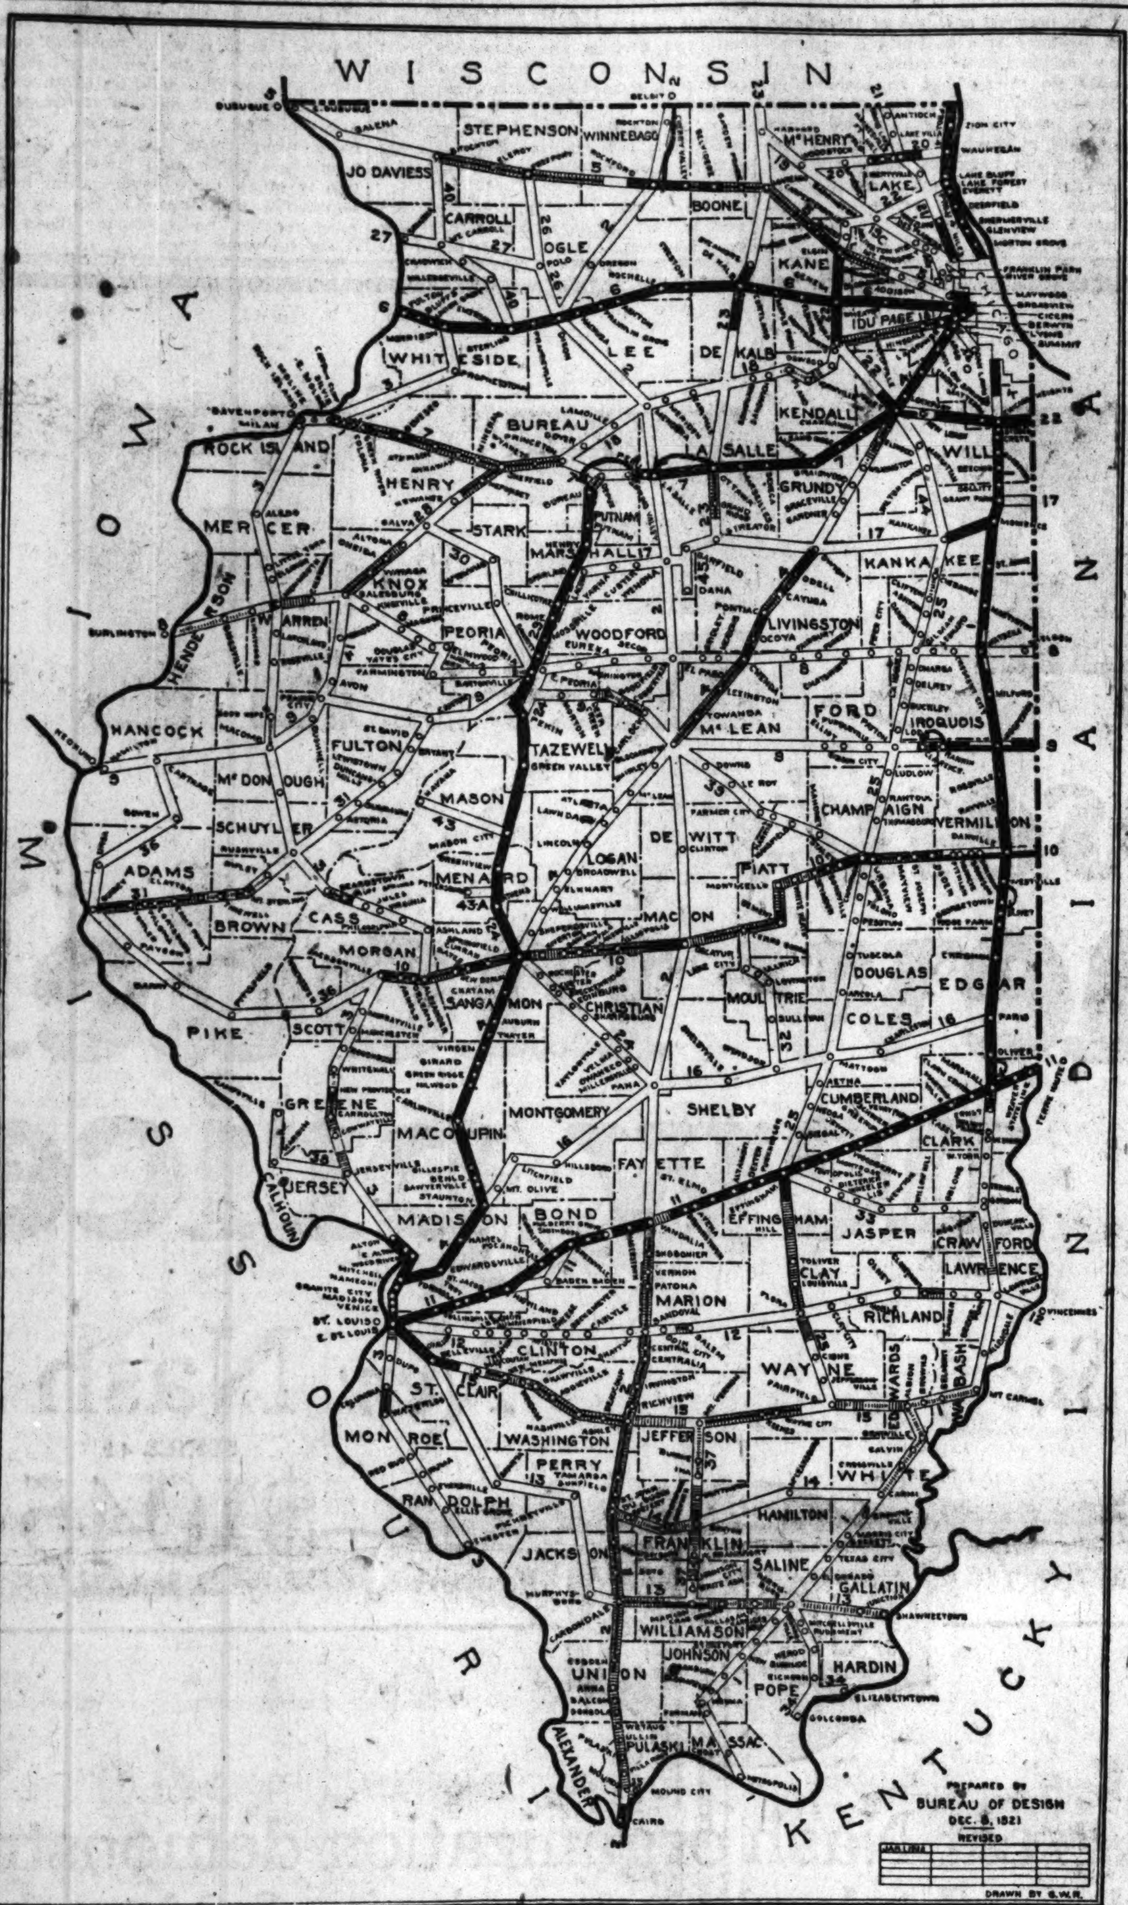
OUT OF THE MUD AT LAST



Here are Illinois paved roads as they appear today. Heavy black lines indicate pavement in place, shaded lines show where grading has been done. Arrows point out the present detours. White lines show state routes where work has not yet opened.

Many of the gaps in state route paving were closed during the last building year. It is now possible to drive from Chicago to St. Louis by way of Peoria and Springfield, then back to Chicago again without leaving a hard road. The program for 1922 calls for the building of 1,000 miles of new state routes.

If this program is carried out next spring Illinois will lead the entire middle west in paved highway mileage. Among the important routes now under construction are the "Illini boulevard" leading from Chicago through Joliet, Bloomington, and Springfield to St. Louis. This route cuts off a score of miles from the run between the two cities. Cross state roads to link up the 850 miles already built are also important stretches in the program.

$600,000,000 FOR ROADS IN U. S. IN 5 YEARS

Build or Project 35,000 Miles.

BY W. G. EDENS.
[President Illinois Highway Improvement association.]

A completed and projected "good road" mileage of an imposing national total is the reward today of the years of hard pioneer work done by the many individuals and organizations responsible for the crystallization of public sentiment for building roads now.

W. G. EDENS.
[Victor Georg Photo]

Through the courtesy of the federal bureau of public roads, I am able this year to present the road authorization and accomplishment and the means used by the several states in financing their part of the undertakings.

The showing for Illinois is particularly gratifying to those who, through the Illinois Highway Improvement association and the vigorous support of the State Bankers' association and other powerful agencies, first obtained a modernization of the state highway statutes.

Development Was "Generous."

The same sort of pioneer work and follow-up support in all states and in the national congress is responsible for the generous development of road building throughout the land. As a banker I feel a pardonable pride in the powerful support and intelligent leadership given this movement by the Illinois organization and the American Bankers' association.

For the period from 1916 to 1921 the state highway bonds authorized by twenty-one states total $551,800,000. Minnesota tops the list with a bond authorization of $75,000,000; Illinois and Missouri follow with $60,000,-

The annual exhibition is held under the auspices of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

Chile Motor Bus Line Drives Out Street Cars

A motor bus line is superseding the horsedrawn street cars in Iquique, Chile. The buses are American chassis, equipped with locally made bodies. They seat fourteen persons and are arranged with a front entrance, on the pay-as-you-enter plan, so that no collector is needed. The fare is 20 centavos (about 2 cents at present exchange), while the fare on the street car is 40 centavos.

CRITICAL "FIRST NIGHTERS" FIND BRILLIANT ENSEMBLE

BY J. L. JENKINS.

Chicago became the capital of all motordom yesterday.

When the doors of the Coliseum, Annex, and First Regiment armory swung open to the thousands of critical "first nighters," who flooded the great buildings, fashion, fads, and fundamentals of the 1922 motor world were spread before the middle west in the greatest industrial exposition makers of motor cars have staged during the twenty-two years of their development.

All afternoon and well into the night the crowds thronged exposition buildings, jamming the aisles, pouring over the host of mechanical innovations that mark every exhibit, feeling out the alluring new driving arrangements of trail greyhounds, and generally drinking in the brilliant ensemble that spells the last word in modern automobile construction.

More Than Fashion Show.

This year the annual automobile show—always an affair of national interest—is more than a criterion to motor fashions. The new styles are there for those who ride to read, and intriguing fashions they are, but the significance of this exposition goes deeper than the surface showing of graceful line, exquisite finish, and studied refinement. It pictures a giant industry—second in size in America—standing on a firm footing again after the stress of war and the greater stress of readjustment, and leading big business back into the open road of clean commerce.

Mechanical achievements are far and away the leading interests in this season's showing. Veterans who attended the opening yesterday found scores of absolutely new models awaiting them, each disclosing motors of advanced design and principle, and each contributing to the 1921 ideal—economy in operation.

They found the new cars generally lighter and a trifle racier in line than those of the war period. Few, if any, of the models fail to show new principles in carburetion designed to counteract the age old waste of fuel and to stop fatal dilution of oil.

Fortunes have been spent in the last twelve months to bring out the new models. Each means months of expert labor in the experimental stage, long tests on block and road, the purchase of new machinery, jigs and dies, and the reorganization of costly working departments.

Economy the Keynote.

Economy, too, is apparent in the range of prices that ride with each new model. Scores of reduced price announcements have been made as a preliminary to the automobile New Year which dates from the annual expositions, and both manufacturers and practical buyers agree that cars are now resting on bed rock. Only one of the big manufacturing concerns has withheld its final price drop until after the show sets the production pace, and that firm has guaranteed its promised reductions to date from Jan. 1.

The motor public, or that portion of it which succeeded in jamming itself through the exposition doors yesterday, demonstrated its confidence in this drop to permanent values by a record breaking distribution of new car orders. According to sales forces of representative cars, more purchasers signed the dotted line for early spring delivery yesterday than did at any opening day on record with the exception of the 1920 period of extravagance. Kings of the motor world were in high spirits last night after viewing top notch attendance figures and footing up the day's extraordinary sales receipts.

Striking Setting for Exhibits.

Coliseum decorations this year add materially to the delight of thirty-third degree motorists who attended the annual show for entertainment as well as enlightenment in the new transportation art. The bare walls and roof are hidden under curtains and trappings of carmine, green, white, gold, and

Tremendous Mileage
That is Free From Care

"Have run over 60,000 miles and the motor has given no trouble whatever," writes W. J. Krebs. "No motor expense in four years' driving," states M. E. Twiss. Such is the typical Willys-Knight owner's experience.

Motoring that frees your mind from thoughts of mechanism! Unlimited satisfaction! Assurance of covering thousands of miles without a care for adjustments!

The Willys-Knight Sleeve-Valve Motor has no valves to grind—no cams, springs or tappets to get out of order. It runs smoothly, powerfully, uninterruptedly.

What other car can give you care-free motoring at so low a cost?

lavender, with touches of bronze. Artist Tietzel took the best he could find from the Moorish and Flemish renaissance periods in evolving his scheme, and worked out a perfect blend of color and figure.

The most striking note is seen along the balcony fronts, where there are nineteen panels of tapestry effect depicting the evolution and progress of "King Automobile." At the two ends of the building are mural art glass paintings, each measuring 110 feet by a feet. One shows labor and science offering their achievements to Chicago, and the other represents industry and agriculture. In the Coliseum the floor space is marked off into booths for the various makes of cars by huge pillars, bearing on the top clusters of lights. The Coliseum Annex and First Regiment armory are decorated along the same lines as the Coliseum.

New Cars Make Debut.

Veterans found another absorbing interest this year in the four debutantes—the Rickenbacker, Earl, Wills Sainte Claire, and Durant cars. Complete lines of each are exhibited for the first time in the armory and annex.

Price reductions do not constitute the principal effort of the manufacturers of exclusive motor cars and builders of custom coach work who are exhibiting at the sixth annual Chicago Automobile Salon, which opened yesterday afternoon at the Drake. Developments and refinements in chassis construction and new styles and improvements in custom coach work will be found to offer the stronger appeal to those who take pride in owning high priced motor equipage.

It is the purpose of the Automobile Salon to present an ensemble of the best in motor equipage. As the horse show has long served the thoroughbred, so does the salon foster the cause of the fine car and custom body. It maintains a high standard by setting a minimum sales price as the requisite to participation. The fact that special designs, workmanship in chassis, and individuality and new fashions in bodies are now largely confined to the salon type of automobile tends to increase interest in these annual exhibitions.

The show buildings will be closed today, but will reopen at 10 a. m. tomorrow for the entire week's run.

FORD'S $8,000,000 BID FOR LINCOLN MAY BE ONLY ONE

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—From present appearances Henry Ford will have no competition in the purchase of Lincoln Motors company when it goes on the auction block Feb. 4. Possible bidders whose names have been frequently mentioned have all announced that any such rumor was without foundation, so it is more than probable that Ford's bid of $8,000,000 will be the only one.

Mr. Ford, however, would not be disappointed if competition did develop, but to obtain the properties of the Lincoln Motors any interests other than Ford would have to pay a high price, sufficient to insure a good balance for the stockholders.

When it became known last Wednesday that Ford had offered to save the Lincoln company from financial wreck, he announced that, in case his bid is accepted, he will have the two extremes in the motor world, and would build up the Lincoln to the same strength in its class as the Ford holds in the low priced class, regardless of expense, effort, or time it required. He also said that he would make the Lincoln car the most durable and finest car built, and sell it at the lowest price that his well known methods can bring about. This, he said, would give him the highest and lowest priced cars on the market.

The present prices of the Lincoln cars range from $4,300 to $6,350.

1922 Big Year for Those Who Study Trade, Belief

Firm belief in the future of the automotive industry is a settled conviction on the part of the executives of the General Motors corporation. They base their belief on the universal demand for fast and economical transportation, and believe that success will attend those manufacturers who make an intelligent study of conditions and apply the results of their investigations to bettering design, manufacture, and—most important—distribution. Only a large and closely coördinated organization can successfully arrange for widespread distribution of product and proper maintenance service.

'IRV' COBB RISES TO SAY LIZZIES AVERT WARFARE

Touring a Cure for Rival Lands, Sezzee.

BY IRVIN COBB.

The minds of all mankind today are concerned with the ambition and the hope of working out some feasible scheme of doing away with warfare among the races of the world, and with all modesty I want to offer a formula which at least is a beginning toward that end and I offer it in seriousness.

Give to every people of every land better roads and more automobiles and we will do away with much of the ill will that exists between human beings on this planet today.

Did Not Know Each Other.

Back in '61 had there been broad, smooth highways that ran from the gulf to the lakes, and if the man who lived in South Carolina could step in his lizzie and turn on the gas and cruise away to Vermont and find out that the people there were of his own blood and had much the same aspirations and the same desire for decent and peaceful and orderly government, this country would never have been rent by a great civil war.

And I will go further than that. From my own knowledge at the front and behind the lines of how the civilian populace—yes, and the soldiers of warring Europe—felt, I am constrained to believe, that had it been possible prior to 1914 for all the people of continental Europe to have had at their command the same quality and abundance of cheap priced cars which the run of human beings in this country can have, and had there been no artificial barriers at the national boundaries to keep neighbor from seeing neighbor, I am prone to think that not even Prussian militarism could have driven all the eastern part of the world into a dreadful struggle.

Get to Know a Man.

Because when you get to know a man and you do know him better when you are riding in a car along the high road than you ever can from a railroad train—when you get to know him, you find out that he is like the general run of human beings in one land and much like the general run of human beings in another.

And I mean it when I say I believe that the spread of the use of automobiles is going to do as much to teach one nation that another nation is made up of decent chaps and to cure them of their old rivalries and feuds and bitternesses as any other agency on God's green footstool can ever hope to do.

Increase in Automobiles Shows Growth of Travel

The increase in automobiles is an index of growing demand for transportation rather than a sign of withdrawal of business from rail lines, according to Philip H. Warren of Stone & Webster, speaking before a convention of investment bankers in New Orleans. Riding in street railway cars is much heavier per capita today than it was five years ago and very much heavier than fifteen years ago, indicating that demand for all kinds of travel facilities is increasing.

WATCH THE WIND SHIELD.

On many makes of cars the wind shield is held in place by steel arms which protrude through the cowl and are fastened on the under side by a nut and lock nut. Sometimes these nuts work loose from the vibration present, with the result that the shield is allowed to move slightly continues to make use of the carriage and pair belonging to the department and still maintained for the use of the secretary, the sole survivor of the old régime when a carriage and pair, with coachman and footman, was provided for the use of every member of the cabinet. Even Secretary Wallace has an automobile of his own.

In all the other departments automobiles have succeeded the carriage and horses, and a chauffeur has replaced the coachman. The change occurred in the state department under the last administration, Secretary and Mrs. Lansing being the last to use the carriage and horses driven by old John Barry.

MRS. FREDERICK DENT GRANT.

Mrs. Frederick Dent Grant, with whom Prince and Princess Cantacuzene, her son-in-law and daughter, are making their home this winter, has never adopted the automobile, still using her carriage with its single horse and colored coachman.

Mrs. Frederick Atherton, who loves her horses too much to give them up, is another Washington hostess, and the only one of the younger set, who continues to prefer carriages to motors, while the James Parmalees at the Causeway, their beautiful estate near Twin Oaks, have never been persuaded to adopt the automobile, their only concession being the purchase of a motor truck to transport their household supplies.

ECONOMY FINAL ISSUE OF AUTO MAKERS' POLICY

Motor cars are entering the third and last period of their development, according to George M. Dickson, president of the National Motor Car and Vehicle corporation, a veteran of the industry.

"The original problem of the motor car designer was to build a satisfactory engine and chassis, one that would do everything required of it and stay put," he asserts. "Up until a few years ago engineers were still occupied, in the main, with this phase of motor car progress, designing various types of engines and other major chassis units in an endeavor to hit upon a final design.

"This problem having been met, the attention of engineers next turned to motor car bodies. Within the last three years this problem has been disposed of also. Automobile bodies of today are pretty well standardized, and little improvement in the way of novelty of design or radical change in style may be expected in the future.

The Final Problem.

"Today the third stage is being entered. The chief issue during the next few years will be the problem of maintaining present standards of performance and comfort with greater economy of operation and upkeep. The car of the future is one that will deliver anything that it does now, for half the cost of operation and repairs, and in addition run twice as long.

"Not only is the present economic condition forcing the issue—the fact that people have turned away from their former reckless extravagance, to observe a decent regard for values once more—but a great and growing concern is felt among those who are informed as to the world's fuel supply.

"There are, roughly, 8,000,000 cars now in use. Imagine the colossal saving of fuel that would result could the mileage of all these cars be doubled, assuming that every car is used 10,000 miles a year! Or, to put it in terms of dollars, suppose only $50 per car could be saved in fuel expense.

Huge Savings Involved.

This would mean $400,000,000 every twelve months, enough to make a considerable dent in the entire world's war debt.

"In the past we have viewed the world's fuel supply as the pioneer once regarded the buffalo. The supply was considered inexhaustible. Yet the buffalo is no longer with us, and the same may be the case as regards motor fuel, unless principles of economy soon begin to be observed.

"The time is coming in the near future, I believe, when wasteful gasoline motors will be prohibited, either through special legislation or through taxation that will make such wasteful autos prohibitively expensive. In Europe, where both the pinch of economic conditions and gasoline shortage is much more severe than here, legislative measures looking to fuel conservation have already been in effect for some time.

GOTHAM TRUCK SERVICE OF ERIE ROAD SUCCESS

The Erie railroad plan of transporting freight between New Jersey and New York by motor truck will spread into general use at the large terminals of the country, A. J. Brosseau, secretary and director of the national automobile chamber of commerce, said, speaking at the shippers' conference of Greater New York.

Eight railroads leading into Cincinnati have been using a joint motor truck system for the local transshipment of goods, cutting the cost of handling nearly one-half, he said. Los Angeles, Buffalo, St. Paul, Rochester and other cities have also made a start in the use of motor truck terminals.

The serviceability and economy of the motor truck in short haul work of forty to fifty mile radius is recognized by many leading railroad authorities. The truck can relieve the rail lines of the expensive handling of less than carload lots.

NASH

Once again the great Nash organization demonstrates its ability to produce the leading cars in its field and turn back profits to the car buyer, in a finer product for less money.

Here in this new model 691 Nash Six is the greatest car C. W. Nash ever produced in all his years of fine motor car manufacturing—finer in beauty, comfort, power, economy, and endurance than any former Nash.

Nash prices are at the lowest level. These prices are based not only on today's lower material market. They also anticipate all possible lower production costs for many months to come.

Nash values now are at the highest level ever attained by the great Nash organization.

No less remarkable is the recent reduction of the great, new Nash Four to $1045—a car whose value was striking even at its introductory figure of $1395.

Today it assumes its unchallenged place as value leader among light cars—the quality car at a popular car price.

In the difficult, highly competitive, ability-testing four and a half years just past, Nash has risen from 24th to 8th place in the industry in volume of business—so widespread and sustained has been the public's demand for Nash values.

At the Show see these new Nash models—a complete line and wide range of selection of cars. There are twelve new and distinct body styles.

LELAND-BUILT

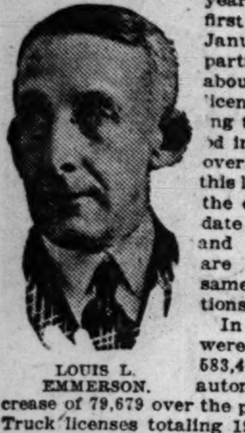
ILLINOIS ADDS 100,000 MOTORS TO ITS "STABLE"

679,448 Pay $6,800,000 for 1921 Licenses.

BY LOUIS L. EMMERSON.

[Secretary of State of Illinois.]

The automobile department made a remarkable record last year. It issued nearly 100,000 more automobile licenses and collected almost $1,000,000 more in fees than during the previous year.



LOUIS L. EMMERSON.

Indications are that even a more remarkable record will be made this year. During the first ten days of January the department issued about 20,000 more licenses than during the same period in 1921. Moreover, in spite of this large increase, the office is up to date in its work and licenses now are issued the same day applications are received.

In 1921 licenses were issued for 583,441 passenger automobiles, an increase of 79,679 over the previous year. Truck licenses totaling 19,907 were issued in 1921, an increase of 14,910; 7,041 dealers' licenses were issued, an increase of 759. Tractor licenses decreased from 310 to 124 last year, and as usual there was a marked decrease in motorcycle licenses, 10,597 having been issued in 1920 and 8 935 last year. A total of 69,226 chauffeurs' licenses were issued during 1921.

Issues Total of 679,448.

A total of 679,448 licenses were issued in 1921 for all classes of automobiles and motorcycles.

Receipts from licenses for 1921 totaled $6,803,307, an increase of $887,602.

The new law permitting the secretary of state to appoint automobile investigators with police powers was given a six months' trial last year. The law went into effect July 1, and a few investigators were appointed and sent out to counties where there was the most laxness in the observance of automobile laws.

Results have been fully up to expectations. Thousands of dollars in fees have been brought into the fund for good roads by this means.

Chauffeurs Greatest Offenders.

The most common violations of law discovered by the inspectors, in addition to failure to secure licenses, were evasions of provisions regarding chauffeurs' licenses and the use of passenger licenses on small trucks. In some places visited by inspectors, applications for chauffeurs' licenses immediately increased 100 per cent.

Incidentally, these inspectors have been of some assistance in ferreting out automobile thieves and in stiffening the enforcement of the laws of the road.

The small cost of the maintenance of the inspectors during the first six months in service was paid many times over by the amount of money their activity brought into the treasury which otherwise would have been lost.

Another act of the last general assembly, tried out during the last six months of 1921, was the law providing that sheriffs and police officers must report the numbers and descriptions of stolen automobiles to the secretary of state, who must compile them and mail them out to all sheriffs and police officers in the state.

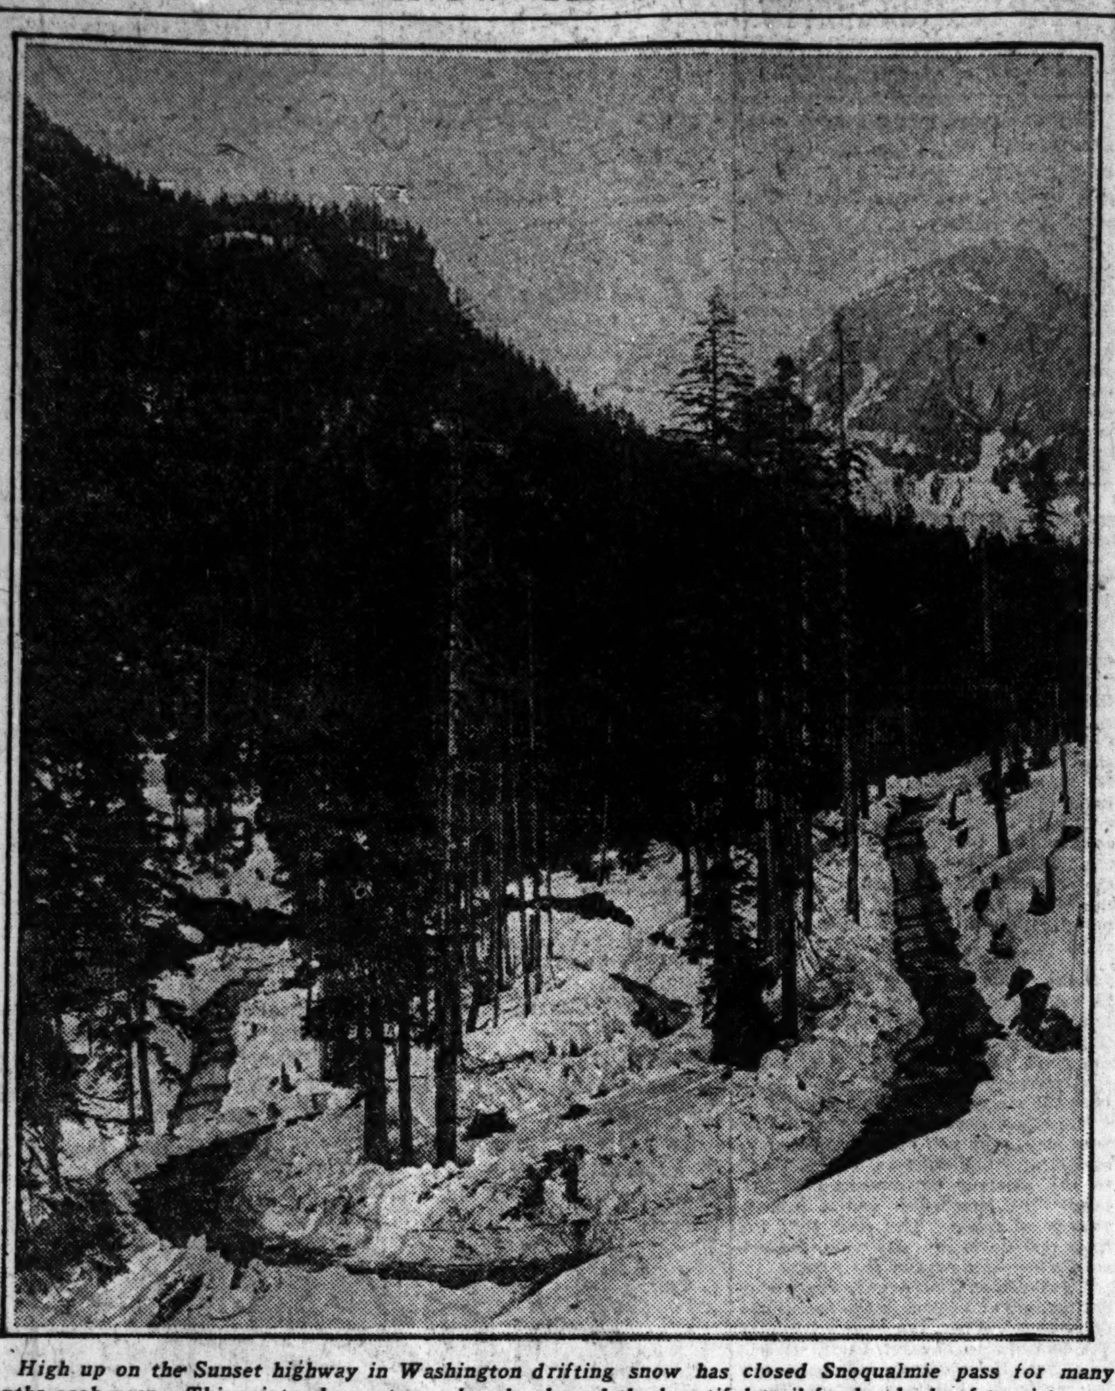
These reports are circulated in weekly bulletins by the secretary of state and they have resulted in the recovery of many stolen cars and, in some cases, in the apprehension of the thieves.

The new licenses this year are meeting with favor everywhere. They are slightly smaller and the hyphen separating the last three numerals from the preceding numerals makes them much easier to read.

PLUS THE WAR TAX.

The annual cost of operating motor vehicles in the United States is estimated at $6,957,600,000, of which $784,000,000, or 11.3 per cent is spent for gasoline.

THE SNOW THAT FAILED



High up on the Sunset highway in Washington drifting snow has closed Snoqualmie pass for many months each year. This winter huge steam shovels cleared the beautiful trail for hundreds of tourists.

CANADIANS MAKE 97,868 MOTORS, A.I.C. REPORT SAYS

According to the annual report of Automotive Industries of Canada, the N. A. C. C. of the dominion, a total of 97,868 motor vehicles were manufactured in 1920 by the ten manufacturers who are members of the Canadian organization. These companies have a capital investment of $43,000,000 and their total production values for the year were $93,880,964.

Canada has a total of 5,522 automobile dealers, with 43,094 employés to whom $56,022,200 was paid in wages during the year. The total capital invested by dealers was placed at $44,176,000. The total number of automobiles in actual operation in Canada has been placed at 430,000, this total being compiled in October, 1921.

Thomas H. Lavier Jr. has been elected president of the Ray Battery company of Ypsilanti, Mich. Mr. Lavier is the inventor of the Lavier formula plates. The peculiar nature of these battery plates has enabled the company to unconditionally guarantee each battery manufactured by them for a two year period.

FIND MOTOR-BUS SUCCESSFUL FOR COUNTRY TRAVEL

London Center of Many Routes.

The development of the motor bus for city or rural transportation is one of the major developments of the motor car industry today.

In large cities, where street area has not been greatly increased in the past ten years, yet where eight or ten cities have been stacked one on top of the other by our skyscraper construction, it is necessary that streets be used as economically as possible, both for passenger and freight movement.

It is a waste of streets to have to appropriate safety areas in the middle of congested thoroughfares in order to provide safety for pedestrians boarding and alighting from street cars.

The motor bus, by virtue of its character, stops to take on and drop off passengers at the curb, thereby leaving the center of the street free for the unrestricted flow of high speed traffic.

Can Alter Route.

Another aspect of the bus is that its route can be altered as temporary conditions require. On any day or for a brief period of any day a bus line can be shifted from one street to another.

In certain European cities, such as London, trolley and other fixed systems of transportation are not used in some of the more congested centers. The flexibility of the motor bus is one of the at least partial solutions of the question.

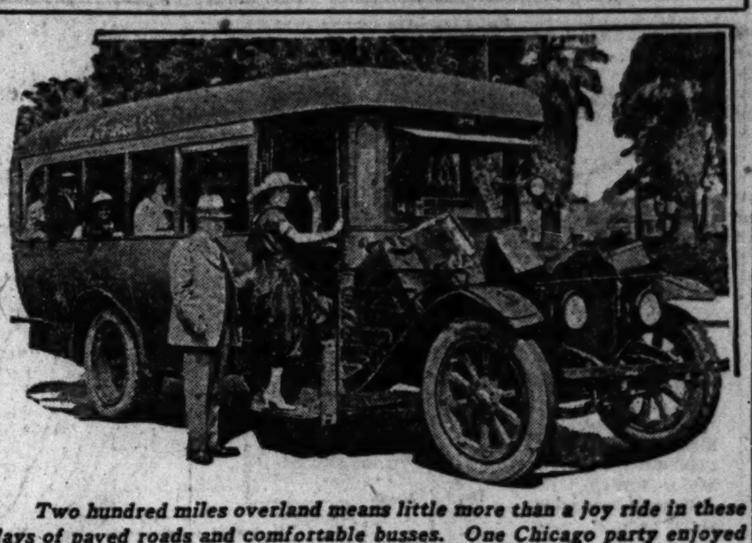
A new department of the motor industry is springing up in the manufacture of busses for city and rural use.

Great Britain has since the war witnessed an expansion of motor bus service that is now spreading over the country. It is now possible for a party in England to book passage by motor bus for distances of well over 100 miles. Seats can be reserved in advance, much as is done in Pullman railroad travel. There are now so many bus routes operating out of London that one may reach scores of other cities any day.

Special Types Used.

Special types of buses for rural use have been developed, to give necessary passenger comfort and speed. California has been a leader in rural bus operation. Los Angeles has a union depot for scores of buses that run on railroad schedules to such cities as San Diego, Bakersfield, Riverside, Santa Barbara, and San Francisco. Several of these bus lines give an average speed of forty miles per hour.

ABOARD THE LIMITED



Two hundred miles overland means little more than a joy ride in these days of paved roads and comfortable busses. One Chicago party enjoyed the trip from the loop to New Orleans last fall.

"Gas" Consumption Increases Greatly While Prices Are on the Decline

Consumption of gasoline in the United States during the first half of 1921 was larger by 259,313,358 gallons, or a daily average of 710,447 gallons, than that of the corresponding period of 1920. Total consumption was 2,300,115,990 gallons, compared with 2,142,705,363 gallons in the first six months of that year. Production was larger than the previous year by approximately 18 per cent, but in spite of the enormous demand prices of gasoline have declined in all sections of the country. The decline, however, is attributed solely to the lower cost of crude oil.

Reductions in gasoline prices on the average amount to 31 per cent, taking the leading cities of the United States as a whole. The average price at the close of August was 20.2 cents, compared with 29.3 cents a gallon on Jan. 1, 1921. The drop in all amounts to 9.1 per cent. The largest declines since the beginning of 1921 have been at Dallas, Tex., and Denver, Colo., where they amounted to 13 cents a gallon in each city. The lowest wholesale price is 15 cents a gallon, at Kansas City, Mo., while the highest is 25.5 cents, in Boston.

The following table gives the wholesale prices as of Sept. 1, compared with those on Jan. 1 of previous years:

*Includes 1 cent state tax on a gallon.

An analysis of the statistics issued by the United States bureau of mines shows that the production of gasoline for the first half of 1921 was 2,573,543,547 gallons, or 18 per cent larger than the production in the same period of 1920. The imports of gasoline, virtually all from Mexico, for the six months were 14,835,056 gallons, or 32 per cent less than those of the first six months of that year. Exports amounted to 286,564,512 gallons, which were substantially less than the shipments in the corresponding period of the previous 12 months, while shipments to our insular possessions increased 45 per cent.

Total stocks of gasoline in storage on June 30, 1921, amounted to 750,644,450 gallons, or 49 per cent larger than the total on June 30, 1920, and 62 per cent larger than on January 1, 1921. Gasoline consumption is on the decline, however, June production having amounted to 14,344,813 gallons daily, a reduction of 125,118 gallons a day, compared with May, but an increase of 1,004,522 gallons over the daily rate for 1920.

THEY WANT MORE MUD OUT WEST IT'S WORTH DOUGH

Loaned to Oil Wells fo Drilling.

The mud found in the Everglade is dangerous. The variety which som of our politicians "sling" is scanda lous. The mud some motorists accumu late is—well, they'll tell the world.

But the lowly, slate colored mud o the Montebello oil fields in souther California is so precious that it can' be bought. In fact, it is never sold bu loaned when occasion demands, wit the understanding that it will be speed ily returned to its owner.

In the process of drilling an oil well mud is needed from the beginning First it is used as a primer in startin the rotary drill. Then, as the dril penetrates, it becomes necessary t drive some substance into the hole t prevent the walls from collapsing. S the mud is forced into the hole betwee the drill and the walls by steam pres sure.

Must Be in Circulation.

In order to prevent the mud from settling around the drill and cloggin the operation, it is further necessar to keep the mud in constant circula tion. To do this the mud is drawn from the well and sluiced into a bo where the heavier settles to the bottom and the lighter is forced back into the hole.

If the right kind of mud were plentiful, perhaps not much thought would be given to the important part thi mud plays in rotary drilling for oil But its scarcity in the Californian oi fields demands that the utmost car be given it, and that the same mud b used again and again

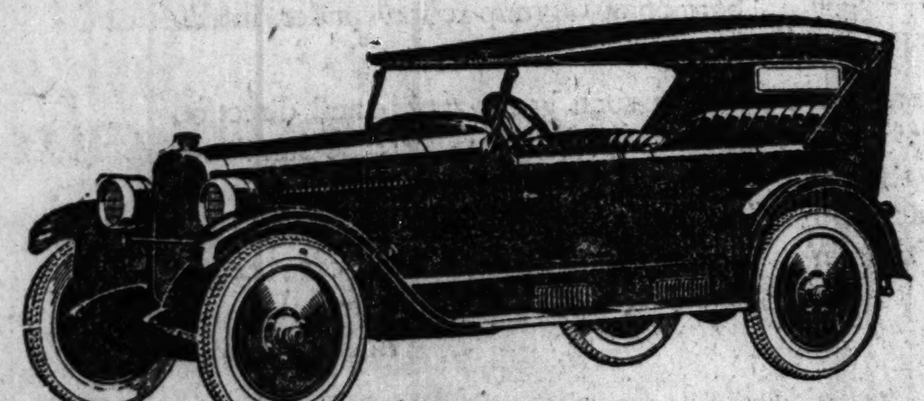
Recently three trucks owned by Le B. Hawkins of Moneta, Cal., were used to transport a supply of this mud from the famous Montebello oil fields among the lemon groves to the scene of new operations near Redondo, a haul o about thirty-five miles.

Retrieve Every Chunk.

The curious would have marvele at the careful maner in which driver handled their seemingly valueless load for when any of the mud fell to the roadside the trucks were immediately stopped until the drivers recovered every soggy lump.

Only the heavy sediment can b taken from one well to another in thi way. The mud is then diluted to meet the requirements, and the drillin process repeated.

The transportation by motor truck of this lowly but valuable mud ha proved profitable for Mr. Hawkins, and has opened up another field of service for motor trucks in the oil industry.



New Series Chalmers Six $1295

An entire year of six-cylinder engineering by the new Chalmers organization forms the foundation of the wonderful results yielded by this New Series Chalmers Six.

It represents, we believe, a greater advance than ever before registered in those splendid qualities which distinguish the six as a type.

At its price of $1295, its value is pronounced and unmistakable.

TO BUILD 120 MILES OF ROADS IN COOK COUNTY

Maj. Quinlan Describes 1921's Progress.

BY MAJ. GEORGE A. QUINLAN.
[County Superintendent of Highways.]

MAJ. GEORGE A. QUINLAN.
[Moffett Photo.]

The motorist of Chicago and Cook county, in contemplating the new designs as shown in the 1922 Automobile show, has cause to rejoice in the fact that through the careful planning and consistent endeavor of the engineers of the state highway department there are paved roads over which he may drive these latest designs from Chicago to Clinton, Ia., to Danville; Marshall, or St. Louis; from St. Louis to Springfield, Peoria, and La Salle; or from Chicago to Milwaukee.

He may further congratulate himself upon the amount of work already contracted for by Illinois. However, within the county, in addition to the work of the state, the board of county commissioners has, by its sincere efforts in the past, consecutively built its quota of roads until now there are paved highways leading in almost every direction from Chicago, and there are now under contract over twenty-five miles of construction for next year.

Hope for Greater Speed.

It is their sincere hope, also, that the material prices and freight rates may be further reduced, and so permit them to proceed more rapidly with road construction this year than they have been able to proceed in the past.

The program as outlined by the board of commissioners for 1922 consists in the construction of 120 miles of highways and some fifteen bridges. There is further contemplated the widening of certain roads and the securing of better drainage facilities by tiling and filling in ditches.

On four railroad crossings viaducts and underpasses are under contemplation. The construction of a bridge and the paving of Torrence avenue from the city limits south to 147th street, it is hoped, will soon provide that additional opening so long desired and needed by the southern section of the county.

Describes Other Work.

New entrances to the city on the west are contemplated in the paving of Grand and Touhy avenues, and on the north the paving of Carpenter road. The completion of the Northwest highway in linking up the villages of Barrington, Arlington Heights, Des Plaines, and Park Ridge to Chicago will serve to connect those cities in the northwest portion of the county not already connected by paved roads.

It is the mutual hope, I am sure, of both the board of commissioners and the motorists of Chicago and Cook county that this construction work might proceed as rapidly as possible, and that as little inconvenience be caused by detours as is consistent with efficient construction.

BUILDERS MUST STUDY TASTES OF 1922 OWNERS

Drivers Know What They Want—Kissel.

BY GEORGE A. KISSEL.
[President Kissel Motor Car Co.]

The 1922 automobile show will prove of unusual interest to owners because we manufacturers have been studying not particularly what the public will buy, but what the public wants. The experienced owner is the high court this year—he has owned and driven cars, experienced what they will and will not do, what they lack, and what he would like to see them possess.

This thought has been the big ideal manufacturers have had before them. It is their ideal because if attained they will have measured up to the responsibility the industry assumed when it made the automobile a necessity.

This idea of building a car as the experienced owner would design it is the idea that a manufacturer should be guided by rather than by deciding what he can manufacture at a profit. It is also logical.

Value of Experience.

You cannot expect a man who spends from eight to fourteen hours a day in other business to be as proficient in the running or upkeep of a car as a man who spends his lifetime studying it. It always has been my aim to so design an automobile that it eliminates the necessity for supervision on the part of the owner and that it becomes a servant to him in the best sense of the word, responding faithfully to every demand he may put upon it with the least possible trouble and the greatest comfort and security.

Here is how we diagnosed our idea.

Every experienced owner believes he should find at the 1922 automobile shows at least one car possessing those items in chassis, motor, and body design necessary to provide beauty of looks, genuine comforts, and flawless performance.

This decision is based on the desires his experiences have created for something more in an automobile than that which has been for years the accepted standard.

For instance, he wants a car of distinctive body design, with the exclusive appearance which advance fashions create. He expects a car that has that comfortable feeling of hugging the road with no side sways, regardless of speeds.

Wants No Squeaks.

He desires the satisfaction of not having to listen to many small, noisy chassis rattles or squeaks, and that the construction is such that they will not develop. He demands that no motor trouble develop when necessity subjects the car to extraordinary work or high speeds. Likewise, he wants a motor in which vibration is reduced to the very minimum.

He wants a motor impossible to overheat in the hottest weather or under severe conditions, and still capable of holding the right temperature in cold weather. In addition, he wants the utmost in braking efficiency as well as brakes that are easy to operate and which do not "freeze" or stick.

He wants a car in which he can eliminate, easily and quickly, the pronounced chassis rattles.

The ensemble is a big order for the manufacturer. But unless the manufacturer meets all of the demands that the 1922 enlightened public is making, I believe he has failed in his calling.

FROM ILLINOIS TO BOSTON WITHOUT SHIFTING GEARS

To determine whether it was possible to drive an automobile 1,200 miles over bad roads and through congested city traffic without shifting gears, James E. Brough, general manager of R. & V. Motors of New England, tried the experiment recently.

He drove one of a half dozen of the new R. & V. Knight model "R" cars from the factory at East Moline, Ill., to Boston, Mass.

"Even on hills I did not have to shift gears," said Mr. Brough. "In some places the roads were very bad. One stretch in particular, some forty-four miles in length, threatened to spoil everything. But the car came through splendidly."

TRY AND SAY IT.

An automobile in Belgium is known as a "suelpanrdelooss o n d traspoorvegpetrolcumrytuig." literally translated it means ". Fast-horseless-without-rails-petrol vehicle."

TOURISTS FIND IDEAL CAMPS IN FOREST PRESERVE

Forester Kennicott Tells of Advantages.

BY RANSOM KENNICOTT.
[Chief Forester, Preserve District.]

The motorists of Chicago are blessed beyond most. Chicago is surrounded by a network of hard roads leading in every direction and they have an objective. Motor trips may be planned, long or short, and have as their objective some beautiful spot in the preserve.

It is a fortunate thing that the county commissioners are also forest preserve commissioners, and this enables them to build their roads in conjunction with the development of the forest preserve district. The various preserves are all connected up by state aid roads. South, west, and north these forests surround the city and furnish a stopping place, playground, picnic grove, or a camping spot.

We are not selfish with our preserves; the people of other counties and other states use them freely. All roads leading to Chicago have tourist camps where visitors may stop for a night without permit and find there fuel and water. To many people visiting Chicago this makes an excellent refuge. If the tourist desires to stay longer than a day or two, a permit may be obtained free of charge at the county building for any length of time.

Now Has 23,000 Acres.

The preserve controls at present about 23,000 acres, and while some of it is accessible by street cars and trains, it is all available for the motorist. In the past no camps have been set aside as tourists' camps. These camps will be provided with pamphlets showing the visitors how they may visit all the preserves around Chicago, getting the benefit of the beauty and variety of the different tracts.

It is hoped that Lake county will decide to preserve some of the wonderful woods, hills, and waters that make up so large a part of her acres. Cook county has purchased their part of the Skokie valley; if Lake county would preserve what lies in her borders the entire Skokie valley might be developed into one of the big playgrounds.

The little stream flowing through it might be changed to broad lagoons; the islands of trees be reforested; the water held at the proper level by a few dams, and the beautiful reeds and water grasses, which are fast disappearing because of drainage, be restored to their original beauty. This beautiful six miles of swamp, lying north of Chicago and directly west of the north shore towns, would be a grand thing for the city of Chicago, and of infinite value to the towns on its borders.

If part of the waters in our sister county were held as bird sanctuaries, the water fowl would breed there and the other lakes would still be open for the sportsman and would be much better supplied with game than at present.

Urges Lake County Aid.

Lake county's forest preserve can be self-supporting; the income from boats, concessions, camping privileges, if you so choose, would bring in a tremendous income, besides the money that campers and tourists would leave with the merchants of the county.

If Lake county sees fit to take this wise step, they will rob our forest preserves of many visitors, but will add to the glorious opportunities of our people for long rides and a greater variety of roads. The road that the tires rest on is not all; what the eye sees is the best part of the road.

The roads of Cook county run beside still waters and through the cool shade of forests. When the final scheme of the commission is carried out, we will have not only the state aid roads now leading in all directions, but also there will be beautiful pleasure drives following the general course of the rivers through the preserve itself

ENLIST BOY SCOUTS TO STOP DESTRUCTION OF SIGNS ALONG ROADS

One of the perversities of human nature with which motor tourists quickly become acquainted is the tendency to knock down or disfigure signs along the roadway.

More than $30,000 was spent for markers on the Lincoln highway from the Atlantic coast westward to Omaha last year, and recent investigation has disclosed the fact that many of these markers have been destroyed. As a means of protecting the markers a request has been made to the executive council of the Boy Scouts in America to enlist the coöperation of their scouts in preserving the road markers.

Humanizing the Motor Car

A really fine motor car attracts an eager and an appreciative market in America as surely as a magnet attracts steel.

Of all the conveniences and commodities of modern civilization, it is still the one most desired.

But it must be truly fine, in the strict and literal meaning of the word—and that fineness is the fruit of a combination of elements rarely attained.

Engineering genius is not enough, nor metallurgical skill, nor mastery of design, nor scrupulous choice of materials, nor fine manufacturing equipment, nor unlimited financial strength.

After all these have been supplied, the history of the past twenty-five years has proven time and again that something else must be superadded which spells the difference between the ordinary and the exceptional.

That something else is almost like a transmutation of the lifeless metals which enter into the construction of the car. It endows the completed product with an entity as much its own as the personality of a human being.

Neither technical skill, nor scientific accuracy, nor soundness of theory, nor all of them combined, necessarily confers this peculiar identity upon a motor car.

Motor cars are built for human beings, who re-act to them continuously, in brain and body, with every pulse of the motor and every turn of the wheel.

It is important therefore, that engineer, and designer, and metallurgist, and manufacturer, alike, shall warm the cold process of theory and practice, with constant remembrance of flesh and blood.

When such a car is achieved, it is not merely mobile in the highest sense of that word, but instantly obedient to every demand of human ease and enjoyment.

It is only achieved when the individual craftsman submerges the ego of his genius and unites with his fellows in harmonious group-action under intelligent direction.

When such group-action and direction are assured, and when the hard mechanical processes are mellowed, and softened, and humanized—then, and only then, does a motor car become the perfect personal servant.

5,800 MILES OF CONCRETE ROADS BUILT IN 1921

Illinois Leads in Placing Contracts.

BY C. R. EGE.

The year 1921 may go down in history as having been made to order for the highway engineers.

The preceding winter was short and mild in most sections of the country. Spring "opened" early. Approximately 30,000,000 square yards of concrete pavement were under contract, carried over from 1920.

Contractors who had uncompleted jobs were able to take advantage of the first hint of mild weather. Many state and county officials advertised all of their 1921 work during the winter and early months of the year. More work, in large volume, was offered throughout 1921, but it was the "early awards" and the holdover work that became "roads completed in 1921."

The conditions surrounding labor and material supply were vastly improved over previous years. Labor was extensively out of a job and looking for work. Once on the pay roll, labor wanted to keep its job—which made for efficiency.

Labor Cheaper.

Many contractors stated that the workmen were delivering two to three times the output of previous years for one-third to one-half less wage. The materials of construction were readily available everywhere.

The railroads were in a position to take all the traffic offered. Construction equipment was in great demand, but the improved conditions permitted the manufacturers to ship their orders with dispatch. Few jobs were delayed pending the arrival of equipment.

Good construction weather prevailed throughout the greater part of the year.

The results of these favorable conditions begin to be apparent as the various state organizations tell the world what they have done during 1921.

62,000,000 Yards Laid.

Over 62,000,000 square yards of concrete pavement were completed, including street and alley work of this type. About 30,000,000 square yards of this amount were carried over from uncompleted contracts of 1920.

About 54,000,000 square yards of new contracts were awarded during 1921. On Dec. 1 there were approximately 22,000,000 square yards in contracts uncompleted, and which will have to be carried over to 1922. This unfinished work is smaller in amount than was the case at the close of either of the years 1919 and 1920.

The yardage completed is nearly 74 per cent greater than the record of 1920, the best previous year. It is a remarkable accomplishment of America's roadbuilders. While it has been shown that the year has been especially favorable in every way, it is also clear that the capacity of contractors' organizations for building concrete roads has been greatly increased.

Michigan Completes 98 Per Cent.

Some of the individual state records are especially creditable. Michigan and Wisconsin each completed the equivalent of about 340 miles of concrete road 18 feet wide, representing nearly 98 per cent of the program for the year. Iowa practically equaled this record as far as the percentage completed is concerned, but did not have such a large mileage under contract.

Pennsylvania, as usual, is the leader in mileage actually completed during the year, with approximately 640 miles miles of concrete, 18 feet wide. New York is second with 530 miles, and Illinois third with 450 miles.

Illinois leads all the states in the amount of concrete highway placed under contract during 1921, with a total of about 7,375,000 square yards of pavement, equivalent to 698 miles of 18 foot slab.

Other States' Work.

Iowa did not place a large amount of new concrete road under contract—about thirty-two miles—but completed more than 160 miles of concrete on the new contracts and those carried over from 1920.

Minnesota awarded nearly 140 miles and completed 100 miles, much of which was on "holdover" jobs. Approximately sixty-five miles are under contract now for completion during 1922, and plans are being made for an active construction season on Commissioner Babcock's trunk system for the state.

Kansas contracted for about sixty miles of new work during the year, completed roads of concrete total over eighty-three miles during 1921, and will carry over the winter about forty-seven miles. Oklahoma has been active; about seventy-three miles on new and old contracts were completed, and there remain about fifty miles to be completed next year on existing contracts. New contracts during 1921 totaled fifty-eight miles.

Arizona County Leads.

Maricopa county, Ariz., probably is entitled to distinction as having built more new concrete highways during the year than any other single county in the country. One hundred and seven miles are reported as having been laid.

Of the Pacific coast states California still occupies the leading position held for several years. Three hundred and sixty-five miles were placed under contract and 339 miles of old and new contracts completed. About 140 miles will be carried over to 1922.

Oregon nearly "cleaned up" its 1921 program. Practically thirty miles of 1920 contracts were uncompleted at the beginning of the year. New contracts for nearly forty-four were awarded, and of this program some sixty miles were completed and opened to the taxpayers' vehicles. Less than fourteen miles will be carried forward to the 1922 season.

Washington added over 200 miles of concrete to its paved highways during the year.

Altogether the country has added the equivalent of more than 5,800 miles of concrete paved highway, 18 feet, wide, to its state and county systems during 1921—an achievement of construction engineering which is a credit to highway builders.

SALON AT DRAKE DISPLAYS CARS OF FIVE NATIONS

Straight 8 Motors in New Designs.

Motorists who believe that chassis design has been standardized and that the day of mechanical developments and innovations has long since passed, will have their opinions upset by the salon, which opened yesterday at the Drake hotel. Among the best cars of five nations exhibited will be found many interesting departures from accepted practice in chassis design and construction, and these will share equally in public interest with the new fashions in custom coachwork, which the salon will also introduce.

Foremost among the new mechanical features are straight-eight motors, or motors with eight cylinders in a line, and brakes on all four road wheels. These are found on French, Italian, and American cars.

New Spring Suspensions.

New spring suspensions, including semi-elliptics as long as the wheel base of a small car, also attract attention, and in this feature English and Belgium made cars share honors with the others.

In addition to straight-eight motors there are cars with eight and twelve cylinder V-type motors, and, of course, fours and sixes are shown. Poppet valves variously located, sleeve valves, and rotary valves add to a variety of mechanical features.

Despite this chassis competition the custom built bodies (and every car in the salon mount one and no two are alike), retain their share of the attention of those motorists who are in a position to own the best in motor equipage.

Have Special Exhibit.

A representative group of American custom body builders have special coachwork exhibits and the latest creations of the world's leading carrossiers, including firms in London, Paris, and Brussels, will be found in various chassis.

Thus the international character of the salon is further emphasized. New fashions in custom coachwork as discovered by the salon show a marked tendency toward greater comfort in riding, more conveniences, better appearances, and a broader adaptation of bodies to the various special requirements of the well to do motorist.

NEW MOTORCYCLE RECORDS.

The new world's record for motorcycles over dirt track for one mile is 44.05 seconds; five miles, 3 minutes 45.74 seconds, and ten miles, 7 minutes 38.80 seconds.

YANKEE MAKERS NEED NOT FEAR GERMANS—OLLIER

"The bugaboo about the ability of German automobile manufacturers to outdistance their American competitors in the world's markets vanishes as soon as distinction is made between domestic and export prices of motor vehicles," states L. J. Ollier, member of the foreign trade committee of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. "Reports from abroad indicate that German factories are well occupied with domestic orders.

"The practice of the American manufacturer is to quote export prices that are practically the same as those for motor vehicles sold domestically. In either case, the prices are based on a uniform cost of vehicle at factory.

"In Germany, however, the pre-war custom was to quote lower prices for export trade than for domestic consumption. Because of changed economic conditions, the practice is of necessity reversed now, and motor vehicles for export must be sold at a considerably higher price than would be received in domestic trade.

"Readers, seeing a list of domestic prices for German motor vehicles and failing to realize the difference between these and export prices, come to a hasty conclusion that German manufacturers are sure to be most formidable competitors of the American motor vehicle industry."

Closed Car Big Factor in New Year, Agent Says

"We are convinced of the desirability of the closed type of motor car," stated F. E. Moskovics, vice president of the Nordyke & Marmon company, in referring to the emphasis laid on closed bodies at the auto show. "We believe there is a big demand for general utility closed cars and that they must be used for touring work as well as for city and suburban use."

RUGGLES FINDS BIG FUTURE FOR TRUCK INDUSTRY

There is no reason for having anything other than an optimistic view of the future, asserts Frank W. Ruggles, president of the Ruggles Motor Truck company, who is in Chicago for the auto show. Mr. Ruggles proved the courage of his convictions by organizing a new company to manufacture trucks.

"It is true," said Mr. Ruggles, "that the public is going to buy trucks—must buy them if they are going to continue in business—but they are not going to pay unreasonable prices. Business men today are looking closely to costs, and the truck that can show them the greatest saving in transportation is the truck that will get the order."

SAVES THE ROAD.

Ten tons is the maximum weight for motor trucks on highways in Ohio.

RIGHT LIGHTING OF RURAL ROADS HARD TO SOLVE

The problem of providing proper lighting for country roads is to receive careful consideration in the construction of the "ideal section" of the Lincoln highway, near Chicago.

A number of important main highways have been lighted for certain distances through the open country, but it is doubtful if a careful and detailed scientific study of the problems involved has as yet been made. Certainly the providing of a brilliant light at stated intervals over crowded routes of travel does not answer the purpose.

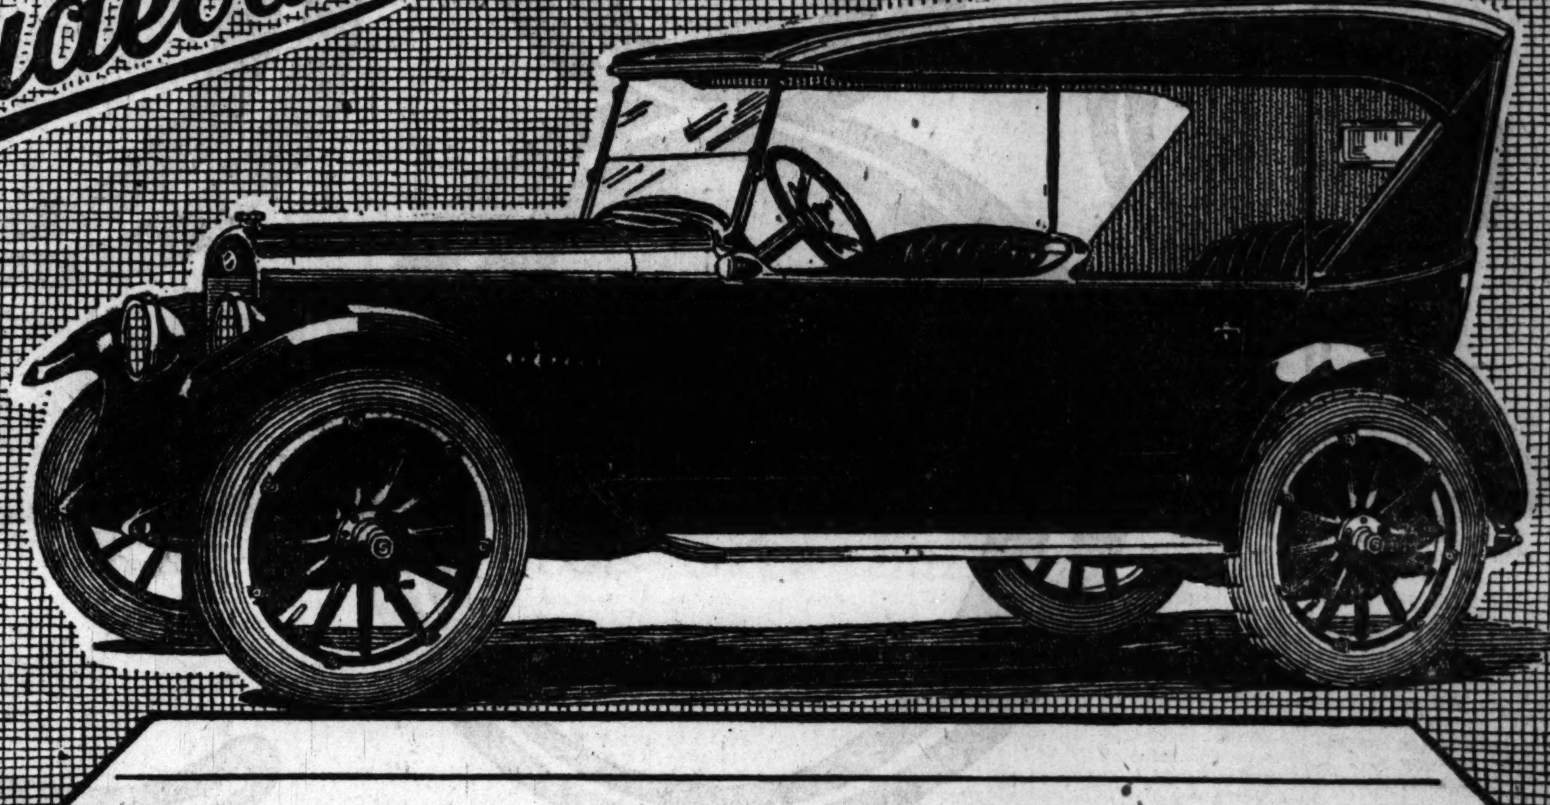
The purpose of lighting rural highways is solely to provide for the safety of night drivers. Accidents which occur after dark are generally the result of the injudicious use of glaring headlights. The lighting installation which would permit of all vehicles operating with their headlights dimmed, as in cities, would undoubtedly make for safer conditions.

The technical committee appointed by the Lincoln Highway association to determine the specifications for the ideal section of the highway early agreed that the ideal section should be lighted, but they did not attempt to say how. Arrangements were made by the association with the General Electric company whereby the illuminating experts of that organization will develop an ideal lighting installation, which will be put in along the section.

PROTECT THE FINISH.

Changes in temperature exert an extremely unhappy effect on the finish of the car because of the difference in the coefficients of expansion of metal and paint and varnish. To insure the highly finished surfaces from cracking the car should be housed in a garage maintained at a nearly uniform degree of temperature.

Studebaker



The New LIGHT-SIX
$1045
f. o. b. South Bend

Studebaker is the world's largest builder of six-cylinder motor cars!

1921 was the TEST YEAR for motor car values. It was a year of discriminating buying. People did not buy cars, last year, as the result of a whim or fancy. They bought on the basis of intrinsic values.

And in such a year Studebaker built more six-cylinder cars than any other manufacturer in the world.

Studebaker led in 1921 because it built—complete in its own plants—cars of superior design, materials and workmanship, at the lowest possible prices.

Studebaker will lead again in 1922 because, in the new models, the refinements of the new year have been added to the proven values of the old. Be sure to see the new models at the show.

Look for these Features in the New Light-Six at the Show:

A car of 112-inch wheelbase, built complete in Studebaker plants, seating 5 adults in perfect comfort. Genuine leather upholstery.

40-H.P. 3¼ x 4½ detachable-head motor of exclusive Studebaker design. Intermediate transmission.

Valves inclined at 20-degree angle for purposes of greater economy and smoother performance.

Patented internal hot spot, which means greater efficiency. Completely machined crank-shaft and connecting rods.

Cowl ventilator controlled from dash. Cowl parking lights. Thermostatic-controlled cooling system. Large plate glass window in rear of top.

32 x 4-inch cord tires.

$600,000,000 FOR ROADS IN U. S. IN 5 YEARS

Total of 35,000 Miles Is Planned.

000 each; California put out $55,000,000; New York, Michigan, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia each have $50,000,000; New Jersey, $29,000,000; Oregon, $30,500,000; Colorado, $5,000,000; Idaho, $2,000,000; Maine, $8,500,000; Maryland, $5,700,000; Massachusetts, $2,000,000; Nevada, small in population but large in area, $1,000,000; New Mexico, $2,000,000; South Dakota, $6,000,000; Utah, $5,000,000; Wyoming, $4,000,000, and Rhode Island, $500,000.

Federal Projects 35,000 Miles.

All road improvement is not, of course, taking place along federal project highways. Country roads also are being improved, but the mileage of the federal aid projects is over 35,000. The greatest mileage listed is in Texas, 3,276 miles; Nebraska, traversed by important transcontinental routes, has 2,224; in Illinois the mileage is 768.

In these days many calls are made on the federal treasury for every sort of local and state improvement. But the states and local communities are much more than carrying their part of the load. In no state does the federal government pay more than the amount of the local funds, but in many the state expenditures far exceed the contributions of the government.

On the whole, for every dollar spent from the federal treasury, state and local funds contribute $1.92.

Total Is $602,000,000.

In round numbers the funds involved in approved federal aid projects from 1916 to Oct. 31, 1921, totaled $602,000,000. Of this the federal treasury supplied $255,000,000 and state and local sources $347,000,000. New York, for instance, received $13,000,000 from the federal treasury and put up $18,000,000 itself. Ohio spent $31,000,000, of which less than $10,000,000 was from federal sources; Texas disbursed $27,000,000 along with the $15,000,000 Uncle Sam put in; Wisconsin state funds topped the government amount by $6,000,000; Kansas spent $10,000,000 more than as much as the government sum, and Iowa $5,000,000; Minnesota exceeded its quota of federal aid by $5,000,000, and Illinois by $3,000,000.

Many Methods Used.

The means by which different states provide and segregate funds for building and maintaining federal aid roads are many. They range from selling bonds to build roads and appropriating money from the treasury to maintain them, to several and various tax raising devices and specific division of funds for special purposes.

The most general use of motor license money is in road maintenance. Some states divide this fund part for building and part for maintenance. Other means are direct taxes, state income and inheritance tax, gas tax, contributions by counties, either voluntary or enforced, and assessments on abutting property.

Summarizing the means of raising money for road purposes, we find that for construction the excess motor vehicle tax is used in but two states, while part or all of the regular motor vehicle tax is used for building in twenty-four states. Contributions by counties enter into building funds in eleven states, special appropriations have been made in 13 states, gas taxes add to the funds in 12 states; 19 states have authorized state road bonds, 19 have a state road tax, one an inheritance tax for road funds, and one uses its corporation fees on the highways.

In maintenance motor vehicle revenues are used wholly or in part in 33 states, 6 states make appropriations from the general state revenues for at least part of their maintenance needs, and county funds are used in 16 states. A gas tax helps keep the roads in repair in 12 states, 2 appropriate money from the treasury, 3 use part of the income tax, and 1 the inheritance tax.

TRUCKS DEMAND TRUNK SYSTEM OF GOOD ROADS

BY T. D. PRATT.

[General Manager, Motor Truck Association of America.]

Various times in the last few years speakers have held out in glowing terms the promise that the future held for the motor truck. Frequently these speakers had the magic quality of silver tongued oratory, which they could and did launch unhampered by a knowledge of the facts pertaining to their subject.

This has brought the subject of highway transportation into disrepute in many quarters because different people, charmed either by the glittering generalities of the orator or the seductiveness of the smooth-talking motor truck salesman, have been led to embark in the motor transportation field without sufficient knowledge of the opportunities of their field or its possibilities; without sufficient technical or mechanical knowledge of their machine, without business experience or judgment in this particular line.

Possibilities Are Many.

Vast possibilities are opened up by the plans of motor truck trunk highways. There can be no question but that the country would be better served if and when highways are laid out and constructed solely for the use of motor trucks and motor truck trains consisting of trains of trailers as well as convoys of trucks.

The motor truck will then be in a position to realize the promise of its future, that of picking up and delivering to main distributing centers the bulk of farm products with but one handling and no delays—thus obviating the present methods of many handlings and frequent and long delays. Secretary of Commerce Hoover has said that 50 per cent of our perishable foodstuffs never reach the consumers because the farms on which they are raised are too remote from the market at which they are sold.

"By motor trucks," he adds, "the farmer will be able to reach better markets further away than by horse and wagon. He will be able to spend more time actually producing on his farm and be able to sell food more cheaply by eliminating the present tremendous waste. By use of motor trucks the farmer will be able to produce more and sell at less cost."

Would Relieve Railroads.

In addition to this, it will serve greatly to relieve the railroads of their terminal expense in handling less than carload freight over distances up to seventy-five miles perhaps. This is the most expensive freight which the railroads haul, and nearly every pound of it represents a loss to them.

By a series of motor truck trunk line highways this congestion can be avoided in the large centers, for it is near and between such centers that the need for them exists and there the greatest number of motor trucks is concentrated. These trunk line highways will have many radials, or feeder highways, which will tap all the adjacent territory. The day may well come when we shall see a multitude of trucks rolling across the land headed for these main lines, where they will be organized into trains or convoys and moved under a rigid traffic control by the block system of signaling, with gasoline and emergency repair stations at intervals all along the routes.

4,000,000 TOURISTS SPEND 2 1-2 DAYS EACH IN NATIONAL FORESTS

Now is the time thousands of people get the "dope" together and plan that summer vacation.

It may surprise many to know that statistics show 10,000,000 vacation days were spent in national forests last year. Four million tourists were counted and the average was two and a half days a person, says the American Forestry association of Washington.

By auto and train they get into their playgrounds at the first breath of spring and from then on it is a parade until snow time comes, the report adds.

One Car Among 100 Whose Value Everyone Knows

A Startling and Significant Fact Which You Instantly Recognize as Being Your Own Conviction

ALMOST any man who seriously asks himself what he thinks about the Hupmobile will find, if he has ever given the matter any attention at all, that he has always held a high opinion of its value.

If he follows the subject a little further in his own mind, he is almost certain to recall that he has expressed this good opinion to others, time and time again.

Whether he has owned a Hupmobile or not, somewhere, somehow, he has gained the positive impression that it is a car among cars.

The Same Thought In Everyone's Mind

Ten minutes spent in this sort of reflection will bring him to some very surprising conclusions.

For instance, he is almost sure to recollect that he has never talked to anyone who did not feel about the Hupmobile as he feels.

If he has traveled extensively, it will be borne in on his memory that wherever he went he found exactly the same conclusions concerning the Hupmobile.

But this is only the beginning of the revelation that awaits him.

If he takes even a hasty glance at the history of the automobile business, two facts will immediately stand out with startling distinctness.

How Few Stand As High As Hupmobile

One is that millions of motor cars of nearly three hundred makes have been marketed in a marvelously short space of time.

The other fact—more startling and significant by far—is the astonishingly few cars which have built such a solid, enduring reputation as he knows the Hupmobile to enjoy.

Passing in review all of the 100 makes which are still in existence, he will not be able to think of another car in its class of which he—and everyone else—thinks as highly as he does of the Hupmobile.

If he asks himself why this is so, he will find that it is because he has, consciously or unconsciously, recognized in the Hupmobile those very elements of reliability which every man hopes to get when he buys a motor car.

What We Mean By Reliability

That everlasting regularity of performance which every motor car should supply, and which every one concedes to the Hupmobile.

That everlasting regularity which in the Hupmobile spells the difference between unbroken satisfaction and continuous annoyance.

That uninterrupted regularity which makes the Hupmobile known above and beyond all else as a reliable car to buy.

That regularity which the Company began building into the Hupmobile a dozen years ago and has never stopped building into it ever since.

That regularity which holds down repair costs and adjustments all the year around—which explains why the first models, and all the succeeding seasons' Hupmobiles, are still rendering heroic service on the road.

That regularity which comes from a right principle of design adopted at the beginning, persisted in, and steadily developed ever since.

That regularity which is peculiar in its field to the Hupmobile—which you are sure of in the Hupmobile, and not sure of somewhere else.

That regularity which makes the Hupmobile at $1250, the outstanding value of motordom today—a value so sure and so certain that the buyer who chooses something less sure and less certain at a lesser price, or at $500 more,—almost deserves what he gets!

Some Well-Known Hupmobile Truths

COSTS of operation hold to an exceptionally low level.

Maintenance and repair costs almost unbelievably low.

Car is particularly free from the need of constant and petty adjustments.

On high gear, throttles smoothly to a walking pace; and picks up again, on high gear, instantly and smoothly.

Develops great pulling power on high gear; climbs the average low-gear hill, and pulls through sand and mud, on high gear.

A remarkably fine performer when it's new; and the same fine performer when it's old.

Recognized cash value or trading value as a used car proportionately higher than the average, in relation to price.

HYDRO-TORON

HYDRO-UNITED TIRE CO.
PHILA.

Where Else Can You Find Such a Guarantee?

10,000 Miles

Against Stone-Bruise, Rim-Cut, Blow-Out

What other tire can you buy that pledges such mileage—plus freedom from the defects that are built into ordinary tires?

These defects are the cause of a big percentage of common tire troubles. They are blisters, buckles, etc., concealed in ordinary tires as a result of curing on solid iron cores, and they show later in stone-bruise, rim-cut and blow-out.

Hydro-Toron tires escape these defects by reason of the wonderful Internal Hydraulic Expansion process. Result—a guarantee of 10,000 miles against stone-bruise, rim-cut and blow-out.

Then there is the Toron (no-rot) chemical process of treating fabric, which gives the fabric greater tensile strength, greater holding power, increased affinity for rubber, provides resistance against the action of water and weather.

Hydro-Toron tires are also oversize; as big as cords, better than cords, yet costing less than cords.

The thousands of Hydro-Toron buyers who are served by the dealers listed below are proving the extraordinary service, the real economy in Hydro-Toron tires, every day—to their own complete satisfaction and profit.

Have you joined this army of users who are enjoying these unusual values? If not, say "Hydro-Toron" the next time you buy tires.

UNIFORM SPEED LIMITS IN ALL STATES URGED

Village Signs Showing Trend of Times.

One of those pretty little towns which dot the Lincoln highway in Pennsylvania, and which have become noted for their quiet beauty and their hospitality to the traveler, has long been distinguished by a pair of signs placed at the municipal limits on the highway in such a position that tourists entering the community from either the east or the west could not help but read them.

Each bore in large letters the inscription, "Drive Slow and See Our Town; Drive Fast and See Our Jail."

Few tourists were inclined to see anything objectionable in this rather unusual method of calling their attention to the necessity of prudent and careful driving in the community. It has remained for the town itself to take exception to this form of welcome.

"Poor Taste; Poor English."

The city council has just been petitioned by a local organization of business men to remove the signs as being in poor taste (in addition to poor English) and an exceedingly inhospitable welcome to the traveler. The signs will be removed.

Nothing is so noticeable to the veteran tourist of today as the change of attitude which characterizes the smaller communities of the country toward the motor transient. Less and less does one encounter in driving about the country, even in the most remote villages, the arbitrary signboard of old, with its large and rude "Warning!" as a heading and the legend, "Speed Limit Eight Miles per Hour." Nowadays the sign is more likely to read, "Welcome to Bloomville. Please Drive Moderately," and the latter, while showing a new attitude towards the motorist and a more hospitable and friendly feeling, is also 100 per cent better psychology. The first is obviously not meant to be complied with; the second obviously is, and while being much better business for the community, also goes much further toward accomplishing its primary purpose, that of assuring safety of life and limb on town streets.

35 Mile an Hour Limit.

Ultimately all arbitrary state and local speed limits, expressed in miles, will be discarded—safety and the rights of the interstate touists demand that. Gradually, eastern states are following the example of California in raising their open country speed limits to thirty-five miles per hour and establishing a uniform limit for communities of varying size. When all arbitrary limits are removed the one injunction, to always, under any circumstances, drive safely, will be strictly enforced.

Less and less are the arbitrary speed limits existing by statute enforced in our various villages, towns, and cities or on the open country road. When they were enforced it was largely done for the mulcting of the motorist, and when they are not enforced they had better be removed and replaced by reasonable and uniform state-wide statutes known to every American tourist.

All speed limits have been removed from French roads. In compliance with the demand of public sentiment, the government has recognized that arbitrary speed limits are no protection to users of the road, but are often a legal club with which motorists may be persecuted.

WATCH YOUR CAR!

THE enterprising auto thief nowadays doesn't mind if you lock up your gas feed. He attaches a half gallon can of gasoline to the wind shield, runs a rubber hose from it to the carburetor, "steps on her"—and the car changes ownership.

WEST MICHIGAN PIKE IMPROVED BY NEW PAVING

Completion of twelve miles of pavement north of South Haven—practically the last unimproved gap in the west Michigan pike from the south state line to the Straits of Mackinaw—removes what has been called the "worst stretch of highway in the world" and opens the way for unlimited development of tourist and resort projects all along the east coast of Lake Michigan, in the opinion of Hugh Gray, secretary of the Michigan Tourist and Resort association.

The pavement removes the only obstacle which for years has turned back thousands of tourists traveling by automobiles or which has caused thousands of Chicago and middle west folk to follow the "line of least resistance" and go up into Wisconsin, whose roads leading out of Chicago are unobstructed.

The Tourist and Resort association has received assurances from the Hoosier State Automobile association that an effort is being made to secure an improved route between Gary and Michigan City, Ind., in 1922.

NAMES OF MOTOR BODIES 'FREAKS,' ENGINEERS SAY

Even Trade Is Puzzled, They Assert.

So numerous, so freakish, and so meaningless have been the names given to the different types of motor bodies that an expert body engineer, to say nothing of the rest of humanity, has about as small a chance of identifying a body type by its trade name as the college professors have of understanding the Einstein theory of relativity.

This is the opinion of the Society of Automobile Engineers, which appointed a committee recently to formulate a set of motor car body names which would at all times convey an adequate meaning of just what sort of body is implied by a specified name. In the motor competition for novelties some remarkable, if not uncouth, terms have been created, utterly incapable of being defined by the average motorist or anybody else.

Defy All Rules.

In the illustrated handbooks issued in connection with the national automobile shows from 1909 to 1921, it is pointed out, a collection of names calculated to turn the brain of the ablest lexicographer many be found. In the 1909 handbook are these, which make quite a fair foundation for the later additions: Touring car, runabout, limousine, landaulet, brougham, speedcar, tourabout, baby tonneau, sportabout, toy tonneau, flyabout, country brougham.

In 1910 other terms came into vogue, such as pony tonneau, miniature tonneau, runabout tonneau, demi-tonneau, taxicab, speedster, town car, victoria, phaeton (meaning a small touring car without top), torpedo, surrey. The 1911 handbook added coupe and the scoutbody, while 1912 went in strongly for compound words and offered the torpedo roadster, berline-limousine, and the suburban-landau.

Other Strange Ones Follow.

In the 1913 book appeared as names not previously listed, torpedo-phaeton, vestibule suburban. One lone newcomer appeared in the 1914 handbook, the landau-roadster. In 1915 we were introduced to the coupelet, landaulet-coupe, sedan, coupe-runabout, landaulet-brougham, brougham-landaulet, the Riviera and the cabriolet. An electric, the "inside-drive coupe brougham," appeared in 1916, while tourcoupe and toursedan were reserved for the 1917 issue. But the end is not yet, for in 1918 came foursome, French sedan, all-season sedan, the sport-tour, clubster, bulldog special, the flyer, sportster, sport marine, and others.

After considerable discussion the Automobile society committee has selected fifteen names to be used as standard names for automobile bodies. They are: Roadster, coupé, phaeton, sedan, berline, limousine, brougham, landaulet, cabriolet, sedan-landaulet, berline-landaulet, coupé-landaulet, limousine-landaulet, and brougham-landaulet. Another type is included in the proposed nomenclature, but the name will not be decided upon until the consensus of opinion of automobile and dealer advertising managers shall have been determined. The name will be descriptive of an enclosed single-compartment body with two fixed cross-seats, close-coupled, and allowing the minimum fore-and-aft seating space for four passengers.

Phaeton or Touring?

In developing this nomenclature it was found that there was a great difference of opinion regarding the advisability of specifying the word phaeton or touring when applied to an open-type body with two fixed cross seats for four or five passengers. The principal reason for using the term "phaeton" instead of the term "touring" is that the latter has lost all of its significance as applying to any particular type of body, all types being used for touring. The term "phaeton" is used extensively in Europe and to a considerable extent in American in connection with passenger cars; it is also the name of a horse drawn prototype.

IT SOUNDS THE ROAD.

Facts about what happens under a roadway as traffic passes over it are being obtained by the use of an ingenious device perfected by the bureau of public roads. The device is one of the new instruments developed to discover what thickness of roadbed should be constructed for heavy or light traffic on various kinds of soil.

AMERICAN ROADS BEST IN WORLD, EXPERT ASSERTS

BY H. L. BOWLBY.

[President American Road Builders' association.]

From the beginning to the present time it has been the highway that has made nations great. The road is the pioneer. Civilization follows the flag but the road opens up the way through the wilderness for the bearers of the flag and the advance of civilized influences.

While we know little about the roads that existed prior to the Roman empire we find from records that not only the Romans but the Egyptians, the Carthagenians, the Sumarians and other ancent peoples employed much the same materials that we are today using in highway construction.

Used Mineral Cement.

There is evidence that both the Romans and the Egyptians used a mineral cement. The Bible tells of the manufacture and use of bricks. As early as 44 A. D. the Romans used bricks in England. Actual scientific and quantity production did not begin, however, until 886 when Alfred the Great directed that bricks be produced under government supervision.

The earliest recorded use of asphalt was by the Sumarians, a people inhabitating the Euphrates Valley prior to the ascendancy of the Babylonians. An asphalt cast excavated at Logash near the mouth of the Euphrates dates back to 2850 B. C. As a mortar for brick, similar to the filler now used in brick city streets, asphalt was used in the construction of the Tower of Babel. One historian claims this same substance was used about 1500 B. C. to daube the basket which served to conceal Moses in the bullrushes when the children of Israel were suffering under bondage in Egypt.

It was Nabopolassar, king of Babylon who, about 500 B. C., first used asphalt as a filler for brick pavements. His son, Nebuchadnezzar, continued the practice.

In the western hemisphere asphalt was used in ancient times by the Incas, who established an elaborate system of highways in Peru and Ecuador.

Cement Old Material.

Thus we see that cement, brick, and asphalt instead of being products of exclusively modern use really are world-old materials, the use of which has been handed down to us through the centuries to be improved upon and adapted to civilization's growing needs.

The same is true of stone, except that in modern usage stone is crushed for use in road building, whereas in the days of Rome's greatness stone was used in the form of large slabs frequently two feet thick. Roads of this type carried Cæsar's armies forward to conquest.

Herodotus tells us that in Egypt a great king built a magnificent road across the sands for the transportation of materials for the Pyramids, employing for this purpose 100,000 men for a period of ten years. This road was built of massive stone blocks and was lined on both sides with mausoleums, statues, and temples.

Specimens of Roman roads are still to be seen in Rome and Pompeii. The "Appian Way," or "Queen of Roads," begun by Claudius Appius about 312 B. C., led from Rome to Capua, a distance of 142 Italian miles. This road was later extended to Brundisium, sometimes called Brindisi, a total distance of 360 miles and was finally completed by Julius Cæsar. It was in excellent condition until 500 A. D.

MAKES OLD CARS NEW.

One of the most revolutionary ideas that has been put into operation in recent years is the "Trianglized" remanufactured car plan of Triangle Motors, Chicago. Briefly, a "Trianglized" car is a remanufactured car. The process means the dissembling down to the naked frame, and a thorough inspection of every part before it is put back. Wherever a serious defect is discovered a new part replaces the old one.

MODERN AUTOIS DEMANDS WINT USE OF HIS C

The increased number of motor being used throughout the wint given rise to much comment.

In the first place, observers out, people are more dependent motor transportation than ever b Those who own cars have arr their time on the basis of auto use. They are accustomed to more in a day than before. In cases they have established homes in locations only easily acc ble by motor car. To be depriv their automobiles for several w months would mean uncomfort changes in their habits of living many personal discomforts. Becau of this, people are not putting up the cars for the winter.

Of course automobiles are bett built than ever before. They are b improved. Every year finds them b ter able to meet traveling conditi Owners, too, have become more more familiar with what their will do. They expect more. B streets and roads in all parts of country have helped to increase winter use of motor transportation.

THE PACKARD TWIN-SIX DUPLEX SEDAN

THE Packard exhibit at the Chicago Automobile Show consists of four motor cars that in every respect of design, manufacture and appointment are finely representative of the Packard standard.

Both the Packard Twin-Six and the Packard Single-Six are shown, and each of them in both open touring and enclosed carriage styles.

Your personal inspection of these notable examples of Packard engineering, workmanship and artistry is invited. Packard has Space D2 at the Coliseum, throughout the show, January twenty-eighth to February fourth, and the following special models are on view:

A Standard Packard Twin-Six Touring Car with De Luxe Packard equipment, in special old ivory paint, with chassis and fenders in black.

A Standard Packard Twin-Six Sedan with De Luxe Packard equipment, in special beige brown, with striping of lighter brown shade, and upholstery of tan broadcloth.

A Standard Packard Single-Six Sedan with De Luxe Packard equipment, in special Bokhara maroon, with fenders and upper body of black, striping in Bordeaux red, and standard upholstery of grey broadcloth with brown stripe.

A Standard Packard Single-Six Touring Car with De Luxe Packard equipment, in dawn grey with fenders of azure grey.

Individual in their color harmonies and their equipment, all these cars exemplify in their chassis and power plants the refinement of engineering and manufacturing practice for which Packard cars are everywhere and uniformly known.

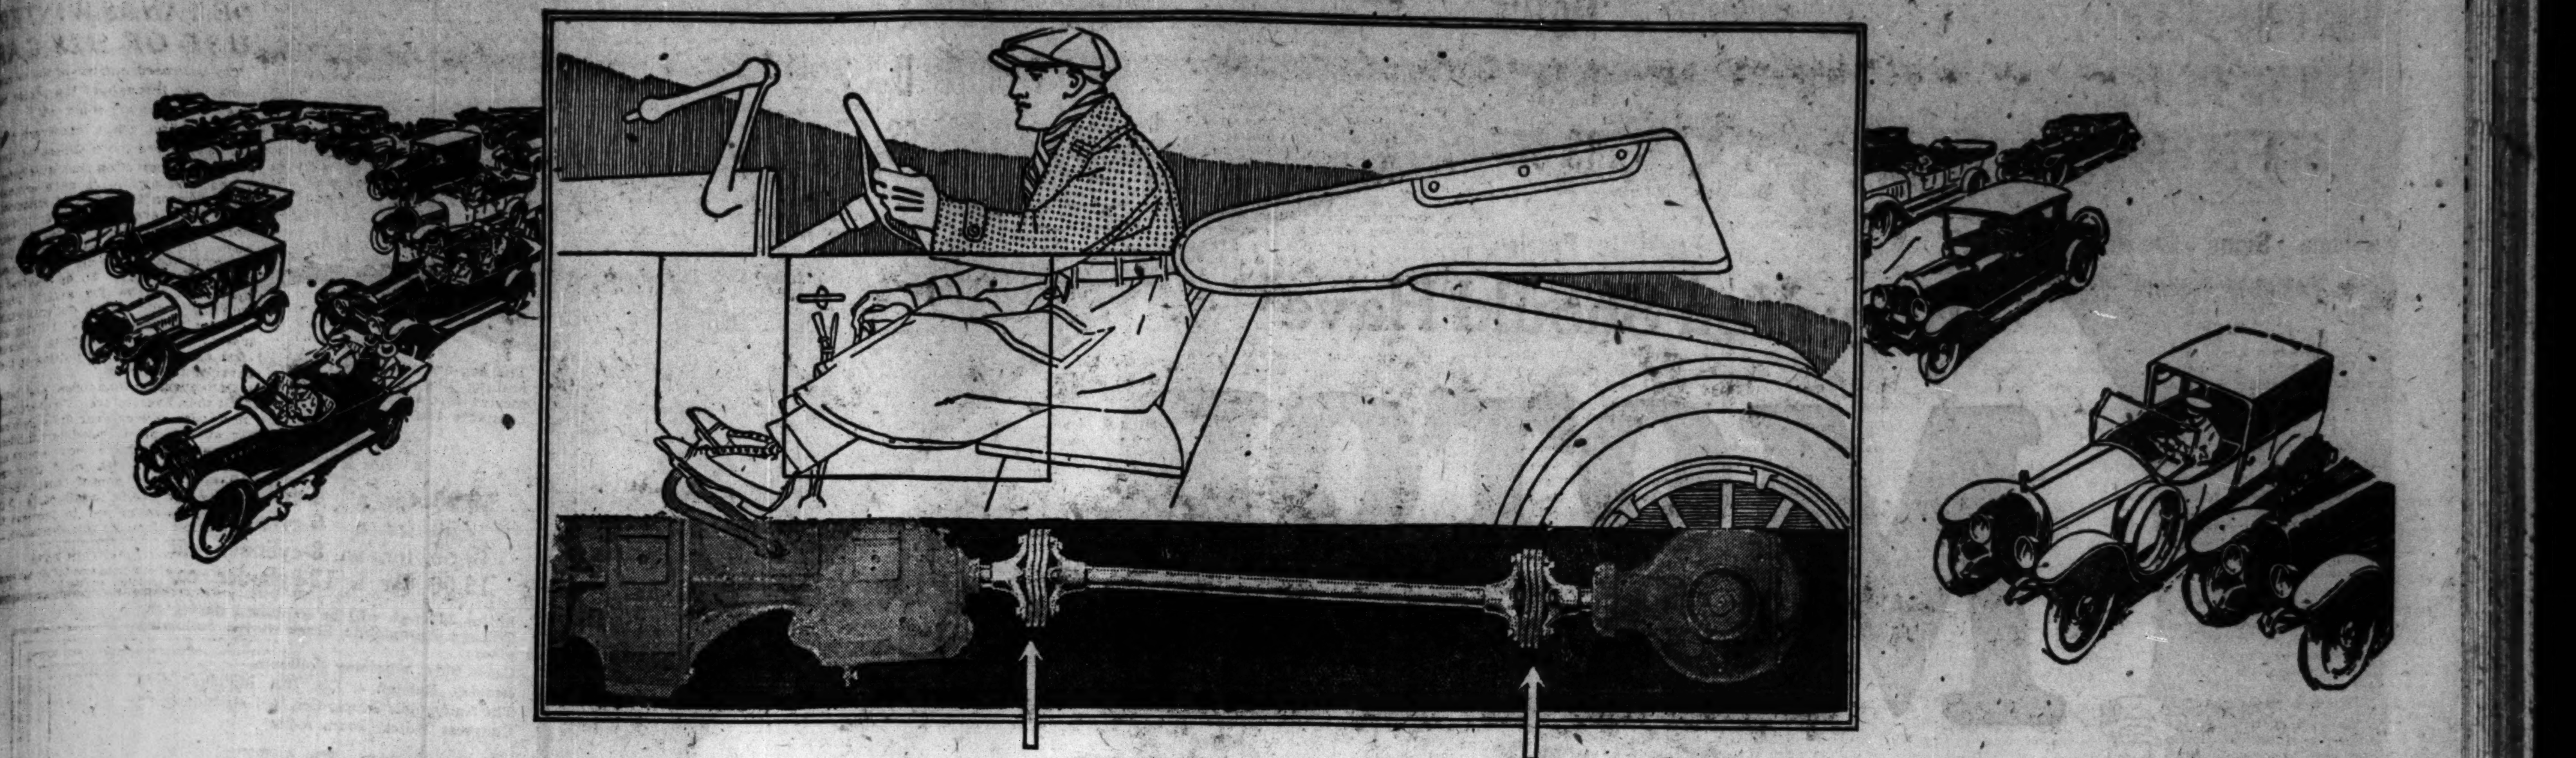
ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE



Five years ago unknown— today on a third of the cars at the Show

The flexible fabric Thermoid-Hardy type of universal joint has become a standard feature of automobile design

As you go from car to car at the Show, look at the universal joints. Notice how many of them are of the flexible fabric Thermoid-Hardy type.

Like the self-starter, the flexible fabric Thermoid-Hardy type of universal joint has come to be a standard in automobile design.

No jerks, no rattles when you throw in the clutch. The Thermoid-Hardy transmits at all times a smooth, even flow of power from engine to rear axle. Backlash is eliminated. No lubrication is necessary. More than 75 manufacturers of passenger cars and trucks are eliminating the troubles caused by metal universal joints by using the Thermoid-Hardy. (See the list below.) Twenty-six of the cars exhibited at the Coliseum this week are equipped with this type of universal.

Thermoid-Hardy discs fast replacing metal universals

So flexible that it cushions every shock of the road—yet strong enough to withstand a 21,000 pound twist! Capable of going 60,000 miles without adjustment, lubrication or attention of any kind—yet built to stand the hardest service on the heaviest trucks!

The Thermoid-Hardy disc marks another forward step in automobile construction. Metal universals that need constant attention and that transmit every shock of the road are fast being displaced.

Thermoid-Hardy Universal Joint discs now come in cartons for sale by jobbers and dealers.

Whether you are going to buy a car, design a new car, or take on the franchise for a car in your own territory, see that it is equipped with the Thermoid-Hardy Universal Joint.

No vibration, no "whipping"—shaft held true on every revolution

The two diagrams above tell graphically the whole construction story of the disc type of universal joint.

At the left is an ordinary disc, its layers of fabric laid parallel. The three black holes are the driving bolts—the three white ones the driven. Notice that the left-hand driving bolt is the only one that can pull in the direction of the strands of cotton. The other two must pull on a bias. This stretches the whole disc out of true, causing vibration and "whipping" of the entire shaft.

In contrast, examine the Thermoid-Hardy patented Fanwise Construction. Notice how the disc is built up with the strands of each layer of fabric running in a different direction. Each sector is of uniform strength and elasticity. Every stress is balanced—the torsional stresses between the bolt holes, the centrifugal stresses from the center outward, the lateral stresses from the forward and back motion of the shaft. The basic patent on the disc universal is the Thermoid-Hardy patent on Fanwise Construction.

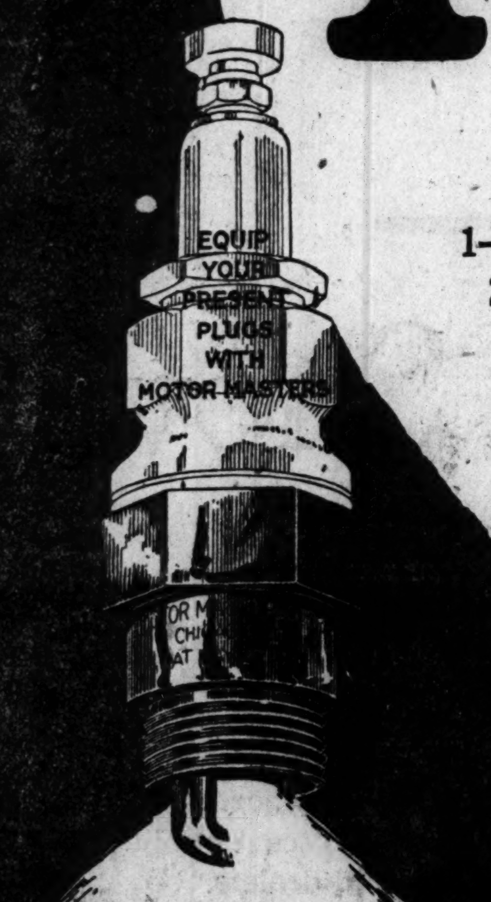
Why You Should Have

MOTOR MASTERS

In Your Car



1—To keep the spark plugs dry and clean;
2—To prevent hard carbon from forming;
3—To give each explosion in every cylinder that last ounce of "punch" which means maximum power;
4—To give that smooth, continuous action which saves the connecting rods, the bearings and every part of the car's mechanism;
5—To give you greater gasoline mileage.

Every Car Owner—Every Show Visitor, Jobber and Dealer

should know how Motor Masters serve in making old motors run like new and new ones run better—how they save by making the mechanism run smoothly and accomplishing genuine gasoline economy.

Easily installed—while you wait—by any dealer listed below; inexpensive—worth their cost a hundred times over; and guaranteed to your full protection—if not satisfied in 30 days, your money back.

Know NOW what Motor Masters will do for that car of yours

The sensational development of the times—nothing like it. A revelation in the automotive world. Thousands in use and giving complete satisfaction.

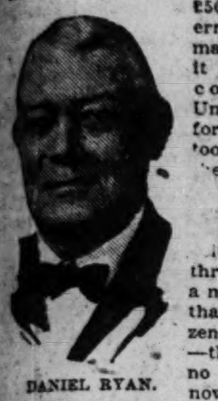
[President Board of Commissioners of Cook County.]



DANIEL RYAN.

Cook county is fast becoming a paradise for the automobilist. With almost 250 miles of modernly paved permanent highway it leads every county in the United States. Its forest preserves, too, extending their lengths of wooded reaches from end to end of the county and skirting Chicago on three sides, form a multiple magnet that induces citizens of all classes—though there is no class division now when it comes to automobile ownership—to maximum utilization of these good roads.

Highways, like railroads, build up communities and create industrial and business activity. Especially is this true in this supreme day of the motor vehicle. A system of good highways means that social life is expanded, trade is quickened, education is spread, and every phase of existence is bettered for the resident of the city and of the county.

The rural dweller and the city resident are brought into closer contact, thus creating a mutual understanding that makes for prompt and better solution of social and governmental problems. Good roads from the paved strands that bind the tighter our common interests. In short, permanent highways contribute to the general good of the whole country. What other public developments exceeds them in popular value?

Reduces Living Costs.

We of Chicago and Cook county have learned how good roads, coupled with the motor car, contribute to reduction of living costs. Our extending travel ways link the city with the county agricultural districts. And Cook county's agricultural districts, I may add, embrace approximately 5,000 farms, often of a ground value of $3,000 an acre, and of a farm value estimated by government experts at $100,000,000.

This farm section, we are told, is one of the most productive for its area in the world. It grew up around Chicago years ago because the truck farmer then was able to bring his produce into market by wagon, reducing expenses, eliminating the middleman, and providing better commodities to the consumer.

Praises Citizenship.

Praise must be given to Cook county's citizens for our highway leadership. Our people not only talked good roads, but they saw to it that good roads were built. They affirmed the conviction that good roads are cheap at almost any price, and that bad roads are an economic burden in any circumstances.

The forest preserve, in these days when the motor car provides recreation and relaxation for so many millions, is a natural adjunct to our system of good roads. This great "outer belt park" of more than 21,500 acres, owned by the people of Chicago and Cook county, stretches its broad band of wooded and swarded acreage the seventy-five mile length of our county.

There, within a few miles of the clanging city, may be found spots primeval. Old Indian trails, towering rock formations that served as natural watch towers.

Old French forts here and there tell of Marquette, Joliet, and the early explorers opening up the way for civilization.

More than 4,000,000 persons there found rest and recreation during 1921.

So the forest preserve district is a promoter of the automobile, and the motor car, in turn, is a popularizer of the preserves.

Cook county intends to continue extension of its paved highways, as well as its forest preserves. Basic plans of the county board contemplate ultimately a system of paved roads aggregating one-quarter, as the law authorizes, of the 1,600 miles of roadways within the county, or, in the end, about 400 miles of paved thoroughfares.

When that plan is consummated there will be a paved road within at least a mile of 90 per cent of all the farms in the county, and every village and hamlet within its boundaries will be thus connected. Chicago's streets and Cook county's highways will connect with transcontinental routes, and their subsidiaries and motors may hum over the best roads in the country. And, let us add, the one aggressive stimulator to the planning and consummation of this program is the automobile.

1922 REWARDS SURE TO COME, J. D. DORT AVERS

BY J. D. DORT.

[President of the Dort Motor Car company.]

When the months of marking time have given way to the forward march of business, an analysis of the strenuous days of '21 will show that only the attitude of our manufacturers and merchants stemmed a most disastrous rout.

Every condition was tending toward demoralization. It needed but one break in the line to send men to the wall. Our young men showed in the war that marching to the rear is not in the Yankee rules of the game.

Their fathers showed in the business stress that while the years may have taken their toll they had not undermined their courage.

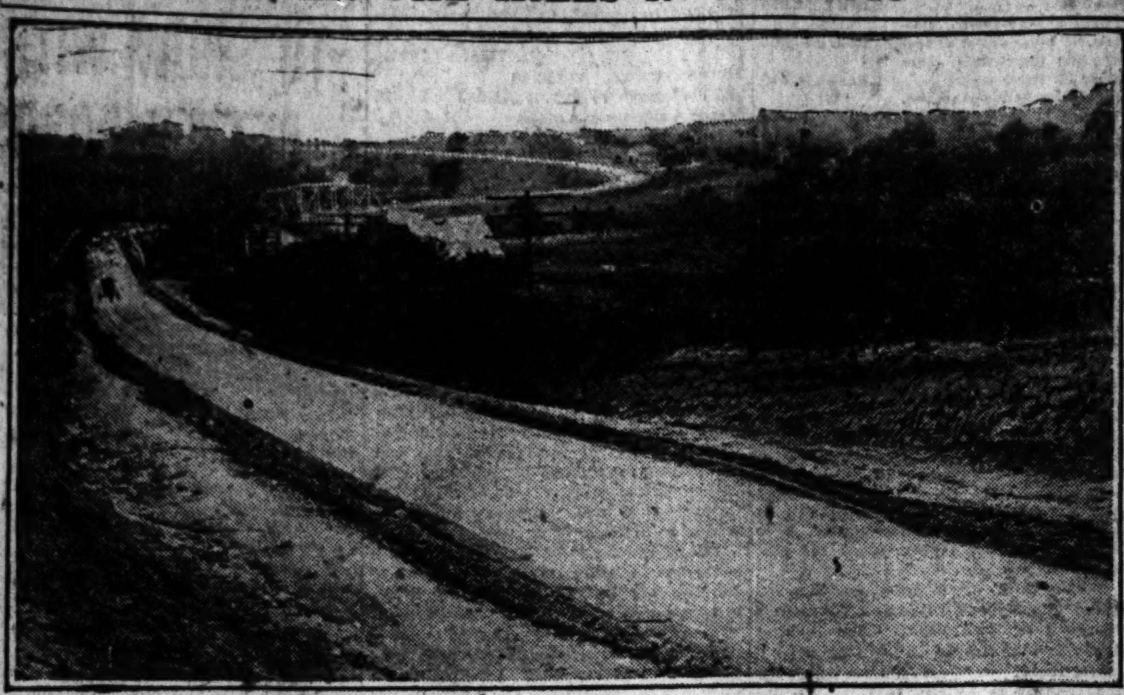
Shoulder to shoulder have the men who make things and the men who sell them stood through the onslaught of depression. Under the banner of optimism they maintained the line, and now they are marching forward to the goal they knew existed, although momentarily beyond grasp.

Such a struggle has seldom been witnessed as this battle of business. Trying days there were, ominous rumblings, but never did the attitude of these men change, and for their gameness every one may well be thankful, for they saved the country.

We are reëntering an era of demand as a reward for our refusal to concede an inch to the threat laden atmosphere of last fall. Benefits there will be and they will be shared by all communities, with the return of the call for the mechanic's skill, the miner's fuel and metals, the swinging of the woodman's ax, and all others who contribute raw materials.

The "All's Well" beacon is not far in advance and we are approaching it with the same formation that withstood the danger sign.

OVER THE HILLS IN ILLINOIS



Snake hill, famous and fatal stretch of Illinois state highway No. 10, west of Decatur, took toll of many lives in the old 'mud age.' Today it looks and 'rides' like this, thanks to the Illinois campaign for paved roads.

NEEDS OF OWNER GOVERN MAKING OF CARS TODAY

The 1922 automobile show is proving of unusual interest to owners because manufacturers have been studying, not only what the public will buy, but what the public wants. The experienced owner is the high court this year—he has owned and driven cars, experienced what they will and will not do, what they lack, and what he would like to see them possess.

This thought has been the ideal the manufacturers have had before them. They made it the ideal because, if attained, they believed the industry would measure up to the responsibility it assumed when it made the automobile a necessity.

ILLINOIS LEADS IN HIGHWAY DESIGN, OLDER DECLARES

BY CLIFFORD OLDER.

[Chief Illinois Highway Engineer.]

Illinois not only has attained a leading place among the states of the union as a road building state, but also has attained leadership in the matter of the scientific design and construction of paved trunk line highways.

In 1921 only one state—Pennsylvania—led Illinois in the construction of modern high type pavements, Pennsylvania having built 670 miles and Illinois 412 miles. New York was next with 347 miles, followed closely by Wisconsin with 340 miles. For 1922 Illinois has adopted the slogan of 1,000 additional miles of road paved and ready for traffic.

With money for road construction that had been made available by the passage of the $60,000,000 road bond issue act, it was considered of extreme importance that "guess work" be eliminated from pavement design.

Bates Experimental Road.

With this in mind the construction of an experimental road near Springfield was undertaken. This is known as the Bates experimental road. It was started in 1920 and finished during the summer of 1921. The work of completion, and the subsequent investigations which have taken place, and which will be supplemented by running trucks over the road next spring, was indorsed by Gov. Small.

The Bates road is about two miles in length, and includes sixty-three sections, each approximately 200 feet long and representing all types of modern pavements, several thicknesses of each type being used so that when trucks are operated over the road with increasing loads, the capacity of each section, measured in terms of weight and numbers of trucks, will be plainly obvious.

Outlines Research Work.

Although the truck loading of this road has not yet taken place, the research work carried out by the department thus far indicates clearly just what may be expected of each type and each thickness. Already many matters of great interest to engineers and of vital importance to the tax payers and the road users, which have not heretofore been known, have been determined.

For example: Heretofore it has been assumed that by means of tile drains, the foundation soil under a pavement may be kept dry. The Bates road test shows that such drains were practically useless. Rigid pavements, such as concrete and brick on a concrete base, are not fixed and rigid as the casual observer commonly believes, but are in constant motion even though no wagons or trucks may be moved over them. Such pavements lengthen and shorten due to changes in temperature; they stretch and shrink laterally due to the same causes.

Tells of New Design.

More important to the engineer, however, is the fact discovered by the Illinois division of highways that the unequal heating and cooling of the top as compared with the bottom surface of the pavement as the temperature of the air changes, causes the pavement slab to curl up at the edges at night to such an extent as to lift the edges entirely off the foundation soil. In the day time the reverse is true, when the center of the pavement is likely to be lifted entirely free from the foundation.

As a result of these investigations, I believe that Illinois has been enabled to design pavements having practically double the strength of the designs heretofore used, and yet at a saving in cost of approximately $1,500 per mile.

THE GASOLINE TAX.

An added tax of from 1 cent to 3 cents on gasoline is now imposed on motor vehicles in fourteen states in the Union.

MUST ECONOMIZE ON FEDERAL AID, CHIEF ASSERTS

BY THOMAS H. MAC DONALD.

[Chief of U. S. Bureau of Public Roads.]

January of all the months is dedicated by business to the inventory, the analysis of profit and loss, casting up of accounts. It is not so much a custom as a necessity. Private business could not succed long without striking a balance sheet to govern the conduct of the operations.

That the varied activities and their attendant expenditures of a people governing themselves must be able to stand up under keen scrutiny and each one justify itself or be eliminated or be materially reduced, is strikingly shown by the strength of the support from the public for the budget plan adopted to control the financial affairs of the federal government. A balance sheet has been set up which adjusts the outgo to the income. Further the proportions of the income to be devoted to the several purposes have been and are being carefully weighed in a comparative sense to adjust them so fairly as may be possible to each other.

Problems of Economy.

There is the universal demand for economy which must be met. There is the insistent demand for the lowering of taxes which must be heeded. These same facts apply to local, state, and federal expenditures and taxes. On the other hand, there is the unemployment situation, the competitive period ahead, the demand and necessity for internal improvements.

The following is a résumé of funds available and sources of revenue for the government highway improvements:

1. Funds available:

Year.	Total expenditures, approx.
1904	$ 59,527,000
1914	240,263,000
1917	279,915,000
1918	286,101,000
1919	389,455,000
1920	500,000,000
1921	600,000,000
1922	720,000,000

Seven hundred and twenty million dollars is the estimated sum which has been made available, but subject to conditions and limitations that will materially reduce the total which is actually expended.

Sources of revenues:

On the basis of the estimated total highway expenditures for the year 1921, the sources of this fund are approximately as follows:

Motor vehicle revenues	19%
State road bonds	7
Local road bonds	33
State taxes and appropriations	13
Federal aid	14
County, township, dist. taxes and ass.	14
	100

Draws His Conclusions.

The conclusions are self-evident:

1. During the period 1910-1921, the potential number of motor vehicles demanding highway service increased more than 1,200 per cent. Our actual expenditures for construction and maintenance increased about 400 per cent.

2. During the period 1910-1914, motor vehicles increased more than 1,100 per cent, highway expenditures about 140 per cent.

3. During the period 1914-1921, motor vehicles increased about 700 per cent, and highway expenditures about 260 per cent of the 1910 figures.

Westcott Adds New Model First Showing in Chicago

Rowe, Young & Cooley, 3937 Washington boulevard, Westcott distributors, have on display for the first time at the Chicago automobile show the new series of Westcott cars, model A-44.

Power Right Now

POWER at low speeds. Power under adverse conditions. Power in cold weather, after the long stop at the curb. Power for instant application when called upon. Power when you want it most.

Such power is true flexibility. It gives riding comfort to the passengers and relieves the driver of that sense of insecurity that follows the attempt to stay in high gear. It gives such acceleration that you are free to slow down as you wish.

Such power, and the application of it to the driving wheels without clutch or gear shift, is what the Stanley means to the motorist in the every-day use of his car.

Come to our salesroom and inspect the new Stanley. Ride in one—drive it yourself. You will find the method of operation simpler, more obvious, more positive in results, and requiring less mental concentration, than you had ever thought possible in a motor car. It makes driving easier in easy road conditions and vastly easier in hard conditions.

These cars are on display at the Automobile Show, Exhibit C-6, Armory.

Why I Designed The Wills Sainte Claire

By C. HAROLD WILLS

FOR years I wanted to design an ideal and practical motor car, one that would be light, easy to drive (especially for women) durable, low hung, with extraordinary road clearance, simple and attractive in design.

With this in view and backed by my knowledge of metallurgy, efficiency in production, manufacture and inspection, I designed the Wills Sainte Claire.

In its construction we have used Mo-lyb-den-um Steel and all other materials of the highest quality.

We started with the conviction that weight and wheel base have nothing whatever to do with the performance of a motor car. We know that perfection of balance and weight distribution determine that.

We developed a new type of motor tremendously powerful, eight cylinders, V-type, set at 60 degree angle, with overhead camshafts and valves, eliminating belts and chains by the use of perfected silent gears.

There is probably no product of the human hands and brain in which the quality of the unseen things plays so vital a part as in the value and life of a motor car.

The experience of driving a Wills Sainte Claire is more convincing than anything I can tell you. The thousands of Wills Sainte Claire miles—safe miles—and the satisfaction of its many owners deserve your consideration.

GOTHAM TRIES NEW SYSTEM OF TRAFFIC GUIDES

All Signals to Be Set from Times Square.

BY PERLEY H. BOONE.

New York, Jan. 28. — [Special.] — New York's jammed theatrical district is undergoing a unique traffic test.

Dr. John F. Harriss, special deputy police commissioner, has begun experimenting with powerful signal lights which will be installed from week to week until traffic in most of Manhattan will be simultaneously stopped and started by red, green, and yellow lights, all operated by a single switch in Times square.

The lights tested last week are mounted on the Grand Central Terminal and at 14th street and 4th avenue to control traffic on 4th avenue. Signal lamps of the same type will be installed in Times square and later strung along Broadway from 34th street to 110th street. Similar lights controlling east and west traffic will next be placed on the 6th avenue elevated structure controlling cross-town traffic from 9th to 3d avenue, and between 23d and 59th streets.

Operated from Central Point.

All these are to be operated from a single traffic headquarters in Times square or by some mutual control exercised by the Times square station and at 5th avenue and 42d street. The installation of this system will proceed rapidly during the next two or three months, according to Commissioner Harriss.

When it is fully equipped it will mean that a traffic dictator, seated in the center of the city, will press a button causing scores of red lights to flash and halt tens of thousands of vehicles at once on the most crowded streets of Manhattan, while allowing thousands of other vehicles and many thousands of pedestrians to proceed.

"When the centralized system is all in operation, much time will be saved, both for the pedestrian and the motorist," said Dr. Harriss. "It will mean that automobile drivers will no longer be started at one corner and stopped at the next one in any of the streets of the city.

Keeps 'em Going.

"The signal remains on in 5th avenue now from one half a minute to three quarters of a minute. If all traffic signals are synchronized throughout the city, automobiles will be allowed to proceed uninterruptedly for a regular number of blocks after each signal.

"It may prove in practice that the pause of a half minute or longer, which is in use on 5th avenue and in Times square, is too long for streets where the traffic is lighter. If so, the periods will be made shorter. It will be possible, however, to continue them under some centralized control, in all probability. All traffic questions have to be worked out on the streets, of course, and plans will be modified and improved from time to time as experience suggests."

The new signal lamp is a powerful electric one like the searchlight which was placed on the Columbia Yacht club at 86th street and the North river.

Test Out Light.

Commissioner Harriss and other traffic experts in a recent test took positions at 73d street and Riverside, and at other points along the water front.

"We had been waiting for a foggy day," said the commissioner, "to see how this type of light stood the test of thick, hazy weather. We found we could see it very distinctly at a distance of more than 6,000 feet and it proved that it will serve our purposes excellently. It is also an economical type of lamp.

"We installed one on top of the Grand Central Terminal, looking down 4th avenue. A similar one is to be placed at 14th street and 4th avenue.

"Both of them have to be raised to a considerable height to be visible this distance, nearly a mile and a half, because of the Murray Hill rise, which would cut off the view of a lamp placed at the ordinary level. When these two lamps are in use they save several minutes for motorists along this street. They also prevent accidents, which have been numerous here because of the traffic congestion without sufficient control.

Additional lights of this kind will be installed on Broadway from 34th to 72d street and later to 110th street. Traffic will also be controlled by these lamps within two or three months along the Grand concourse in the Bronx, where there is great need of such control."

Price Reductions Flood Show

The reductions being made in the prices of automobiles are shown by the following table, which is as of Jan. 19, 1922, and the latest compilation available. It is presented through the courtesy of Motor Age.

The prices for roadsters, seven passenger touring cars, coupes, and special types are not given.

Low Priced Cars Popular with Public and Makers

Rapid strides in design and construction of standardized low priced cars, and the popularity of this field both in sales and manufacture are indicated by the number of cars in this class now on display at the auto show!

AUTO LICENSES INCREASE 50,000 IN CITY IN 1921

BY AGE ZYLSTRA.

The automobile industry is leading the country back to normalcy.

This is no idle assertion—figures do not lie. There are many incidents connected with the industry that point conclusively in that direction. Just one item, and the biggest, is the manufacturers' courage in making continued reductions in prices, believing that such is the "straight road"—and results in the way of increased business have demonstrated that they know what they were about.

However, the thing that demonstrates the leadership of the automotive industry most forcibly is the increased number of motor vehicles operated in Chicago during the year 1921 as compared with the previous year.

137,850 Passenger Cars.

The following is the number of licenses issued for the two years:

Class of vehicle—	[8 mos.] May 1,'20, to Dec.31,'20.	[12 mos.] Jan.1'21, to Dec.31,'21.
One horse vehicle	18,814	19,582
Two horse vehicle	7,583	6,818
Three horse vehicle	191	137
Four or more horse vehicle	3	3
Motorcycle	2,576	2,934
Passenger automobile, electric, 35 horse power or less	83,026	132,901
Passenger automobile, more than 35 horse power	3,644	4,849
Automobile delivery wagon, capacity 1 ton or less	13,516	18,429
Automobile truck, bus or coach, capacity more than one ton	6,316	10,810
Demonstrators	707	1,233
Total motor driven	112,785	171,155

Moneys collected:

May 1, 1920, to Dec. 31, 1920 [eight months] $1,046,723.60

Jan. 1, 1921, to Dec. 31, 1921 [twelve months] 2,101,335.00

Note—Due to change in fiscal year on vehicle licenses, those issued commencing May 1, 1920, were for eight months and the fees only two-thirds of the regular annual rates. Accordingly in order to make a fair comparison we should add 50% to the amount collected for period commencing May 1, 1920 [$1,570,085.40], and compare it with the total amount collected for the year 1921 [$2,101,335.00]. On this basis it will be found that there was an increase of about 34% in wheel tax collections for the year 1921.

While in a great measure the increase is due to an unusual diligence on the part of the police, aided by the larger license tag, in apprehending any delinquents, there can be no question but that it is chiefly due to the increasing use of motor vehicles, both for pleasure and business purposes.

It is astonishing when one considers what strides there has been in the use of motor vehicles and how it is displacing horse drawn vehicles. The following comparison, with the number of licenses issued for the year 1914, is indicative:

	1914.	1921.
Horse drawn vehicles (all classes)	51,942	26,535
Motor vehicles (all classes other than motorcycles)	32,360	168,221

Show Initiative, Courage.

The initiative and courage of the industry as a whole during the last few years has been reflected in their business, as evidenced by the above tables, and one cannot but admire them and hope that they will prove an inspiration to men in other lines of industry, that they, too, may realize that basically business conditions are sound and that this country is going ahead. True there has been a temporary depression in business because of readjustment since the war, but this has been withstood and everything now points to improvement of conditions—in fact, it is time business men as a whole realized it.

There is no doubt but that the automotive industry is in a position to immediately realize on the improving business conditions. The reductions in prices they have made, together with the changes in models of cars and their many improvements and refinements, should prompt purchases by both old and new owners.

THEY ALL RIDE IN NEW YORK.

New York state has 721,488 automobiles, or one to every fourteen of its residents.

MOTOR DEMAND TO GROW WITH BETTER ROADS

That the speeding up of the good roads program by county, state, and national officials during 1922 will create added demand for motor vehicles was prophesied today by Henry Paulman, Pierce-Arrow distributor in Chicago.

"We have now completed approximately 1,000 miles of hard surface roads throughout Illinois," said Mr. Paulman. "Contracts have been let for an additional 500 miles, and between now and March 1 contracts will be let for another 500, making a construction program of 1,000 miles for 1922. This will mean an expenditure of $35,000,000.

"A section of model highway, as perfect as experts can devise, will be built in Lake county, Ind., thirty-seven miles south of Chicago, next year.

Specifications of New Road.

"The plans call for a section of road approximately one and three-quarters miles in length. The plans comprise forty feet width of reinforced concrete pavement, ten inches thick, laid in the center of a one hundred foot right of way, the outer twenty-five feet of which, on each side, will be landscaped and beautified under the direction of a Chicago landscape architect.

"There will be no open ditches, drainage being provided by submerged drain tile. A sidewalk is included for the safety of pedestrians, and the paved way will be illuminated by the most modern and economical system devised by the illuminating engineers. One bridge is included in the plan and it also will make provisions for foot passengers as well as providing a full forty feet of width for vehicular transportation.

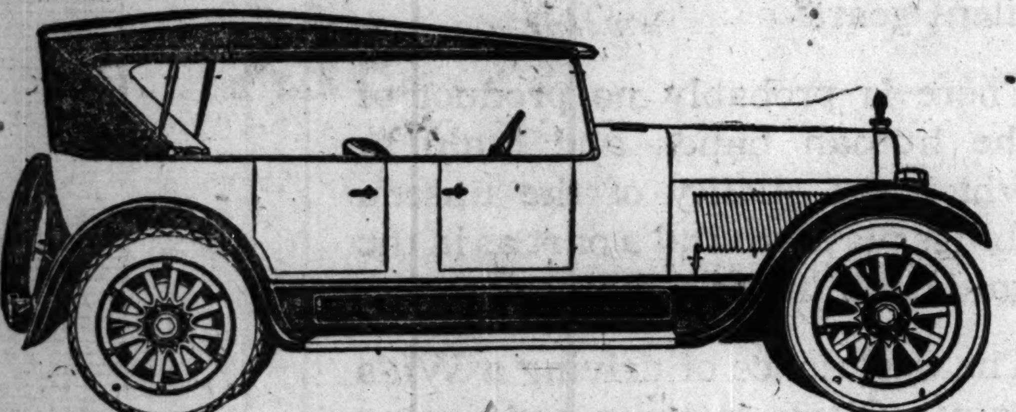
20,000 Over It a Day.

"The roadway is designed to represent the highest possible development needed on the heaviest traveled section of the most important highway in the United States. In designing the "ideal section," the association's technical committee had in mind an ultimate traffic volume of [illegible] vehicles per twenty-four hour day and assumed that 5,000 of these vehicles would be motor trucks, carrying freight.

Wear on Side Walls One Way to Burn Up Money

Running on car tracks, through deep ruts and against curbs in city streets brings wear on a part of the automobile tire least able to stand it. It has been found by Miller tire experts that to make the side wall stouter and heavier results in a deterioration of the carcass caused by internal heat generated when the car is in motion.

ANNOUNCING



Six Cylinder CASE Model X

A SUPERIOR CAR of medium size for the owner driver, the Case MODEL X, has many qualities which appeal to experienced motorists.

EXCEPTIONAL PERFORMANCE is evidenced by a speed range of from 2 to 70 miles per hour in high gear.

Economy of Operation is demonstrated by tests in which this car has traveled 22 miles on a gallon of gasoline.

Comfort and Safety at high speeds on all roads are afforded by low center of gravity; 122-inch wheel base; long, resilient springs mounted at ends of axle housing, and 4½-inch cord tires.

Low and symmetrical, every line suggesting swift and easy flight, the Case Model X is truly a superior car of medium size for owner drivers.

This new car is a fitting companion for our standard Model V line made in open and closed body types.

THE STURDY CASE

Spark-C tells you

A screw-driver won't

An expert garageman with a screw-driver cannot find all ignition troubles. Any man with a Spark-C can.

Spark-C instantly and positively tells you if a spark-plug is dead or alive; whether the spark is too small, too large, or just right. It tells you if the plug points have worn down, if they are too close, too dirty, or are functioning properly.

If there is anything the matter along the line from the spark-plugs to the distributor, coil, or magneto, Spark-C will find the trouble.

It's a wonderful instrument—precise, delicate in internal construction, certain in results, and yet made for a lifetime of use. Spark-C won't wear out. Much using doesn't hurt it in any way.

It is shaped for the job—made to be handled by anyone. There isn't a screw to turn or anything to adjust. Spark-C is long enough to keep the hand far away from the running engine, and in no case is the user in danger of receiving even the slightest shock.

Every motorist should have one to keep in the car for periodical use. Every man who has any need for an ignition-tester in cars, trucks, motorcycles, motorboats, airplanes—any electric-spark explosion-type engine — should have a Spark-C.

Spark-C tests all ignition systems, whether the current come from dry cells, storage battery, or magneto.

SOUTH-EASTERN ROAD CONFAB A SUCCESS—HAYES

Forms Body to Promote Better Highways.

BY CHARLES M. HAYES.
[President Chicago Motor Club.]

Good roads enthusiasts throughout the United States are greatly encouraged over the outcome of the southeastern roads conference at Jacksonville, Fla., Jan. 5 and 6.

CHARLES M. HAYES
[Gibson, Sykes & Fowler Photo.]

To those who could read between the lines it was apparent that more was accomplished at this meeting than has been accomplished at any other similar meeting in the country.

There were seven southern states represented, Kentucky, Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, and Florida.

Sectional Jealousies Taboo.

Sectional jealousies were thrown to the winds. The unlovely spectacle of one community fighting the other in its desire to get tourist business was decreed taboo, and in its place a spirit of coöperation was born which will mean much to the southern states themselves and also to the tourist who travels by automobile from the north to the south.

The truth about road conditions without any varnishing was demanded and a few weeks prior to the convention the chief of the Jacksonville Automobile club engineering department, Ken V. Goodson, made a record trip from Jacksonville to Chicago, which the Chicago Motor club and the Jacksonville Automobile club sponsored, for the purpose of gathering correct information on southern roads.

A report of this trip and a reproduction of the road map prepared by Goodson, was published some weeks ago in THE TRIBUNE. The result of the trip is that maps compiled by certain commercial interests with a thought to advertising only, will be junked, and the correct information will be given to the touring public.

Dixie Highway Preferable.

The report shows the Dixie highway to be preferable to the many short routes which have been promoted recently. Briefly the log goes by way of Danville, Indianapolis, Louisville, Nashville, Chattanooga, Atlanta, Macon, Waycross, and Jacksonville. The route from Jacksonville to Miami lies along the coast.

During the convention the need of through routes was emphasized and the road officials of the various states pledged themselves to a program which provided for the necessary work on interstate highways. The entire southeast is stirred up on the road question and it is certain that the year will not pass without big things being accomplished in this direction.

Novel Lighting Proves Valuable in West Parks

BY CHRISTIAN F. WIEHE.
[President West Park Board.]

The west Chicago park commissioners are glad to give an account of their stewardship and of the work accomplished and projected, but space will permit only the most general outline.

CHRISTIAN F. WIEHE.
[Moffett Photo.]

The present commissioners found, upon the assumption of their duties, many channels of improvement utterly neglected. Much laxness had been permitted in general, and particularly in enforcement of traffic rules; therefore attention was first given to that activity.

No drastic measures were taken, no arrests made, but a propaganda of education was inaugurated—circulars, advertising in daily and weekly journals, billboard advertising, changed monthly along all boulevards and parkways—the most effective of which was the railway semaphore signal calling attention to "Stop at Boulevards—Do Not Speed—Head Lights—Tail Lights."

This advertising campaign was effective and order was brought out of chaos. Accidents were reduced without hard feelings on the part of motorists.

Reorganize Police.

The police department has been reorganized and is receiving special instruction as to the duties of officers. A drillmaster puts the men through military drill and target practice. Crossing men are stationed in the middle of streets, directing traffic. All men are instructed that polite and courteous treatment of citizens must be observed.

To further insure the safety of pedestrians and motorists, the board increased its motorcycle squad from thirteen to thirty men, who continuously travel the thirty-three miles of boulevards and the parks.

STOP
SLOW

SWINGING LIGHT.

TRAFFIC CONTROL.

The motorcycle squad, with side car attachment, has been found effective in handling the crowds attending the ice skating events at all of the larger parks. A total of from ten to twenty men with motorcycles handle and regulate a crowd of from 10,000 to 25,000 people in a quiet, orderly manner where it formerly required 100 men. Skaters perform without interruption by the crowds. The motorcycles add amusement by having competitive races each machine being equipped with chains to prevent skidding.

Numerous improvements in streets and boulevards have been made. Many corners have been cut on boulevards to widen and take out dangerous curves where collisions frequently occurred.

Red lights in the form of mushrooms, placed at curves and at prominent street car intersections, have been installed for the protection of the motorists. Records of the west park system show that a very large percentage of safety islands were knocked down from time to time, and that in many cases the motorist who knocked the island down escaped and the park system was not able to collect damages therefor.

Since the mushroom light has replaced the safety island no accidents have occurred. At street car intersections, where narrow corners make impossible the erection of an island, the mushroom light sets nicely. Its sloping sides make it possible for the cars to strike it without any serious damage. If there is any possibility of being obliged to strike the light the motorist can do so without damage to his car.

SAFETY HINTS.

There were a number of dangerous places where the following signs were put up. This is the swinging red light installed in Garfield park. Prior to the installation of this unique red swinging sign at Jackson boulevard and Hamlin avenue accidents averaged one in two days. Since the installation not an accident has occurred.

Another innovation to aid the motorist is the automatic signal light which flashes GO and STOP. This light is located at the intersection of Jackson and Ashland boulevards, Ashland and Washington boulevards, Sacramento and Washington boulevards.

New Lighting Installed.

Eighty mushroom lights have been installed on various boulevard intersections and at street railway crossings. Many new lights were installed at Douglas park, Franklin boulevard, Franklin park, Garfield park, Humboldt park, Humboldt boulevard, Jackson boulevard, Logan square, Logan boulevard, Marshall boulevard, Oakley boulevard, Palmer square, Roosevelt road, Sacramento boulevard, Union park, and Washington boulevard.

Direction signs are being installed on all the west side boulevards. Each park will also have a sign bearing its name, which will be illuminated at night. Similar signs will be placed at the boulevard intersections, pointing to the parks to which the boulevards lead.

These signs are now in preparation and are the first of the kind that have ever been installed on the stretts of the city of Chicago.

CAR INSURANCE PUT ON HI COST LIST BY THIEVES

Owners of motor cars whose insurance has expired within the last few weeks and who have applied for a renewal, have ascertained not only that the prevailing rates are considerably higher than a year ago but that many privileges formerly allowed in automobile insurance policies are no longer obtainable.

The most radical change is that tires and other accessories are no longer included in the regular theft insurance unless the entire car should be lost or destroyed. Formerly this form of insurance included minor losses of anything except tools, rugs, or clothing.

It is also impossible to obtain what has been known as the valued form of policy for fire or theft. Until this change went into effect it was possible by paying a somewhat higher rate to insure for the full value of the car with accessories, say $2,000, and if the car were lost or stolen during the year the full insurance value would be paid.

Nonvalued Policy.

All of the insurance companies are now writing only what is known as the nonvalued policy, and if the car is completely lost the payment is based upon the appraised value of the car at the time of loss.

Greater insistence is being placed by the insurance companies upon depreciation. Under the nonvalued form, for a car insured for $2,000, if stolen within six months, the company may appraise the value at $1,500, regarding it as a second hand machine which has had six months' use.

Advanced 25% to 40%.

As a general average for all makes of cars, full insurance, including theft and fire, collision and liability, has advanced from 25 to 40 per cent over that of a year ago. Within the city limits the rate is highest. A lower rate is given for suburban localities, and a still lower rate for country areas.

The greatest advance on any particular make of car is seen in the Fords, the rate being about 100 per cent higher than last year. Nearly all of the higher priced and moderate priced cars obtain a considerable reduction from the regular rates by attaching some of the devices approved by the insurance companies. By using one of the several theft locks approved by the companies a reduction of 15 per cent is obtained. The use of a bumper in front also gives a lower rate, amounting in many cases to $30 or $40, while the bumper may be purchased for less than half that sum. A bumper on the rear of the car gives a still further reduction.

Home, Sweet Home

In Your Wanderings, Stop at East Hampton and See Why It Was Written.

A glimpse of the little house at East Hampton, Long Island, that inspired John Howard Payne's famous song, and one can easily understand the longing for home that he felt.

The sturdy colonial farmhouse with its friendly doorway typifies the home that one dreams of. Ancient vines have softened the severe walls of the house, weathered to a silvery gray, and the windows, with their many panes, seem to beckon the visitor to spacious rooms within, where mellowed mahogany and old pewter reflect the glow of open fires.

Fortunately enough, the house is now owned by G. H. Buek, an antiquarian and collector of note, who has endeavored to preserve the place in its original simplicity. Unlike so many enthusiasts who restore old landmarks too extensively, Mr. Buek has done nothing to mar the homestead and the house today is just as it was more than 200 years ago.

TRIP TO FLORIDA ROUGH IN SPOTS BUT ENJOYABLE

While a motor trip all the way to Florida may have terrors for the motorist who declines to rough it over anything but concrete and tarvia, there is no reason for holding back on the jaunt to Pinehurst via Indianapolis and Washington, D. C., according to Henry MacNair, publisher of the Atlantic Motorway.

And when one considers the advantages of the open road, the really excellent stopping places en route, and the interesting points to be observed, the arguments are all in favor of a motor trip, which, after all, costs no more for a party of five than by train, he says.

The truth about road conditions between Chicago and Florida is that they were never better between Chicago and Pinehurst, and were never worse between Pinehurst and Jacksonville. There is no difficulty whatever in making the trip to Pinehurst if one uses the old national trail across the country.

Good to Richmond.

To Richmond the road is in better shape than ever before, the concrete stretch across Chopawamsic swamp having been completed and the last ten miles into Richmond being also excellent macadam and concrete just finished.

A new concrete and gravel road has been completed through Stafford which decreases the distance so that now one may make the 131 miles between the two cities easily in six hours.

In one day one may go all the way to Pinehurst, a distance of 238 miles, or the trip may be broken at Henderson or Raleigh over roads which are about nine-tenths smooth sandclay and gravel. From Raleigh to Pinehurst the excellent road extends for eight miles, and then becomes good dirt and gravel to Sanford. At this point a short route recently completed by the state runs over to Carthage and Pinehurst, saving some distance and a great deal of time.

Rough—Pinehurst to Camden.

From Pinehurst to Camden the road is very rough. From Camden to Augusta it is somewhat better. From Augusta, no matter which route one chooses, he is likely to get into difficulties. Although the new bridge across the Altamaha below Savannah has been completed, the road is very bad from the bridge to Yules and in wet weather is almost impassable.

From Yules to Jacksonville the road is shell and brick, and, being then in Florida, the tourist will encounter no further difficulty in going either to Miami or to Tampa.

BOY, HOWDY!

Yankee Engineering Shows the World Its Heels on Land, Sea, and in the Air.

When Albert Acosta flew his Curtiss navy racer to victory and a new world's air record in the Pulitzer cup race at Omaha recently, he scored the third great victory of 1921 for American engineering skill. Jimmy Murphy's triumph in the French Grand Pri at Le Mans at the wheel of a Duesenberg racing car opened the year's winnings for the Yanks in mechanical competition. Then Gar Wood's Miss America boats eclipsed all previous performances and Acosta's aerial coup bettered the former record, established in France but a month previously.

Acosta covered the 153.5 mile course at a speed of 176.6 miles per hour. Faster time in the air has been made, but not on a closed course in actual competition. He exceeded the old record, set in Europe, by more than three miles an hour.

AUTO INDUSTRY 'SAFE AND SANE,' W.C.DURANT SAYS

The automobile industry has adjusted itself to the new world conditions, has gotten down to a safe and sane basis, and is ready to enter into a period of prosperity and development hitherto undreamed of, says William C. Durant, president of Durant Motors, Inc.

"When this country reached the end of its riot of post-war extravagance and found that it must rein in expenses or go bankrupt, the automobile industry faced a real problem. It had to justify its existence.

"The automobile industry has faced the problem manfully and solved it during the last year. Automobile prices have been pretty thoroughly liquidated. By reducing weight and applying the best engineering principles to construction, a more economical car has been evolved. The motor of today is essentially an economy car and admirably suited to the need of the hour.

"In the years ahead, this country is due for a tremendous expansion. One of the gravest effects will be the taxing of present transportation facilities to the utmost. Our railroad system is admittedly in a bad condition and executives of large systems state that it will be a long time before railroads can get back on their feet. The motor car will have to fill the breach.

"The motor truck has demonstrated its ability as a common carrier. In the years to come it will have to carry a larger and larger percentage of the country's freight. Its outstanding economy in short hauls and its perfect flexibility make it an ideal carrier."

In the New Models Studebaker Again Establishes Its Right to Leadership!

1921 is past. It was a Studebaker year. 1922 looms ahead—uncertain in most things, but as certain in one as tomorrow's sunrise. It will be a Studebaker year.

For the new models continue the intrinsic values that made 1921 a Studebaker year, PLUS the refinements suggested by another year of fine motor car building.

Beautiful new bodies have been designed and built complete by Studebaker.

Refinements have been made in equipment features that add to the comfort and the convenience of driver and passenger.

Refinements have been made in mechanical details that make driving easier and the shifting of gears an operation as silent as it is simple.

We are certain that the new models will maintain Studebaker leadership. We KNOW that you will be interested in them. We urge you to see them at the Automobile Show this week.

Look for These Features in the New Special-Six at the Show

50-H. P., 3½x5-inch motor with detachable head
Improved clutch makes the shifting of gears unusually quiet and easy
Intermediate transmission
119-inch wheelbase
Five passenger capacity
New body, of unusual roominess; built complete by Studebaker; finished in a deep, rich blue with refinements which make it even more beautiful than last year's model
Cowl ventilator controlled from dash
Genuine leather upholstery
Large beveled plate glass window in rear of finely tailored top
Instruments, including 8-day clock, attractively grouped on dash
Convenient tonneau extension light
Built-in thief-proof Yale transmission lock, ignition lock and lock on tool compartment in left front door—operated with same key
Parking lights in lower corners of one-piece, rain-proof windshield
Windshield wiper
32x4-inch cord tires

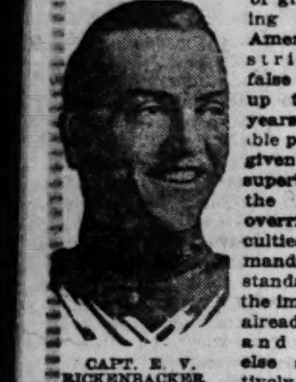
U. S. ACE TELLS STORY OF ACID TESTS IN WAR

Can't Fool Public Now, "Rick" Avers.

BY CAPT. E. RICKENBACKER.
[Sales Director Rickenbacker Motor Co.]

War—wasteful, useless, terrible as it certainly is—has performed a number of great and lasting services for Americans. It has stripped away false values built up through the years of comfortable peace. It has given the nation a superb confidence, the kind that overrides all difficulties and demands higher standards because the impossible has already been done and everything else seems relatively easy; and it has "hard boiled" us all in our attitude toward commercial life.



CAPT. E. V. RICKENBACKER.

I have been asked what affect the war has had in the world of automobiles. There is only one answer. It has made the modern motor car. And, what is more, its influence will continue to dominate the motor field for many years to come. The manufacturer who fails to make a car that will withstand the super-test of war in these early years of peace is not going to remain in the picture, that's all.

Pictures a Big Race.

It is hard to put an actual war experience into words, and to draw conclusions from it. I used to think, in the old racing days, that the peak of exertion had been reached when the track had been turned for the last fifty miles. Then the arms, the eyes, and the brain wanted to quit. It seemed absolutely impossible to hold the foot throttle down a second longer. Track, car, speed, mad fans, and the awful field of competitors all seemed blended in a nightmare monster. Nothing seemed real except the banked turns that kept sweeping on ahead, and the knowledge that the wheel must be swung over to keep the car on the course.

"That is the time when a man feels real loneliness. He is horribly alone. No one can help him. Every one seems against him and the big thought is, "what's the use?"

"Then a car creeps up and tries to pass. The nightmare vanishes. Loneliness is forgotten and the man at the wheel knows but one thought—"will the old boat stand up? Will it go through with this?"

"That is the fundamental thing, the acid test, the moment all of the years spent in laboratories and workshops have gone for. If the automobile fails then it is absolutely worthless and the whole game is lost.

Acid Test in War.

"That, too, is war as I have felt it and as all of the boys who went through the acid test and depended on their equipment at the supreme moment, felt it. We all lost our identity when we faced this horrible nightmare that swept over the world and ended three short years ago. We were stripped of our identity just as we were stripped of all the illusions and false values built up through lives of selfishness.

I, for one, went through a great part of my service feeling like a spectator and wondering at many of the things that happened to me. Every one knew that time had stopped its march. The world and life were things far away, vague, indistinct. We worked minute by minute, "getting by" and performing the job that happened to be on hand. We didn't want to think. We wanted to sleep in the mud, but we wanted above all things to win, to get it all over, and to live long enough just for that.

In the air, as on the track, everything depended on the motor. Training meant a great deal. Nerves had to be eliminated. The body had to be forgotten—but the engine must perform above all else. Down on the ground the big motors were called on every day for work that no motor had ever attempted. Their performance meant life and death, not alone to thousands of men, but to the fight.

Found the Weak Parts.

The tests they were put to every hour of the day brought out every weakness and cut away from them all dishonesty of construction. When the war ended, we knew what a motor car and an airplane motor should be, and the world knew, too.

This is the new standard that manufacturers of today must meet or step down and out, and this is the standard we have tried to meet and think we have gained in our six cylinder job.

In conclusion I'd like to say that I feel a personal satisfaction in joining up with men who realize these standards and have manufactured automobiles long enough to make good on their convictions. Both B. F. Everett and Walter Flanders have grown up in the automobile game. The remainder of our new organization are men of the same type. We are all out to make good with a public that won't be kidded any more about automobiles.

Gardner Urges Use of Heavy Tires on Cars

"Tire mileage must be figured in the cost of automobile upkeep," Russell E. Gardner Jr., vice president of the Gardner Motor company, Inc., St. Louis, asserts. "It is no small item and that is one reason why all cars should be equipped with all-weather tread cord tires and heavy tourist inner tubes."

D. C. M'CORD NEW VICE PRESIDENT OF STANDARD CO.

The Standard Motor Car company has been formed by a group of New York banking interests in combination with the Standard Steel Car company of Pittsburgh. Don C. McCord has resigned as vice president of the Bankers Commercial Security Company, Inc., to accept the vice presidency of the new Standard company, with direct supervision of distribution and finance.

"We firmly believe that the automobile business is finally getting down to a business basis and that with the direct control of our materials at all stages of production we are enabled to produce a car at a price which is much less than we could do otherwise," said Mr. McCord.

"Because of the demands of the buying public it will be necessary for the big, strong companies here as well as in Europe to work along the same lines, to manufacture in every sense of the word, and, as much, not be dependent on outside parts makers for the price and quality of their products."

Dorris Chicago Company Changes Corporate Name

L. J. Sherland, who for the last three years has been president of the Dorris Chicago company, announced yesterday that the name of his firm has been changed to the Middle States Motors corporation. Mr. Sherland succeeds himself as president of the new corporation. Greater resources along with additional capital and an entirely new board of directors and new managers in all departments have been made. The new company will continue as distributors of the Dorris and Columbia cars for Illinois, part of Iowa, Indiana, and Wisconsin.

STORING THE CAR.

When preparing to store the car for the winter it is generally understood that the water system should be drained and the fuel system likewise. On the other hand, the oil compartments in motor, clutch, gearset, and rear axle should not be drained. The oil remaining in these parts actually preserves them during the period of innocuous desuetude.

Chevrolet Lowest Priced Car at Automobile Show

Of the many makes of cars on exhibition at the auto show, the lowest in price sells for $525. It is the Chevrolet model represented by three body styles—touring, roadster, and light delivery wagon. Chevrolet has also the distinction of exhibiting the lowest priced closed car models, both sedan and coupe which sell for $875.

YANKEE DESIGNS SET STANDARD OF WORLD'S MOTORS

BY A. R. ERSKINE.
[President the Studebaker Corporation.]

In discussing the subject of the trend of design, production must be coupled with it, because the high standard of the present day product is due as much to progress in production methods as it is to design. Designers must be aided by metallurgists, chemists, and production engineers in the selections of material and the manufacture of motor cars.

The designer or engineer does not live who singly can make all decisions affecting the creation and production of an automobile, and hence, large staffs of numerous technicians are employed by the big manufacturers to solve engineering and production problems.

These men of the automobile industry have made remarkable discoveries, inventions, and applications of science in the dvelopment of combustion engines, carbon steels, alloy metals, storage batteries, and motor cars generally, in the past ten years. Their genius has revolutionized many practices in the steel industry, machine shop, foundry, forge, stamping, and paint trades, and the American motor car has been the beneficiary.

U. S. Sets Standard.

The evolution of ten years has put the American motor car upon a pinnacle that sets the standard of the world.

At the recent automobile shows in London and Paris, numerous American details were quite in evidence in European cars. Such accepted things as cast en bloc motors, detachable heads, electric starting, battery ignition, etc., are just being adopted abroad, and additional proof of American leadership is found in the increasing preference our motor cars receive in foreign countries, including even the home markets of European industrial countries.

American motor cars now rank first in value of U. S. exports of manufactured articles, and half our exports are to Great Britain and her dominions.

The popular idea that airplane motor production taught our automobile engineers and manufacturers much about engines for motor cars is quite erroneous. The requirements of motors for airplanes are quite different from those for automobiles. Airplane motors must be very light and very powerful, with capacities ranging from 250-450 h. p., while noise is not considered objectionable.

The Liberty motor weighed about two pounds per h. p. developed, but 100 flying hours would wear it out, so that it must be rebuilt.

No New Methods.

There were no new methods used in the designing, casting, forging, machining and assembling of this motor.

The first essential in automobile motors is durability, and hence they weigh about ten pounds per h. p. developed. Great power is unnecessary, and hence the range is from 30 to 60 h. p., and quietness is imperative, as nobody likes to ride in an automobile with a noisy engine. The manufacturing methods for airplane motors are common practice in the production of automobile motors.

In the designing of a motor car, two fundamental requirements are observed. Mechanical excellence is no more important than artistic appearance, and hence the chassis and body must emerge into a harmonious whole. The appearance of an automobile, especially as to its body and color of painting, is, in fact, frequently the determining point in a sale, because many persons buy automobiles which in their eyes are good looking, without knowing anything about their mechanical design and construction. Dependence in such cases is placed in the reputation of the manufacturer.

New Designs Preëminent.

In quality, stylish appearance, comfort, and completeness, the automobile bodies of today are ahead of anything yet done in the industry.

In the matter of chassis design, no important departures have been made from the accepted standards of the past few years, although refinements have been adopted in numerous directions with the object of improving efficiency. So successful have been the results, in motor construction especially, that present day motors are infinitely more efficient than those of previous years. They burn poorer gasoline without trouble, give greater mileage, vibrate less, are quieter, and are more durable.

In motor design, six cylinder engines lead in popularity in the United States. Many engineers and manufacturers believe that, considered from all angles, this type of motor is most efficient and economical in first cost, upkeep, performance and comfort.

Automobile Industry Ranks First by Volume

The following table shows the relative comparison of the automobile business to others:

'KEEP WITHIN THE LAW' IS ILLINOIS MOTOR CLUB IDEA

BY J. A. CARTER.
[Manager Illinois Automobile club.]

General service of value to all motorists, as well as direct to its individual members, is the aim of the Illinois Automobile club. On this foundation it has gathered 10,000 members into its fold in a little more than tw years, and is now making plans for membership drive that will contin until 100,000 is the total.

The club was launched at a meeting of twenty-four men at the Lexington hotel in 1919, and its growth has been steady and continuous.

From its inception the club has fought legislation inequitable to the motorist, "speed traps," and dishonest officials, having succeeded in the abolishment of a notorious speed trap at Posen, Ill. At the same time, it has worked to establish a sentiment among all motorists that the laws are meant to be obeyed. Its legal department never has gone into court in behalf of any motorist who had flagrantly violated the law.

"Let us make a resolution to keep within the law and observe the rules of the road. Let us put the proper value on a human life and, above all, don't brand every town that seeks to make you observe the law as a 'speed trap.' The laws were made for the protection of human life. They were designed to be obeyed, not broken."

Information on routes and roads are furnished by the touring department of the club. A corps of correspondents covering Illinois and surrounding states keeps this department posted on the condition of the various main highways during the touring season. Most of the routes between Chicago and the principal cities of the middle west have been worked out.

ROSES FOR MILADY.

Women are found to use more care and have fewer accidents while operating motor vehicles than men. They, too, are credited with showing more courtesy on the highways.

H. C. S.

IN designing the H. C. S., Harry C. Stutz has unquestionably introduced a new class of car. The H. C. S. is a car of medium size with all the advantages of the larger, more expensive cars but at the same time is economical to the fullest meaning of this word, comfortable and serviceable. And it is the model which is becoming more and more in public favor. It is the quality car of the medium priced class.

TOURING CAR, $1185 CUSTOM ROADSTER, $1485 TOURING SEDAN, $1595 BROUGHAM, $1895 SEDAN, $1895

AT the Automobile Show you can count on your fingers the 1922 motor cars that are really new.

Of these, the Earl is the only car in its class which is completely new—new from its modish barrel lamps and dynamic, long-stroke motor to the Alemite lubrication of its specially designed 56-inch rear springs.

All the lessons learned by the engineers of a great industry in war and peace are summed up in the balanced Earl chassis—powerful and sturdy despite the elimination of overweight.

All the art and verve and luxury-serving ingenuity of Europe's best designers and coach makers are reflected in the Earl's low-swung, finely proportioned bodies, with their provision for riding comfort in every detail. No other cars of their size swing so near the road or hug it so closely on corners or at speed.

All the savings made possible through cash purchases in low material markets and large-scale production by an experienced organization have gone into the building of the Earl. An engineer's car, an artist's car, it is supremely an owner's car because it sets a new standard in values and combines the qualities discriminating owners demand.

The harder the task you must set your motor car—on winter roads, in city traffic, on mile-long hills—the more satisfying you will find the rugged courage and unfailing reserve power of the Earl. In two years of road tests, its small-bore, long-stroke motor has proved its endurance, economy and flexibility under every condition of weather and road.

The sum of a thousand advances in engineering and production economies—92 per cent Earl built—it embodies also the refinements which make for distinction in a high-grade motor car.

To your pleasure in its beauty, even a brief experience of its comfort and spirited performance will add the conviction that it is the motor car you want to own and drive. See the Earl at the Automobile Show. Compare it with other cars—any other car. Then come in and study it, feature by feature, at your leisure in our showrooms at 2526 Michigan Avenue. Arrange for a demonstration—and, above all, drive the car yourself.

Outstanding Durant Superiorities

THE MOTOR—The Four has a special Continental, Durant designed, 4-cylinder motor of valve-in-head type. Quiet running, extremely flexible, with unusual power. Built for a long life of hard usage.

The Six is powered with the famous Ansted design 6-cylinder motor, bore 3½ in., stroke 4½ in., 70 horse-power, brake test. The only car selling under $2100 which has this motor.

TUBULAR BACKBONE—Used in Four and Six, exclusive with Durant. Gives absolute rigidity to chassis and prevents rocking and body squeaks.

COMFORT—Assured through unique method of spring and body suspension. Deep leather seats. Extra leg room.

BEAUTY—A lithe, stream line body, gracefully designed, carefully finished.

CONVENIENCE—Alemite lubrication. All parts easily accessible and removable. Easy to drive, steer and brake.

ECONOMY—Durant list prices are low because of veteran management and quantity output. Durant upkeep is low because of correct design, exceptional accessibility for service, and good materials.

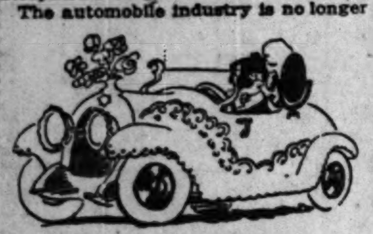
WOMAN'S FANCY DICTATES STYLE IN MERE MACHINE

BY HELEN A. BREIDERT.

[Manager travel and transport bureau Illinois Automobile club.]

The automobile show is a chromatic scale of colors. It is not a machine shop, but a woman's paradise. The decorations are brilliant and varied, and vie with the gorgeous colors of Cleopatra's barge.



The automobile industry is no longer solely a man's industry, for he has been compelled to give way to many fancies of the women. To the latter are due many of the innovations of elegance, daintiness, adaptation to modern life, and the transformation from a mere machine to a work of art.

There are motors whose trimmings are sterling silver mounted, the designs challenging the art of the silversmiths. Others are lined with tapestries which might have been envied by Mme. La Pompadour. The rich upholstery seems to have taxed the fancy of the most skillful.

Aids for Milady.

Milady has her powder puff in a satin case with her notebook and her mirror. Tucked away in a cozy corner of her electric we are likely to find a cut glass wall pocket filled with a dainty spray of blossoms. The luxury of the car is due entirely to the desire of the dealers to please women.

Many women look to the appearance of the car, color, mountings, finishings; but the war made life a sterner reality and women had to learn to drive. Then they began to think of the machinery of the car, its life, its action, and its speed limits—its possibilities. Women are not without daring, and a woman's machine must do her bidding; therefore new appliances were introduced, such as the automatic window lifter.

Then there were the long pedals for the little woman. The electric starter was a device primarily devised for women, as was the heater. Some cars have introduced the magnetic gear shift, which is operated by pressing a button.

She Even Shines It.

A woman now loves her machine as a good rider loves her horse, and so she has learned to groom and shine her auto. Of course, even those men who wash their own machines cordially encourage the feminine partner to stand around and admire, and before long she is working as hard as he is.

She demands the closed car. It keeps the wave in her hair and the powder on her nose. This idea has intrigued the women of Japan, for the painted beauties now flirt behind their fans in limousines as in rickshas.

Now, Mr. Automobile Man, watch your motor; we women are getting critical. The machine must have pep and action with every device for ease and comfort. Yet, it cannot be a toy, for women are becoming true sportsmen and demand not only performance but beauty of line and color. The present automobile show is attracting women as well as men.

U. S. AUTOMOTIVE COMBINE ADDS 2 MORE COMPANIES

BY FRANK B. ANSTED.

[President Lexington Motor Car Co.]

Long strides have been made in the last year in the direction of the goal set two years ago in the organization of the United States Automotive corporation, the alliance of automotive parts making plants centering about Connersville, Ind.

This organization, with $10,000,000 of preferred stock and 300,000 shares without par value, brought under one management, when it was organized, the Lexington Motor company, the Ansted Engineering company, the Connersville Foundry corporation, all of Connersville, Ind., and the Teetor-Hartley Motor corporation of Hagerstown, Ind.

The holding corporation was organized to make possible a closer and more effective organization so that the Lexington and allied companies would be in a better position to keep pace with the rapid strides in the industry.

In effecting the organization, it has been our goal to finally manufacture through the United States Automotive corporation and its subsidiaries every part that goes into the finished car and to give it, through the vast output of these subsidiaries, all the benefits of quantity production.

Spring Purchases Made.

The first step in the attainment of this goal was made early this year with the purchase from the Standard Parts company of Cleveland, O., of their spring and axle plant located in Connersville. This spring and axle plant was taken over under the name of the Ansted Spring and Axle company, a subsidiary of the United States Automotive corporation, with an authorized capital of $500,000 of common stock.

The purchase of this plant was followed by the formation, as a subsidiary of the U. S. A. C., of the Fayette Painting and Trimming company, another valuable unit.

For the past several years the Lexington Motor company has had a working alliance with many of these parts making plants and, in some cases, a financial interest in them. The U. S. A. C. was organized that these parts making plants might have single management, so that all would work as a unit, coördinating plans, material, brains, and labor, and eliminating all loss by waste and inefficiency.

The grouping of these plants under one head has enabled the holding company to safeguard every phase of manufacture. It is able to protect, not only its source of supply of materials and the quality of workmanship, but nearly every element that enters into production.

HI COST OF GASOLINE IN FRANCE LEADS TO SUBSTITUTE SEARCH

The rapid increase in the use of automobiles, motor trucks and motor propelled agricultural machinery, together with the high cost of gasoline in France, has brought about much study of the possible use of other motive fuels which might be manufactured from native materials at lower cost to the consumer than gasoline.

At the annual meeting of the Agricultural society at Beziers, a committee was authorized to organize a competition with a view to discovering a practical and economical motor fuel with alcohol as the basis of its composition. Prizes totaling 200,000 francs have been placed at the disposition of the committee, of which amount 100,000 francs will be awarded to the competitor whose product gives the best results. The competition will be open from January to March, 1922.

While the motor fuel sought for is intended for consumption in the existing type of motor engines, a product which could be employed in a modified type of engine will be considered.

HASTINGS FINDS BUSINESS MUST BE CONSERVATIVE

BY C. D. HASTINGS.

[President and General Manager Hupp Motor Car Corporation.]

To attempt anything like a definite and comprehensive prognostication of what 1922 holds in store for the automobile industry and all of its many ramifications is, I take it, much too big a job for any single individual.

I am forced to such a conclusion not so much because of the unsettled conditions which have prevailed since the ending of the war as that I am fully aware it is next to impossible for a manufacturer to forecast general conditions without being influenced by prejudice and bias arising from the affairs surrounding his own company.

Optimism Is Prevalent.

Then, too, it would indeed be the height of folly for one to suggest that the manufacturing and production policy of any one concern should be formed entirely on the good or bad general outlook for the coming year.

To me, however, one of the most encouraging elements entering into the situation, as it affects the future, is what I consider a most pleasing degree of conservative optimism that seems to permeate the minds of the executives of many of the older and better established companies.

The trying times of the last year or so have, I hope, eliminated that element of irresponsibility, of unwarranted and too often positively foolish enthusiasm which have worked more harm to the recognized stability of the business than all of the other adverse conditions combined.

Conditions Will Improve.

As a matter of fact, the graver problems of the industry are going to be solved only by much careful, sane thinking, and we find that those who have weathered recent storms to their best possible advantage are the conservatives and sane thinkers. It is the old story of the survival of the fittest, and once the industry is ridden of its evil elements the future is by no means unpromising.

I am convinced beyond doubt that there will be a gradual business awakening during the coming months which will be beneficial to every deserving unit among the automotive makers.

All over the country there is evidence of renewed confidence among the buyers.

BRITISH AUTOISTS FIND MOTORING CHEAP AS TRAINS

Accurate, up to date information as to the cost of motoring in England, recently secured from English friends by a much traveled New York woman, may afford useful data to other Americans who plan an economical trip abroad.

Railway fares in Great Britain are now high, and the places the travelers wished to visit were so scattered that motoring promised to be cheaper than an intricate railroad trip.

Their choice fell on the Ford for this purpose because it is the car with which they are familiar, and because of the wide reach of Ford service. The British import tax is so high that it is impractical to take a car from America for a short period.

A questionnaire as to the cost of purchasing a car, the cost of running it, and the price of food and lodging en route, was submitted to two English friends, both experienced motorists, with the following result:

Cost of petrol per gal., 3 shillings 6 pence to 4 shillings.

Cost of room at small town hotel, 10 to 15 shillings.

Cost of meals in small towns, breakfast, 4; lunch, 5; tea, 3, and dinner 6 shillings.

Cost of oil per gallon, 5 to 6 shillings.

AUTO MAKERS OF U. S. MASTERS OF MARKET IN PERU

American manufacturers have obtained a virtual monopoly of the automobile trade in Peru, reports W. E. Dunn, commercial attaché at Lima. During 1920 the United States shipped 1,276 passenger cars to Peru, as compared with 599 in 1919. The total number of American cars sold from [illegible] to 1920 reached 3,565.

While the market is relatively small on account of the limited purchasing power of the 4,000,000 inhabitants of the republic, the saturation point is far from being reached. The total number of cars in operation is estimated to be about 3,000.

Outside the Lima-Callao district, including the residential suburbs, there are few roads suitable for motor traffic, and it is practically impossible to travel comfortably in any direction for more than ten miles outside the city. There are from twenty-five to thirty miles of fairly good automobile roads in the metropolitan district, less than ten miles consisting of asphalt paving. In the towns most of the roads are paved with rough cobblestones and are sadly in need of repair. A law is now in effect whereby the almost unlimited Indian labor may be utilized in building roads.

Hang Up New High Speed Continuous Run Record

A new record for continuous running of a stock car has been established. Recently on the Beverly Hills tracks near Los Angeles, Cal., an Apperson stock tourster running continuously at high speed for twelve hours, covered a total of 973¾ miles. This is an average speed of 81.14 miles per hour, and exceeds the old record of 957 miles.

Facts you should know when you buy a car

The question of greatest importance is not what you will be allowed for your old car but the price you pay for the new car and the value received.

You are money out if allowed $100 more for your old car, yet have to pay a $150 higher list price for a new car when the comparative value is not there.

A purchaser's loss is only postponed when trading allowances are made above a used car's real value. The deal that may appear most satisfactory to you in the beginning may prove to be the most expensive in the end.

No one receives anything gratuitously in this world—don't be misled by false allowances.

We believe that any sales policy which encourages the giving of fictitious values for used cars is an injustice to the public.

We wish to establish definitely the fact that the Buick Motor Company has never followed this policy—rather has always based the price of its product upon actual costs and when costs come down correspondingly reduced the prices of its cars to the public without any camouflage whatsoever.

The Rayfield Thermostat— first aid to the Cold Motor

Warms Your Motor Quickly and Keeps It Warm

Here is a regulator of motor temperature that assures a quicker getaway and a smoother performance for your car, even in the coldest weather.

It gives your motor a chance to perform at its best, day in and day out, winter as well as summer—by quickly forcing the required temperature and holding it constant.

Any water cooled motor with a pump circulating system can be kept at an efficient temperature throughout the year with a Rayfield Thermostat.

Its advantages are particularly noticeable right now, when motor temperature, more than any other factor, governs the pleasure of winter driving.

In zero weather, the Rayfield Thermostat forces the required temperature quickly. It maintains this temperature constant throughout the running time, assuring smooth operation.

It keeps the motor warm long after it is stopped, assuring easy starting again for several hours.

In addition the Rayfield Thermostat materially reduces the cost of opeation.

The Rayfield Thermostat furnished complete, ready for attaching. Standard size for use on practically all motor cars, costs but

$10

It saves gasoline because combustion is more complete in a warm motor.

It reduces repair bills because with better combustion unburned gasoline does not escape into the crank case to thin out the lubricating oil.

It saves oil because draining of the crankcase is necessary only about one-fourth as often.

It insures more efficient performance because carbon deposits and fouled spark plugs are minimized.

The fact that it is now used as standard equipment on many of the high grade cars of today is unquestionable evidence of its ability to perform efficiently on different types of motors.

Put a Rayfield Thermostat on your motor today and do away with cold weather troubles. Save 10% to 30% in operation cost and receive an entirely new sense of driving pleasure.

The Rayfield Thermostat is simple, automatic and free from all adjustments—can be installed by any one in 10 or 15 minutes by simply cutting out two inches in the upper water hose and putting the Thermostat in its place.

The Rayfield Thermostat is for sale by all the leading garages and accessory dealers. If, however, your dealer cannot supply you at once, you can order through the Rayfield factory if you give your dealer's name.

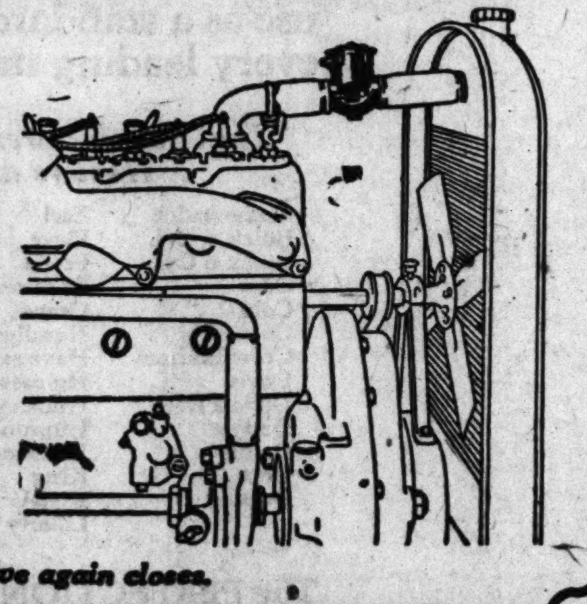
How the Rayfield Motor Thermostat Operates

When the motor is cold, the butterfly valve is closed and the circulation of water from the radiator is restricted. As the water around the motor heats, it rises through passages and circulates around the diaphragm.
The diaphragm which contains a sensitive liquid expands when the water circulation around it reaches a determined temperature and is fully expanded at a higher temperature.
The expansion of the diaphragm opens the butterfly valve by means of the pin and the circulation of the water to the radiator is allowed until the water temperature falls below the pre-determined point when the diaphragm contracts and the butterfly valve again closes.



See the Rayfield Exhibit at the Automobile Show

The Rayfield Thermostat and all models of Rayfield Carburetors are shown at the Coliseum. Spaces 18 and 28 in the North end of the balcony.

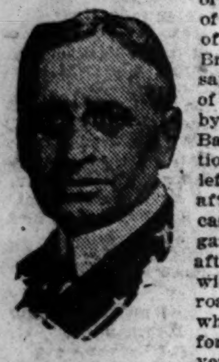
TRIBUTE PAID TO SAMUEL E. BRADT ON RETIREMENT

Was Factor in Growth of Good Roads.



SAMUEL E. BRADT.

One of the happenings of the year was the retirement from the position of superintendent of state highways of Samuel E. Bradt of De Kalb, says a resolution of tribute passed by the Illinois Bankers' association. Mr. Bradt left this office after an official career which began in 1913 and after a connection with the good roads movement which runs back for nearly twenty years. Probably no other man in Illinois, through his interest as a private citizen in the good roads movement and through his connection with the actual construction work as an official, has left a greater imprint on the campaign to pull Illinois out of the mud than Mr. Bradt.

His Efforts Rewarded.

Mr. Bradt is a banker and business man. His interest as a citizen who appreciates the value of good roads to the farming and industrial life of the state led him to accept a position as a member of the township highway commission. In this office he became grounded in the essential facts that lay at the bottom of the bad road conditions of that period. His township became a pioneer in the construction of permanent roads and the very elementary work of permanent drainage. His success in this endeavor led to his appointment as chairman of the good roads committee of the Illinois Bankers' association.

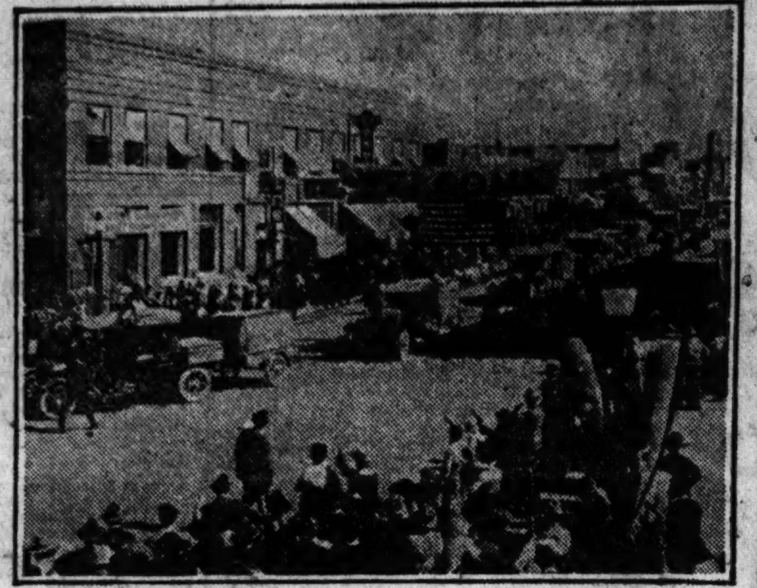
Through his efforts with this committee a campaign of education was started among the bankers of Illinois. This campaign was based upon the industrial and agricultural economy that would come from construction of permanent roads and the elimination of waste due to the temporary character of roadwork then prevalent in the state. He organized the good roads work among the bankers in such an effective manner that when the Illinois Highway Improvement association was formed in 1912 as a combination of the various state-wide groups which tackled the good roads problem with a united front Mr. Bradt was recognized as the man whose statistics on the subject were made the basis of the demand for legislation under which the old township system was to be supplanted by state and county units of construction.

First Suggested Bond Issue.

Mr. Bradt first suggested the $60,000,000 bond issue under which the main trunk lines of the state are being improved. Frequently he has been called to Washington for consultation on good roads matters by federal officials, and has been sought out by the highway departments of other states seeking information on the subject.

Mr. Bradt has been able to demonstrate in a very signal manner the public benefit that accrues when a man holds public office only for the purpose of giving public service.

BLAZING THE WEST TRAIL



[Keystone View Co.]

The old admonition, "Go West," was taken literally last season by this motor caravan, which crossed from New England to Idaho to take up homesteads.

Duesenberg Driven to Victory by Roscoe Sarles

Roscoe Sarles, who added another victory to his already long list when he drove his special Duesenberg motored racing car into a sharp finish at the 150 mile speedway races at Cotati, Oct. 23, owns and drives a Roamer sport model job equipped with a Rochester-Duesenberg motor for his personal use. Sarles, who was one of Barney Oldfield protégés, and who drove Oldfield's "Golden Egg" in a number of races, joined the Roamer racing crew in 1918.

VALUE OF AUTOS AT SECOND HAND RULES—JORDAN

BY EDWARD S. JORDAN.

[President Jordan Motor Car company.]

Who will survive in the automobile industry?

One of the basic facts that will determine survival was contained in the ten word advertisement of a certain firm several weeks ago when they asked, "what will your car be worth a year from today?" This is the greatest motor car advertisement ever written.

The ten words of this advertisement will determine how many cars will be produced by the entire industry, how many factories can stay in the business, how many dealers will survive the battle of 1922 and how many salesmen will be forced into other lines.

Second Hand Valuation.

There are some manufacturers and dealers who do not yet actually realize that survival in this industry depends absolutely upon one thing—second hand valuation.

Ask ten leading distributors to tell you which cars maintain the highest second hand valuation in proportion to their original cost.

You will find about two in the $400 to $600 class; three in the $700 to $1,000 class; three or four in the $1,100 to $1,900 class; a few in the $2,000 class and two or three are given leadership in the class above $2,000.

All of this will determine the course of the industry in 1922, as the next four months will indicate.

Where makers have already announced final prices on models of unusual value, these prices will be maintained, for those makers know that the public prefers better service and higher second hand valuation to cheapening of quality to attain lower list prices.

Warning to Buyers.

Owners of old cars are liable to make the mistake that many makers have made and hold their inventories too long. If car owners have not taken their losses on old cars they may wait until spring and then suddenly decide that list prices have reached bottom and that it is the time to trade.

With factory production reduced and the dealers having few new cars in stock, owners will find dealers handling new cars of high second hand valuation, refusing to trade except on cars of equally high, second hand value.

Dealers will find a comparatively easy market under these condition, for it is then that the demand should overtake the supply. This will create a tendency toward rising prices. Owners of cars of low second hand value will find the bars up against trading.

The Price of a Car.

The price of a car now will doubtless be figured by the purchaser as representing the list price, plus service expense and depreciation when he comes to sell it, and there will probably be many who will do this before March 1.

The manufacturer who builds real service into his car deserves to survive, for he is building high second hand valuation for the owner. The dealer deserves to survive who does not have to build service into the car after he has sold it and charge the owner for it.

So it is that the owner who discovers the first cost of his car is practically the last will become an active salesman for that manufacturer and "he who serves best will survive."

LOUIS CHEVROLET FIGURE IN AUTO WORLD SINCE 1897

Louis Chevrolet, who has a Frontenac display during automobile show week, has a racing history replete with thrills. He has probably driven more different types of race cars than any other driver, and has been a persistent tutor of younger pilots.

Chevrolet has been a figure in automobile building since 1897, when he was associated with the Mors car in France. His first Frontenac victory was at Cincinnati in 1917. But he did not stop there. He kept on building until his product won the title of world's champion. Then he designed an entirely new car which again won the title the following year, performing a feat new in automobile history.

It was then that he set about to build his years of experience into the motor he is now announcing.

ONE CHEAP HELPER.

A very useful article to have in the tool box is the type of clamp variously known as a "C" clamp or a "U" clamp. There are numberless uses for the part, but possibly its greatest value is to hold a large monkey wrench to the running board, the wrench acting as a vise.

Your Winter Comfort is Now Assured

At least 80% of the closed cars exhibited at the show this year are Perfection Heater equipped.

To the great host of people who have learned the comfort of heated motor cars, a car without Perfection Heater equipment is incomplete.

The delightful comfort of Perfection Heaters is not restricted to the closed car owner, but is available also for those people who prefer the open car.

The acknowledged supremacy of Perfection Heaters is indicated by their exclusive use as a standard equipment by practically every leading motor car manufacturer.

Most Important Development Since the Self Starter

—makes any water cooled motor more eager to pull—gives any water cooled motor increased power and flexibility—reduces fuel consumption and IS THE ONLY DEVICE THAT GIVES AMPLE ADVANCE WARNING OF MOTOR ABUSES. It provides protection against damaging, expensive engine troubles and costs so little that every car owner can afford it.

WEEKS re-flow

Keeps Motors Healthy

is certain in action. There is nothing to get out of order. Its mechanism is simple and fool-proof. There is no condition under which Re-Flow will not function 100% efficiently. Its principle is simple and sound and its functioning is highly effective. Owners marvel at the remarkable results it accomplishes. Here's what it does—Re-Flow keeps the radiator brim full at all times. It makes one mixture of alcohol and water last all winter. Re-Flow does this because it condenses the steam and vapor that ordinarily waste out the radiator overflow pipe. A Re-Flow equipped car has the overflow pipe connected to the Re-Flow condensing tank so that the steam and vapor are condensed and returned to the radiator, keeping it always brim full.

Prevents freezing

by keeping the alcohol content of the cooling solution always the same. Because the original mixture is used over and over all winter long, the anti-freeze balance remains undisturbed. Re-Flow owners with the proper mixture in the radiator to start with are positively protected against freezing. On less cold days when alcohol solutions boil easily and quickly evaporate, it makes no difference because Re-Flow condenses and returns the steam and vapor to the radiator as fast as they are formed.

Prevents overheating

—damaging, costly overheating—burned bearings or scored cylinders is usually caused by lack of water in the radiator. This condition can never arise when Re-Flow equipped, providing the motor is being properly lubricated.

Ends carbon troubles

Vapor scientifically injected by Re-Flow into the combustion chamber of the motor through a tube to the manifold positively prevents the formation of "hard" carbon and gives that "rainy day," quick pick-up effect. Spark plugs remain clean, and gummed, sticky valves are unknown. The installation of Re-Flow on a motor filled with carbon will soften the carbon and entirely eliminate the knock. Re-Flow assures positive ignition, and thereby a decrease in fuel consumption is effected.

Tells exact condition of your motor at a glance. You will notice the first bubble of heat long before your motor is damaged. RE-FLOW warns you in advance of the following common troubles—low oil, retarded spark, broken or loose fan belt, broken water pump, clogged water hose, low water, closed shutter or any undue strain on the motor.

There are three stages to the indicator: 1st, bubbles; 2nd, percolation; 3rd, steam. If adjusting the radiator shutter, spark lever or choker fails to remedy the first two stages and it steams—STOP for investigation. You cannot overlook the distress signal of the visible pulse. The RE-FLOW meter is not only a watchman of your motor but a handsome radiator ornament. RE-FLOW is positive protection.

This style indicator, japanned, for Fords. Indicators for other cars are nickel plated and without side arms.

Every car needs re-flow
—if water cooled

Every Water Cooled car is constantly in danger of freezing or overheating unless Re-Flow equipped. Every owner of a water cooled car invites expensive overhauling and part replacement jobs until he installs Re-Flow.

Besides, Re-Flow wonderfully improves the performance of any water cooled car. In fact, nothing since the electric starter has given so much added pleasure to car driving as Re-Flow.

Re-Flow pays for itself. All the advantages really make the cost nothing. The saving it makes in alcohol in one winter will nearly pay for the installation. The saving it continually makes of fuel and oil class it a cash dividend payer.

Immediate investigation will save you much money and give you perfect peace of mind.

Re-Flow has proved itself

Here's what some of Chicago's wisest automobile men think about

ALL MUST STUDY PUBLIC HIGHWAY, CHAPIN ASSERTS

Last Year Saw Greatest Progress, He Says.

BY ROY D. CHAPIN.
[President Hudson and Essex Motor Car Companies.]

In all the years of highway transport development in this country, 1921 stands out as the period in which there has been the most forward looking crystallization of industrial, state, and national policies.

We have finally come to a realization of the fundamental fact that neither the highway nor the vehicle which travels over it can be considered as things apart. Today we know that each is but an aspect of highway transport and that it is only as the two together perform a real service to the general public that either can be of lasting value.

The "booster" period has passed. In the future progress in highway transport must and will be measured upon the basis of economic facts both from the standpoint of individual transportation and from the broader viewpoint of an interrelationship of all forms of transportation.

Highways Problems for All.

The automotive manufacturer must recognize this as he plans his production, the automotive dealer must study and analyze it as he surveys his selling territory, the highway engineer must take it into account as he compiles his estimates for highway construction and maintenance. The city planning expert must reckon with its influence as he measures the future development of his municipality. Its effect will be found in real estate valuations, in our recreational areas in education, in every phase of life here and abroad.

In the analysis of the events which have brought the highway transport officials of the country to these conclusions, three factors stand out in sharp relief, although no one of them can be considered separately. One is the enactment of the Townsend federal highway act of 1921; second, the progress made by the bureau of public roads of the department of agriculture under the leadership of T. H. MacDonald and in close coöperation with state highway departments, and third, the development of the work of the highway and highway transport education committee.

National Policy Sound.

In the passage of the amendments to the original federal aid act, the nation has been provided with a sound and intelligent highway policy. Through its recognition of the need for an adequate and connected interstate highway system, through its concentration of federal funds upon state highway systems not exceeding 7 per cent of the total mileage of each state, through its drastic maintenance requirements, and through rigid standards of construction in which future as well as prevailing traffic needs must be taken into account, the act marks a distinct advance over all of our policies of the past.

There is necessary to a full workout only a continuance of ample appropriations, such as the five year program of $100,000,000 a year already before congress and supported by a strong public sentiment. It is inconceivable that this will not be granted, but here there is a definite field for endeavor for all who believe in sound highway development.

Perhaps one of the most valuable studies now in progress is that of the relation of the road to the vehicle. An examination of the facts is still far from complete, but already we are gaining a new conception of these problems and one that offers distinct encouragement.

Surplus War Material for State Roads

The statistical department of the Earl Motors, Inc., has just issued a bulletin covering the deliveries of surplus war materials to the various states for road building purposes. This distribution covers every state in the Union. The value of the materials is upward of $100,000,000, and, according to the statistics of Earl Motors, is but one of many indications of the increase in road improvement and new road construction during 1922 that must have a very decided effect on the increase of motor transportation, particularly in regard to touring cars.

The greatest amount is for Texas, where over $7,000,000 worth of material was delivered; the smallest, Rhode Island, where an amount of $229,900 is given.

In detail the amounts are:

Alabama	$ 2,587,740	Nevada	1,182,300
Arizona	2,041,401	New Hampshire	412,500
Arkansas	2,025,000	New Jersey	1,657,900

2,000,000 AUTOS WILL BE SOLD IN 1922, COOK AVERS

BY R. C. COOK.
[Chicago Distributor of Velie Cars.]

That 1922 will be a mighty good year in the automobile industry, is a prediction that has sound facts for its basis as well as optimism. A clear, sane view of the new year's getaway in motors reveals evidence of a return to normal prosperity which none but blind pessimism can dispute.

Normal prosperity, of course, does not mean comparisons that superficial observers are prone to make, with periods of extraordinary spurts. Every thinking well wisher of the industry prefers the normal in maintenance of business, and expansion for "the long haul"; and there is every indication that the coming year holds this in store for us.

Gradual Upward Curve.

This "return" in motors, as in other lines, will not come with a rush. It will be a steady upward tendency. This expectation is based on a dispassionate study of the situation, as well as strengthening of demand for cars, already in evidence.

"The period of readjustment" by no means caused anything approaching a standstill in the business. In spite of all the adverse influences the demand required the industry to produce about 1,700,000 motor vehicles in 1921. This parallels 1917, which may be fairly taken as a normal year.

Replacements alone for 1922, on the accepted basis for figuring, would call for nearly 2,000,000 motor vehicles. This takes no account whatever of new demand, which is certainly evident enough to all who know anything about the business done at the New York show and in the big centers of motordom since that show.

Farmer as a Buyer.

The farmer is again coming into the market. A recent far flung research by one of the ablest organizations in the country gives answer that farmers will reëstablish their preponderance as automobile buyers at no distant date—possibly in 1922.

The bureau of the census count shows that there were 2,141,200 passenger cars and 139,000 trucks on farms at the end of 1919. The general increase in registration in a farm state since that period would indicate that the present farm registration is well over 3,000,000. Signs, though now faint, point to the beginning of a revival of export business.

One of the most striking pointers to the vitality of the nation's motoring interest, is the public's intelligent absorption in design, power, and construction practice—all that goes to make up the car.

Knows What He Wants.

The motoring public of our country is educated in construction to a degree that would not have been credible some years ago. The average motorist today has a working understanding of the car that once belonged only to those in the industry.

He studies, compares, and bases his convictions not only on personal experience, but the best scientific judgment obtainable. Without doubt the constant and widespread publicity, the operation of some publicity, as well as the operation of some 10,000,000 motor vehicles, has made us a nation of motor specialists. Even those who do not own or drive cars are ready at any time to discuss the various practices.

This interest naturally centers mainly in the power plant.

The subject of the number of cylinders comes at once to the fore. It is interesting to mark its steady rise to its present predominance. As long ago as 1915 the six cylinder engine held approximately half the field. At the present time about 60 per cent of the manufacturers are making sixes. In other words, there are more manufacturers producig sixes than all other types combined.

"This," says a recognized authority outside the industry, "is due to the fact, as all engineers know, that the six cylinder engine is in absolute theoretical and practical balance providing it is properly designed."

Lubrication Important.

Lubrication is the very basis of all successful motor operation. Without oil at every point in exactly the right quantity, at exactly the right time, the finest motor that automobile genius can devise would make a poor showing.

The great majority of automobile engineers agree that the overhead valve motor develops more power than a side valve motor of equal size; that its acceleration is better, and its economy more pronounced. The reasons for the valve-in-head superiority are found in the instant response to the spark, the more thorough burning of the mixture, the complete elimination of burned gas, and intake of a full fresh charge at every cycle.

Women have become as expert in driving, and are found at the wheel in almost the same numbers as men. It is the task of the automobile builder today to produce a car that appeals instantly to the woman or girl driver in ease and flexibility of operation as well as looks and comfort.

A glance at details will show how far the automobile of 1922 has been developed in refinements, conveniences, and luxuries.

COPPERS GIVE FIRST AID.

In Japan, when anything goes wrong with an automobile, owners are instructed to notify the police immediately.

EXPORT CHARGE ADD TO COST GERMAN MOTO

A typical German auto posedly of medium price, was quoted for sale in that 150,000 marks. The prevailing change rate of the mark was cents, so that the domestic vehicle figured $2,070 in money. This, it should is the equivalent of the in the domestic trade in not that stipulated for export.

Since that time the of the mark has depreciated which fact is offset, however, practically proportionate costs in Germany.

To ship this car abroad purchaser would pay for a tomobile a price fixed in a rency sufficient to cover the of 26 per cent. Instead of quoted to domestic users, purchaser would actually pay for a car of the type described Judged on the basis of prices port, rather than for domestic the advantage of German ers is not as great as is generally posed, and even shows further tion where purchases of foreign materials are required in the facture of the exported article."

Do You Know the New Low Prices for Ford Cars?

Do you realize that Ford cars are now selling the lowest in the history of the Ford Motor Company?

The average cost per car in 1917, at which time Ford cars reached their previous low level, was $488. The average cost per car today is $436. So at the present low price the average cost per car is $52.00 less than in 1917.

Why should you buy anything but a Ford? Prices lowest—parts lowest—labor prices for repairing lowest, and operating expenses lowest, yet a Ford car will take you anywhere any other car will go and it will carry as many passengers.

These are sensible, not extravagant, times. The Ford car is the most sensible for anyone to own.

So don't fail to visit this special exhibition, now open every day and evening until February 4th —and don't forget the place—

HUMBLE GENESIS OF MODERN AUTO TOLD BY HOWARD

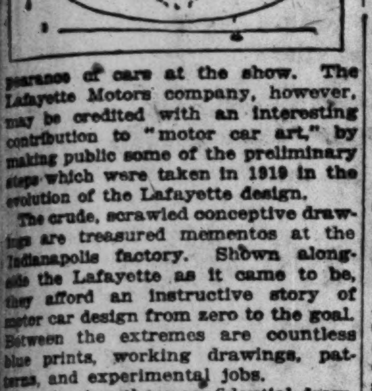
Tells Growth from Sketch to Finished Car.

BY E. C. HOWARD.

[Vice President Lafayette Motors company.]

With a rough sketch the painter seizes the motif he will perfect upon his canvas; the sculptor models his inspiration in plastic clay before a tool is set to the marble. And the fine motor car, with its finished grace and practical beauty, must also confess a humble genesis.

Few laymen have been permitted to peep into the "studios" where automobile designs are developed, and the procedure is a mystery to the majority of those who are consciously or unconsciously captivated by the appearance of cars at the show. The Lafayette Motors company, however, may be credited with an interesting contribution to "motor car art," by making public some of the preliminary steps which were taken in 1919 in the evolution of the Lafayette design.



The crude, scrawled conceptive drawings are treasured mementos at the Indianapolis factory. Shown alongside the Lafayette as it came to be, they afford an instructive story of motor car design from zero to the goal. Between the extremes are countless blue prints, working drawings, patterns, and experimental jobs.

In releasing these confidential drawings for public view, Lafayette engineers strongly emphasized that it is not possible just to sit down and draw, for example, a pleasing and individualistic radiator design. First of all, the engine, previously designed, requires a certain number of square inches of cooling area.

Then the whole question of body design has to be taken into consideration. The man who buys a motor car seldom realizes that the radiator and hood, by their design, automatically govern the lines and curves that go into the cowl and body proper.

It has been common practice, dating back to the days of the one and two cylinder cars, to design the radiator first, then attempt to build a body to match it. Judged by present standards the results then obtained were anything but pleasing and satisfactory.

Modern body engineers departed from the custom and gave first thought to the lines of the body proper.

As a result, when engineers undertook the design of a radiator they realized that it must have high shoulders, which would be on a direct line with either the upper body edge of open bodies or the belt line of inclosed models, so that the bonnet would be broad and flat and flow into the cowl without unseemly breaks. By placing no restrictions on the design of the cowl and body behind it almost any body design could be gracefully accommodated.

IMPROVED AUTOS MEANS BIG 1922 SALES—WILLYS

Industry Strengthened During Last Year.

BY JOHN N. WILLYS.

[President Willys-Overland Co.]

The automobile as an accepted vehicle celebrated its twenty-first birthday in 1921 and the industry found that this age of majority brought new problems of business adjustment.

In solving these problems in 1921 the industry made its most notable advances in placing sales and production methods upon sounder foundations. The establishment of these new standards in sales and production administration brought it through the year in far stronger condition than many anticipated.

The courage and resourcefulness of America's bankers and business men in sustaining the motor car industry deserve the admiration of every American. When it is remembered that the automobile industry today provides employment for the heads of very nearly 1,000,000 American families, as well as taking large shares of the production of such allied industries as the leather, cotton, textiles, one may judge the part it plays in advancing America's prosperity and the standard of living of America's citizens.

Business as Usual.

So well has the automobile trade met the difficulties of readjustment during 1921 that the world today can continue to look to America for the best in automotive transport. Moreover, because the automotive industry is the faithful barometer of all business, it can now be said with reasonable confidence that 1922 will approach "business as usual." For 1922 promises to be a year of normal production.

Naturally, in reaching conclusions on the production plans for 1922, the officials of the companies in which I am interested directly have given me my more specific data. My contact with the leaders in the industry has given facts confirmatory to the information gathered by the sales executives of the Willys-Overland interests, but for purposes of discussion I am not justified in reciting proofs other than those bearing upon the operations of Willys-Overland.

Sales Surpassed Predictions.

It is through a study of all classes of the motor buying public that one best obtains a basis for discussing the probable automobile sales in 1922. Of course, one may err, one way or the other, in naming figures, but the majority of manufacturers, because of the slackened sales in the latter half of 1920 and in 1921, will err on the conservative side.

One of the best prepared analyses of the probable market I ever saw was laid before me at the opening of 1920. It was prepared by independent agencies quite outside the automobile business. Its final conclusion stated that used cars to the number of 1,500,000 would be replaced with new cars during 1921.

COLE SEES NEW MOTOR ERA WITH TRADE REVIVAL

Auto Is Big Factor in Time Economics.

BY J. J. COLE.

[President Cole Motor Car company.]

The wealth of a country depends to a large extent on how much its average citizen can accomplish in a working hour, day, and year. We talk about saving money. We should talk even more about saving time. Time is money. It is even more valuable than money itself. Money is merely the symbol of what has been accomplished in time.

Anything that increases the productive hours of the day and reduces the waste hours is an economy, not an extravagance. A motor car is merely a piece of automatic machinery—a time saving device.

Whatever pleasure you get out of a motor car is by-product. It is primarily a utility, and, under modern conditions, a necessity.

Fail in Classification.

A persistent effort has been made to classify the motor car as nonessential. And this effort has ended in complete failure.

There is nothing in modern life, with the exceptions of food, clothing, and fuel, so essential as automotive transportation. The practical thinkers are now unanimous on that point. The motor car and its brother, the motor truck, are today a permanent part of the world's scheme of economics. They cannot be dislodged. They will become more essential to human life every year.

And now that the substantial type of citizen is taking the automobile and the motor truck with seriousness, the logical reaction has taken place, and the whole automotive industry is being taken seriously; it is now regarded as a great national institution well worth supporting. The greatest financiers of America and of Europe now take the industry into consideration.

It has succeeded steel as the one dependable barometer of business forecast.

Questions and Answers.

Business uplift or business depression? Activity of the people, or inactivity of the people? Two ways of saying precisely the same thing. If the people are active, they are prosperous. If they stand still, business stagnation follows. You can't have stagnation where there is activity. The two are inseparable.

So when people stop buying motor cars and motor trucks, it is a storm signal. And when they resume buying these commodities, it is an infallible sign that the business sky is clearing and that the sun is going to break forth.

People are beginning to buy motor cars and trucks now.

CARE FOR THE SPRINGS.

Many present day cars are fitted with springs mounted on seats that oscillate. These spring seats usually have some means of lubrication, but many car owners never take the trouble simply to turn up the grease cup provided.

MAKERS TO FACE CRUCIAL TEST IN 1922, NASH SAYS

More automobiles will be sold in 1922 than were sold in 1921, declares C. W. Nash, president of the Nash Motors company. But he sounds a warning to the automobile industry as a whole that improvement will be gradual, and that real success during the coming year will be only for the manufacturers, distributors and dealers who are well intrenched and who prove in the coming test that they are good business men.

"Conditions in the east are already much better than they were a few months ago," he said. "It is gradually moving west. I expect to see a marked improvement in the automobile industry immediately after the shows, continuing gradually at least until fall.

"However, the real success for manufacturer or dealer during the coming year will come only to those who are well intrenched, who conduct their concerns on real business principles, who give the customer real value for every dollar expended, and who do business themselves on a fair margin of profit and with their houses so in order that they can assure themselves of that fair profit.

Time of Crucial Test.

"The time is here when both manufacturer and dealer are being put to the real test, and only the fit can survive. Now is the time that the automobile business offers its greatest opportunities to men of real ability, having courage and conservatism, and it is also an excellent time for men of this class to become automobile merchants.

"But it is also a time when the manufacturer must choose his dealers carefully, and when the dealer's success is to be finally determined by the kind of factory connection he maintains.

"Only the manufacturer with a stable policy, sound finances and clean and efficient business methods, with fairness always in mind to both dealer and car owner, can live. The manufacturer must have a complete line of cars because the dealer's success is more and more dependent upon such a line, and the manufacturer who overlooks the dealer and fair profit for the dealer is bound to fail.

"On the other hand a factory with that sort of background and with such policies is the only one with which a dealer can afford to be associated.

Must Have Stable Policy.

"The successful manufacturer must have a stable policy. And the more closely knit his organization, the more closely his stock is held, the more secure the management, the more the dealer can be assured of a real 'dealer policy,' and the more confident the owner may be of real transportation service.

"The factory dominated by this sort of policy and only one so dominated, can make cars that are bound to have a stable resale value.

"And this brings us to the second-hand car problem, which is one of the big problems, if not the greatest problem, offered the retail outlet of the automobile industry today.

Used Car Loss Huge.

"Last year there was a loss of a quarter of a billion dollars on used cars by automobile dealers in the United States. This cannot continue. Conditions must be changed and changed now—not in two or three years' time—or most of the retailers in the country will be out of business. Without the retailer there can be no automobile industry.

Common Sense Solvent.

"Many plans have been suggested to control the second-hand car market, but all that have been proposed are too complicated, dependent upon the coöperation of too many conflicting interests. The problem must and will be solved by common sense of the dealer himself.

You're on your way to the station—your car stops. She doesn't seem to be getting gas. Trains leave on time—they don't wait—you're late. You'll never make it.

A Stromberg Gasoline Filter eliminates all such delays. It cleans the gas absolutely—removes every partical of dirt, every drop of water. Filters the fuel just before it enters carburetor. Cuts down repair bills because dirt accumulating in the carburetor means repair bills.

Can be attached to any make or model car—to bottom of vacuum tank, on carburetor or directly to gas line.

A necessity selling at $3 that will outlast car. Prevents theft—locks the car. Your car is incomplete without one—see your dealer today. State name and model of your car.

Sixty-Six Questions for Every Salesman to Answer

Tear out this page and take it to the automobile show. You will find all the leading cars on the main floor of the Coliseum.

Step into any booth and ask the first salesman you meet any one or all of the questions listed below. Everybody knows that henceforth motor cars will be bought on the basis of actual value.

These questions will enable you to check all cars by the Jordan standard:

1. Is this a new model and will you guarantee that it will be continued through 1922?

   The Jordan and the Cadillac were the first high grade cars to really announce new models. We predict the Jordan type will be standard in its class for years to come.

2. What is the price of your car, and has it been reduced?

   The announcement of the new Jordan at a reduced price sixty days ahead of all competitors doubled Jordan production in the last quarter of 1921.

3. When the price was reduced how many improvements did you make in the car?

   Every single unit and every single detail of the Jordan was bettered in the new model. The answers to these questions will prove it.

4. Have you an up-to-date body and will it be continued through 1922?

   Jordan made the bevel edge body old-fashioned when he brought out the first Silhouette.

5. Is the body made of aluminum?

   All Jordan bodies are of aluminum, eliminating rumbles, ripples, and rust. Of course they cost more, but they look better and last longer.

6. Has the car an up-to-date motor with silent chain drive?

   All good cars like the Jordan must eventually have a silent chain drive, as head gears are nearly always noisy.

7. What does the car weigh?

   The whole tendency of modern engineering is toward lighter weight and economy to save tire, gasoline and service expense.

8. What is the wheel base?

   Engineers tell us that it is impossible to properly balance a five passenger car on less than 120 inch wheel base.

9. How is your weight distributed?

   Owners tell us that Jordan is the best balanced car on the road, moving constantly forward and never sideways.

10. Are you satisfied that the wheel base of your car is right for real balance and comfort?

    Engineers tell us that the tendency of other manufacturers is toward the Jordan principle of balance and Jordan wheel base.

11. How many miles per gallon?

    In the Jordan national economy run 27 cars did 12,546 miles at 24.1 miles per gallon average.

12. What tire mileage can you show?

    Jordan owners frequently report 18,000 to 20,000 miles on a set of tires.

13. Are cord tires standard?

    Jordan was first to provide cord tires as standard equipment four years ago.

14. What is the annual repair cost?

    Jordan shop men tell us that Jordan cars are kept running with less repair expense than any they know of.

15. Is this body old fashioned and up in the air, or low like the Jordan?

    Stand up beside the car and note how near the top of the body comes to your chin.

16. How does the second hand valuation of the last model you built compare with its original list price?

    Dodge said it. "What will your car be worth a year from today?"

17. How do you figure an owner's investment in a car?

    Here is the truth—The real price is the sum of the list price, plus the service expense for one year, plus the depreciation when the car is brought to the second hand market.

18. Has the car non-rattling, lubricated spring shackles?

    The Jordan is the only car in America now equipped in this way. All the good, ones should be later.

19. Are all the spring leaves made from chrome vanadium steel?

    The Jordan is the only car in its price class which possesses this positive assurance of comfort.

20. Is the car equipped with Delco starting and lighting?

    You can buy cheaper units throughout if you merely want to reduce the list price. If you are building for service you buy the best.

21. Are the instruments under glass?

    The Jordan is the only car in its class with this important feature.

22. Are your tools in a locked compartment in the front door?

    In the Jordan your wife does not have to get out of the car when you want to find a pair of pliers.

23. Are the wheels solid hickory?

    Jordan has always believed that solid hickory is necessary for safety.

24. What is the crank shaft size?

    The new exclusive Jordan motor has the largest crank shaft of any car built in America, except one, and that is a three bearing job selling around $4000.

25. Does the motor have a four bearing crank shaft?

    The exclusive Jordan motor is the smoothest, most powerful six cylinder job for its size built in America.

26. Is the car equipped with Alemite lubrication?

    Jordan not only uses Alemite instead of old-fashioned dirty grease cups, but a special system for lubricating parts difficult to reach.

27. How do you reach inaccessible parts for lubrication?

    Jordan has flexible tubes for lubricating such parts as brake shafts. You never have to crawl under.

28. Is the woodwork of the body white ash or maple?

    Jordan bodies are all of white ash because maple will not stand the weather, causing rattles and squeaks.

29. Is there a cowl ventilator?

    The Jordan cowl ventilator keeps the forward compartment cool—operated by a twist of the wrist from the driver's seat.

30. Is the car finished in optional colors?

    Jordan colors have always been optional.

31. Is the Crane Simplex velvet finish provided?

    Jordan was first to introduce this aristocratic finish in a medium priced car. No polishing—no scratches show.

32. How is the top fastened to the windshield?

    Jordan slotted bracket and nut relieves Jordan owners of that annoyance.

33. Is there a real horn?

    When you press the Jordan button it sounds like a regular automobile.

34. Is the manifold designed for low grade gas?

    Many wonder why the Jordan is so economical.

35. What is the depth of frame, and has the car tubular torsional cross members?

    Jordan bodies do not gap at the door openings. Car feels as if it was all one piece.

36. Is the top of the new clear vision type?

    Jordan was first to use the new type without the old-fashioned extra bows.

37. Is the car equipped with new fashioned nickel barrel lamps, or are they of the old half egg shape type?

    You will find the Jordan type of lamps only on the custom jobs. Others will have this type later.

38. Is the gas tank filler cap of the new bayonet lock type?

    This is the filler cap which makes a hit with the man at the gas station. No fumbling around or wasting time screwing on a broken thread.

39. Does the car have fenders as beautiful, attractive and strong as the Jordan?
40. Is there a lock on the transmission?
41. Are the curtains carried in the doors?
42. Is the car equipped with Marshall cushion springs?
43. Is every nickel plated part on a foundation of brass? Is every exposed nut and bolt rust proofed?
44. Is there a shut off cock on the gasoline line?
45. Is the upholstery of hand buffed leather?
46. Is the transmission and emergency brake lever long and within easy reach of the hand?
47. Is the foot rest of aluminum?
48. Is there a compartment back of the front seat?
49. Is the car equipped with demountable rims?
50. Is there any provision for carrying an extra tire?
51. Are the clutch and brake pedals adjustable?
52. Is the wiring on the car protected at every point of contact with metal by the use of rubber grommets?
53. Is the radiator carried in a cradle like the Jordan so as to prevent leaking?
54. Is the motometer a man size or boy size?
55. What is the price of the Sedan or Brougham, and what equipment is provided?
56. Is there a step light?
57. Is there a windshield cleaner?
58. Is there a carpet in front?
59. Is there a clock on the dash?
60. Is there a vanity case?
61. Is the windshield rain proof and is it built into the cowl or just bolted on?
62. Is there a special arrangement for lubricating the clutch without removing the floor boards?

Finally put the following questions to the salesman:

63. Are you prepared to enter into a competitive demonstration against the Jordan?
64. Will you allow me to drive your car over the roughest streets at the same speed I do the Jordan?
65. Will you check over your car with me covering every detail which is submitted in this advertise ment?
66. Will you allow me to pick one hundred names from your list of owners and will you mail them any letter I may write at your expense?

Jordan stands ready for a detailed competitive test with any automobile selling within $500 of its price. Jordan stands ready to meet any committee of engineers or experts to examine the Jordan car and test it against any automobile made.

You will be convinced by a test of this kind of the real value that lies in the Jordan car.

This is the secret of Jordan success.

Fashions Beauty Contests

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

CREATORS IN CREATIONS.

By Mary Brush Williams.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Once more we have a glimpse of what you might call "applied fashions"—that is to say, one of the creators of styles in a public appearance wearing a creation of her own. Mme. Channel again attended the dinner dance at the Ritz last Sunday evening. You might almost say she was the ornament of the occasion, with her coal black hair, her calculating eyes, and her lovely robe.

There is a raised place in the coffee room, with steps leading up to it, where Oscar, the distinguished manager of the dining room, sets up a miniature bar after dinner, and there are also a few throne chairs facing the coffee room, where couples seat themselves for a few minutes in their course to and from the dance. For one brief interval between the tango and the next jazz number, like a cut-in on the screen of a moving picture, Mme. Channel stood there, and the room said, "So they will be worn in the spring, will they?"

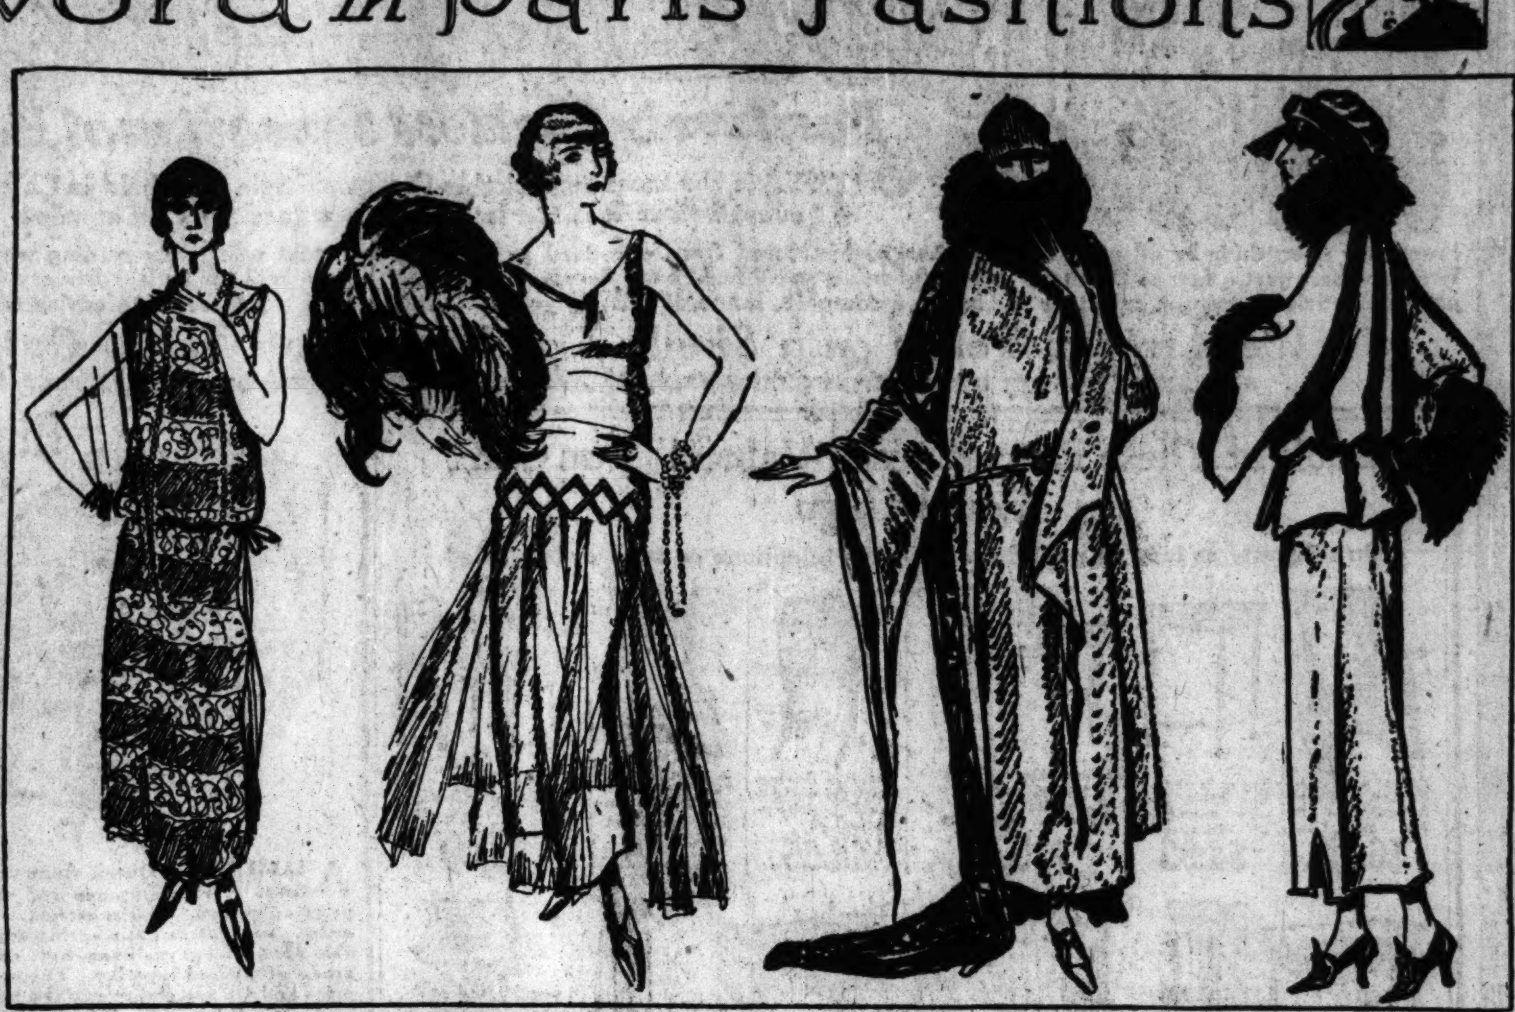
Mme. Channel, you may not know, is supposed to have got her first beginnings by opening a little shop in Deauville for selling sweaters. She was so attractive that all the men strongly advised their wives to wear sweaters and get them there. Sweaters are said to have taken a turn for the better in that year and never to have lost their hold.

The other night at the Ritz, Mme. Channel wore another of her long waisted chemise creations of cafe au lait silk woven with gold lace. Somebody told me some time ago that gold was going to be passe and that everything was done in silver. I don't know where they got their information. Gold is everywhere, and it is in a thread woven in. It only goes to show you can't forecast fashions. The ultimate choice rests with you, and you would have gold. Plain everyday embroidery is not enough any more. It must look as if it were ever so much more trouble to do than that.

But the point to this fashion item is that again there was the low girdle, in gold, and again there was the perfectly even hem. Mme. Channel's magnificent pearls were the talk of the evening.

You might say, I suppose, that cafe au lait is the shade of the season, although all pale, neutral tints—beige, pale gray, champagne color—are worn for the street, as in the case of some one coming gradually out of mourning. Then for the evening the color bursts into a riot you can almost hear. Savage colors vie with one another for enhancing feminine charm.

Mlle. Madelaine Chevrelle, daughter of the French savant, who herself writes well, was one of the guests at the Ritz dinner dance. Round her boudoir she has a collection of blue butterflies, because they are supposed to be her color. But on Sunday night she was out in a dress of flame red velvet. It was as red as you could get it, and it was fenced round the hips with a low girdle of latticed diamond bars. This ceinture held black tulle strips of varying lengths, a short one varying with a long one, that constituted panels for the skirt, which floated to her movements. A French artist said he thought it was the nicest dress there.



Dinner dance costume of café au lait silk woven with threads of gold.

Bright red velvet with latticed diamond girdle holding lengths of black tulle.

This exotic creation is an evening coat. The front is cloth of gold; the back red velvet.

Narrow skirt and extreme blousing of jacket marks this suit for spring.

When I saw in real life the garment represented in the third sketch I demanded to know what it was. It looked like a mantle from the front view and a robe from the rear. Never before had I beheld a coat with a train. The explanation of the queer new evolutionary type was that Poiret had had a vision. He saw in his mind something of this line, coloring, and texture, and he made it, leaving it to chance whether his creation should turn out to be wrap or robe. As a matter of chronicle, it is an evening coat, although I do not see what should ever prevent you from using it as a lounging robe if you so desired. Perhaps it will end its days in that capacity.

It is distinguished for its line and coloring. The front is cloth of gold, run with a carmine thread which makes it shimmer red. The back is of pomegranate red velvet stamped with little Persian trees. One of M. Poiret's friends, when talking to me about it, insisted on the fact that they were Persian trees with which the material was planted, from which I gather it would change the whole spirit of the conception if they were just garden variety of Indiana trees. You can see for yourself that, while the sleeves are large and unruly, they still are more restrained than those of a previous season.

One wears with this exotic creation, so typically French in spite of its Persian note, a sparkling imitation diamond headdress that is Russian in inspiration. One must have a certain well bred look of race to get away with this costume. It is valuable, I think, for showing to what extreme one goes in the matter of robing oneself in this heavily charged town.

The fourth sketch represents the costume of a young woman who, I am told, is well known in Chicago. Her name is Miss Minette Adams and she is the daughter of Mrs. Rubert Adams, who has a home on Long Island. This costume is a little shorter waisted than the line of the typical spring silhouette, but in other respects is characteristic. It is of dark blue soft stuff, with brilliant stitching in cobalt blue in the criss-cross line fashionable in trimmings. The blouse is in cobalt crepe de chine with steel nail heads on it, and there is a border of cobalt blue round the bottom. Perhaps the leading features of the costume are the narrow skirt and the extreme blousing of the jacket. The fur is dark gray fox.

Is Marriage a Failure?

Why do so many marriages go wrong? What are the underlying causes of happy marriages? Are there any happy marriages? What is the matter, if anything with marriage, the institution?

W. L. George, the English novelist, investigated 150 marriages. One hundred and sixteen cases he eliminated as unsuccessful; in five cases the husband was unfaithful; in ten it was the wife; the husband disliked the wife in three cases and in seven it was the wife who did the disliking. Only nine marriages, Mr. George says, were "apparently successful." "Marriage," he adds, "is on its trial before a hesitating jury."

Look over the marriages you know yourself. How many are successes; how many are failures? And why?

The Tribune will pay $1 for each letter published on the question: Marriage—what do you think of it? Address Marriage Editor, The Sunday Tribune.

"Come On In."

Is marriage a failure? Well, now, I dunno.
I embarked on the venture half a century ago.
It wasn't all smooth sailing, we both realized,
And many's the time that we durned near capsized.
But the mate was a good one, and staunch, bless her heart;
In fair or ill weather she did her true part.
She sighted the rocks many times from afar,
And steered us to safety, like a jolly good tar.
Sometimes we met pirates out on the high seas;
Our snug little bark gave a wide berth to these,
For the tide washes up wrecks of many good ships
Who fool 'round with danger to spice up their trips.
The ocean of life is a mighty big place,
And the lone sailor sure needs a whole heap o' grace.
As a hardened old cruiser still sailing the brine
I say, "Come on in, folks, the water is fine."

M. S.

On an Uncharted Sea.

Why do so many marriages go wrong? Because it takes two to make a quarrel, and there are two partners in the business of marriage. The underlying causes of happy marriages? The much exploited mutual understanding and forbearance and the desire for harmony on thte part of both the husband and the wife.

Marriage, like many another time worn institution, is fundamentally right, but in many of its practices basically wrong. The old adage, "Marriages are made in heaven," has given away to the truth, "Marriages are made in haste."

Two persons meet. He likes the color of her hair. She likes the color of his bankroll. After a few fast and furious arrangements they enter into the state of matrimony, and not long after he, in looking at his socks, learns the truth of that adage when applied to the connubial state. He also learns that the shade of her tresses, which he so admired, is a costly thing.

She finds him a far less agreeable breakfast companion, providing she is one of the now almost extinct breakfast table wives. His tales of love and adoration have turned into tales of himself and of his business. To both comes disillusion.

Her best friend is a much admired divorcee, and she begins to wonder if alimony and admiration are not synonymous. He dare not remain away at night. He dare not ask the bunch to the house quite informally as of yore. He dare not remark about another woman's beauty, nor her clothes, nor anything pertaining to her. He begins to wonder just what this talk of the wonders of love is all about.

And at this stage of the great game of life a word—a look—is enough to produce the final wrench. The result, ruined lives or a second trial with one usually worse than the first.

But until each party to the contract learns to consider marriage as a business and, as such, give it due consideration; until each learns the necessity of coöperation, the ship of matrimony will have, at best, an uncharted sea to travel.

R. M.

Knows She's Well Off.

Most of the time I'm well satisfied with my life of single blessedness. But on rare occasions, when I'm tired and things begin to get on my nerves, I wonder if perhaps I should have married a former lover, who had such soulful eyes and who later became the father of a lot of children, or was it a grocer with a lot of shops? Well, on those off days I make a round of calls on my married friends.

I'll call on Helen—several years younger than I, but she looks ages older. If matrimony is as wearing as that, I leave her home more satisfied with life alone.

Then I go to Marie's—she and her husband fight constantly. I'm a wreck when I leave there.

At Flora's I find the other extreme—a dead silence prevails. Hubby finds the club more interesting than his home.

And so it goes. I find a selfish wife or a stingy husband. Seems to me marriage would be more successful if the "marrieds" acted the same as when they were engaged. Do away with that indifferent attitude of "what's the use of running for a street car after you've caught it?"

Let the wife continue to look pretty and be an inspiration to her husband. And let the husband appreciate the wife and let him show that appreciation with candy and flowers, as he did before. Then married life would take on a rosier hue.

How to Tell Fortunes by Cards

says DORIS BLAKE

EACH time I present you a new way of telling fortunes by cards I feel impelled to remind you that this is a game and not, under any circumstances, to be taken seriously. So, don't mind if I seem to repeat myself on this particular warning. But I do want it definitely understood that I give you these various ways of telling fortunes simply for the fun of it. As I have said before, no matter how ridiculous our future may be presented us even in a game, we love to have our fortunes told. And just to while away a pleasant hour or to furnish amusement for a crowd, I present these devious ways of manufacturing "prognostications" from the pasteboards.

Now, the first question to decide in the system I give you today is which card will represent the inquirer. You settle this according to the complexion—diamonds for the fair; hearts, those of medium coloring; clubs for brunettes with brown hair; spades for those of dark complexion. A king represents a man; a queen, a woman.

After selecting your card, place it face up in the center of the table. Shuffle the pack of cards thoroughly, cut once; then count off nine cards, selecting the ninth, which you place face up to the right of the card representing the inquirer. Shuffle entire pack again and count off nine cards; place the ninth card face up to the left of the inquirer card. Repeat this process until you have nine cards on either side of the card representing the inquirer. After the nineteen cards are laid out on the table in a row shuffle the pack again, counting off nine and selecting the ninth, which is placed face down to the right as the first card in the surprise. Shuffle carefully again and repeat process twice, until you have three surprise cards, which are to remain face down until the other cards have been read.

From the signification of the various cards given below, begin to read from left to right as the cards lie on the table, reading the surprise after you have completed the layout of the nineteen cards.

This is called the nine card method, and, outside of the memorizing of the meanings of every card in the deck, is comparatively easy to master. The full pack is used, and it would simplify matters for you to take a pack and mark the meanings on the different cards, so they may be read more rapidly.

The nine of hearts in this method, as in all others, is the wish card. If it appears either in the nineteen exposed cards or in the surprise you get your wish. If it does not appear your wish will not be fulfilled.

Varied Activities of Women

The personnel department for the women employed by a chain of drug stores in New York is presided over by Miss Julia K. Blanchard, who has more than 600 women under her in the sixty-eight stores comprising the chain. Miss Blanchard not only attends to the employing of the women but oversees their training and helps them over difficulties they meet once on the job.

Despite the fact that she is past 81 years of age, Mrs. Laura M. Wright of Belleville, N. J., is head of a plumbing shop. Forty years of her life were spent in practicing medicine.

In years gone by parents in Persia were glad to be rid of little girls and sold them for a few dollars, but now there is a strong desire to educate them and industrial and other schools for the purpose have been established in that country.

Of the vast number of women wage earners in the United States 43 per cent belong to the colored race.

Any mother giving birth to a child on the island of Miyajima, Japan, is exiled for thirty days.

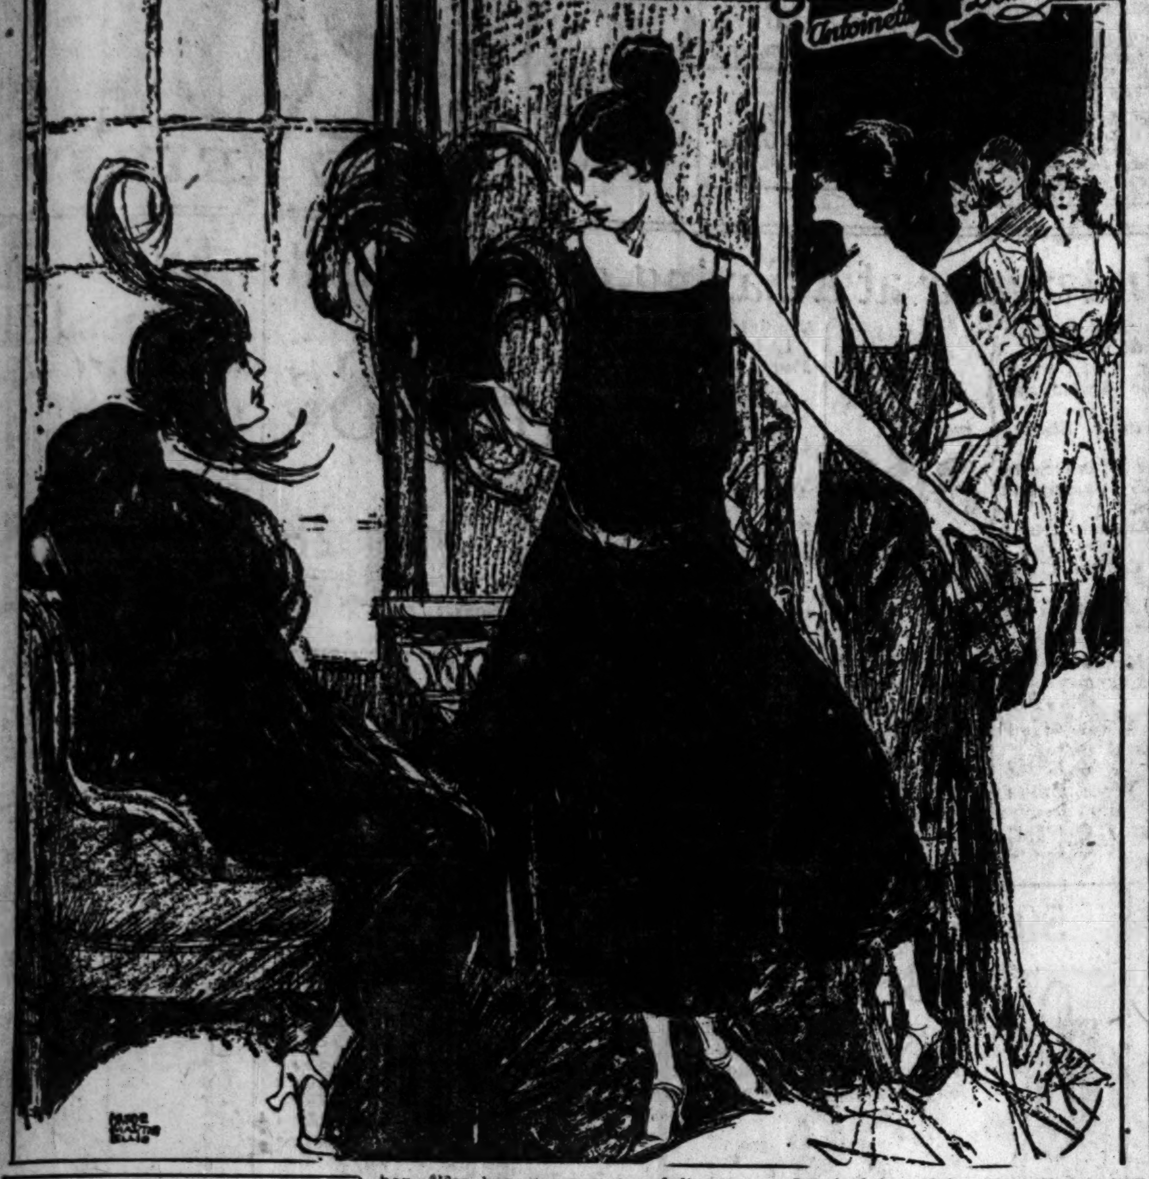
Colors to Match Coloring by Antoinette Donnelly



What's your beauty ill? Too fat? Too thin? Shy on hair? Oily hair, oily skin, freckles pimples, or blackheads? Flat chested or flat footed? Write to me. I have a tonic, a diet or a set of exercises for what ails you and you're welcome to them and to all the advice I can give you. If you wish a personal reply send a stamped, addressed envelope. Address Antoinette Donnelly The Tribune Chicago.

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

NEW YORK.—[Special correspondence.]—The relation of color to beauty is too well established to need any argument here. Undoubtedly it has been within your own experience to see an unobtrusive, even drab young creature, transformed into a gay and pretty young butterfly by the adoption of a different color scheme.

I saw such a transformation recently in a friend with copper colored hair, who felt it her duty, for some deep-rooted and ridiculous prejudice, to garb herself in somber shades that she might kill the coloring which was hers by nature.

A stroke of good fortune and the advice of a friend to put herself into the hands of a woman with a reputation for a fine color sense and a designer as well, led to this particular girl's present reputation as a beauty and one of the best dressed women in New York. And, as she admitted herself, the cost of her present dress is no more than before the change; if anything, less, as she had always paid a fairly good price for her clothes.

Play Up Your Coloring.

"Don't play down your coloring, play it up," was the advice that was given her. "For her street suit a dull green with mole collar was suggested. For her evening dress a purple that brought out the gold in her hair beautifully. A black with a touch of ivory and gold was suggested for her dinner dress, and for an evening wrap a silver and black brocaded metal goods, lined in palest yellow velvet, and a dark brown fur collar. The result for every occasion made this particular woman stand out from the crowd.

"People used to tell me I could look like something if I would let a good modiste dress me," she confided, "but you know how we women are. We all think we know what we should wear better than any one else. It is foolish when you know there are women whose life study has been the particular gown for the particular type. I am convinced now that we have prejudices that are ridiculous, and we need to be talked out of them."

"Just as another instance," she continued, "being of a large build, I always fancied I must wear a tight fitting tailored suit, believing I was minimizing my height and girth. At the direction of the woman who has reformed me I adopted the straight line dresses, and they must be right, judging from the compliments I get now, which I never got before. One discerning male made me happy by telling me I looked ten years younger, so they must be more youthful."

Complexion Is Keynote.

She disclosed the name of her miracle worker as Miss Anna Scheer, whom I found to be the dress director general of particularly smart stage and society women. So I asked for a few good tips on color and lines, as they apply to beauty.

I asked her if in suggesting colors matter of the complexion than the hair. It is a question of whether one has healthy coloring, little coloring, or poor coloring. That is what one has to work from. Green, for example, one could not advise for any but a healthy complexion. Pinks require a youthful and fresh complexion. Tans and grays and olive green, which are to be the popular spring colors, would not go so well with an anemic or faded skin. A hard, dead white is not becoming to any one. Whites should always be of an ivory tone, and they are good for any coloring.."

For both young and old Miss Scheer recommends ivory white as being youthful for the miss and kind to the older woman. But pinks, yellows, baby blues she reserves for the young person.

"Lavender is flattering to almost every type," she added. "Particularly nice for the gray haired woman. Touches of color may be added to it, however, to please the individual need or fancy."

Table of Types and Colors.

The following table the recommended for the different types:

Red head—Browns, every shade particularly the golden and reddish browns; black; almost every shade of green if coloring is good; the new olive spring shade; jade for evening; fuchsias and purples; tans and grays.

Blonde—Blue, mostly every shade; pink for the young and fresh; no yellows; lavender and lavender with touches of blue, ivory white; black.

Brunette—Black; tans and grays; brown; yellow; lavender; rose and pink

Gray hair—Gray (except slate and battleship grays, which are old colors); lavender or purple for evening; white, she got her cue from the color of the hair.

She answered: "No. It is more a black; no green unless coloring is fresh; dark purple for street.

"Black and ivory white is becoming and smart for almost every type of woman. And, of course, there are many in between shades that are popularized for a time, and they must be tried out carefully, always with an eye to their effect on the skin and on the eyes. There are colors that are extremely dulling and disastrous in effect. So the same analytical eye should be turned on them and if one is doubtful the advice of one with a good color sense should be sought. It is surprising the erroneous impression people have of their own possibilities as to colors they may wear. And colors and line after all are much more important in a becoming dress than material."

Recommends Straight Line.

Miss Scheer strongly advocates the straight line for every type, the long and the short, the narrow and the broad, and uneven length skirts to play a trick of lengthening or shortening height. Even the long waist, not exaggerated, however, she advocates for the short woman, particularly now that skirts are longer.

LOVE LETTERS

The Tribune will pay $5 for every love letter published. So, if you can write a good one, or if you have one in your private or family possessions you would like to enter in the contest, send it to Doris Blake, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago. As no letters will be returned, send copies of the ones you wish to retain possession of.

LINES PENNED 100 YEARS AGO.

MOST Respected Miss: It is with the highest pleasure of my life that I now employ myself in the production of a letter the intelligence of which will reveal to you the most secret impulses of my heart. Adored miss, you are the only object of my affection and sole object of my heart's desire. It is for you alone that I could abandon all the pleasant and admirable amusements of the theater of celibacy, to spend my remaining days with you, for it is your auspicious and sympathizing heart alone that possesses the power to raise me to the elevated station of conjugal happiness.

Dear miss, I view you as the richest emblem of divine nature. When I take a contemplative view of the serenity of your features, it makes a ray of joy thrill through my heart that it is not in the power of pen to reveal.

If I could attain your affection I could ramble through the vale of life and range its most exquisite joys, but should you disregard me and reject me, my arrested felicity would only augment and perpetuate my woe. Here I must appeal to the guardian angels from on high who know how dearly I do love.

I once despised the powers of Jove, and laughed at those who talked of love, but now the powers of my mind to one dear object are inclined, and if you are not to be my wife, not all the gold on India's shore can raise my sperrit more, but like some pensive dove, I mourn the absence of my love.

Dear miss, if I am rejected by you I shall then bid adieu to your rosy cheeks and sparkling eyes and be completely immerged in the darkest caves of despair.

I have had in contemplation for some time to address you on the all important subject of matrimony. I shall here take leave of the subject and console myself with the anticipation of these lines meeting your approbation. I want you to write me an answer on the reception of these lines, the true impulse of your heart.

CASCARETS

CANDY CATHARTIC Cascarets CCC FOR THE BOWELS

For Constipated Bowels, Sick Headache, Upset Stomach, Colds, Bilious Liver

The nicest cathartic-laxative in the world for grown-ups or children is candy-like "Cascarets." One or two tonight will cleanse your bowels right. By morning all the constipation poison and sour bile will move out—thoroughly! "They work while you sleep." Cascarets will not sicken you like salts, oil, calomel or harsh pills. They physic fully, but never gripe or inconvenience. Ten, twenty-five, fifty-cent boxes at any drug store.

Embarrassing Moments

The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published on "The Most Embarrassing Moment of My Life." Address Embarrassing Moments, The Tribune, Chicago. Please write on one side of the paper. No manuscripts returned.

Stopping the Boat.

We took a boat trip last summer, my husband and I. Thinking we had plenty of time at one place the boat stopped we came strolling along the pier. Within 200 feet we saw the boat slowly leaving shore. The passengers spied us and all set up a yell. The captain saw us.

My husband said, "Run, Nell! Can't you?"

And I, being plump, couldn't do more than just toddle, and I presume I was a sight for many laughing eyes. The captain stopped the boat, came back for us to get on, but all the time hundreds of people on the decks were yelling, "Come on, there! Hurry up!" And I certainly felt my cheeks flush from the exertion of running and from embarrassment. F. V.

Difficult to Explain.

I am employed as secretary in a large manufacturing concern, I had just taken a telephone message for the vice president when I was told he might be in the superintendent's office.

Being somewhat in a hurry, I went to that office, and upon opening the door and seeing only the superintendent at his desk, I said: "Is Otto here?"

Whereupon he informed me that he was—standing behind the door. Imagine my embarrassment when I knew he had heard me. It was difficult for me to explain the message. B. K.

Only Too Willing.

I was broke. A chum, who understood, was taking me to the movies. On the way we met two girls he knew. He introduced me and invited them to go. They were only too willing, and a second later, with sinking heart, I was trailing along with one of my new acquaintances.

My chum was so engrossed with his girl that he bought only two tickets. I saw him lead her inside. My girl was waiting patiently while I was making a frenzied search of all my pockets in the vain hope that I might have overlooked something.

Just as I was about to confess, my chum reappeared. He had remembered. W. B.

All So Easy.

I stopped to get a new handbag the other day and had about decided upon one, slipping it over my wrist to get the effect. Just then the clerk showed me another of greater value. I decided to purchase the latter, giving the clerk the money and receiving my package. Out on the street I noticed people looking at me rather earnestly, and you may imagine my surprise and embarrassment when I reached my office to find the other purse hanging over my wrist, price tag dangling on a red string in plain sight of every one. I immediately returned to the store, and we all enjoyed the joke. The second surprise was on the part of the clerk, to find that one who could get by with it so easily should return the extra bag. S. E. A.

Accidents Will Happen.

In company with another American woman I entered a shop one day in Lisbon, Portugal. We had made our purchases and were starting out when I stopped to look at a dress which was one of many displayed on a long row of tightweight dress forms.

I accidentally knocked the first one over; it fell against the form next to it, that one against the next one, and so on until the end—just like a row of dominoes—until all were on the floor.

The shopkeeper, with characteristic European politeness, assured madam it did not matter in the least, but it was my most embarrassing moment and I could not make my exit quickly enough. G. K.

Take Mastin's Vitamon Tablets to Renew The Vitality You Use Up Each Day

Clear the Skin, Increase Energy and Correct Constipation

All Three Vitamines With True Organic Iron and the Necessary Lime Salts Concentrated in the Same Tablet

Easy and Economical to Take

Thin run-down folks should find this simple test well worth trying: First weigh yourself and measure yourself. Next take MASTIN'S VITAMON—two tablets with every meal. Then weigh and measure yourself again each week and continue taking MASTIN'S VITAMON regularly until you are satisfied with your gain in weight, "pep," energy and improved appearance. MASTIN'S VITAMON TABLETS contain highly concentrated yeast-vitamines as well as the two other still more important vitamines (Fat Soluble A and Water Soluble C) combined with true organic iron and the necessary lime salts, all of which Science says your body must have to keep you strong, vigorous, well-formed and fortified against the germs of disease. By increasing the nourishing power of what you eat MASTIN'S VITAMON helps supply just what your body needs to feed the shrunken tissues, strengthen internal organs, clear the skin and renew shattered nerve force without upsetting the stomach or causing gas. Pimples, boils and skin eruptions seem to vanish as if by magic under its healthful, purifying influence. But it is not only a question of how much better you look and feel, or what your friends say and think—the scales and tape measure will tell their own story. A two weeks' test will surprise you.

Of what use are fine features with an ugly, mottled skin, flabby flesh, sunken cheeks, pouches under the eyes, or a careworn, sickly-looking face? MASTIN'S VITAMON TABLETS quickly help to clear your skin, put firm, healthy flesh on your bones, and increase your nerve force and power. Try them yourself and see.

YOUR WEIGHT INDICATES YOUR HEALTH. ARE YOU GAINING OR LOSING? If you want to quickly get more strength and vitality and have that firm flesh "pep" which makes you look and feel far better, just try taking two of MASTIN'S VITAMON TABLETS with each meal for a short time and watch the truly amazing results.

WARNING: Your safety and protection depend upon getting MASTIN'S VITAMON TABLETS—if it isn't MASTIN'S it isn't the Original and Genuine VITAMON—the World's Standard—now used by millions. Beware of imitations, cheap substitutes or so-called "yeast vitamine tablets." Insist upon MASTIN'S. At all good druggists, such as

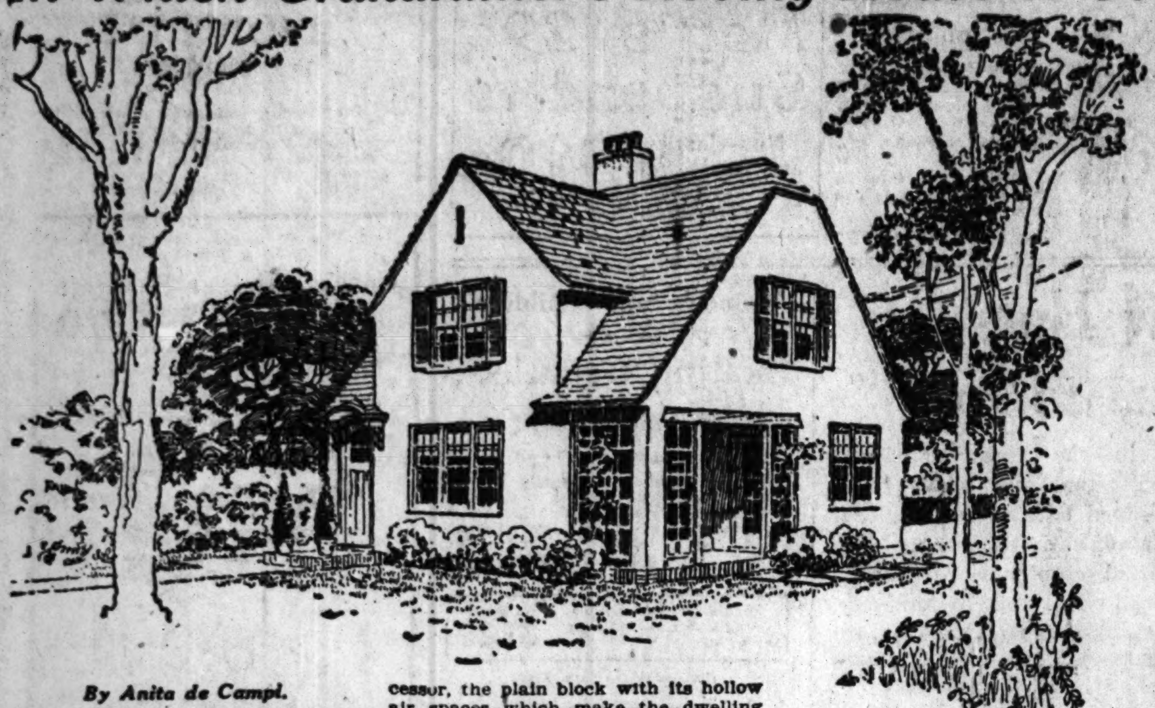
In Which Grandfather's Roomy House of 50 Years Ago Is Improved Upon



By Anita de Campi.

Anita de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problems pertaining to home building and home furnishing. Address your letter to Anita de Campi, The Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped addressed envelope for personal reply.

MUCH of the homey attractiveness of the dwellings built by our grandfathers forty or fifty years ago is seen in this five room stucco house with its generously sloping roof and the large green shingles, the green window blinds, and the trellised side porch reminiscent of other days.

Nevertheless, modern construction genius has lent a hand in making permanent the beauty of structure as a whole. There is, first, the concrete foundation on top of which are several courses of buff color variegated brick which just appear above the ground level. All the walls and the corner porch column are built of plain concrete block or tile covered with Portland cement stucco. The rock faced concrete block of other days, gray and dismal in its crude imitation of natural stone is happily passé. But its successor, the plain block with its hollow air spaces which make the dwelling cooler in summer and warmer in winter, is coming into its own. Engineers say that as it is made of the same material as the stucco which is applied over it, heat and cold cause the two to expand and contract in the same degree, cracking is eliminated, and thus a most satisfactory type of wall construction is obtained.

Home builders in increasing numbers are selecting stucco for their houses. This is due, it is said, to exceptional developments in the manufacture and application of the materials used in stucco construction. Stucco work does not require any special ability beyond that possessed by the average building mechanic, and the home builder who has the leisure time can quickly comprehend and understand what a good stucco job should look like, and see that his is done properly.

The housewife who has a fondness for particular color combinaitons can usually satisfy the craving, as stucco can be made in a large variety of colors and shades. This is done by using colored aggregate [the materials that are mixed with the cement] or by using mortar colors. Of these, the former is the more artistic and usually more expensive, but in localities where colored limestone, marble, granite, and trap rock abound and when those are accessible they can be crushed and used with the cement at moderate cost. Stucco colored in this way retains its original color permanently.

In the other method of coloring stucco, mortar colors made usually of mineral or other inorganic substances such as red oxide of iron, yellow ochre, or lamp black are mixed with the mortar while making up the stucco. It has been found that the lighter shades, such as pale blue, light pink, light green, etc., are strongest and more durable.

It has been found that for colored stucco, white cement lends itself better than gray to bringing out the colors in the aggregate. However, many prefer the gray stucco, and for this gray cement, of course, is used.

Another method of obtaining distinctive color effects is by the use of a dash of some sort over the smooth stucco while it is still wet. Moreover, the body of the stucco could also be colored by either of the two methods just described. In dash work, a finish which is much in vogue today, crushed marble or granite chips, which come in all colors from white to deep greenish black and black, are by means of a paddle or shovel thrown on to and partially embedding themselves in the soft stucco. When the succo hardens the dash forms a permanent part of the finish.

To obtain color harmony, light colored stucco is especially desirable. It is thus possible to paint the trim light or dark for contrast. Further, if a change in the color scheme is desirable, it can readily be effected by painting the trim some other color.

Proper planting of shrubbery and flowers is another detail which achieves results not always fully understood until accomplished. Green leaves and red flowers—tulips, poppies, and geraniums — form a pleasing contrast against white or gray stucco.

In keeping with the permanence of the stucco on concrete block exterior it is desirable to make the interior as free from upkeep expense as possible. In such a small home it is to be expected that the floors and partitions will be of wood. However, when plaster is applied over ordinary lath, on wood studs and joists, the house after a few years is seldom free from plaster cracks, a source of annoyance and expense, especially if the cracks appear on the walls and ceilings of prominent rooms. But if, instead, metal lath is placed over the wood studs and joists [in these rooms only, to derive the greatest benefit at minimum expense], the plaster is reinforced and resists tendencies toward movement of the walls and ceilings, making them quite crackproof.

Architects O. Lang and H. Olson of Minneapolis are the designers of this home.

Pompeian Day Cream

Her Beauty Draws Them All

HER beauty compels them—her lovely color attracts. Wherever she goes she is followed by the admiring glances of men and women. Her face is radiant with happiness, for she knows the secret of Instant Beauty—the complete "Pompeian Beauty Toilette."

First, a touch of fragrant Pompeian DAY Cream (vanishing). It softens the skin and holds the powder. Work the cream well into the skin so the powder adheres evenly. Then apply Pompeian BEAUTY Powder. It makes the skin beautifully fair and adds the charm of delicate fragrance. Now a touch of Pompeian BLOOM for youthful color. Do you know that a bit of color in the cheeks makes the eyes sparkle with a new beauty? Lastly, dust over again with the powder, in order to subdue the Bloom. Presto! The face is beautified and youth-i-fied in an instant! (Above 3 preparations may be used separately or together. At all druggists, 60c each.)

TRY NEW POWDER SHADES. The correct powder shade is more important than the color of dress you wear. Our new NATURELLE shade is a more delicate tone than our Flesh shade, and blends exquisitely with a medium complexion. Our new RACHEL shade is a rich cream tone for brunettes. See offer on coupon.

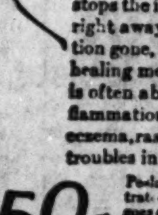
BANISH THE FIRST GRAY HAIR

DO NOT despair when that first gray hair appears. Keep your youthful appearance by tinting gray, faded, streaked or bleached hair instantly to its original color—any shade of brown or black. "Brownatone," the modern hair tint, is guaranteed absolutely harmless to the hair, scalp or skin. Easily applied at home. Will not rub or wash off and cannot be detected. Sold at all dealers 50c and $1.50. Trial bottle sent direct for 10c. The Kenton Pharmacal Co., 612 Coppin Bldg., Covington, Ky.

BROWNATONE

For advice or hair tinting, visit the Brownatone Shop, 1833 Stevens Bldg.

Poslam



surely does heal eczema

A very little Poslam spread over the irritated skin usually stops the itching and burning right away. With the irritation gone, the skin at rest, the healing medication in Poslam is often able to check the inflammation and clear away eczema, rashes, or similar skin troubles in a few days.

Poslam is so concentrated that a little goes a long way.

Doris Blake's Answers to Love Problems

Have you a perplexing love affair on which you need the counsel of a friend? Write to Doris Blake care The Tribune. Chicago. If you wish a personal reply please send a stamped addressed envelope.

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

Mother Doesn't Like Him.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have written a letter to the girl I have been going out with for more than a year, and in this letter I stated, 'What does it matter what your mother says to you, if you care for me? You'll go with me no matter what any one says.' Her mother got hold of the letter and ever since then I have not been able to take the girl out, although I see her on the outside without her mother knowing it.

"Tell me what to do, as I love this girl and I know she loves me also, for I wanted to break off with her and she did not think I was doing right toward her, for she says she hasn't done anything to me that would make me break off with her.

"Miss Blake, I hope you can help me out with this question. What would you do if you were this girl?

First, I would have to know why the mother does not like you. Naturally, she would be incensed at your letter, which was anything but wise for you to have written. But you had better tell me more about what kind of young man you are, so I can see whether the mother's convictions have foundation or not.

Earmarks of a Trifler.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 20 years old and in love with a man I met two months ago, he being five years my senior. He calls me up almost every day and meets me in the evening after business. He asked me once to go out with him, but when the night came it so happened that his business called him away to a conference. He has not asked me since to go out with him. As you have helped others, I am sure that you can tell me just how I can find out if he loves me or not. Please answer this soon and give me your opinion of him. Perhaps he is bashful, but I hardly think that can be so.

"CURLEY."

He seems to have the distinct earmarks of a trifler, Curley. Don't think I would spend much time worrying about him. It may just be possile he has no money to spend on entertainment, but then he should be candid about it and not make engagements only to break them, should he?

Something to Talk About.

"Dear Miss Blake: Please let me know how to overcome bashfulness in the presence of the girl I love.

"When with her I cannot think of anything worth while telling her and I am in constant fear of making foolish mistakes, or hurting her feelings.

"I want to know how to remedy this and what a girl likes to talk about the most.

"J. S."

With some of us, J. S., the favorite topic is ourselves, what nice girls we are, and how smart and wonderful, and so on. However, you can only apply that with a fine composure in order that our sex would not think you ridiculous. No, what you need is more assurance, more confidence in yourself, a little bit more aggressiveness, and these you must administer yourself by sheer force of will power. Instead of worrying about making a mistake, make up your mind you will not, and go ahead with the conversation. There are so many topics of interest to discuss that I need only suggest you read the newspapers, and until you have yourself better in hand perhaps you would better keep to the subjects of newspaper interest.

Have the Same Name.

"Dear Miss Blake: Perhaps you can help me out in a serious problem. I am in love with a young man four years my senior. Recently he proposed marriage to me and I accepted. When I told my parents about this they objected. Their only objection to my marrying this young man is because his name is exactly the same as mine. Don't you think my parents are a bit foolish to mind a thing like that when we love each other dearly?

"ANXIOUS."

That does seem foolish when you love each other deeply, as you say. But I think you can talk them out of a simple objection like that all right. They would rather see you happy without a change of name than unhappy with a change, wouldn't they?

Adding to Her Years.

"Dear Mrs. Blake: I am 16 years of age, and am going out with a boy of 20. I told him I was 17, and as I love him I don't know what to do. Should I tell him my right age?"

"ANXIOUS."

Yes, Anxious, tell him the truth. Why did you tell a story like that anyway? Were you afraid he would think you were just a youngster?

When Meals Disagree

and you experience an acid, sour condition due to indigestion or dyspepsia, there is prompt relief in

STUART'S Dyspepsia Tablets

They neutralize the acidity by giving the stomach the alkaline effect, the same as when in normal condition.

As a first aid in stomach distress these tablets are highly recommended by many physicians.

WINTER SPORT CLOTHES MUST BE WARM.

By A. T. Gallico.

NEW YORK. — [Special Correspondence.]—Some time ago, upon the return of Douglas Fairbanks and his wife from abroad I called him up, thinking to get a few pointers upon the English clothing I felt sure he must have purchased while in London. Mr. Fairbanks came to the telephone, but exhibited an extreme modesty as to his wardrobe.

"No," he said, "I didn't buy a thing on the other side. I don't like to dress up. As long as I'm in style and look clean and neat——"

"Not one article of clothing? And you were in London?"

"Well, now that you put it that way, maybe I did. You see, I froze most of the time in England. I'll be glad to get back to California. I bought some winter sport clothes."

Here at least was something, and I began to frame an article on winter sport clothes.

"Fine! Now, if you'll give me a line on the cut and the make?"

"Simplest cut!" replied Mr. Fairbanks. "Best make, though. Red flannels, you know. Best thing in the world to keep warm in."

Which was typically Fairbanks. However, Mr. Fairbanks had inadvertently struck the keynote of winter sport clothes. While it is pleasant to be in style, the most important thing is to keep warm. And, I might add, you do not have to go to Lake Placid or to the winter carnival at Dartmouth in order to wear the costumes that are fashionable at those resorts. For sport clothes are as essential as business clothes if you live in the country, perhaps from the point of comfort alone, and even in the city or its close environments skating and sledding are made more enjoyable through the proper attire.

Winter sport clothes differ from those of summer only in that they are as a rule heavier and there is more to them. In fact, since the knickerbocker suit is the main feature of the winter costume as it is in the summer there is no necessity of having separate suits for the two seasons. Simply add a woolen muffler, a heavy cap, a sweater, or a leather coat, and the golf suit becomes a skating costume. But if you are a fancy skater or can afford to have the extra knickers and want a costume which is exclusively for skating or skiing, you may have the semi-riding breeches, which are shown in the middle of the illustration, and which are more desirable for skating since the legs do not flap against each other as the fuller golf knickers do.

We used to see a great many long heavy overcoats on the skating rinks, but in the last years there has come a realization of the comfort of skating or tobogganing in a short coat and knickers. Not only do the knickers with heavy woolen stockings prevent the snow and wind from going up one's legs, but the coats are made loose enough so that a sweater may be worn underneath, making an overcoat unnecessary.

The most popular knicker suit is a three piece tweed. The coat may be belted in a Norfolk style, but the plain sack coat threatens to place itself foremost in fashion and popularity. By having a four piece tweed suit—plain sack coat, vest, trousers, and knickers—the business suit and the sport suit may be combined, and thus save the expense of having two distinct suits. The coats are mostly single breasted, since if sweaters are worn underneath the result would be too bulky with a double breasted coat.

As to vests, a large and well known New York sporting goods house shows as a popular and smart variation leather vests as well as suede and chamois. For extra warmth they offer windproof paper vests or leather windbreakers. Or it is quite correct to wear a sweater under the jacket.

If a heavy sweater is worn there is no need for an overcoat of any kind, unless the weather is unusually severe. But with the vest and jacket combination one of the most popular means of averting the cold is with a short leather coat, either all leather or tweed lined with leather. These are usually belted. As they are short they are good for skating or hiking or any form of winter pastime. These coats are often worn with separate knickers, which are quite correct in winter, as they are in summer, except that they are not linen and silk, but cheviot or homespun.

The right hand youth in the foreground is wearing a leather fleece lined coat. The man on the left portrays another correct possibility—a heavy roll collared sweater.

Although leather is one of the smartest winter costumes, it is perhaps not as practical as it might be, since there is no ventilation, and the body tends to become overheated with vigorous exercise.

Mother! Your Sick Child is Bilious, Constipated.

Give "California Fig Syrup"

Harmless Laxative for Your Child's Liver and Bowels

Hurry mother! A teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup" today may prevent a sick child tomorrow. If your child is constipated, bilious, feverish, fretful, has cold, colic or if stomach is sour, tongue coated, remember a good "physic-laxative" is often all that is necessary.

Children love the "fruity" taste of genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children printed on bottle. Say "California" or you may get an imitation.

Chicago Sunday Tribune — Household Hints
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

PART EIGHT

JANUARY 29, 1922.

THE TEENIE WEENIES.

REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

THE LITTLE FOLKS ARE INVITED OUT TO SUNDAY DINNER.

BY WM. DONAHEY.

IN this contest the boys seem to be having a bit the better of it, both in number sending in pictures and in the artistic work performed. Perhaps the girls will make a better showing with this one. The picture can be colored either with crayons or water colors. A Teenie Weenie book is given to each of ten boys and girls who do the best work on the picture. Winners in last Sunday's contest are announced in the last column.

The squirrel should be colored a reddish brown, the sky blue or yellow, and the trees a greenish brown. The tree in the foreground should be much darker than the tree in the background. Gogo should have a dark brown face, and the Chinaman's face ought to be tan, while the rest of the Teenie Weenies have pink faces. The Teenie Weenies clothes can be colored to suit yourself.

When it's ready send your picture in, and a big Teenie Weenie book will be given as a prize for each of the ten best pictures submitted.

Address your picture to The Teenie Weenies, care of The Sunday Tribune, Chicago.

Be sure to give your name and address correctly. Use this coupon if you like:

"DUNCE, come here and let me look at your fingernails," cried the Lady of Fashion.

"Ah j-j-j-jimminie f-f-fishooks crickety me!" exploded the Dunce, glaring at the little lady. "You all time wantin' to look at my teeth or my ears or my fingernails. Great grief, don't you think I know enough to keep myself clean?"

"Yes, I think you know enough to keep yourself clean, but you do not always keep yourself neat," answered the Lady of Fashion, as she examined the Dunce's tiny nails. "My goodness! I never in all my life saw such dirty fingernails. Go clean them this minute. Gogo, have you a clean handkerchief? And, Mr. Policeman, if I were in your place I'd brush my coat."

"It's a mighty good thing we've got the Lady of Fashion to keep us spruced up or we'd look like a set of Teenie Weenie tramps most of the time," laughed the General, as he smoothed out the red feather on his hat.

"Well, I hate to nag," answered the Lady of Fashion. "But when we are invited out it seems to me we ought to look our best and show in every way that we appreciate the invitation. If an invited guest came to see me with dirty fingernails I'd consider it an insult."

The Teenie Weenies had been invited to have Sunday dinner with a ground squirrel who lived near the rose bush, and the Lady of Fashion was most particular that every one should be neat and clean.

When the little lady had looked over the Teenie Weenies to be sure they were spick and span, they set out for the squirrel's home.

The squirrel met the little folks at the door of his house, which was a hole in the ground near a bush. It was quite dark in the squirrel's house, and the little people asked permission to light several candles which they had brought with them.

Copies of the Teenie Weenie book are being sent to the ten little artists named below for the best work on the picture printed last Sunday:

Lee Gamble, 432 South avenue, Van Wert, O.
Jane Lehman, 105 North Granger street, Harrisburg, Ill.
Francis Huster, 1640 Sedgwick street, Chicago.
William Church, 182 North La Crosse avenue, Chicago.
Charlotte Werth, 3439 College avenue, Indianapolis, Ind.
Tom Hamilton, 413 South Boots street, Marion, Ind.
Eleanor Bersell, 122 North Jefferson street, Ottumwa, Ia.
Ruth Craig, 610 South Ashland avenue, Green Bay, Wis.
Barrett McDonnell, 2206 Le Claire street, Davenport, Ia.
Jack Edwards, Box 448, Crystal Lake, Ill.

The squirrel took the Teenie Weenies through a long tunnel that wound about many roots and rocks, and finally opened into a huge cavelike room almost as big as a market basket.

The cave was the squirrel's living room and it connected with several smaller caves. One large room was used as a storeroom, and it was filled to the top with various kinds of nuts. Most of the rooms or caves were lined with dry moss and leaves, and they were quite warm and comfortable.

The Teenie Weenies carefully put their candles in place, so as not to set fire to the dry moss and leaves, and, putting aside their hats and coats, they soon made themselves at home.

Presently the squirrel dragged a big dry leaf into the middle of the cave and piled it high with several kinds of nut meats. There were walnuts, hickory nuts, hazel nuts, beech nuts, butter nuts, and acorns. The Teenie Weenies sat on the moss around the leaf and ate until they were as full as stuffed turkeys.

The Policeman ate so much he grew sleepy and the General had to pinch him several times to keep the fat little fellow awake.

The squirrel told many stories and the little people spent a most pleasant afternoon.

When it was time for the Teenie Weenies to go home the squirrel led them through the long passage to the outside door, where he stood on his hind legs and shook hands with each of the little folks as they passed out.

The Dunce thought it would be a short cut to climb up the steep side of the entrance and leave that way, but he was stopped by the Policeman.

"What in the name of common sense do you mean by such ungentlemanly conduct," growled the Policeman. "That's a great way to sneak off without thanking Mr. Squirrel for his kindness. Now, you go right back and take off your hat and shake hands with Mr. Squirrel and tell him you have had a most delightful time."

"Ah, say," growled the Dunce. "Mr. Squirrel saw that I had a good time. Didn't I eat about twice as many nuts as any one else?"

"Well, that's all the more reason why you should go back and thank him for his kindness," answered the Policeman.

The Teenie Weenies were so full of nuts they could not eat a bite of supper, and for once the Cook had an easy time of it, with nothing to do but get Grandpa half a grain of boiled rice and a cup of malted milk for his evening meal.

BRIGHT SAYINGS OF THE CHILDREN

The Tribune will pay $1 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

Jayne is in second year of a country school, and is beginning to take great pride in writing letters to her aunt. In the last letter received from her she was telling of a rainbow she had seen that afternoon.

She wrote of the many colors, but she said: "It must have rained pretty hard up there, for it was pretty faded."

She has to walk about a mile to school, and the roads are in bad shape during the winter months.

In one of her letters she finished with this sentence: "Well, good-by for this time. There isn't much news, but lots of mud."

As I started up the stairs in an apartment building a little boy and his puppy were at the top. Pup began barking. I pretended fear. The little boy said, "Come on up, lady. He ain't a biter, he's just a barker."

Tony had heard members of his family complain that he was a spoiled child, because he so often insisted on having his own way. Later, when a baby sister arrived, he replied, "For goodness sake, I do hope you folks won't spoil her like you did me, or I won't be able to live with her."

Phillip and his smaller brother were frequent callers at our house. One morning we were busy baking cookies and cake, when the two called, and little was said to them. In fact, they did not receive their customary treat.

A neighbor came in, and seeing the boys, asked what they were doing.

"O," said Philip, "we are just sitting here enjoying the smells."

Just before Christmas mother asked Louise what she wanted Santa to bring her.

"A baby sister," was Louise's prompt request.

Her little brother Walton, who had been intently listening, remonstrated, saying, "Shoot, no! Make it twin boys."

Willie was taken to a football game to see his big brother play. After the game every one was excited because the opposing team had been victorious.

"Willie," said father, "did you see your brother on the eleven?"

"Yes, father," he replied, "I saw him, but part of the time the eleven were on him."

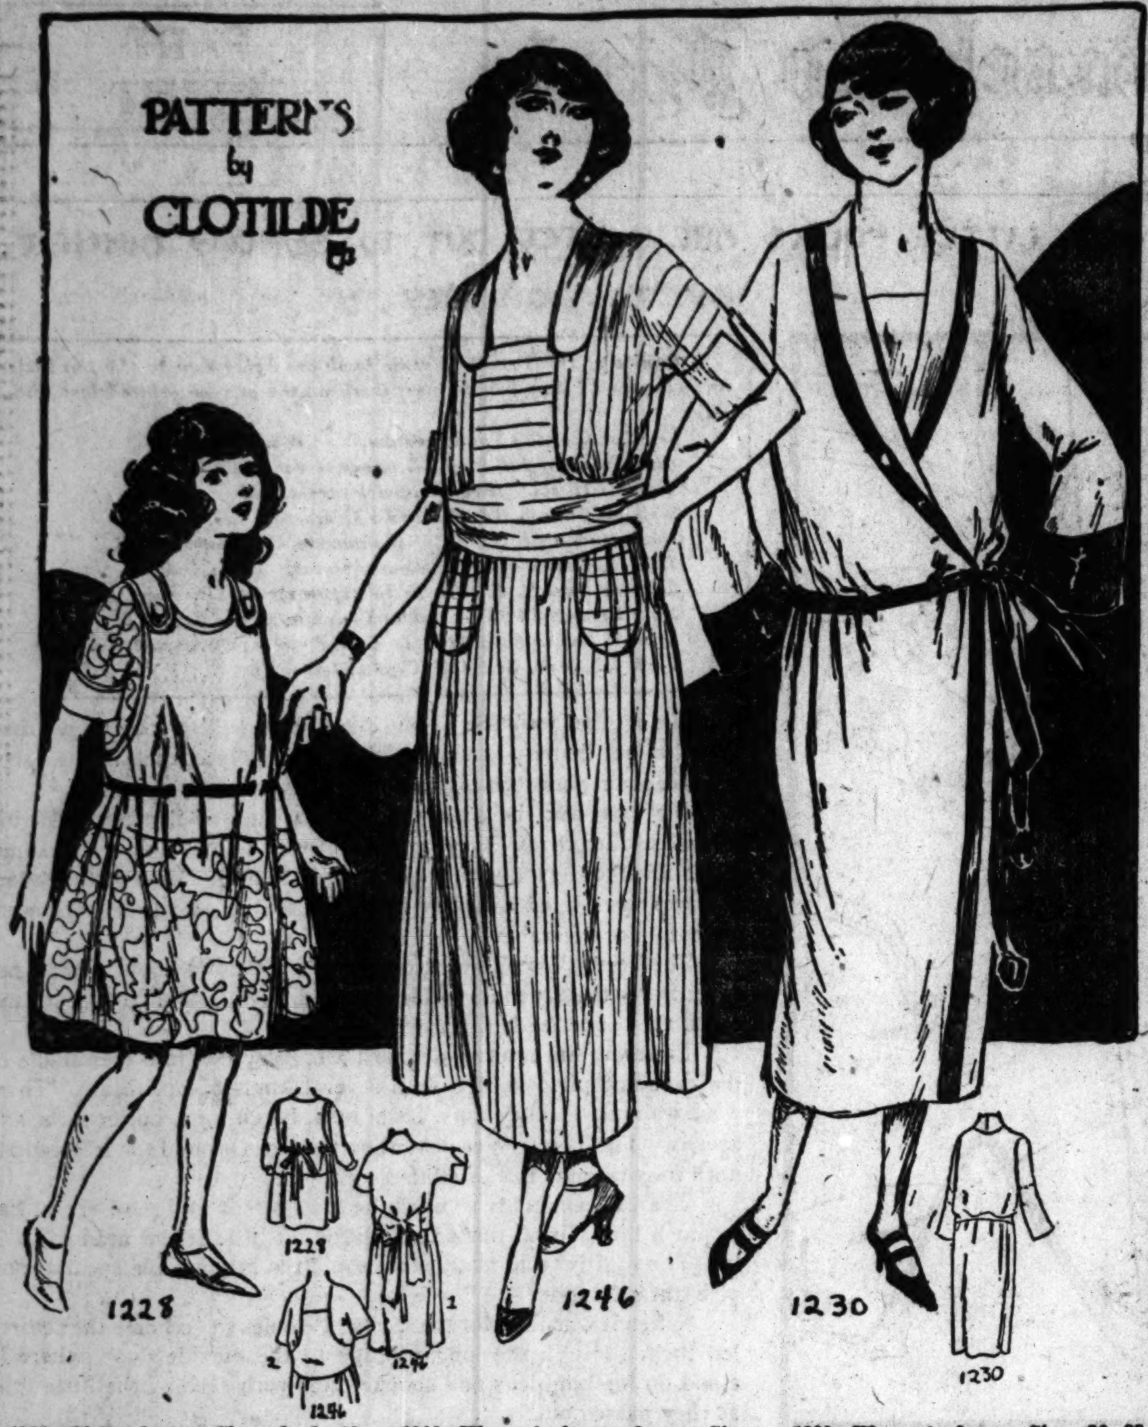
O.W. Richardson & Co.
125 South Wabash Avenue



1228—Girl's dress. Sizes 6, 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. Size 8 requires 1⅜ yards of 36 inch figured material and ⅞ yard of plain.

1246—Woman's house dress. Sizes 36, 40, and 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 44 inch material and ½ yard of 32 inch contrasting.

1230—Woman's dress. Sizes 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 4¾ yards of 36 inch material, 1 yard of 30 inch contrasting, and 1 yard of 36 inch lining.

HOW TO USE THE PATTERNS

VELVETEEN or crepe de chine would make up attractively by pattern No. 1228. Large armholes and low waist line are so well liked now, and are seen in women's clothes as well as in the young girl's.

The little skirt is cut quite goring at the sides and joined to the lower edge of the waist. The back of the waist at the shoulders extends way over on the front, and is prettily finished there by having rounded edges, which lap over the fronts and fasten. These rounded back edges should be faced to a little beyond the line of small perforations showing where back and front come together on the shoulders.

The side parts of the waist and sleeves are cut in one piece, making kimono sleeves, and these are set into the deep armholes.

Notches show just how the pattern goes together. Instead of taking an ordinary seam at the armhole, turn the edge of the armhole in and set a narrow piping of some contrasting color in so the folded edge extends about one-eighth of an inch from the turned in edge of the armhole; then set the sleeve in and stitch through from the right side. The raw edges should be finally overcasted together and a second row of stitching put in, leaving a space three-eighths of an inch between stitchings.

If long sleeves are decided upon perforations show where the fullness is gathered to fit the cuffs. The cuff is seamed together, and it is important to see that it is just the desired size. It is also well to remember that in sewing the sleeve to it, with the fullness gathered, always makes the band seem a little tighter. When ready to attach to the sleeve, pin it carefully in place at the seam and the middle, and at each end of the fullness; then see to it that in basting and stitching it is kept the same size around. After the first stitching is done the sleeve should be tried on.

For an attractive afternoon dress to wear at home, pattern No. 1246 is just the thing.

The skirt is slightly gored on the sides, measuring 1⅞ yards at the bottom for size 36. One or two materials could be used for this dress. There are many attractive new wash materials; among them is chintz, which comes in wonderful colors and designs. This would combine beautifully with a contrasting, plain color, using the figured for the front of the waist, collar, and cuffs, and the plain for the rest of the dress.

It may be a help to lay all the pattern pieces out on a large table; carefully pin the parts together—taking pains to exactly match all marks so you will see just how it goes together.

No. 1230 is one of those coat dresses that are so useful and smart. Serge, tricotine, wool jersey, velvet, or any one of the lighter weight materials, such as satin, taffeta, linen, or the heavy crêpes would be appropriate.

There is an underwaist to which the vest is attached; the sleeves are also sewed to the underwaist armholes. These armholes must be faced all around with the dress material, cutting the facings exactly the shape of the armhole, basting the facing to the edge of the armhole, and turning in the opposite edge of the facing and stitching down to the underwaist.

The skirt and waist are cut separately; the waist is bloused.

The sleeves may be of the dress material or something contrasting both as to color and material. If any trimming is desired, from one to three rows of narrow silk braid or folds made of silk or satin would be effective—these being stitched to the dress only on one edge and in this instance starting at the waist line of the skirt and going down the front and around the bottom. Of course, the corners at the bottom should be perfectly mitred.

"Puppy love, calf love"—

That is what the older folk unfeelingly call the first golden love affair of the boy and the girl. But to youth it is a serious matter. Sometimes it shapes lives. Sometimes it deepens into tragedy. But most of the time it is just a roaring comedy of the teens—a comedy that will bear telling now that its principal actors are older, with perhaps a bit of frost in the hair.

What was your "puppy love" affair? Can you tell it now without a wrench of the heart—with a laugh, say? If so—

The Tribune will pay $5 for each story published on "My 'Puppy Love' Story." Write on one side of the paper and make your story brief. Address Puppy Love Editor, The Chicago Sunday Tribune.

Doctor at 82 Finds Mothers Prefer His Formula to New-Fangled Salts And Coal Tar Remedies for Babies

Judgment of 1892 vindicated by world's approval of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a simple vegetable compound for constipation—So safe thousands give it to babes in arms—Now has largest sale in the world.

WHEN a man is in the 83rd year of his age, as I am, there are certain things he has learned that only time can teach him. The basis of treating sickness has not changed since I left Medical College in 1875, nor since I placed on the market the laxative prescription I had used in my practice, known to druggists and the public since 1892, as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Then the treatment of constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions that result from constipation was entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of my Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of Egyptian Senna and other mild laxative herbs with pepsin.

Recently new medicines have been brought out for constipation that contain calomel, which is mercury, salts of various kinds, minerals, and coal tar. These are all drastic purges, many of them dangerous, and the medical profession is warning the public against them. Certain coal tar products will depress the heart; certain salts give rise to intestinal poisoning, impaction and rupture of the intestines. If grown people want to use them no one can deny them the privilege, but they should never be given to children.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you, and the better for the general health of all. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with pills and powders and strong drugs, even if disguised in candy? My remedy, too, costs less than most others, only about a cent a dose. A bottle such as you can find in any drug store, will last a family several months, and all can use it. It is good for the babe in arms because pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. In the proper dose, given in the directions, it is equally effective at all ages. Elderly people will find it especially ideal.

The formula of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is on the cover of every bottle, and the ingredients have the endorsement of the U. S. Pharmacopoeia.

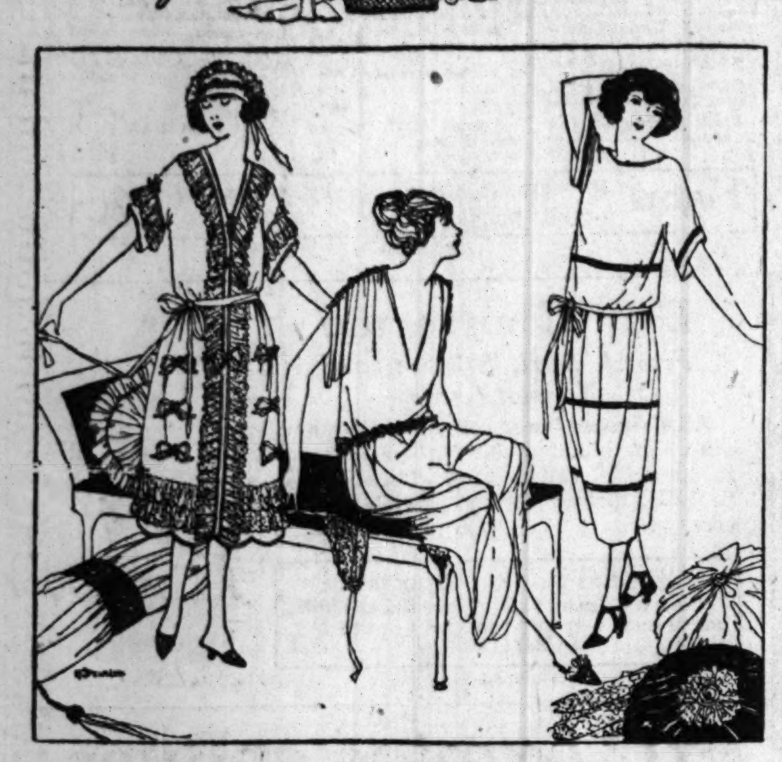
Practical and Fancy Needle Work

By Clotilde



GIFTS FOR A BRIDE.

AN attractive negligee made of a delicate shade of rose in crepe de chine was seen recently, and it is so simple in design that any one who sews much could easily duplicate it. It was cut kimono shape but on generous lines. A kimono night dress pattern would be good to follow, and from the underarm part to the bottom the line should be straight. A 5 inch hem finished it at the bottom, and this was joined to the garment by fagotting. Then there was a line of fagotting part way up the skirt and a line of fagotting joined the top part to the skirt. It is clearly pictured here.

The neck is cut round and is finished with a bias fold. The sleeve edges have a narrow hem set on with fagotting. A string sash confined it at the waist line. Black, blue or any color would make up prettily by this design

Another negligee or breakfast coat is made of pale green taffeta, open down the front and having kimono sleeves —short, of course. Down each front the finish was a pink taffeta binding and around the scalloped bottom the binding was used also. Around the bottom, above the scallops, were two gathered lace frills, made of edging 4 or 5 inches wide, and above these on the fronts were lovely bowknots made of the bias folds, with tiny flowers nestling in the center of the knots.

The neck was finished with a lace frill held in place by a fold or binding —so this finish is really continuous entirely around the coat. Ribbons are used to tie together down the front.

This would make a charming gift for a bride, or be an enviable addition to one's own wardrobe. Satin mules could be bought the same color as the coat and trimmed with bowknots, matching the breakfast coat; and if one wanted to have nothing forgotten, one of those fascinating bands for the hair made of gold lace and ribbon, or any combination one might choose, could be added.

How I Met My Better Half

Do you remember when you met the Only Girl and decided that you need hunt no longer for the ideal life partner? Those were the happy days, weren't they? Why not tell about that joyous, romantic time, and share your pleasant memories with the folks who have had like experiences? Just take your pen in hand and write your story. Then send it to the Romance Editor, Chicago Sunday Tribune. The Tribune will pay $1 for each letter published.

A Queer Kind of Steed.

One Saturday I was told by the boss I was to have the afternoon off, so I lost no time in jumping into my car and heading for the country. I was thinking what a beautiful place the country was, especially at harvest time, when an object in a field attracted my attention. A young woman was sitting on a cow's back and coming towards an open gate directly opposite from where I stopped the car. The cow was exceeding all speed limits and was making for that gate as though her life depended on getting through it.

I lost no time in climbing on the gate post and as they passed through I caught the girl around the waist, lost my balance, and we both landed in a mud puddle. I liked the expression on her face so well that I accepted her dad's invitation to supper that evening and some clean clothes her brother offered me that I might make myself presentable after falling in that mud.

During the meal she explained that she had walked out into the field that afternoon and rode back on a load of hay, not seeing the cow that had followed the load. When she jumped off she landed directly on the cow's back and had hung on for dear life while the cow was trying to make her getaway.

It is needless to say I was a frequent visitor there after that, and before seven months had elapsed the wedding bells had rung. J. D.

Took Him in Hand.

He was battered and tattered, muddy and worn. I looked up from my typewriter, where I was grinding out my daily feature story for a newspaper, to face the new reporter. His overcoat was spattered with mud. His hat was a shapeless wreck. His nose was red. His eyes were bleary.

Then he spoke. His voice was the voice of a cultured southern gentleman, soft and beautifully modulated. He bowed before me deferentially, as men bow always in softly lighted drawing rooms but never in northern newspaper offices.

While I answered his casual inquiries I pondered upon the look in his eyes. It was the dumb expression of suffering one often sees in the eyes of a hurt animal but seldom in the eyes of man. Then he was gone.

Half an hour later, in response to a remark by the city editor regarding the new man, I said, "O, he will not last around here two weeks unless somebody reforms him."

"Why don't you try the job?" suggested another joking reporter.

"I can do it," I said.

I did. In less than a month he proposed. I accepted conditionally. My conditions were fulfilled. The reformation took place. We were married and are now living in the happy ever after stage. R. C.

WINTER FISH.

EARLY in January salmon steak, "fancy coast frozen," was being offered at 14 cents a pound in one large store, and at 1½ cents less than that at another place. That price is much lower than that at which we usually get our famous Chinook salmon, and perhaps the reason for this is that it is being frankly sold as frozen fish. When the dealers thaw frozen fish, and sell it as fresh caught, there is a good deal of waste of fish, as well as of moral fiber, and the consumer pays the price—for both.

For a number of years the United States department of agriculture, through its bureau of chemistry, and also the United States department of commerce through its bureau of fisheries, have been circularizing us and sending paid demonstrators to us—when they could raise the money to pay them—to teach us to use frozen fish. There are several sorts of these, since those called "winter caught" are pulled up through the ice and frozen as they fall on the ice in atmosphere a good deal below zero. Another method is to freeze the fish as soon as they are drawn from the deep cool sea. "This method of freezing fish, then sealing in a jacket of ice, hardly before the wiggle is out of their tails, preserves the fine flavor of fresh fish," it is maintained.

Fish frozen by the latter method are not necessarily caught in winter but in "late summer when the schools are large and the fish fat and plentiful." There is an extensive literature on this subject now, as well as on fish in general. If you want to know how much has been done on fishes send to the superintendent of documents, Washington, D. C., for the list of United States fisheries bureau publications. You will be surprised at the length of the list and the immensely promising usefulness of certain bulletins.

To Thaw Frozen Fish.

In buying salmon steak, for instance, you would hardly think of putting it in water to thaw it. Entire fish are put into cold water to thaw as a quick way of preparing them for cooking, or for being sold as fresh caught. It's not the best way. There is no chance of frozen fish losing their flavor if they are thawed at room temperature, unless they are allowed to stand for some time before cooking. The flesh more quickly breaks down in thawed fish than in fresh; therefore they should be used at once after being thawed.

Seasoning Fish Steaks for Broiling.

A fresh salmon steak is the better for being marinated in a seasoning mixture, as is almost any fish steak, and a steak from a frozen fish needs such seasoning even more, although salmon, for instance, is a strong flavored fish. A marinating mixture will not only mend an insipid flavor, but it will soften and make more attractive a strong flavor. The usual mixture may be prepared as follows: Chop some onion fine and spread it on a large plate. Pour over this four or five tablespoons of fresh dressing, if you have two thick salmon steaks to season. Trim your steaks, lay them in the mixture, turn them over and over, and then let remain an hour, turning two or three times before broiling.

Broiling a Fish Steak.

Have the broiling oven hot and well seasoned by starting it to heat up some time before needed, especially if it is not used frequently. Rub the grid with salt and oil or butter, and broil an inch thick steak six minutes per side or a little more. In all fish cookery there is a tendency to overcook, which is better than to undercook, but just right is best, if we would get perfect flavors.

Baking Instead of Frying Fish Steaks.

Both little fish and fish steaks may be prepared as for deep fat frying. Put into a well greased dripping pan, sprinkle lightly with oil or melted butter, and bake in a 600 degree oven. A government demonstrator presented this method widely, as one learned from the Japanese, I believe, but it is a method which had been used for some time in restaurants, and it is, of course, far better adapted to such work than is deep fat frying, as well as being far less expensive and troublesome. Frying fats soon "get tired," as the Italians say. The fish may be dipped in heavily salted milk with one hand and in crumbs with the other, and the pieces, or pan fish, closely packed into the pan. Little perch or herring are as excellent cold when so cooked as when pan fried.

Boiling or Poaching Fish Steaks.

A nice fish steak poached, or just simmered in boiling water, best with

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Natural Color and Lustre at Once

Common garden sage, brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant, and you appear years younger.

Real Love Stories

Do you know a real love story—one that is stranger than fiction? It is the idea that is wanted. No attention will be paid to literary style. The Tribune will pay $5 for every story published. No manuscripts returned. Address Doris Blake, The Tribune, Chicago.

HIS PSYCHOLOGY FORGOTTEN.

INTO town to begin his practice came a young doctor with a taste for languages and literature. This idealist and dreamer came from a family of wealth, but he was of the new type of young men who believe in living out their own lives in a useful way unhampered by inherited impediments. Such a man at once became a catch, if only for his difference from the other ordinary men.

But he had only one ambition besides his enthusiasm for his practice of medicine; that was his dream of finding a real life companion who would appreciate with him the love for beauty in literature. He actually did what novelists call "falling in love." And he fell as only he would. He read Browning to her; he quoted "Chanson de Rolland"; he brought forth from his treasure filled mind all beauties he loved. And she listened and smiled.

For here is the tragedy of my story. She was the hotelkeeper's daughter, whose life had been the methodical drudgery necessitated by the keeping of a hotel where no servants were kept. She and her sisters did most of the work. Recreation to her meant movies, walks, or talks with her own friends. Her education may have reached the eighth grade, surely not more.

How could she appreciate the heights of his intellectual soul, separated as she was by all the wealth of the ages of man's learning? The doctor's psychology was forgotten. He loved. And love could conquer all. His confidence in the future was sublime. They were married.

I have seen them after many years of their love. It must have been a real love or it could not have withstood the shock of such a difference. She, even now, does not love Browning, but all his enthusiasm for beauty and his culture, while it has not been understandable to her in detail, has come to her. I know she has fallen asleep while he has read poetry to her many times. But her smile and her depth of understanding shows that her whole life and its outlook is infinitely bigger and broader.

He, on the contrary, is more reserved and less enthusiastic. Perhaps it is age; perhaps he realizes his mate has not always shared his love of beauty. But their love has endured. Ah! that is unmistakable!

The doctor's relatives have never solved the mystery of the spell cast over him by "that woman." They marvel that he should have turned a cold shoulder to such brilliant possibilities in his career as he might have had, backed by his money and the social prestige of his relatives. They would not or, perhaps, could not understand if you said, "love explained it." Perhaps love is not the fashion. M. M.

Pimply? Well, Don't Be

People Notice It. Drive Them Off with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints, and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take one or two nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c and 30c.

"The Sunshine Belt to the Orient"

SEND the information blank below and learn about your ships that sail from San Francisco over the Pacific Mail Steamship Company's famous "Sunshine Belt to the Orient." Under the direction of Pacific Mail, experts for 54 years in trans-Pacific travel, these ships have broken all speed records over this Southern route.

They are new, American-built, oil-burning vessels of 21,167 displacement tons and 535 feet long. Sister-ships, they are alike in every detail of luxurious equipment. Staterooms are larger; modern beds take the place of old-fashioned bunks. All rooms are on the outside and equipped with running water, electric fans, electric radiators, bed reading lamps, telephones. Nearly all have private baths.

Honolulu, Yokohama, Kobe, Shanghai, Manila and Hong Kong are the ports of call on the "Sunshine Belt." A day's stop is made at Honolulu. Stopovers may be arranged in any Eastern country.

For information in regard to sailings and accommodations, address
PACIFIC MAIL S. S. COMPANY

Your Government wishes the name of every prospective traveler. If you are considering an ocean voyage anywhere, send the information blank now—no matter when you intend to go. You will receive without cost the Government's booklet of authentic travel information about passports, income tax requirements, etc.; description of the U. S. Government ships and literature telling of things to see in foreign lands. No further obligation is implied.

If you cannot take an ocean trip, clip the information blank anyway and give it to a friend who is considering the possibility of an ocean voyage. Do not send the blank in for your friend; simply give it to him to send in. Thus you too will help build the American Merchant Marine.

Hot Springs National Park
HOT SPRINGS, ARKANSAS

In the heart of the Ozarks, with Nature's greatest stimulants for mind and body close by, you will find contentment and rest. These superb mountains, with their wide, peaceful valleys, bubbling brooks and hillsides wooded with the aromatic pine and cedar, offer you complete refreshment from all care.

The Hot Springs

The greatest healing and rejuvenating hot waters in the world are here to benefit you—to give you a zest and joy in life that you have not felt in years. Coupled with a good rest and one of the healthiest of exercises, golf, they offer you a most pleasant way to put yourself in the best of condition.

Fine Golfing Facilities

Here is one of the most interesting golf courses in the country. Comprising 250 acres, the course is as sporty as the most calloused golfer could desire. The greens and fairways are kept in perfect condition and offer an unusually fine test of the golfer's skill.

The Hotels

The quiet refinement of the three hotels at Hot Springs, The Arlington, The Majestic and The Eastman, will appeal to you. The accommodations here are all that could be desired, homelike and congenial surroundings, elaborate cuisines, yet not necessarily expensive.

The TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

part or all the soup bunch seasonings, is not only excellent with several of the fish sauces, but is a way of cooking fish as a preliminary to making creamed fish, scalloped fish, fish timbales, fish salads, etc., A large steak can be boiled in a frying pan, a chafing dish, or a kettle. The seasoned liquid can be used for a sauce, or part of one.

To cook a halibut steak weighing a pound cover it with boiling water, add some chopped green pepper, some slices of onion, and no other seasonings or what more you choose, and cook it gently until done, or about twenty minutes.

The liquid left may be thickened, and some sliced potatoes and onions cooked in it to make a respectable little chowder, which may be extended or lengthened out by adding milk or cream, also by a Boston cracker or two split in two.

Fish Timbales.

Flake and beat fine a slice of poached halibut, or boiled haddock [frozen fish now], add to it a small measure of cracker crumbs, and what seasoning you choose. Use cracker crumbs for small molds only. If the fish was poached with abundant seasonings none is needed further. Bind the whole with whites of egg, fill buttered timbale cups two-thirds full of the mixture, put into a water bath, and cook until the egg is well set, then turn out and serve with a cheese sauce or a highly seasoned white sauce. There are many fancy ways of decorating the bottom of the cup so that the mold when inverted will be prettily garnished. A whole egg may be put in or pieces of hard cooked egg and slices of green pepper or cooked carrot in stars or round and strips, etc.

Cheese Sauce.

Add one-half cup of grated cheese to one cup of rather thin, white sauce

Mushroom Sauce.

To the white sauce basis may be added mushrooms prepared as follows, for a sauce sometimes called "duxelle": Chop two green onions or scallions, and cook them gently for about three minutes in a tablespoon of butter. Then add about four tablespoons of chopped mushrooms, a teaspoon of chopped parsley, and a little pepper and salt. Cook gently and do not dry up much. Add to a cup of white sauce.

Butter Sauce.

The old fashioned butter sauce is made exactly like a white sauce, except that boiling water is used instead of milk, and one or two hard cooked eggs are used cut up and blended with it. Plain salt codfish soaked well and poached and served with boiled potatoes and a butter sauce is old fashioned and rather vigorous fare.

Boiled Haddock.

Despite the notion that haddock is not worth eating after twelve hours away from the water, coast frozen haddock may be cooked in a number of ways and be excellent in all. To boil a haddock, after cleaning it, plunge it into boiling water to which add a few drops of lemon juice. Flaked when cold and served with mayonnaise, it makes a delightfully dainty salad.

Baked Haddock.

A frozen and thawed haddock, the middle portion of it, stuffed with a potato stuffing, may come out as fine as any fish ever tasted. To one cup of fine mashed potato allow one stalk of celery, one onion, and a carrot. Chop these fine and smother them, without browning them, in two tablespoons of salt pork fat. Blend the potato with these and with the fine cut crisp dice of cooked pork in the frying pan, and if the mixture is dry add two tablespoons of cream, and cook the whole for several minutes, adding necessary salt. Fill the haddock and skewer dressing in, place on buttered pan, sprinkle with bread crumbs, baste with two tablespoons of melted butter, put into a genuinely hot oven—up to 500 degrees—and bake twenty minutes with one basting.

Smoked Fish.

Any salt fish, and in particular smoked fish, are also winter fish. Smoked haddock or finnan haddie is lightly cured, and does not keep well except in a cold place. Boxes of it are kept buried in the snow in some parts of the world. Our smoked white fish and the substitute for it, the Canadian tullibee, are excellent, both boiled and broiled.

Boiled Smoke Fish.

Put celery tops, tops of green onions or scallions, sliced carrot, and so forth, into some water, cook them for twenty minutes. Drop a smoked white fish into this seasoned water, and cook until the flakes easily separate. Serve with plain butter or even the most elegant of sauces.

CORNS

Lift Off with Fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Truly!

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

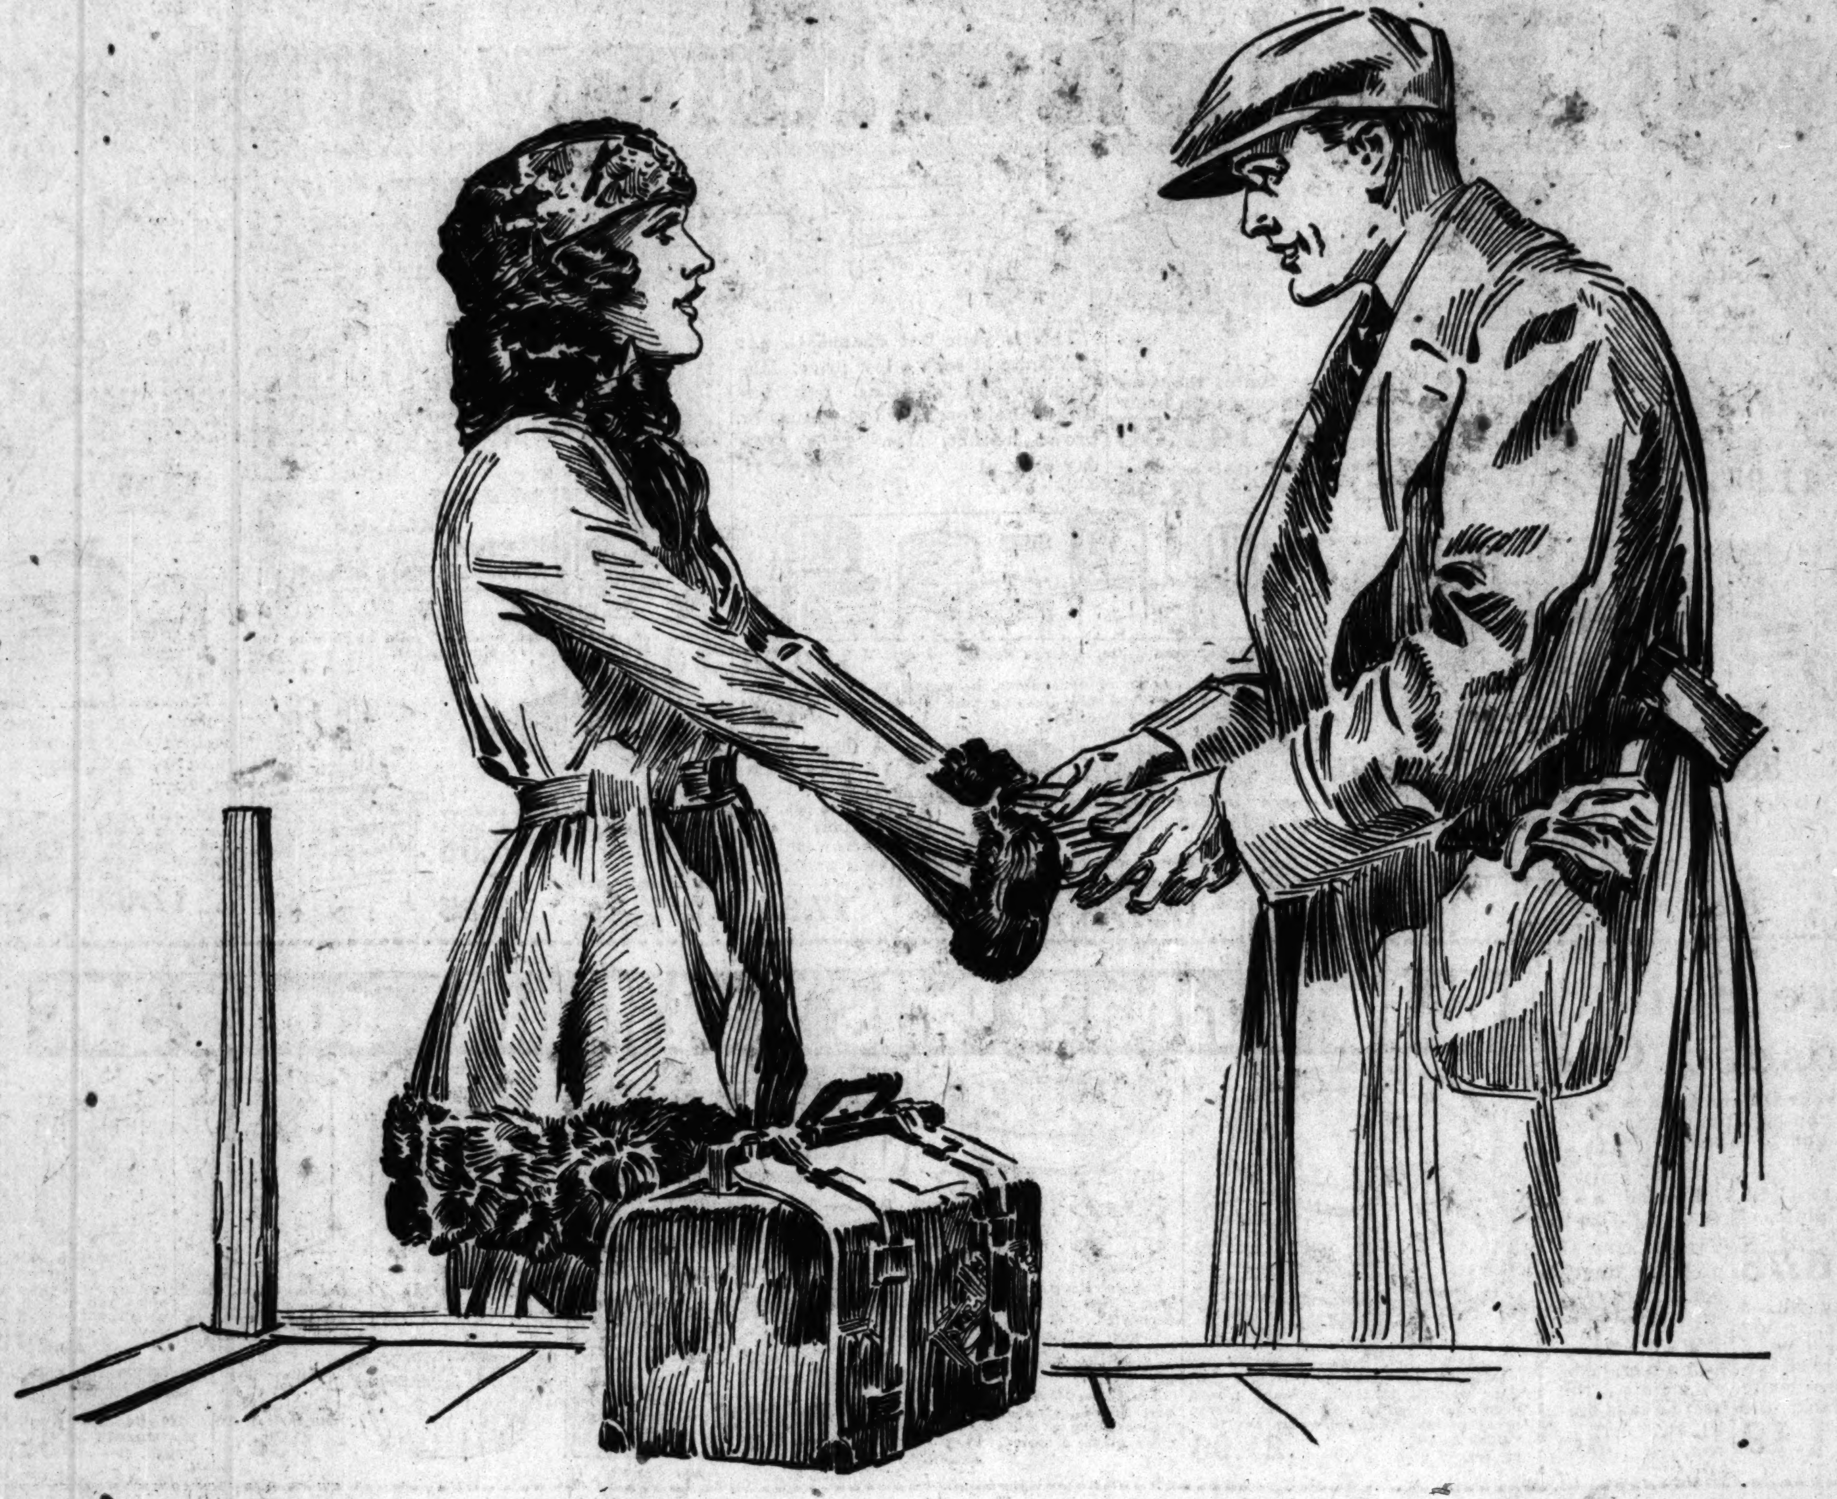
EXPERT PHONOGRAPH REPAIRING AND PIANO TUNING—4TH FLOOR — WE DEMONSTRATE THE HOOVER



When you haven't met for a long time, both naturally wonder what changes Time has wrought. Keep that schoolgirl complexion and he will say the years have left you unchanged.

Still—That Schoolgirl Complexion

When must beauty cease? Never, if you know how to keep it. The charm of beautiful maturity may rival that of early youth if wholesome, ever alluring freshness is not allowed to fade.

A firm, fine skin, smooth and free from blemishes, makes every woman seem young. Every woman can have such a complexion—the secret is simple, the means within the reach of all.

Cleopatra Kept Her Youth

She reached the height of her fame and beauty when some women imagine they must fade and grow old, keeping her youthful charms and freshness by the same simple means which we recommend today.

Cosmetic cleanliness was a daily rite, and the cleansers employed were palm and olive oils. This kept her complexion fresh and smooth, stimulated to healthful functioning.

Most facial disfigurements result from clogging accumulations which collect on the skin, fill up the pores, and cause coarseness, blackheads and blotches.

Wash your face with soap at least once every day and these ills won't afflict you.

Use Gentle Means

The kind of washing we mean is gentle, soothing, cleansing, with the modern blend of palm and olive oils.

Its action is mild and the profuse, creamy lather seems lotion-like. It leaves the skin wonderfully smooth and fresh while removing every trace of soil.

Such cleansing is most beneficial and prepares the skin for cold cream if you need it and the touch of rouge and powder most women use.

Neck, arms and shoulders should receive the same beautifying treatment, for they are conspicuous as the face for complexion beauty or the lack of it. Use Palmolive for bathing and let it do for your body what it does for your face. The price allows it.

Yours for 10 Cents

This modest sum is possible through gigantic production which keeps the Palmolive factories working day and night and the importation of the bland, mild oils in tremendous volume.

Thus this finest facial soap, which if made in small quantities, would cost at least 25 cents, is offered at the price of ordinary soap.

Cosmetics of Cleopatra

Whatever unguents, rouge and powder the queen of beauty used, cleansing with palm and olive oils was a daily rite.

The Ten Best Pictures of 1921—As Seen by Us

THE TEN BEST PHOTOPLAYS OF 1921.

- "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse."
- "Over the Hill."
- "The Kid."
- "Passion."
- "Little Lord Fauntleroy."
- "Deception."
- "The Passion Flower."
- "The Devil."
- "Footlights."
- "The Queen of Sheba."

By Mae Tinee.

"LIFE" gave us the idea. (Credit where credit is due.) The photoplay reviewer of "Life" has picked what he thinks the ten best pictures of the year. His choice consists of the following: "The Kid," "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," "One Week," "Scrap Iron," "Sentimental Tommy," "Disraeli," "The Three Musketeers," "Little Lord Fauntleroy," and "Woman's Place." "The Kid" he considers the best of the lot, and the others are ranged according to his idea regarding their merit.

MARY CARR
in "Over the Hill."

I do not venture to say which of the ten photoplays named at the head of this column is the best. And please be reminded that there were many exceedingly good pictures that could not be mentioned among the ten—because ten's ten, and there you are. Here is why, however, it seems to this department the leaders were above par.

Take "THE FOUR HORSEMEN OF THE APOCALYPSE." It was marvelous because a director was able to take a big, powerful, colorful novel, subject it to the operation of elimination, and bring it to the screen, powerful and colorful, though necessarily deprived of much detail which had made the Ibanez story the thing of worth and beauty that it is. The main story was there intact. All the high lights were there, yet the film was not too long. That was art.

"OVER THE HILL," adapted from the poem by Will Carleton, absorbed your interest and tugged at your sympathies from beginning to end without for one moment getting maudlin or sloppy. THAT was art. To my way of thinking it is the greatest "Mother" picture ever made.

As to "THE KID." There can be no doubt that its main attraction lay in the kid himself, depicted by little Jackie Coogan, a dear and clever little fellow, who marched right into the hearts of old and young alike, and by his marvelous team work with Mr. Chaplin caused sighs and tears to blend with devastating effect on the emotions. "The Kid," therefore, is a good picture because it warmed the heart and was withal a clever piece of work.

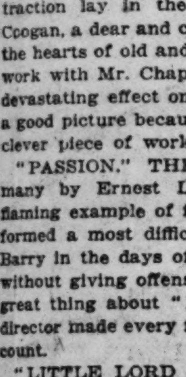
"PASSION." THERE was a picture! It was made in Germany by Ernest Lubitsch and—I quote myself—"was a flaming example of foreign efficiency." In it Pola Negri performed a most difficult feat. She portrayed the life of Du Barry in the days of decadent French court life vividly, but without giving offense. This was no small thing to do. The great thing about "Passion" was the manner in which the director made every facial expression, every flutter of drapery count.

"LITTLE LORD FAUNTLEROY" was such a winsome thing! Mary Pickford's work in the two rôles, that of Dearest, the mother, and Cedric, the son, was almost unbelievably clever. The staging and sets in this film were remarkable, and the director marvelously blended old world charm with new world pep and humor.

"DECEPTION," like "Passion," was foreign made, and directed by Ernest Lubitsch. In it, mass and detail were worked out perfectly, and the story of Henry VIII. and Anne Boleyn was told simply, but with great power. As in "Passion," the director never permitted a wasted moment or a bit of padding.

"THE PASSION FLOWER," a story of strange loves and hates, featuring Norma Talmadge, was characterized by a beautiful reticence. It could easily have been offensive to the extreme, but even its worst moments left one stirred, but far from indignant, at the mode of their treatment. An extraordinary and masterly production.

"THE DEVIL" had George Arliss, who never on the stage was a more polished, smooth, or brilliant actor than in this screen version of his famous play. 'Nuff ced.



BETTY BLYTHE
in "The Queen of Sheba."

"FOOTLIGHTS" was memorable because, after a series of pathetic failures, it brought the beautiful and capable Elsie Ferguson back to the screen in a picture that was absorbingly interesting and beautifully done. The fans had felt so sorry for Miss Ferguson for so long. In "Footlights" they buried their woe. The sun came out, and they beheld a rainbow in the sky. (And the rainbow proved indeed a bow of promise. See "Peter Ibbetson," if you don't believe it.)

"THE QUEEN OF SHEBA" was a great big, beautiful thing with an exquisitely beautiful woman in the leading rôle, who could display her beauty without rousing an evil thought. It could not be said that she wore clothes—and it could not be thought that she was without them. Aside from this characterization the picture was almost perfectly acted, and was a world beater from the standpoint of production.

I said before there are many other pictures deserving of comment. A lot of you will probably let out a howl because "The Three Musketeers" is not included in "The Ten Best Photoplays." There is a reason, however, for this omission. While the film was well done, Douglas Fairbanks, to one person's way of thinking, is not an especially well chosen D'Artagnan. Dumas' hero, I don't believe, was much of a clown. He didn't fight with his feet. He met his enemies squarely, face to face. Mr. Fairbanks—well, you saw the picture.

So, take 'em or leave 'em. I think the pictures listed above are the ten best of 1921. You go ahead and think differently if you want to; we've had our say. If you want yours—go to it!

CLOSEUPS

One doesn't need to be much of a prophet to prophesy that the series of two reel fighting pictures labeled "The Leather Pushers" is going to be one of the most popular series ever shown on the screen. That is, if the one now playing may be used as a criterion. H. C. Witwer wrote the stories. They have to do with a young [illegible] good family who when his father goes broke on Wall street takes up prize fighting to retrieve the lost fortunes. He's got an awful punch and can stand a lot of punishment, all of which he knows, for he was at one time full back on the team of his alma mater. The hero is impersonated by Reginald Denny, who is big, good looking, and a clever actor.

DOROTHY DALTON.

Dorothy Hall, who has just signed up for a series of fifty two reel comedies, makes all her own clothes. She goes on record as saying that never even on the screen will she wear anything that she buys. O, Dorothy, Dorothy! Do you really mean it?

There's a little story going the rounds that Dorothy Dalton,

Some Facts and a Sum Total on the Symphony Orchestra

By Edward Moore.

THE management of the Chicago Symphony orchestra has issued a statement that is a little surprising even to those who think they know about the organization and its work. "Some Facts," the editors call the statement, and the facts added together make an astonishing sum total.

You and I, who go week by week to the orchestral concerts and like them well enough to keep coming back and to realize, perhaps half unconsciously, that they constitute one of the great achievements of the city, do not always stop to think how incessant are the activities of Mr. Stock and his men. They play no less than ninety-four concerts in Chicago alone during little more than half a year. The ninety-four are divided into six groups.

FREDERICK STOCK.
[Matzene Photo.]

One series of twenty-eight takes place on Friday afternoons; another of the same length is on Saturday nights; there are sixteen popular concerts and two sets of children's concerts of six each. Another series of ten, the only one not in Orchestra hall, is played at the University of Chicago.

Then there are twelve more in Milwaukee and four in Aurora, raising the total to 110. These programs must be learned, so the orchestra rehearses four mornings each week in Orchestra hall.

Even that does not complete Mr. Stock's activities, since four afternoons in the week he rehearses the Civic Orchestra of Chicago, the organization which is concerned with making professional orchestral players out of young and talented musicians.

In his leisure moments he studies scores, writes out his own compositions, and makes plans for the future. Almost the entire standard répertoire of the orchestra is so firmly fixed in his mind that he conducts it from memory. Concert after concert one sees him direct with never a score on his desk except of a novelty or the accompaniment for a soloist.

And he cherishes a secret hope that some day—he does not yet know when or how—he may so arrange matters as to be able to conduct an operatic performance, preferably "The Master Singers of Nuremberg."

A striking artist, personality, and influence upon music is Frederick Stock, and by no means the sort of man to be taken for granted.

About Snegourotchka.

In the merry competition between opera company and opera company for artists, répertoire, and the bubble, reputation, Mr. Gatti-Casazza of the Metropolitan is entitled to at least one gloat. He brought out "Snegourotchka," otherwise "The Snow Maiden," while the Chicago forces merely talked about it.

With no particular reason, there is a reminder of the story about an eastern theatrical producing company who talked about producing a work with a foreign name. "Produce it?" said one who heard the talk. "That firm can't even pronounce it." One pronounces the name of this opera, as nearly as English letters will have it, as though it were spelled "Snye-goor-otch-ka," with the accent on the second syllable.

Deems Taylor in the New York World has this to say about it:

"Here is no grim and stilted tale of Spanish kings or mediæval politics—no choruses of conspirators, no songbirds in black tights prowling about the tombs of their improbable ancestors. This is a story for children, and so it is true. What matter if it never happened? All the more reason why it might happen almost any minute. Poor Snegourotchka is realer than all the Ernanis that ever tried to breathe. So is Rimsky-Korsakoff's music. The score is one of naïve directness and gayety and pathos, but it says true and beautiful things, nevertheless."

Composers Insurgent.

Evidently the composers of the country—some of them, at least—are beginning to band together and show their teeth. A "manifesto" from the International Composers' Guild, Inc., has reached this desk. No central headquarters is indicated in any part of it, so it is presumably from New York. But here and there it contains some first class fighting talk.

HANS MUENZER.
[Blancke-Harris Photo.]

"The composer is the only one of the creators of today who is denied direct contact with the public. When his work is done he is thrust aside, and the interpreter enters, not to try to understand the composition but impertinently to judge it. Not finding in it any trace of the conventions to which he is accustomed, he banishes it from his programs, denouncing it as incoherent and unintelligible.

"It is true that in response to public demand our official organizations occasionally place on their programs a new work surrounded by established names. But such a work is carefully chosen from the most timid and anæmic of contemporary production, leaving absolutely unheard the composers who represent the true spirit of our time.

"Dying is the privilege of the weary. The present day composers refuse to die."

And so on. There is more of it. There is also a lamentable lack—among other things, a list of the unheard composers who represent the true spirit of our time.

The Opera in Our Language Foundation does better. It has a list of American operas that are approved and ready for performance, and, it would seem, some definite ideas about getting them performed.

It, however, has a few questions to ask of the new Civic Opera Association of Chicago, among them how far this organization will be civic and what rôles will be played by our language, our composer, and our artist. The time is too soon after this season and too far away from the next one to expect a definite answer just now. At the same time the answer, when it comes, will have its elements of interest.

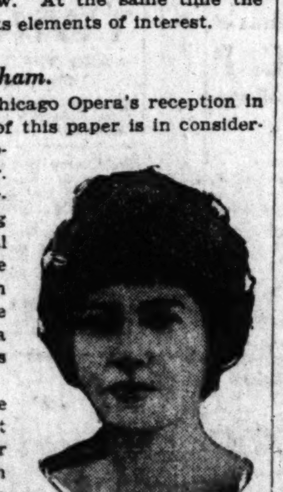
The Tender Mercies of Gotham.

After reading accounts of the Chicago Opera's reception in New York the music department of this paper is in considerable doubt as to what really happened. The World thinks that Mr. Muratore gave a magnificent performance of Samson, of thrilling dramatic intensity and emotional power. His singing was, on the same authority, more colorful than that of the average tenor, and the middle section of his voice had a smooth, caressing quality that was like velvet.



GRACE WELSH.
[Daguerre Photo.]

The Tribune maintains that the rôle of the strong man did not fit the French tenor either vocally or histrionically, his tones were often white, and he at times strayed from the true pitch, also he made unfortunate use of a falsetto in the second act.

Marguerite D'Alvarez, according to the World, was not at her best; she seemed to be suffering from a cold, and her middle voice was husky and lacked power. On the other hand, the Tribune: "Although she, too, wandered from the pitch, the true opulence of her tones was a

Eighth Paper—Defoe's "Robinson Crusoe."

"I WELL remember a little scene which took place when I was a child of 8 or 9. 'Robinson Crusoe' held me in his golden thrall, and I was expected to go to church. I hid beneath a bed with 'Robinson Crusoe,' and was in due course discovered by an elder sister and a governess, who, on my refusing to come out, resorted to force. Then followed a struggle that was quite Homeric. The two ladies tugged as best they might, but I clung to 'Crusoe' and the legs of the bed, and kicked till, perfectly exhausted, they took their departure in no very Christian frame of mind, leaving me panting indeed, but triumphant."

The man who, three and thirty years after that "quite Homeric struggle," thus remembered every detail of it was Master of the High Court in the Transvaal, a statement significant enough, but not so convincing as it becomes when you think of him as the author of "She" and "King Solomon's Mines." A craftsman, in other words, who would recognize a tale worth fighting for. Sir Henry Haggard men call him now, but as H. Rider Haggard he is thought of.

Next to the pleasure of reading good literature is the pleasure of reading good things about good literature. Sometimes they, too, become good literature—Hazlitt, Lamb, Leigh Hunt, De Quincey, the roll is long and opulent—and then are called criticism, good criticism being not carping but relishing discernment.

So let us continue briefly along those lines.

I am turning the pages of the journal kept for more than half a century by a scholar who, in the manner of Montaigne, made the odds and ends of his journal the basis of some of his greatest work. Under the year 1853, when the scholar was 50, comes this entry:

> The other day Henry Thoreau was speaking to me about my lecture on the Anglo-American, and regretting that whatever was written for a lecture, or whatever succeeded with the audience, was bad, etc. I said: "I am ambitious to write something which all can read, like 'Robinson Crusoe.' And when I have written a paper or a book, I see with regret that it is not solid, with a right materialistic treatment which delights everybody." Henry objected, of course . . .

The man thus wistfully ambitious to "write something that all can read, like 'Robinson Crusoe,'" was known on two continents then. His name was Emerson.

* *

In the "Anecdotes" Mrs. Piozzi minds her of a time when another scholar, old then, but only 22 years old when Defoe died, sighed—

> Was there ever yet anything written by mere man that was wished longer by its readers, excepting "Don Quixote," "Robinson Crusoe," and "The Pilgrim's Progress"?

Whom did "Robinson Crusoe" so entrance? A lexicographer, essayist, and moral philosopher, a testy, impatient, practical man whose name was Samuel Johnson.

He loathed his contemporary, Jean Jacques Rousseau, but they were at one in one matter—more, no doubt, but hate intervened and blurred. In Rousseau's "Emile," an epochal book about an imagined boy, though Jean Jacques was really writing of himself, the seed-caster of the French revolution said this:

> Since we must have books, this is one which, in my opinion, is a most excellent treatise on natural education. This is the first my Emile shall read; his whole library shall long consist of this work only, which shall preserve an eminent rank to the very last. . . . It shall be our guide during our progress to maturity of judgment. . . . And what surprising book is this? Is it Aristotle, is it Pliny, is it Buffon? No; it is "Robinson Crusoe." The value and importance of the various arts are ordinarily estimated, not according to their real utility, but by the gratification which they administer to the fantastic desires of mankind. But . . . "Robinson Crusoe" shall teach Emile to value the stock of an ironmonger above that of the most magnificent toy shop in Europe.

And so on and on and in and out amid the pleasant byways of literature for 202 years. From the first it was a best seller, and such it is today. It was and remains the delight of schoolboys. It was and remains the wonder and admiration of scholars and the solace of old men. When they asked old Doctor Robertson, whom few read nowadays and are the poorer for it, how to form a good historical style, the historian of Charles V., whom even Prescott respected to the point of adopting, replied, "Read Defoe."

Yes, a best seller from the start.

* *

Part I. of "Robinson Crusoe," the only part that the generality of mankind reads, came out in April, 1719. Within four months four editions were sold, and by August Defoe had Part II., which not many know of and fewer read now, ready for the booksellers. A year later came Part III., which is no tale at all, but a plump volume of moral essays on solitude, on honesty, on "immorality of conversation and the vulgar errors of behavior," and on "the present state of religion in the world." These essays were grouped under the title "Serious Reflections of Robinson Crusoe." That Part III. is seldom reprinted today. Almost nobody knows of it, nobody can be said really to read it. It is nevertheless wise and meaty, and an excellent little book of apothegms could be put together from it. It was called what it was called because the name Robinson Crusoe would make almost anything a best seller. And Defoe was growing old (59) and was poor in fortune and, as a politician, utterly ruined. Others seized upon the golden name. Forty years after the appearance of the original tale the spell still held, for within that period forty-one different "Robinson Crusoes" had been written by imitators who traded on the title, and there were fifteen other imitations under other titles. So late as 1898 a German named Ullrich—of course it would be a German—published at Weimar a handbook of all that lore, calling it "Robinson und Robinsonaden." Just as eloquent of the universal appeal of the story is the fact that the traveler Burckhardt found the men of the caravans reading it aloud from the Arabic "in the cool of the evening." 'Tis a picture that would have delighted Defoe—I do not mean his vanity but his sense of the value of a brief stroke of color. "In the cool of the evening"—he would have said it, and, saying so much, would have said no more. That was part of his spell—that marvelous artistry that seemed so artless. Perhaps it was artless; the proof, in any case, of its perfection lies in the fact that men cannot tell.

You remember that time when, soon after he was cast upon his "Island of Despair," Crusoe first fired his weapon—

> At my coming back, I shot at a great bird, which I saw sitting upon a tree, on the side of a great wood. I believe it was the first gun that had been fired there since the creation of the world.

Before that kind of thing a writing man just lays down his arms. How plausible is the becommaed particularity as to the location of the "great bird," and how bold, how swift yet unhurried the descent of that matchless stroke—"I believe it was the first gun that had been fired there since the creation of the world." Time, solitude, strangeness, the appalling remoteness into which Robinson has been cast, all are conveyed by means of an eighteen word commonplace of which all the words save two are one syllabled and all save one come to us by way of the Saxon.

Again, that episode of the plaintive calling by the parrot which Crusoe had trained to speak his name. It occurs about half way of Part I. and at the end of the alarming attempt which the solitary made to circumnavigate his island. 'Twas in,' he says, "the sixth year of my reign, or my captivity, which you please," and his tussle with the currents left him so exhausted that he slept for many hours the sleep of exhaustion in a part of the island remote from his "castle."

And then this:

> . . . But judge you, if you can, that read my story, what a surprize I must be in when I was waked out of my sleep by a voice calling me by name several times, "Robin, Robin, Robin Crusoe, poor Robin Crusoe! Where are you, Robin Crusoe? Where are you? Where have you been?"
>
> . . . but dozing between sleeping and waking, I thought I dreamed that somebody spoke to me . . . and was at first dreadfully frightened. . . . But no sooner were my eyes open but I saw my Poll sitting on the top of the hedge, and immediately knew that it was he that spoke to me; for just in such bemoaning language I had used to talk to him, and teach him; and he had learned it so perfectly, that he would sit upon my finger and lay his bill close to my face and cry, "Poor Robin Crusoe! Where are you? Where have you been? How come you here?" and such things as I had taught him. . . . the sociable

Jazz-Dancing to Ruin; or, The Face on the Ballroom Floor

By James Whittaker.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Hartley Manners has found a face on the ballroom floor. It leers fiendishly at Miss Laurette Taylor in the second act of "The National Anthem," luring her finally to a new and startling downfall at the play's end, when she succumbs to an attack of delirium shimmies. The author seems to have discovered a successor to dread alcohol which replaces that old curse of an aching head quite adequately. He indicts it for many crimes, solving, for instance, such modern mysteries as the epidemics of bichloride of mercury poisonings in Paris and the epidemics of night scandal in New York with his theory that the world is crazy drunk with impure music.

MISS LAURETTE TAYLOR.
[White Photo.]

To make his play hold water, Mr. Manners has found it necessary to make it hold booze. To me the end of the second act, which finds Miss Taylor, as a young society matron, swamped in a sea of social tippsychores, reeling at the edge of a wriggling roomful of jazzers, seemed powerful enough without Mr. Manners' complication of the issue with bootleg liquor.

His premise is that Marian Hale, of the circles which rotate to their doom via the seven deadly syncopations, was undone by jazz melodies, and it seems to me that he would have had a stronger play if he had not overdone her with an irrelevant hip flask. When, in Paris and the last act, Marian is down and all but out, it is confusing to remember that she has had as much to drink as to dance and that her end, though it may be imputed to the national anthem—jazz—may just as well be blamed on the national anathema—drink.

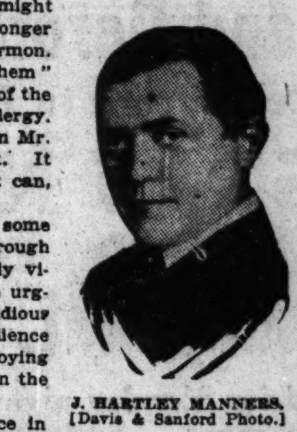
It Had to Come, Sooner or Later.

Something like "The National Anthem" was bound to come to the stage sooner or later. Mr. Manners has brought it to the stage later than one might have expected. But it takes longer to produce a play than a sermon. Thus "The National Anthem" rises to exclaim on the perils of the dance a year or so after the clergy. This, I think, does not weaken Mr. Manners' play in the least. It comes along to confirm, if it can, all the worst suspicions.



J. HARTLEY MANNERS.
[Davis & Sanford Photo.]

And Mr. Manners gives some first hand evidence. All through the play a band of effectively vicious syncopators thumps the urging drum and sounds the insidious saxophone off-stage. The audience is a judge and this destroying noise, insistent and perverse in the wings, is Exhibit A.

The actors of the new piece in Henry Miller's theater have not the courage of Mr. Manners' convictions. It was surely Mr. Manners' purpose to have it acted melodramatically with all Miss Taylor's soul. She has elected to act it as high comedy, perturbed only at times by its purpose

So we have Miss Taylor sweetly and with leisure acting her blithe self at most times and reverting to the type of the sinking heroine at exactly those moments when, through an open door, a fume of toxic music sweeps on to the stage. This may have happened the other way about. Miss Taylor may be acting Marian Hale and reverting sporadically to the type of herself. Whatever the psychology of her dual personality in this play, however, it is there, as distinct as two different wigs. I suspect that Marian Hale dislikes jazz and that Miss Laurette Taylor likes it. That might explain why Miss Taylor suffers so little while Marian Hale goes down and down and down to final semi-suicide in a fit of those honey lovin' blues. I can remember no stage disease, unless it be the tuberculosis of the operatic Traviata, that leaves its sufferers so unhaggard as is Miss Taylor in the last convulsions of bichloride of mercury.

Wood Alcohol and Wood Winds.

I imagine all of the people of this play as vigorous in Mr. Manners' script as they are weak in the acted play. They are melodramatic people, as simple and as visual as a McCutcheon cartoon. There is Arthur Carlton, in whom the heroine is married to a perpetual morning-after. There is Father Carlton, who condemns a generation of wastrel toddlers with so sweeping a gesture that it includes the disowning of his own son. There is Father Hale, who "sees no harm in it all." There is Tom Carroll, uncontaminated by the wood alcohol and the wood winds, symbol of the corn fed things that Arthur isn't. Truly an easy set of lay stage figures to act, one would think, and we wonder why the actors in Henry Miller's theater are all so determined to earn their salaries acting them with a multitude of details that are not there.

I find it impossible to avoid the decade's worst pun. Miss Taylor and her company labor under the delusion that they have another play of manners, and what it is all about is a lot of real contemporary people who have no manners at all.

"Pomander Walk" with Us Again.

They have taken Louis N. Parker's "Pomander Walk," which lay with mother's coming-out gown in the attic trunk, and have quickened it with the magic of pleasant music. Rejuvenated, it minuetted briskly into the Broadhurst theater. There is nothing about this operation which smells of violent restoratives. The fifteen year old comedy of hundred year old manners has been a trip to the fountain of youth, and it comes out with the new grace of its graceful tunes not merely alive again, but laughing with young gayety again. And it is as fragrant again as if an old perfume had been unstopped and found to have distilled itself while it was forgotten.

MISS PEGGY WOOD.
[Charlotte Fairchild Photo.]

The tale is as true now as when it was written—as true forever, in fact, as Laura Jean Libby, telling nothing needlessly more than the family reason why fair Marjolaine of Pomander Walk should not marry Jack Sayle of the British navy in the spring of 1805, and the romantic reasons why she did anyhow. It is so obviously and simply an extension of the plot of all ballads that the only strange thing about its recurrence now is that Hugo Felix should not have thought earlier of extending it with ballads.

Mr. Felix, reaching for his inspired flute, has piped forth a cycle of friendly melodies. They are intimate with the vernal mood of the play and fill out its lyric moments like so many perfectly new Mendelssohn's spring songs.

The renewed piece is happily associated with a likable cast. Miss Peggy Wood sings cordially. As she faces the footlights demurely, the ribbons of Marjolaine fluttering cheerily about her, it is felt that the audience is receiving a welcome to our theater to which it can hardly fail to respond. Miss Mary Hay, round-cheeked, round-eyed, always on the point of being hilariously the terrible child when she is not being it, is friendly, near and dear. Lennox Pawle, who has always being a careful comedian except around his waist line, is painlessly droll, graciously foregoing all the ruder methods of devastating with mirth, and richly earns gratitude for them. Surprisingly agreeable voices are to be heard with thanks when Irving Beebe and Worthe Faulner sing, and it will occur to several, perhaps, to notice that Dr. Milan Roder, in the orchestra pit, wields a baton which welds the large variety of occurrences on the

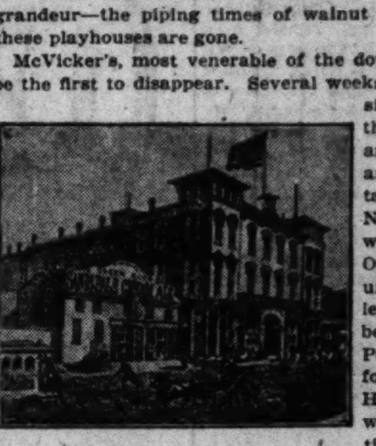
Loop to Lose Its Oldest Theaters

By Sheppard Butler.

FOUR of Chicago's oldest theatrical landmarks are slated for destruction. "Way Back When" fans, if they have tears to shed, may prepare to shed them, for the loop will lose its most notable reminders of Victorian grandeur—the piping times of walnut and red plush—when these playhouses are gone.

McVicker's, most venerable of the downtown theaters, will be the first to disappear. Several weeks ago workmen began sinking caissons under the old building in preparation for the new, and the wreckers will take possession in May. Next to go, probably, will be the Grand Opera house, which, under the terms of its lease, must be rebuilt before Jan. 1, 1924. Powers', known to a former generation as Hooley's, will make way soon for an addition to the Hotel Sherman, and plans are under way for tearing down the Olympic as soon as its owners see a favorable opportunity. McVicker's, the Grand, and the Olympic will be replaced with new theaters; on the Powers' site a playhouse may be included in the hotel structure, but this is problematical.



THE FIRST M'VICKER'S.

Thus will pass the last remaining monuments to the business acumen of a song and dance comedian, a medicine show magnate, a minstrel manager, and a pair of circus men.

James H. McVicker was the song and dance comedian. A traveling company brought him to Chicago in the early days, and in 1857 he built his first theater on the spot where the present playhouse stands. McVicker's became at once the most important center of dramatic activity in the middle west. Its opening was a great event, and thereafter Parmelee's omnibus left the theater nightly after the performance for Bull's Head and Cottage Grove.

McVicker installed a resident stock company, which "supported" a notable succession of visiting stars—Charlotte Cushman, Edwin Booth, the elder Sothern, J. H. Hackett, Lotta Crabtree, Lawrence Barrett, Charles Kean, and many others. Here Edwin Booth met Mary McVicker, the manager's daughter, whom he afterwards married. Here, when Lincoln was shot, they mourned a double tragedy, for the assassin, J. Wilkes Booth, had played McVicker's often, and made many friendships. Here, in 1866, "The Black Crook" had its phenomenal Chicago run of fifty-six nights.

The theater was destroyed in the great fire of 1871, and was the first playhouse to be rebuilt after the disaster. In 1890 it was again gutted by fire, and the present structure dates from its restoration in 1892.

Hamlin, Hooley, and the Grand Opera House.

The medicine show magnate was John A. Hamlin and the minstrel manager Richard M. Hooley. Both were identified with the origin of what is now the Grand Opera house. In 1870 Hooley, who had made a fortune with his minstrel troupes, bought Bryan hall, a concert auditorium which occupied the present site of the Grand. This he rebuilt and opened as Hooley's Opera house; the fire in 1871 destroyed it and swept his fortune away.

GRAND OPENING EVENT

Monday, September 6, 1880.

"A Child of the State"

MR. NAT. GOODWIN

How the Grand Opera house advertised its opening in 1880.

In 1873 Hamlin, famous throughout the country for his Hamlin's Wizard oil, built on the rear of the lot the largest billiard hall in the world. Shortly afterward this was enlarged and turned into a beer garden. In 1878 it became known as Hamlin's theater, and in 1880, after extensive reconstruction, it was opened as the Grand Opera house. The flamboyant announcement of that opening, with its quaint references to "fashionable gas fixtures" and kindred magnificence, still hangs in Manager Harry J. Ridings' office at the Grand, which has long been a favorite gathering place for old timers, theatrical and otherwise.

Hooley, the minstrel man, had been planning to leave the theatrical business when the great fire compelled him to start over again. After the fire he exchanged the site of his destroyed opera house for a location on Randolph street near La Salle, and here, in 1872, he opened what for many years was known as Hooley's theater. This is the present Powers', remodeled somewhat, but essentially the same as it was fifty years ago. During most of its career it has held unquestioned prestige as the playhouse in which the most illustrious actors have preferred to appear.

The circus men, Charles E. Kohl and George Middleton, launched the Olympic on its present régime. They had been followers of P. T. Barnum, and had started in Chicago as proprietors of dime museums. Under their management the Olympic became the first home of continuous vaudeville in Chicago.

Its origin as a place of amusement, however, dates back to the early '60s, when the site was occupied by a building called Kingsbury hall. In 1863 the famous old Wood's museum was opened, approximately where the Union hotel now stands, and Kingsbury hall, in the rear, was made an addition to the museum, housing a stock company which operated in modest competition with those of McVicker and the other managers of the time. I do not know how old the walls of the Olympic may be, but in effect the playhouse is a direct survival of Kingsbury hall, tucked back there away from the street in the '60s.

Revival Wave Passes; News of the Players.

The tide of revivals in the theater seems to have reached its flood, and receded. Resuscitations of "Bought and Paid For," "Alias Jimmy Valentine," and "Trilby" have flickered out after brief careers in New York. Donald Brian and Miss Tessa Kosta, featured performers in the revival of "The Chocolate Soldier," are listed for early participation in "The Rose of Stamboul," which would seem to indicate that the Straus operetta's restoration is not long for this world. The weekly announcements of old plays to be exhumed reach the dramatic editor's desk no more, and the managers are turning again to the search for new works of promise.

So passes a curious epidemic, illustrative of the sheep-like tendency among producers to follow the leader with or without reason. There was no particular cause for the wave of revivals except that, one or two having proved profitable, the hope arose that turning back the pages might develop a sovereign remedy for bad business.

The experiment was tried, and the results were about fifty-fifty. To counterbalance the failures, Mr. Belasco has been doing well with "The Return of Peter Grimm" and "The Easiest Way," and Mr. Savage's new version of "The Merry Widow" has had a reasonable degree of prosperity. A restaging of "The Squaw Man" persists in New York, doing the best it can under the handicap of an attack of influenza, which kept William Faversham out of the cast for many days. And that is about all. Bringing back the old plays has been no panacea for the ills of the theater, and the managers' facile enthusiasm for them has quickly died out.

George Arliss will terminate his New York engagement in "The Green Goddess" next Saturday, with a run of three weeks more than a year to his credit. He is still scheduled to bring the play to the Studebaker, though his coming has RIALTO.

Morrissey and Young:

"Nature is a peculiar thing."

"How do you mean, nature is a peculiar thing?"

"Well, for instance, which side of a man's head has the most hair?"

"I don't know; which side of a man's head has the most hair."

"The outside."

"Suppose a scolding wife got drowned, which single letter in the alphabet would best express the husband's feelings?"

"Well, which letter would best express his feelings?"

"Letter B."

"What part do you think I could play best on the stage?"

"A decayed gentleman."

"And why a decayed gentleman?"

"Because you're such a rotten actor."

"Are you going to my sister's birthday party?"

"How old is she?"

"Twenty."

"I was there five years ago."

"Don't you think my hair is thick?"

"Well, it grows on your head, you know."

"BARRYMORE'S ACTING—although it does not impress one as acting, but an actuality—is so extraordinary you have to remind yourself that it is NOT real; that it is Lionel Barrymore. - - - Most extraordinary this generation has seen."

The Year's Ten Best Pictures—as Seen by Us

while standing by most casually watching a game that's played with dice the other evening, beheld a friend of hers win $72,000. But that's not the story. It is said that the friend, not needing the change himself, swept it benignantly into Miss Dalton's lap.

ASK ME! ASK ME!

OLD CURIOSITY SHOP: You think so, do you? O, vurr' well, maybe we'll surprise you and do it some time. Suttinly I do. And you musn't leave Charlie sitting alone in the parlor even to write to me. Have a little writing contest and see which of you can get a letter off to us first. (Favorite indoor sports?) Hope you and your English teacher decide to be friends. You are fond of the gentleman? Ralph Graves is his name. You are VURR' welcome!

ART: Address Alice Calhoun at 736 Riverside drive, New York City. James Morrison played the little minister in Vitagraph's version of "The Little Minister." Thank you. Twenty-five cents.

M. L. R.: 701 New Hampshire boulevard, Los Angeles. Y'wekkum.

K. W.: Every time we think they're abusing an animal or a child we're going to raise Cain so far as in us lies. You're right. Many thanks for your pleasant letter.

RUTH: Do you mean to tell me you haven't seen any of the pictures of Rudolph we've printed in the Roto section? My dear, where HAVE you been.

PEGGIE & DEANE: The picture of you labeled "Hope" is vurr' funny! You bet I'll answer you. Address Helene Chadwick at 4428 Sunset boulevard, Los Angeles; Miss Du Pont, Universal City, Cal. "Star Dust" has been filmed, but I hear it isn't much like the story. Marie Prevost expects to visit New York soon. You may not know it, but your writing's awfully hard to read. But you have an artistic timprimunt'. Come again.

MISS FLORA SHEFFIELD in "The Nightcap," at the Playhouse. [Apeda Photo.]

News of the Players

been somewhat delayed; probably he will follow "Under the Bamboo Tree" when that prosperous cantata shall have run its course.

An alternate possibility for the Studebaker is Miss Ina Claire in the French farce, "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife." Miss Claire departed from New York last night and expects to arrive in Chicago, with a theater awaiting her, on or about Feb. 20. If Mr. Arliss comes to the Studebaker "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife" may follow "The Last Waltz" at the Garrick.

Miss Violet Hall Caine, niece of the English novelist, Hall Caine, has joined Mr. Mantell's company at the Olympic, filling the vacancy caused by the death last week of Miss Genevieve Reynolds. Miss Caine has been playing in Canada, devoting last season to a tour with a company presenting Cyril Maude's comedy, "Grumpy."

Frank Bacon has abandoned as hopeless his ambition to act "Lightnin'" in all the important cities of the United States, and the company headed by Milton Nobles has now invaded the middle west, holding forth, for the present, in Cleveland. One of the players with Nobles is Miss Bessie Bacon, the star's daughter. Since Sunday performances are not the custom in Cleveland, Miss Bacon proposes to journey to Chicago each Sunday during the three weeks' engagement, visit her father and mother, and see the performance at the Blackstone.

Meanwhile, Bacon is looking to the future. He has a play called "Five O'Clock," which he has refused to release to the movies, and which, he says, he will use himself if he ever gets through with "Lightnin'."

In an ambitious desire to write theatrical history, the Theater Guild of New York has set itself the task of producing George Bernard Shaw's "Back to Methuselah." This amazing opus is so long that it must be acted in three parts. The first section, to be presented during the week of Feb. 27, comprises "In the Beginning," laid in the Garden of Eden, and "The Gospel of the Brothers Barnabas," which has to do with London in the present time. The second section, to be given during the following week, includes "The Thing Happens," an episode of A. D. 2170, and "The Tragedy of the Elderly Gentleman," laid in A. D. 3000. The section for the final week is entitled "As Far as Thought Can Reach."

The guild announces, perhaps not as naively as would seem, that it expects to lose a good deal of money. This it can afford, for it has been piling up a surplus with "Mr. Pim Passes By," now at Powers', and with "Liliom" and "He," in New York. It is probable that Miss Margaret Wycherly will play Eve in the second episode, that George Gaul will have the rôles of Cain and Napoleon, and that Albert Bruning will be among those present.

What follows is vouched for by George S. Kaufman of the New York Times. The incident was not reported here.

"During the recent run of 'Enter Madame' in Chicago the time arrived for a matinée performance, when the alarming discovery was made that the ingénue was not in the theater. Moreover, there was no understudy. At approximately 2:25 o'clock, when all the adjacent highways and byways had been vainly explored for an actress, an usheress delivered a note back stage. In something less than a minute she was being made up, the idea being that she should walk on in the rôle, while the other members of the company adapted her lines to their own. The usheress, however, had been observing the play for several weeks, and not only played the rôle in full but [illegible] excellent performance. She was so satisfactory, in fact, that she continued in the part—the defaulting actress was dismissed. The name of the newcomer is Cleona Quiett, and her last name probably explains why she was barred from the ushers' union."

MISS ELEANOR PAINTER in "The Last Waltz," at the Garrick.

This same Mr. Kaufman, who, with Marc Connelly, wrote the ineluctable "Dulcy," now confesses authorship, again with Mr. Connelly, of something new called "To the Ladies." It will be acted soon by Miss Helen Hayes, Otto Kruger, and Miss Mary Boland.

George M. Cohan promises he will produce a new comedy of his own soon, and there are also signs that he will collaborate with the Coburns in the presentation of "The Bronx Express." Mr. Cohan once announced the latter piece, but turned it over to the Coburns during the dark days when he was a retired producer. He also has a new musical piece in prospect and has taken the Tremont theater in Boston for the summer.

Your elusive friend, the downward trend in theater prices, gets a kick in the shins this week. The cost of main floor seats for "The Last Waltz," at the Garrick, is being advanced from $3 to $3.50.

"Les Hannetons," by Eugene Brieux, author of the much discussed "Damaged Goods," is being made ready for production in this country under the title of "Madame Pierre."

Miss Estelle Winwood will not come to Chicago in "The Circle" when, and if, that successful play opens the new Selwyn theater at Lake and Dearborn streets. She withdraws from the cast at the end of this week, to be succeeded by Miss Betty Linley.

Miss Nan Halperin, they say, is to emerge as a star in a musical version of Augustus Thomas' "The Witching Hour." Just how would you go about it to set "The Witching Hour" to music?

Cecil B. DeMille's
PRODUCTION
"Saturday Night"

A Paramount Picture

"Cecil DeMille's sumptuous sets, beautiful lovely women, luxurious pictures, such as one finds in 'Saturday Night' has only been equaled upon the stage by Ziegfeld in his 'Follies'. The bathing pool scene in which the frolicking children of the rich are enjoying themselves in all manner of dress, and undress, is something that a producer with less artistic ability than DeMille might fear to foist upon a sensitive censor."

—Says B. W. Denison, Herald-Examiner.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

Marvels of Our Age Far Beyond Prophet Vision

By Mme. X.

DID you ever hear of Mother Shipton's prophecy? It is one of the early recollections of the writer's childhood, a piece of literature lost sight of this many a year since it first appeared—and that must be somewhere in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries—it has excited much comment because of the extreme improbability of its fulfillment. In the light of today's knowledge its resurrection may prepare us to receive the next prophet with more faith. Here it is:

"Carriages without horses shall go.
Accidents fill the world with woe.
Around the earth thoughts shall fly
In the twinkling of an eye.
The world upside down shall be
And gold be found at the root of tree.
Through the hills men shall ride
And not a horse shall be at their side.
Under water men shall walk,
Shall ride, shall sleep, shall talk.
In the air they can be seen
In black, in white, in green.
Iron in the water shall float
As easily as wooden boat.
Gold shall be found and shown
In a land not now known.

Could Mother Shipton return to the realm of the living today what would be her feelings at sitting in the luxurious drawing room of a modern steam heated flat and listening to opera, or concert, or the world's latest news by means of one of the radio receivers now coming into favor? Wouldn't she feel that as a prophet she was somewhat of a piker?

Civic Spirit Active.

Former Chicagoans returning to this part of the world all comment on the tremendous spurt this city is taking in its progress towards being one of the world's chief municipalities. Not since the strenuous days after the fire and those later ones when the world's fair was evolved has there been such a revival in civic activity as is now occupying the minds and attention of most of our representative citizens.

One of the projects which is assuming shape and substance is the Chicago Zoölogical garden, which has been made possible by the foresight and generosity of a woman, Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick. Her original gift of about 100 acres, fourteen miles west of the city, near Riverside and between the Des Plaines river and Salt creek, has been added to by the forest preserve commission, under the control of the county board. It is a lovely piece of woodland, traversed by these two wandering streams, and can be easily transformed into an ideal home for the wild animals from the temperate and tropic zones which it is planned to bring here. The idea is to have them established in conditions as nearly as possible like their native ones.

To this intention the president of the zoölogical society, John T. McCutcheon, adds another scheme which, I think, has never before been thought of, or, at least, has never up to now been carried out, and that is to arrange parts of the gardens so that children may see there the settings of their favorite animal stories reproduced. "The Three Bears," "Red Riding Hood," "Bre'er Fox" will all be there for them to visualize permanently. It is a quaint idea and one that is capable of much development, though a supply of Goldielockses and Red Riding Hoods might be difficult to assure.

From Out the Jungle.

The best features of world famous zoölogical gardens are, as far as possible, to be reproduced here. The St. Louis garden, the Hagenbeck gardens at Hamburg, those in Copenhagen, the Bronx zoo, the zoo at Rock Creek park, in Washington, the one at Regent's park, London, the Paris Jardin des Plantes are all to furnish us with ideas.

The animals will live, not in cages, but in the open, an open so arranged that spectators can watch them safely and the illusion of the liberty of the wild creatures will be preserved.

It will be a great addition to our renown if, as the trustees plan, we have the finest, most up to date zoölogical garden in the world. Two fine highways will lead out to it. Roosevelt road (already completed) and Pershing road (still in the making from West 39th street).

MISS KATHERINE McCORMICK.
[Raymor photo.]

MISS MARIAN WARNER.
[Raymor photo.]

Miss Katherine McCormick and her cousin, Miss Marian Warner, and the former's father, Alexander A. McCormick, are leaving Chicago today for New York to sail on Feb. 18 for four months of travel in Europe. Mrs. McCormick is remaining at the Hotel Ambassador, but will join her family and niece abroad in the early spring. Miss McCormick made her debut a year ago last summer. Her engagement to Justin C. Sturm, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew F. Sturm of Nehawka, Neb., was announced recently. No date for the wedding has been set. Miss Warner, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ezra J. Warner of Lake Forest, will be a debutante next winter.

While under the dominion of the forest preserve commission, the Chicago Zoölogical gardens will be the creation of the Chicago Zoölogical society, which was organized last year to carry out the plan. Mr. McCutcheon's election as president of this new born society was peculiarly appropriate. Besides being a famous cartoonist and writer he is also a celebrated big game hunter, having hunted in many great game preserves and in the densest jungles of remote lands.

He was in central Africa at the same time that Col. Roosevelt made his historic raid on the wild animals of that part of the world under the guidance of Akeley, the noted sportsman and taxidermist. Mr. McCutcheon was with the Roosevelt expedition for some time. He wrote a book, a most readable work, "In Africa," describing his adventures in British East Africa and Uganda.

When Old Friends Meet.

I should like to be at the Chicago Zoölogical gardens when the first detachment of African animals arrives. There will be sure to be some old friends of Mr. McCutcheon's, a lion or two, an African buffalo, or even perhaps an elephant who will look at him and give wild howls which Prof. What's His Name who understands animal language will interpret as meaning, "There's the man who potshotted me way back in 1908; I did hope I'd never see him again."

Perhaps our cartoonist, who is the kindest man in the world, took a thorn out of some wandering lion's paw. In that case he will have a friend among the zoo's denizens, a creature who will look out for his interests when, as is probable, the different kinds of animals form laborless unions. There is that in our brisk air that breeds unionism.

Other officers in this society are Col. Noble B. Judah and John Borden, vice presidents (the polar bears will recognize the latter); Charles L. Hutchinson, treasurer, and John R. Magill, secretary. Others on the board of trustees are Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, Graham Aldis, Walter S. Brewster, A. G. Becker, Boardman Conover, Oscar G. Foreman, Edward L. Glaser, Alfred E. Hamill, Howard Linn, Commissioner William H. MacLean, Francis E. Manierre, Cyrus McCormick Jr., Harold F. McCormick, Col. R. R. McCormick, Commissioner G. A. Miller, William H. Mitchell, Charles B. Foote, Bernard E. Sunny, Judson F. Stone, Elmer Stevens, Charles H. Wacker, Ezra J. Warner, and Commissioner Frank J. Wilson, with the president of the county board member ex officio.

A Home for Bulgarians.

The plan is to have the membership of this Chicago Zoölogical society divided into three classes—life members, annual members, and contributing members. It is hoped that the Commercial club will take a special interest in the enterprise, see that it is properly launched and made an integral part of the city's big foundations, taking its place with the Art Institute, the Symphony orchestra, the University of Chicago, and (let us hope) the Chicago opera.

As Mrs. McCormick's gift was contingent on the plan being carried out within five years of the date of gift, August, 1920, the zoölogical garden will soon begin to be a fact.

One of the recent incidents in connection with the zoo to be is the proposition to acquire some of those superfluous elephants which are eating poor King Boris of Bulgaria out of house and home. Mr. McCutcheon wants to get animals that have some especial interest, some history, or association. We hope the Bulgarian tuskers won't starve to death before we have a home for them. Why not suggest to King Boris that he feed them on the famous Bulgarian milk so conducive to longevity?

Mr. McCutcheon is leaving the zoo to the guidance of others just now. Last Friday he and Mrs. McCutcheon and their two children departed for a two months' stay on their renowned island, known technically as Salt cay but better as Treasure island. It is near Nassau, in the Bahamas. It must be a delectable retreat. When they draw up their cantilever pier they are utterly cut off from the rest of the world. A charming description of the island and their life there from the pen of Mrs. McCutcheon is appearing in the February Country Life.

Across the Dunes.

If there are any desert lions to be gathered in for our zoo the commission might be given to Arthur Aldis, who is planning to lead a small party on a caravan trip across a part of the desert of Sahara. He sails for northern Africa some time next month.

From Algiers the party will motor to Biskra, which lies on the edge of the desert. A narrow gauge railroad takes them to the real caravan starting point, Tougourt. Thence by camel and mule they proceed across the shifting sand dunes of the northern Sahara to Tozeur, an Arab city.

From here they go still farther into the desert to visit an ancient town, El Oued, a city which has never known wheel traffic. At Tozeur they take the Tunis railroad to Sfax. Their automobile, abandoned at Biskra, meets them at Sfax and takes them to Gabes, where the Troglodites abide (I'd be glad to know the difference between a Troglodite and a Trilobite, wouldn't you?)

The End of the Trail.

They also visit the holy city of Kelrouan, famous among Mohammedans because at the mosque of the Barber are preserved as sacred relic hairs from the prophet's beard. On the way through this part of northern Africa they will have a chance to see the great Roman amphitheater at Eldjen, next to the one at Rome, the largest in the world. All alone in the waste of sand it stands, mute evidence of the passing of the power and glory of man.

The trip ends at Tunis, an Arabian city in the possession of the French. It is as large as and much more picturesque than Algiers. The bazaars of Tunis are unequaled this side of Damascus.

Mr. Aldis expects to be back in Chicago before the end of April, when his partner, Russell Tyson, is planning a trip to France to help dedicate the American Memorial hospital at Reims. Mrs. Tyson will accompany him. Mrs. Arthur Ryerson is also arranging to be in Reims at that time. She and the Tysons are largely responsible for this permanent memorial of American sympathy with and help to France in her hour of mortal peril. Perhaps a glance at this monument to American good will may divert some of the current of criticism now being turned on us by our late allies.

Chicago a "One Night Stand."

With the departure of the Chicago grand opera troupe to New York a certain peace has descended on the community. Operatic artists are a most interesting and exciting part of our municipal equipment, but we are glad that they, like our bracing lake winds and our stimulating summer hot spells, are seasonal. More than ten or fifteen weeks would be a strain on us.

However, we miss them, and would like to venture a suggestion. That is, that on their way back to this part of the country, when they will have a night between their Pittsburgh engagement on March 11 and their opening in Milwaukee on March 13, they should make a stop in Chicago and give a final performance here. We could then know what it is to be a one night stand and in the same class as Wichita. Try it, Miss Garden.

Just what a big business such a tour is that our company is now taking is may be understood from some figures which C. A. Shaw, the managing director of our opera, gave the writer. The total number of people employed by it when it is in Chicago is 626, consisting of folk from every nationality imaginable — Canadians, Belgians, Dutch, French, English, Germans, Russians, South Americans, Poles, Greeks, Austrians, and Americans.

For the grand tour it takes an advance guard of eleven baggage cars (each a seventy footer), followed by two trains of fifteen Pullmans, comprising two compartment cars, three diners, and six baggage cars. Two hundred and fifty people go out on the road, the rest of those needed being recruited at the different stops along the route. In each city sixty-five local men are needed on the stage, forty more in front of it and another twenty-five as transfer men.

Matters Back Stage.

Mr. Shaw's job approaches the dimensions of those of a general conducting an army on the line of march. That he is the calm, competent mortal he is is one of the miracles which makes our opera possible.

Recently, when in answer to a somewhat general protest, it was decided to substitute "Pelleas and Mélisande" for "Salome," the scenery for the former, which was already en route for the New York engagement, was discovered to be at Cleveland. Without making any fuss about it, without a murmur, Mr. Shaw recalled it to Chicago and the performance was presented as smoothly as if the stage setting had not arrived just a little while before the curtain went up.

Last Tuesday afternoon Samuel Insull, chairman of the opera finance committee, made a brief address before the annual meeting of the Friends of Opera at the Arts club. He asked for the active assistance of the members of the society in the raising of the necessary $500,000 yearly guarantee fund. An almost unanimous response answered his appeal as the great majority of those present rose to their feet to signify a willingness to be enrolled on the lists of the workers on Mrs Jacob Baur's drive committee.

Mrs. Arthur Meeker was elected chairman of the society in place of Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman, who resigned on account of ill health. Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick continues as honorary chairman. The four vice chairmen are the Mesdames Julius Rosenwald, Arthur Ryerson, John Borden, and John A. Carpenter. Mrs. John H. Winterbotham is secretary and Herman Waldeck treasurer.

The work of the society in aid of the opera consists in stimulating interest in opera, in helping raise the guarantee fund, and in selling boxes and seats on the main floor. At the head of the box selling committee are Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank and Augustus Peabody. The opera ball which the society gives each winter in honor of the opera stars is one of the gayest and most popular of the winter's social features.

Le Petit Bazar Closing.

That chic little experiment in high class shop keeping, Le Petit Bazar, domiciled in the lower part of Castberg's in Michigan avenue, announces a final sale of its attractive goods before it goes out of existence Feb. 1. It will be in the nature of a rummage sale, as everything must be got rid of tomorrow and Tuesday.

Among those helping as saleswomen for the two days will be the Mesdames Potter Palmer, John Borden, John H. Winterbotham, George Higginson, and Miss Mary Waller. The shop has for over a year made money for the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society. It is given up because the society is undertaking to finance itself on a larger, more permanent basis. The excellent work of this organization for the benefit of otherwise homeless children should find support in this community.

An enterprise with a somewhat similar aim is Lawrence hall, 2850 Lawrence avenue. This is a home for boys whose parents are either dead or whose homes have been broken up by some misfortune. There are 132 lads under the direction of the Rev. Kenneth Owen Crosby. Some of the boys attend the L. A. Budlong public school. Others go to the Lane Technical High school. Each summer they spend ten weeks at Camp Hardy, Mich. There they learn both woodcraft and agriculture.

To help provide a new and much needed cottage at this camp, to be used as an infirmary, Mrs. Robert B. Dickinson is giving a bridge party tomorrow afternoon in the Ambassador hotel. Among the patronesses are Mrs. Wayne Chatfield-Taylor, Mrs. D. Mark Cummings, Mrs. Samuel Douglas Flood, Mrs. Frederick T. Haskell, Mrs. Angus Hibbard, Mrs. George W. Meeker, and Mrs. Theodore W. Robinson.

Along the North Shore.

The North Shore Theater guild is offering its second production of the season, Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion," a comedy in five acts, for five performances, beginning tomorrow night at the Wilmette Woman's club. The next four evenings will be at the Kenilworth club, the Evanston Country club, the Winnetka Woman's club, and at Durand hall, Lake Forest.

Among those taking part in this piece are Mrs. Alanson Follansbee, Mrs. Emmons Blaine Jr., Mrs. Beazley, J. Williams Macy, and George Barbery. The play is under the direction of Donald Robertson.

The company plans two more productions, one in March and another later in the spring. Its first one, in the autumn, was highly successful and the enterprise, a novelty in its way, has proved a popular feature of life on the north shore.

Chicago Woman's Club Host to Shut-Ins Tuesday

By Kate Webber.

MRS. GEORGE A. MASON.
[Moffett photo.]

A card party will be given tomorrow afternoon at the Ambassador hotel, the proceeds to go toward the maintenance of the Lawrence Hall for Boys at 2850 Lawrence avenue, which provides a home for 132 dependent boys whose parents are dead or whose homes have been broken up. Mrs. George A. Mason is on the committee in charge of the affair, of which Mrs. Robert B. Dickinson is chairman.

MRS. ALFRED J. BENSON.
[Raymor photo.]

Mrs. Alfred J. Benson is the new president of the Vocational Society for Shut-Ins, which will have a guest day luncheon on Tuesday at 12 o'clock at the Chicago Woman's club. Horace Bridges and Dr. Harry E. Mock will be the speakers and there will be brief talks by members upon the work accomplished among the handicapped through the society and its staff of workers.

THE Vocational Society for Shut-Ins will have a guest day luncheon on Tuesday at the Chicago Woman's club. Dr. Harry E. Mock will give a talk on "Human Salvage," and Horace Bridges also will speak.

Organized two years ago by eleven women, the society has made stupendous strides in its work of assisting shut-ins to become useful members of their families and of the community. Four hundred and fifty-one handicapped women and men, who are not only incapacitated and unable to leave their homes but who are shut away from most of the things which make normal persons contented, have received practical aid. Many have forgotten their afflictions in the joy of creation and in the knowledge that they no longer need be classed as "the stones that the builder rejected." They are supporting themselves either wholly or in part.

The society's aims are contained in the motto contained in its leaflet: "The object for which the society was formed was to obtain suitable and remunerative employment for shut-ins, and for that purpose, by means of vocational workers, to utilize any known talent or ability and to discover and develop any latent possibilities and thereby to assist such shut-ins to become useful, self-respecting, and contented members of society."

The officers and directors strive to keep before them these prime objects—to provide suitable, remunerative, and, whenever possible, curative employment; to maintain a high artistic standard for the products of the workers; in so far as possible to meet market demands and prices; and to keep operating expenses at the minimum.

Cases have been referred from twenty organizations in the city by personal letters from the shut-ins who have heard of the society's work through the newspapers or from their friends.

The teaching staff is made up of workers who have had various kinds of practical experience, enabling them to handle difficult problems intelligently. Under their instruction articles are created which sell for merit rather than on the basis of sympathy. Workers who heretofore have employed themselves simply to forget their ailments now receive full value for their talents.

Mrs. Hubbard Carpenter, one of the first workers in the society, recently gave over the use of the two first floors in her residence at 677 North Michigan avenue as workrooms.

Mrs. Alfred J. Benson was elected president of the society at the annual meeting. Mrs. Frank M. Pebbles Jr., who completed a two year term as president, is the first vice president; Mrs. Clarence Hough, second vice president; Mrs. Harrison T. Yeaton, recording secretary; Mrs. W. S. Ross, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Hubbard Carpenter, treasurer. Twenty women prominent in club and civic life compose the board of directors.

DOWNTOWN CLUBS

An interesting program will be given this afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Central Eleanor club, 16 North Wabash avenue, for the members and their friends. Girls who have attended the summer camp at Lake Geneva meet the last Sunday in each month for a social hour and renewal of acquaintances. The features of today's program will be a talk by the chairman, Miss Florence D. Bartlett, who will give a talk on "Life in the Far West." Miss Bartlett will wear a Kiowa Indian costume. The glee club will give a varied program and tea will be served.

At the regular meeting of the Chicago Woman's club next Wednesday at 2 o'clock special committee reports will be given. The Sunday Open Door will meet this afternoon at 3 o'clock, when Mrs. Mary Moncure Parker will give a number of original monologues, with Miss Amanda MacDonald at the piano. Tomorrow at 11 o'clock the second of the series of lectures for the benefit of the Boys' Brotherhood Republic will be given by Dr. Dhan G. Mukerji; subject, "The Hindu Drama." Wednesday at 10:30 o'clock the home and public welfare department will hold a business meeting at 10:30 o'clock, which will be followed by a talk by Dr. Rowena Morse Mann on "An Upset Economic World—The Way Out." Starting at 8:30 Monday Morning on the Sixth Floor
Sale of the Famous
Red Cross Mattress
$31.50

This is the famous "Red Cross" mattress which has been made in Boston for years and shipped all over the United States from there. Now these people have opened a Chicago warehouse, and Rothschilds' are the first to introduce this mattress in Chicago. If you paid $50.00 you could not get a better mattress. In fact, we sold this mattress at $60.00 here in our department in 1920.

Here's the biggest value we've seen in fine mattresses in many a long day—quality and cleanliness, at extreme price reductions.

The famous Red Cross Mattress—is made of the finest silk floss—a superquality bedding building material which is warm and light, sanitary, even vermin proof.

Every one is hand made and sealed in the factory in the container in which it comes to your door—absolutely no opportunity to pick up dirt or dust on the way.

Our guarantee, as well as the maker's, is absolute protection against any flaw in workmanship or material.

MUSIC AND THE MUSICIANS

"Some Facts" Are Notable Proof of Orchestral Deeds

HANS HESS.
[De Gueldre photo.]

One of the features of the violoncello and piano recital by Hans Hess and Rudolph Reuter Tuesday night will be a sonata for those instruments composed by Clarence Loomis of this city. It is dedicated to Mr. Hess, and on Tuesday night it will receive its first Chicago performance.

FRITZ KREISLER.

After all the excitement here and there about this and that young violinist, Fritz Kreisler returns to the field and proves all over again that he is the leader of them all. This noted artist will be back in the city today after a European tour in which he has played at most of the capitals and music centers.

continuous pleasure, and she displayed no little skill in the coloring of her amorous entreaties."

Both, however, agree upon Conductor Giorgio Polacco. The Tribune says he was the real star of the evening, and the World proclaims: "He led a performance of quivering intensity, perfect ensemble, and nervous strength yet never once did the orchestra ever suggest encroachment upon the rights of the singers."

With the Melody Makers.

One reads of many pleasant musical events impending within the next few days. Among them are the return of Fritz Kreisler, the emperor of all violinists; the Chicago debut of Grace Welsh, pianist; the sudden engagement of Hans Muenzer, another violinist, to appear with the Chicago Symphony orchestra this week; and a recital of sonatas for piano and cello by Rudolph Reuter and Hans Hess. A feature of the last named program will be the first local performance of a sonata in C major by Clarence Loomis, Chicagoan. It is dedicated to Mr. Hess.

A pupils' recital looking as though it were quite out of the ordinary run of pupils' recitals will take place at Orchestra hall tomorrow night. It will be given by members of the Master School of Bush conservatory. What takes it out of the ordinary is that members of the class have been selected solely on the basis of talent, not even by competitive examination, but by measuring up to a standard, and then are given free tuition to fit them for professional life. Charles S. Peterson is the patron.

A bulletin telling that Vasa Prihoda is coming back to Chicago for a recital next Sunday afternoon in Kimball hall makes pertinent, perhaps, the special circumstance which sent the young Czech into European prominence. He had asked for and obtained a mere job in the orchestra of a well known restaurant in Milan, little more than two years ago, on the plea that he was hungry and homeless. Although a prearmistice enemy, the leader liked the youth (whose name was then spelled Prihodta), and permitted him a solo each evening.

A friend of the restaurateur was a friend of Toscanini, too, and the famous conductor was asked to listen in on the boy. Toscanini listened in and, when the soloist had finished an ornamental passage, jumped to his feet and screamed: "'Tis Paganini! 'Tis Paganini born again!"

Within a single week, so great is Toscanini's hold on the Italian public, Prihoda was rolling in such prosperity as the Italian lira in bulk permitted. The story is vouched for by a Chicagoan who was in Milan at the time.

The most frequent of Chicago visitors among the pianists whose names are high in the catalogue, Léopold Godowsky, is coming again, but this time to say "Au revoir!" for a period of at least two years, he explains. He is ready for a world tour originally planned to begin in January of 1920 and interfered with by the exactions of the passport men. The story has often been told of how Godowsky, accepting a court position from the late Franz Josef, automatically and unwittingly terminated his rights and privileges as an American citizen. That was many years before the world war; but our entrance into that conflict was necessary to make clear to the famous pianist just what he had done. All's well now, however, and soon he will go away from here.

Lois Ewell, who used to sing here with the Aborn and Century opera companies, had a recital scheduled for next Tuesday night. Between the announcement and the performance she became seriously ill, consequently the recital has been postponed until next month.

The Musical Digest, published in New York, edited by Pierre V. R. Key, and going in heavily for reprints from other publications, attempts to break a lance of wit on this department for referring to Vicente Ballester, a Spaniard, as having a beautiful Italian voice. What the Digest does not seem to appreciate is that the word Italian in this connection applies to kind of voice and style of singing rather than geographical location. It may also be interested in learning what has also escaped its attention—namely: that the first name of the artist is Vicente and not Vincente.

PRE-INVENTORY SALE of ADLER COATS!

Just a few short days remain before inventory! And, due to the shortness of time, no chances can be taken in allowing these coats to be carried over into the next season. The Adler Company does not carry apparel from one season to another. Accordingly, prices have been sufficiently reduced to sell every garment in these groups.
These coats are perhaps the most remarkable values in Chicago, as you will agree the moment you see them.

These 3 Groups of Coats Must Be Sold Before Inventory!

Each one of these coats is an exclusive Adler model, of the type that is becoming so famous in Chicago. The materials consist of Bolivia, Pollyanna, Armeda, Panvelaine, English Fabrics, and other favored materials! Almost all exquisitely fur trimmed and portraying newest style effects.

Nothing Down on a Victrola

The Popular Classics

The Victrola with its library of over 5,000 selections offers you years of delight. Your interest and pleasure are ever new. Most popular of all music are the familiar classics. They satisfy the instinctive hunger for good music. The compositions of MacDowell, Nevin and a host of others are brought to you through the Victrola. You will find your favorites played and sung most pleasingly on it.

The Great Singers

It is notable that the great singers record exclusively for the Victrola. This is because they are assured of a lifelike reproduction of their voices. They are unwilling to impair their reputations by faulty recordings of their singing. Would you not be delighted to have McCormack, Galli-Curci, Farrar, Zanelli, and the immortal Caruso sing for you? What a memorable evening's entertainment they would furnish!

Dance Music of the Day

In this department of music the Victrola is supreme. Such famous orchestras as Paul Whiteman's and the Benson Orchestra of Chicago bring to you the most popular and up-to-the-minute dance music. Their recording of it is inimitable. All the sparkle and zest of their original playing is yours to enjoy. They are the inspiration of many impromptu dances. Just put on a record, roll back the rugs and yours will be the merriest of dancing parties.

Do Not Wait!

Take advantage of this offer. Let us send a Victrola to you. Play as your very own the Victrola, then you will know more than words can tell what a real Victrola is. Surely you need not deny yourself possession of one.

Mail the Coupon Today

Fill out the coupon above. We will send to you a catalog showing a complete line of Victrolas. Talk it over with your family. Select the instrument you think is best suited for your home. Then, come in and see us, but do not delay. Send for the catalog. Your request implies no obligation.

News of CHICAGO SOCIETY

After a strenuous round of gayety, which started in the early fall and ended with the close of the opera season, society is taking life at a slower pace just now, and, for the first time in several months, no dances or large entertainments are scheduled for this week. Southern Europe, California, and Florida are drawing many of their tourists from Chicago, and by Ash Wednesday (March 1) the greater part of society will be in warmer climes than ours.

Mme. Julia Claussen will give a recital this afternoon at 5 o'clock at the South Shore Country club. At 8:30 o'clock a screen version of "Three Live Ghosts" will be presented. The first rehearsals for the 1923 South Shore Follies will be held Tuesday evening, Feb. 7, in the men's locker room.

MISS HELEN SPILVER.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. W. Spilver of 5429 West Monroe street announce the engagement of their daughter, Helen, to Lowell Hoxsey, son of Mrs. I. M. Hoxsey of 806 North Menard avenue.

MRS. JOSEPH J. RICE.
[Lavecchs photo.]

Mrs. Joseph J. Rice, formerly Miss Louise Schlacks, and her husband are spending their honeymoon in Miami, Fla. They were married on Jan. 14 at St. Mary's of the Lake church. They will live at 1338 North La Salle street.

Dhan G. Mukerji will lecture on "The Hindu Drama" tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock in Recital hall, Fine Arts building, under the auspices of the Chicago Woman's club committee of the Boys' Brotherhood Republic. This is the second of a series of three lectures. Dr. Louis K. Anspacher will give the last lecture on Friday, Feb. 3.

Mrs. Robert B. Dickinson is in charge of a bridge party to be held tomorrow afternoon at the Hotel Ambassador for the benefit of Lawrence hall for boys.

The Midland Authors' Chinese Poetry dinner will be held tomorrow evening at Mon Fong Lo's restaurant. Some of the guests will be Admiral Ting Kan Tsai and Witter Bynner. Eunice Tietjens is to be toastmistress.

The ninth annual breakfast and theater party of the Sunbeam league will be held Saturday at the Hotel La Salle. Miss Helen Johnson, the social chairman, is in charge of the sale of tickets, assisted by Miss Adelaide Moore.

·ART AND ARTISTS·

Work of Chicago Artists on View at the Institute

By Eleanor Jewett.

"Gathering Grapes," by Marie Blanke, one of the most charming of the pictures of children in the Chicago artist exhibition which opened Thursday at the Art institute.

UNDOUBTEDLY the most important showing of pictures, as far as Chicago painters are concerned, given each year at the Art institute is the annual exhibition of work by artists of Chicago and vicinity. This year is no exception to the rule. Though the "vicinity" artists do not apparently count for many, yet Chicago itself is excellently and numerously represented. Once a Chicago artist always a Chicago artist is one of the reasons for the success of the exhibit. For example, some of the best work to be seen are the paintings by Jessie Arms Botke, now for several seasons a citizen of California—but formerly of Chicago.

In the rush of a press view, minus time and minus catalog, it is difficult sometimes to sum up a show in more than the most hasty, almost superficial way. This being the case, however, it gives one an excellent excuse for referring back to the exhibit even a week or two weeks after its ostensible opening. The first day of the Chicago show was Thursday. The press view was given on Wednesday. So, in all probability, with the greatest of cheer, this column will devote some space for the next several Sundays to the recounting of fascinating bits about the various paintings, here and on later days neglected.

For today it is enoug to state that the exhibition is in every way worthy to rank with its predecessors. There is a great deal that is beautiful to be seen. There are some hauntingly lovely paintings shown; others that are charming; a few rather more commonplace; little that is deserving of the mitten.

To prove the care with which the paintings were selected it may not be out of place to mention that approximately 1,050 pieces of work were submitted for the show, sixty of these being sculpture. Of the more than 900 paintings, about 259 are hung. There was, as one might say, a goodly bit of discarding before the final decisions were made. But such discarding is worth while. The Chicago show should stand for the best that Chicago artists can do.

Although the handicap of no catalog is a drawback, yet it is possible, while not mentioning the paintings by name, to say a word or so about various of the artists in the exhibition. This possibility, we may add in a brief aside, is because of their ability to write their names clearly upon their canvases—though that is not their only claim to fame.

Gerald A. Frank is represented by a group of paintings, among them a portrait of Mary Garden, in the dark wig and brilliant costume of Carmen, which was awarded the Municipal Art league portrait prize. It is a decorative and interesting likeness.

Pauline Palmer has several paintings. One lovely one is of a young girl seated at her dressing table, and another is of a girl seeking her fate in the round opalescence of a crystal ball.

Frank V. Dudley has a number of beautiful scenes from the dune country—that favorite hunting spot of his.

Frederic M. Grant is represented by an excellent still life, a decorative harvest painting, and a larger canvas that one usually attributes to him of a holiday among the nymph world in a delicious garden where cupids are mirrowed in a pool, and the queen of beauty is throned aloft on a golden chair embowered in sweet green leaves.

Among the other artists, friends from former exhibits, are James Topping, Irma Kohn, Joseph Birren, R. F. Ingerle, Karl A. Buehr, Anna Lee Stacey, Carl R. Krafft, Karl Plath, Anna Lynch, L. Hartrath, and Adam Emory Albright.

Among the prize awards are the Joseph N. Eisendrath prize of $200 to Hester Bremer for her fountain, "Mother and Child"; the Clyde M. Carr prize of $100 to the painting "Beneath Clouded Skies," by E. Martin Hennings; the Municipal Art league portrait prize of $100 to "Mary Garden," by Gerald A. Frank; the Mrs. William O. Thompson prize of $100 to Karl Buehr for the canvas, "Girlhood"; the Business Men's Art club prize of $100 to "Autumn Tapestry," by Henry Leon Roecker; the Renaissance prize of $100 to "The Healing Light," by Hoeckner; the Englewood Woman's club prize of $50 to "Meditation," by Maximilian Hoffman; and the Austin Woman's club prize of $50 to Jeffrey Grant for the picture, "Seagulls' Rock."

In the print room of the institute the opening of the annual exhibition of etchings under the auspices of the Chicago Society of Etchers created great interest on Thursday. This, too, is a representative exhibit, including some strange names, but more familiar ones. The four Logan prizes were awarded this year to "Fountain," by Cleo Damianakes; "Maine Coast," by Sears Gallagher; "Pont Marie, Paris," by Robert F. Logan, and "Oriental Alley," by J. W. Winkler.

◆

At each of the annual etching exhibitions the society purchases a number of etchings, which it presents to the institute for its permanent collection. This year the etchings given to the institute are "Las Gomas," by Roi Partridge; "Tiddlers," by Eileen Soper; "Segovia," by Ernest D. Roth; "Old Fish Place, Chartres," by Allen Lewis; "Setting Sun," by Eugene Higgins; "Duneland," by Bertha E. Jacques, and "On the Edge of the Cumberlands," by Margaret Manuel.

The exhibitions will close Feb. 28.

Vaudeville Wit

Bobbe and Nelson:

"What's the matter with you?"

"My girl left me."

"What, that new girl?"

"No, just the old one painted over."

"Look here; I don't like your lazy attitude. You have been here two weeks, and you haven't done a stroke of work."

"Well, I haven't seen any to do."

"Go find some."

"Do I have to find the work and do it, too?"

"If you love work, of course you can find it."

"You forget; love is blind."

"Take my advice, Eddie, and marry that girl."

"Aw, she wouldn't marry me."

"Why not?"

"Because she is too good a friend of my wife's."

"Marriage is like an automobile. In the beginning it's a joy. Then you increase your speed, going faster and faster, and then you have a puncture."

"I've been thinking seriously of taking a wife."

"Take mine."

Slams of Life
By J. P. McEVOY

LINES TO A SMALL BUT COSTLY LAD.

There's a sturdiness within you
That I cannot but admire,
Though I often yearn to skin you
As becomes a flouted sire,
There's a rugged, bold defiance
As your eyes with anger glow,
And a manly self reliance
In your loud, explosive "NO!"

Childish insubordination
One should never quite condone,
For the filial relation
Should preserve a healthy tone,
Yet, although I look my sternest
And my disapproval show,
I am rather pleased than sorry
With your cute, emphatic "NO!"

I am rather pleased and happy
With your independent air,
With your firm, determined, snappy,
Crisp, decisive, candid stare,
And I hope that you can keep it,
As you older, wiser grow,
And will always have the courage
And the strength to answer "NO!"

Jazz, the Villain; or, The Face on the Dance Floor

Broadhurst stage into a smoothness so polished that it cannot be detected by the naked ear.

Restless music simmers in the orchestra pit while Belasco's "The Girl of the Golden West" is being nervously played on the stage of the Manhattan opera house. It is conceited music, rushing up at every possible juncture of thought or action on the stage to explain, to underscore noisily, to make futile supererogatory exclamation over the exclamatory drama. It is as distressing as the pest who tells the plot always three feet ahead of the operator in the movie house, and its brightest moment came when it quit and let Rosa Raisa and Giacomo Rimini play the poker game which ends the second act without accompaniment.

MME. ROSA RAISA.
[Daguerre Photo.]

These are tardy first impressions of Puccini's opera, which this spectator saw for the first time this week, the visiting Chicago company having revived it after the Metropolitan had left it silent for eight years. And the first of all these tardy impressions is that this Puccini music is too clever to be quite honest.

The interest in his music attaches here to the mesmeric quality of its chattering emptiness. It bowls one over with its skill in simulating a fever of inspiration in an uninspired score. And when, at the height of the melodrama of the second act, the horse thief lover facing the girl and the sheriff of Cloudy Mountain audibly cocking his pistol on the other side of the cabin door, Puccini manages to dodge for the hundredth time his Italian obligation to produce a singing melody, one is tempted to rise and cheer the consummate ease with which he has sold a Puccini opera to the world with nothing but synthetic Puccini in it. "The Girl of the Golden West" is the only successful imitation ever made of Puccini.

Rosa Raisa made her first appearance this year in New York in the role of the Girl. She is an astonishing negation of all the rules of her game. Prophets were doleful last year about the future of her voice, which was then pouring out of her in quantities which threatened to exhaust it. Hearing Raisa upheave her voice, one conceives of it as a commodity from some internal source which can be emptied completely at the end of a given number of performances. It may at that outlast the Chicago Opera company.

For the role of the Boy, Dick Johnson, the Chicagoites have unearthed a thunderous Greek named Ulysses Lappas, who made his debut here in this part. He is a very strong boy, with a set of leather lungs that fear no deaf ear in the farthest gallery. Altogether the fourth performance of the Chicagoites in our midst confirms a theory that they are prepared to pull through any operatic emergency by brute strength, should diplomacy fail.

FRUIT OF THE LOOM

Your Throat Is A Never-Quiet Battle Ground

Healthy throat membrane looks like this—the tiny cells in orderly arrangement, close ranked to resist germ invasions. This is a reproduction of a microscopic cross-section of a piece of healthy throat tissue

Here is what you would see through the microscope when the delicate membrane lining the throat becomes irritated or diseased. The ranks of cells are broken up—germs can get through and multiply.

A constant warfare is going on inside your throat. With every breath, hosts of disease germs and a bombardment of dust, dirt and smoke particles attack the tiny cells that line your nose, throat and air passages.

In dust, thick smoke, crowded rooms, theatres, street cars and busy streets, the air you breathe contains an unusual amount of harmful matter. It is then that the battle in your throat grows fiercest; when the delicate membrane is in danger of giving way before the invading disease germs.

The first signs are the familiar "tickling" sensation, or a feeling of dryness or hoarseness. These are warnings that your throat is becoming irritated—that its power to fight off disease is lessened. Unless checked, the next step is apt to be a sore throat, which may be the fore-runner of serious illness.

Zymole Trokeys—a mild throat antiseptic in a most convenient form—provide needed help to the hard-pressed throat membrane at such times.

They soften and moisten your throat, relieve the irritation and help to break up secretions. They check the "tickle", the hoarseness or slight cough that give the first warning of danger.

Zymole Trokeys are pleasant to take and are absolutely free from injurious drugs. The handy size package (sealed in waxed paper) fits the pocket or hand bag.

Carry Zymole Trokeys with you—take one or two whenever you are exposed to conditions likely to irritate your throat. Every druggist handles Zymole Trokeys.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Three Lutheran Pastors Leave for Tour of Europe

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

THREE Lutheran pastors will preach farewell sermons today preparatory to leaving for a four months' tour of Europe and the countries around the Mediterranean, including Palestine. They are the Rev. S. P. Long, D. D., Wicker Park church, Hoyne avenue and Le Moyne street; the Rev. Joshua Oden, Irving Park church, Belle Plaine and Harding avenues, and the Rev. Carl Christiansen, Saron church, Shakespeare avenue and Richmond street. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Noel will accompany them. Mr. Noel is president of the Noel State bank.

A reception was given the entire party last Friday afternoon in the St. Paul's Lutheran church, Washtenaw avenue and Hirsch street.

In addition to his salary Dr. Long was given a special purse of $1,200 by the brotherhood of his church. He received thirty-five members into his church last Sunday.

The Wicker Park church will be supplied during Dr. Long's absence by the Rev. J. H. Culler, D. D., Springfield, O.

The party will leave Chicago next Wednesday evening and sail on the Empress of Scotland from New York next Saturday.

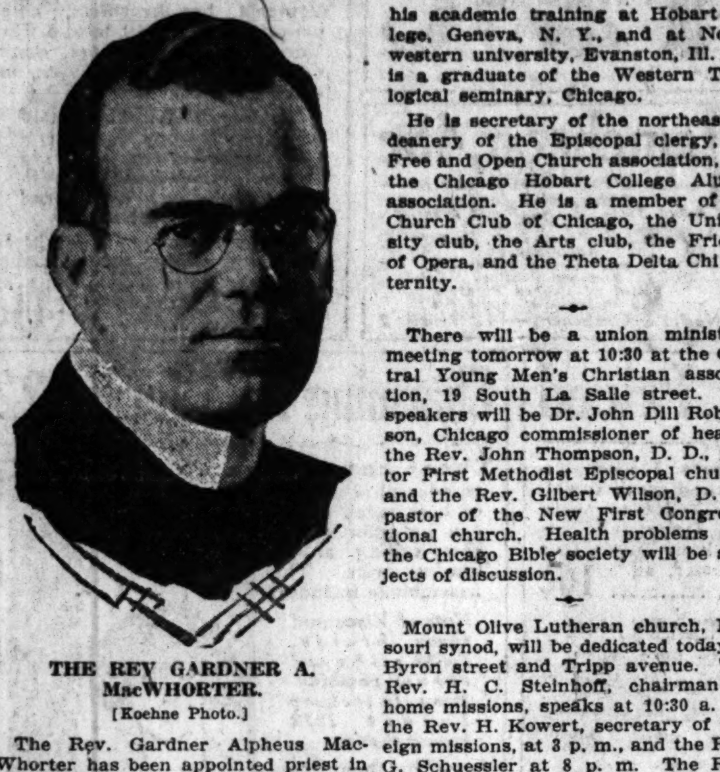
Wilson, Princeton; the Rev. W. B. Hinson, Portland, Ore.; the Rev. Don S. Colt, Baltimore, and the Rev. J. R. Detweiler, Goshen college, Indiana.



THE REV GARDNER A. MacWHORTER.
[Koehne Photo.]

The Rev. Gardner Alpheus MacWhorter has been appointed priest in charge of St. Edmund's Episcopal church, 58th street and Indiana avenue, by Bishop Charles P. Anderson. He will preach his first sermon there at 11 o'clock today.

He was for the last year religious editor of THE TRIBUNE. He resigned Nov. 1. Previously, for six years, he was assistant minister at St. Chrysostom's Episcopal church, 1424 North Dearborn street.

His brother is the Rev. Hugh M. MacWhorter, rector of St. Andrew's church, Downers Grove, Ill.

The Rev. Mr. MacWhorter received his academic training at Hobart college, Geneva, N. Y., and at Northwestern university, Evanston, Ill. He is a graduate of the Western Theological seminary, Chicago.

He is secretary of the northeastern deanery of the Episcopal clergy, the Free and Open Church association, and the Chicago Hobart College Alumni association. He is a member of the Church Club of Chicago, the University club, the Arts club, the Friends of Opera, and the Theta Delta Chi fraternity.

Red Pepper Heat Stops Backache

The heat of red peppers takes the "ouch" from a sore, lame back. It can not hurt you, and it certainly ends the torture at once.

When you are suffering so you can hardly get around, just try Red Pepper Rub, and you will have the quickest relief known. Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers.

Just as soon as you apply Red Pepper Rub you will feel the tingling heat. In three minutes it warms the sore spot through and through. Pain and soreness are gone.

Ask any druggist for a jar of Rowles Red Pepper Rub. Be sure to get the genuine, with the name Rowles on each package.

TABLOID BOOK REVIEW

Last week's composite list of best sellers at five leading Chicago book stores was:

FICTION.

"If Winter Comes," by A. S. M. Hutchinson.
"Cytherea," by Joseph Hergesheimer.
"To the Last Man," by Zane Grey.
"Simon Called Peter," by the Rev. Robert Keable.
"The Tower of Oblivion," by Oliver Onions.
"Brass," by Charles G. Norris.

NONFICTION.

"The Story of Mankind," by H. W. Van Loon.
"Memoirs of William Hickey," by himself.
"The Outline of History," by H. G. Wells.

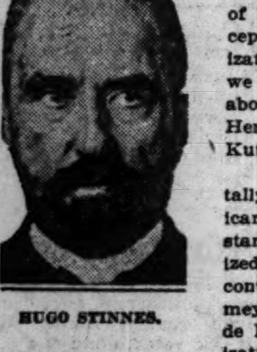
AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

Six books most in demand at the Chicago public library last week were:
"If Winter Comes," by A. S. M. Hutchinson.
"Brass," by Charles G. Norris.
"The Briary Bush," by Floyd Dell.
"The Americanization of Edward Bok," by Edward Bok.
"Walden," by Henry David Thoreau.
"The Outline of History," by H. G. Wells.

By Fanny Butcher.

"HUGO STINNES" is a book without the slightest literary quality, which is hard to read and which, though obviously written for the economically untutored, does not rehabilitate its facts in a form which its predestined readers can readily assimilate.

And yet it is a book which deals with such a fascinatingly twentieth century problem that it is itself fascinating.



HUGO STINNES.

For the student of economics it probably gives neither new fact nor new fancy. We have heard in America of the gargantuan industrial organization of Hugo Stinnes. We have read bitter denunciations of him. We have read flowery eulegies. But, except for the few who have really studied his organization with the aid of the German press comments, we don't really know what and whom we are talking about. This so-called biography of him, written by Hermann Brinckmeyer and translated by Alfred B. Kuttner, gives us the facts of his organizations.

German industry is organizing both horizontally and vertically, says Mr. Brinckmeyer. American trusts, he says—like the Standard Oil, for instance—have all been horizontal. They have organized all factors in one field of industry, but did not control related industries. (Incidentally, Mr. Brinckmeyer might study the ramifications of the Du Pont de Nemours organizations. Unofficially that organization controls, through a skillfully unorganized group of friendly factors, an amazing series of what he calls vertical trusting operations.) German trusts, with Stinnes as the greatest patron of the system, are organized vertically; that is, they include all factors from the control of the raw material to the finish product in all of its forms. With coal and iron as the raw material of industry in Germany, the Stinnes interests, organized in the Siemens-Rhine-Elbe-Schuckert union, are licensed "to engage in transportation of every description, as well as to build and manufacture all shipping accessories at home or abroad; to deal in the products of the mining, smelting, and metal industries, the chemical and electrical industry, and agriculture; to market all raw materials, all products of the intermediate industries, like paper (of which more later), and to manufacture and market all finished products of whatever type."

In a word, the Stinnes trust may control—if it becames powerful enough—all national life. And about the paper. Stinnes has bought and added to his trust the most important newspaper in Germany and is reputed to control a dozen or so more by the economic foundational fact that he controlled the forests and the paper pulp supply. His trust also includes the control of industrial shipping and pleasure travels, and owns hotels and steamships and railroads.

There is no phase of German industry or life which is not in some way associated with the Stinnes interests.

Stinnes has been accused of being a dictator and has been hailed as a deliverer.

No one seems to be sure whether his economic scheme will eventually bring about a socialistic millennium or an autocratic catastrophe. He maintains that only through vertical organization can Germany ever reinstate herself. His theories for the future include, I believe, a reorganization of society on the principle of economic instead of on political and geographical foundations. The whole idea is such an intriguing one that I, for one, am no end disappointed to have to read about it in such a poorly written book.

Are You Devoted to Clarence?

For those who are devoted to Clarence Day Jr.'s prose and pictures there is "The Crow's Nest." Mr. Day draws his own pictures and writes something which is called, I believe, satire.

Much in These Names.

Two new western stories the names of which tell as much about them as readers of wild and woolly romances need know are "The Rider of the Golden Bar," by William Patterson White, and "The Hidden Places," by Bertrand W. Sinclair.

Dear Old Charleston!

"A grotesque legend of Old Charleston" is what John Bennett calls his "Madame Margot," and that is a better caption for it than anybody else could write. Grotesque indeed it is, but very beautifully and symbolically told, as a legend should be. Mme. Margot, the loveliest of all Charleston's lovely creatures, and her traffic with the devil that she might save her daughter Gabrielle from love—that is the theme of the legend.

Mr. Bennett has given it a quality of rare distinction.

He has written something which, like "Messer Marco Polo," Donn Byrne's exquisite little romanee, comes more nearly being poetry than most of the stuff which is printed in lines instead of in sentences. It is a story whose grotesqueness is completely and artistically preserved.

Speaking of diabolistic literature, "Enoch Soames" in Max Beerbohm's "Seven Men" is the most amusing tale I have ever read of the purchase of a soul by Satan. Please read it if you haven't yet.

"Am I Not a Man and a Brother?"

The Goncourt prize this year has gone to—one hates to pun, but it is inevitable—a dark horse. Among all the candidates selected by the cognoscenti of France, England, and America Rene Maran's name was never included. His "Batouala" was never mentioned as a possibility. It is a celebration of the bestialities and lack of civilization of the natives of Africa, and is, according to those who have read it, a second rate novel indeed, whose chief claim to distinction is the fact that it is so filled with mysterious native phrases and words as to be understandable only by the esoteric.

There was dissension about the award.

The vote stood five for "Batouala" and five for "L'Epithalame," a novel of marriage by Jacques Chardonne (which was one of the most highly praised candidates as it ran as a serial in the Revue de France). The president's vote went for the Maran book and that settled the dissension.

Rene Maran is a French Negro.

Intimate Books By and About a Great Man.

Two volumes for the lover of real books are the "Notebooks of Anton Chekov" and "Reminiscences of Chekov," by Gorky, Kuprin, and Bunin. The notebooks contain random jottings for plays and novels, profound and beautiful passages of meditation on life and death, suggestions for names and scenes, and full plots of stories and plays. They are invaluable to a creative literary artist, for they show intimately the methods of one of the greatest of all short story writers. The reminiscences show the lovableeness of Chekov, whom Tolstoi loved as a man and revered as an artist, ranking him higher than De Maupassant.

Ireland and Her Poets.

Miss Harriet Monroe says of an "Irish Song" in this month's "Poetry," "It reminds us by its gayety of a kind of Celtic spirit which has been under eclipse of late, but may revive again in the new Free State." Which reminds us that a few years ago every one was reading Synge and Yeats and Lady Gregory and James Stephens and A. E. and Susan Mitchell and the Mountainy Singer and Moira O'Neill and George Moore's "Hail and Farewell" and envying the fortunate ones whose lines were cast in Dublin, whose "acoustic properties were perfect," as he said. There was poetry and color in Ireland's literary renaissance. And then she took to putting her poetry into her revolutions and then to getting her fine, romantic revoltings which had fired some of her finest poets all mixed up with politics and international intrigue and soon the beautiful literary renaissance was no more, and the harp was silent that "once through Tara's halls. . . ." I, for one, wish that Ireland would have another rebirth of literature. She is one of the few nations on earth that has anything to celebrate just now!

Dull Title but Alluring Book.

S. E. Morison has written a book which bears the sober title of "A Maritime History of Massachusetts," but which is rich with romance. It is a record of those old days when Salem was America's great port, when tall ships sniffed the air for China's seas when they left its prim harbor. It is a book of strange allurements. Read it with "Java Head" and—for the hours you spend with them at least—life will glow with a vicarious warmth of adventure.

Best Sellers of the Ages

creature came to me, and sat upon my thumb as he used to do . . . just as if he had been overjoyed to see me again; and so I carried him home along with me.

That is all.

Charles Dickens used to say how curious he thought it that "Robinson Crusoe" should be the only instance of "a universally popular book that could make no one laugh and could make no one cry."

Well, truly, there is naught in this tale to make one blubber, but it seems to me that the incident of Poll and his fond calling, as well as Defoe's whole treatment of that incident, is, like many another thing in the book, very true pathos—the kind that a man who was all man would write—and true pathos is a difficult thing. There must be so much reticence in it. It must not seem to try. Wilton Lackaye, coining a word, once tartly indicated the difference between it and something else. "There is pathos," he said, "and there is puthos." Pathos never cloys and never grows stale. We age away from puthos.

Dickens complained, too, that Defoe made so little of the death of Friday, which comes in the sea fight between Crusoe's ship and the savages in Part II. He said it was "heartless."

I am not so sure Defoe did not make enough of it when he made Crusoe take it as your forthright Englisher of the sea would take it—

I was so enraged at the loss of my old trusty servant and companion that I immediately ordered five guns to be loaded with small shot and four with great, and gave them such a broadside as they had never heard in their lives before, to be sure.

So Friday went to heaven amid a salvo of nine guns. 'Twas creditable.

Then there come a couple of pages to tell how the fight was won, and, that matter disposed of, Crusoe's farewell to the faithful man—

And now I name the poor fellow once more, I must take my last leave of him. Poor honest Friday! We buried him with all the decency and solemnity possible, by putting him into a coffin and throwing him into the sea; and I caused them to fire eleven guns for him; and so ended the life of the most grateful, faithful, honest, and most affectionate servant that man ever had.

No man, no school of critics, will ever call that mawkish. Some of Mr. Dickens' obituary exercises have not fared so well. Two centuries have passed over Defoe's masterpiece, and it still is young with the eternal youth of truth. Mr. Dickens has been half a century dead, and many of his labored "effects" are as dead as that—because they were "effects." Even so, he paid Defoe one of the highest tributes his work ever received. Writing to Forster from France, he told him how he had been re-reading Defoe, and described the occupation as one of "my numerous refreshings at those English wells."

Deep is the well, and pure the draught from it. This book is, in a manner of speaking, one of three great books of soul-testing in literature. One is about Prince Hamlet, the testing of whose soul extends through two and a half months; another is about Henry Faust, whose ordeal endures for fifty years; and, in "Robinson Crusoe," we are on the Island of Despair, thinking, contriving, arranging, governing, studying, planting, finding ourselves, realizing ourselves, for eight and twenty years. It is an epic of competent man—of man alone—all alone—refusing to starve, refusing to go mad, refusing to lose the power of speech; ever patient, ingenious, hoping on and on, not for rescue merely, but for the best as God shall order it, be it rescue or endless waiting, and at the last finding his own soul.

How to Be Graceful

The most graceful body on earth is the little girl. She is perfectly natural. Up to date she has acquired no mannerisms. She is not yet self-conscious.

To be graceful one must be perfectly natural. The most natural walk is that of the woman whose body is not tilted out of balance by high heels, but whose shoes are so comfortable and so properly shaped that she walks with no thought of her shoes or her feet.

A beauty specialist wrote as follows:

"Grace in walking and dancing bespeaks perfect foot comfort. You simply cannot be lithe and supple in your movements, light-footed, sure footed, when your feet hurt you! Instinctively you try to save the painful member and the effect makes rigidity and awkwardness of the whole body. The only perfectly comfortable foot is the foot that can be absolutely forgotten, once it is dressed, ready to carry you where you want to go."—Buffalo Courier.

It is not necessary that the shoes be clumsy. They can be Cantilever Shoes, which are good looking. Following the natural lines of the foot, with good heels rightly placed, room for the toes, a flexible arch which harmonizes with the flexibility of the human foot, these shoes are so well adapted to the needs of woman's foot that we class them as a substantial aid to the acquirement of grace and happiness.

Cantilever Shoes cost considerably less now owing to recent reduction in wholesale prices.

Cantilever Shoes are fitted carefully and sold in Chicago only by

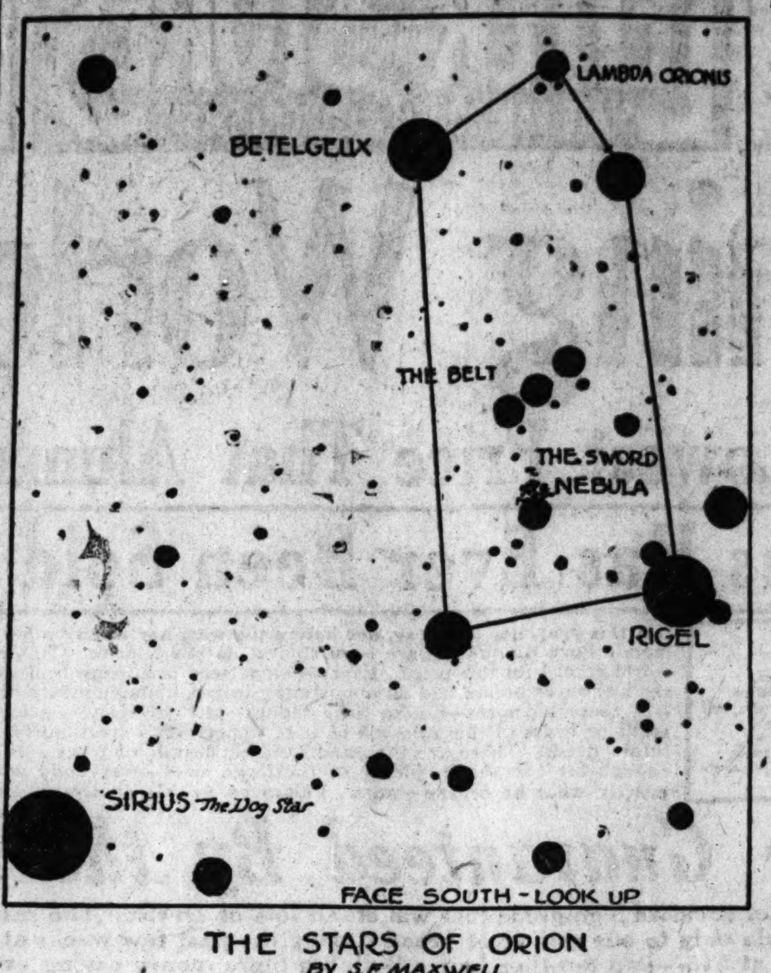
ASTRONOMY



THE STARS OF ORION

BY S. F. MAXWELL

THE ORION STARS.

THREE kinds of nebulæ are recognized, two consisting of gas and stones, and one of suns. The first two are stars and worlds, respectively, in process of creation; the third, systems of stars, fully grown. All shine by their own light.

The cloud of stars in which we have our being is often spoken of as "the universe." It is a flattened disk with the Milky Way on the rim and our sun near the center. This vast aggregation would appear as a nebula if viewed from a point outside. There are myriads of island nebulæ beyond the confines of the stars. Their distances from us, even to the nearest, are immeasurable, and to the farthest absolutely unthinkable.

The Suns of Orion.

Out in the southern sky lies Orion, the brightest constellation and the most magnificent of the star clusters. Orion is one of the winter constellations. It shines all night long from December until March. In late winter it lies squarely in the southern midheavens as darkness falls, and as evening advances it swings slowly over into the west.

It contains two of the brightest stars in the sky, Rigel below and Betelgeux above. Betelgeux appears in the group only because it lies between it and the earth. This great red sun is unlike the other stars in color, size, and temperature, as you can see. The true Orion stars are blue colored, gaseous, and intensely hot bodies noted for their size and primitive composition. The stars which make Orion are no chance aggregation of suns, but a real, physical system. Photographs of the group show that the entire constellation is filled with a gauzy cloud of nebulae, and the points of light which seem like stars are really areas of condensation in the vast clouds of star dust.

From the nebulae come the stars. They take their shapes from the substance of these tenuous mists of dust and gas. They build themselves up by their power of gravitation, gathering material from all around until they become the globes of glowing flame.

There are no chance happenings in the growth of suns ond worlds, but order, order everywhere. Their rise in light, their slow decline through life to death, and afterwards rebirth to light again, is a most magnificent proof of eternal life. Walking through a grove we find trees in all stages of their growth, tender seedlings just springing up, slim young trunks striving for more light, gnarled shapes that have withstood the storms of many winters, dead trees standing black and naked among their fellows, and fallen logs moldering in decay and giving back their substance to the soil and air, from whence other trees will take it to be made into their substance in turn. No human life is long enough to watch the span of life of any single giant of the woods completed—and yet we do not doubt that there is growth, a rise, a flower, and death to every tree.

It is so with the stars. Each sun among them in their countless swarms is moving onward in its life from birth to death. We have no hope of ever seeing more than a fraction of the drama played, and yet, on looking far and wide, some suns appear new born in flame and gas, some proud young stars glow white, mature yellow suns like our own beam kindly down, and there are red stars tottering to their graves. And sometimes, while we watch, there comes a burst of light where it was dark before. A new star? No and yes. An old and faded sun has passed once more through its ordeal of fire and has become a nebula to start its life afresh. This picture is unfurled to us each night in the spangled sky above, and who is there who will not stand in awe and wonder at the sight?

Rigel the Mighty.

The youngest stars of all lie in Orion. An infant in the stellar world is a giant even for a star. Its sides are wound with swaddling streaks of nebula, the regions round about are drained and empty of their matter, its light is fiercely blue and terribly hot. Rigel, the mighty star which twinkles in Orion's foot, is one of this type.

If by some strange celestial accident our sun should run away and leave us here, and Rigel should come in to take his place, and at the same time the dimensions of the solar system were unchanged, then how our earth would vanish! His sides would reach to Saturn and beyond, and we would be engulfed in his flaming bulk. Only Uranus and Neptune would escape his might, and they would skim his surface as flying wisps of glowing gas.

Rigel is a simple star. The nebulous haze so common in Orion has vanished utterly, and now the gases which make his shape have turned to helium, but the heat is still so great that little hydrogen has formed, and the metals are as yet unborn.

The Big I Am

By Guy Lee

When Alexander sallied forth to swat the Persian host
And gobble up most everything upon each eastern coast,
He'd stop at intervals and found a town, and hang the name
Of Alexandria on all, thus publishing his fame.
He let no false ideas of modesty eclipse
The glory of himself upon his military trips;
'Twas Number One from first to last, and when he got it all
He sighed because he couldn't find another world to maul.
He advertised the Big I Am wherever he'd meander—
So I reckon Alexander thought a lot of Alexander!

THE NOVELS OF
A. S. M. HUTCHINSON

William Lyon Phelps in The New York Times says:

"Hutchinson has published four novels, and I heartily recommend them all. 'Once Aboard the Lugger—', 1908; 'The Happy Warrior,' 1912; 'The Clean Heart,' 1914; 'If Winter Comes,' 1921."

IF WINTER COMES

Now in Its Two Hundred and Eighty-Fifth Thousand

"'If Winter Comes' is not only a thrilling tale, it is an important work of art. I do not know when I have had more continuous enjoyment in reading a new book. 'If Winter Comes' is one of the best books of our times."—William Lyon Phelps in The New York Times.

'It is penetrating, bubbling with humor, pathos and genuine excitement. . . . The home background of the war, touched only slightly, was never more skillfully done even in 'Mr. Britling.' . . . Because it is the novel of an expert craftsman it is vivid and real."—John Farrar in The Bookman.

"In its inspiration, its insight and faith in life, 'If Winter Comes' ranks as a rich and important piece of work. . . . 'If Winter Comes' should be widely read, both for its characterizations and for its story."—Emily Calvin Blake in The Chicago Daily News.

"'If Winter Comes' is more than a mere novel, it is an epic poem of very great beauty. It will last long after most other literary products of this age have gone to an obscure and unlamented grave."—Robert E. Sherwood in Life.

"The book is one of the very best that has recently appeared."—The Literary Digest.

ONCE ABOARD THE LUGGER— Eleventh Printing

"Anybody who likes 'If Winter Comes,' and many who don't, should read his earlier novel 'Once Aboard the Lugger—'. It is one of the merriest books ever written."—Heywood Broun in The New York World. A delightful comedy of English life—not a sea story.

THE HAPPY WARRIOR Fourteenth Printing

"A great story this, and one which must surely win for its author a high place among the novelists whose work endures."—E. F. Edgett in The Boston Transcript.

THE CLEAN HEART Fifth Printing

The story of a self-centered hero and a jolly old vagabond, Mr. Puddlebox. "Power and strength and humor and human nature are here."—The New York Evening Sun.

Learning to be

Star

"You have killed your baby!" cried the famous movie director to beautiful Remember Steddon. "You have been arrested, accused of the murder. You are being brought before the judge—Now! You raise your face! You defy the world's scorn! Only you and God—That's right! Cry! Let the tears come! Camera!"

Thus, goaded to her very soul by one who knew not how close to truth his probe had pierced, Remember Steddon—once only a small-town girl, now a potential movie actress—cried and cried and cried. For that is the way emotion is manufactured in the movies.

No such revelation of the methods employed by great directors to make actresses in the world of celluloid has ever been made as is made by Rupert Hughes in his great and thrilling and daring novel in The Red Book Magazine—for he dares to tell the truth—"SOULS FOR SALE." Farm Machinery Men Say Costs Halt Price Cut

By Frank Ridgway.

LAST cropping season farmers tried to get along the best way they could by patching up their old cultivators and corn planters, but that practice cannot continue indefinitely. New machinery must be bought, and farmers are kicking about the increase in the price of farm implements. Farm implement manufacturers say they want to help out all they can, but their hands are tied.

The implement manufacturers say that freight rates must come down and then farm machinery will come down to the 1913 price level.

The factory price of farm implements is 16 per cent above the 1913 level, but the cost of raw materials is 43 per cent above and wages 53 per cent above the 1913 level, according to averages figured from fifty replies sent in to the American Coöperative Journal in response to an inquiry.

The Manufacturer Speaks.

Manufacturers claim they have reduced their prices on farm implements 25 per cent from the 1920 prices and 33 per cent from the peak, while wages have come down only 23 per cent.

One manufacturer says: "In spite of the extremely low figures on raw materials which the farmers sell, when they are fully manufactured into articles such as the workman buys—bread, clothing, and numerous essentials of life—he is far from getting the benefit of the reduced prices which the farmer receives; and it is our opinion that the workman employed by us must live closer, with less food, less clothing, and fewer conveniences, than he did with smaller wages in 1913."

Labor and Freights Soar.

R. C. Brewsbraugh, Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company, writes that the freight rates on some of their raw materials are more than the cost of the materials, and the labor and handling charges far surpass the cost of materials.

"Woven wire fencing has shrunk much lower than the items that make its cost indicate it should be," says the Adrian Wire Fence company. "Raw materials are 60 per cent above the price on Jan. 1, 1914; wages are double what they were at that time, and still our price is but 45 per cent above the 1914 figure on the finished product.

Quotes Railroad Increases.

"Freight rates have been a big item in the increased cost of all farmer needs. Freight rates are entirely out of proportion today, and, while the railroads claim that they have not had large increases, we can cite you dozens and dozens of cases where the increase is above 100 per cent."

The same company claims it is paying a freight rate of 31 cents a hundred on an article of raw stock that was formerly shipped at 13.8 cents a hundred, "a price that is outrageous and out of proportion."

The Burman Manufacturing company writes that in 1913 lumber from the coast cost $22 a thousand on car lots. Now the freight alone is $23.25 a thousand.

Passing the Buck.

According to one company, oak lumber is 50 to 60 per cent higher than in 1913; iron about 30 per cent, seat springs 100 per cent—some of the finished parts made from steel are 90 to 100 per cent higher; wagon spokes and skeins 100 per cent higher, and boxboards and paints 80 per cent higher.

"The farmers are expecting the wagon manufacturers to get their prices down to 1913 basis," the Burken Manufacturing company writes. "Before we can do that there will have to be some radical reduction in raw materials, and before this can come there must be general reductions in freight rates."

Couldn't Be Coaxed.

When the conductor asked one of his passengers for his ticket, he said, "I have no ticket and no money either."

So he was told he would have to walk. The train was stopped. The man got off, and proceeded to walk ahead of the engine.

The engineer blew his whistle for him to get off of the track. When he paid no attention the engineer blew and blew again.

Finally the man looked back and said, "Youse can whistle all youse want. I won't come back." S. S.

No Need to Worry.

A well dressed and charming young woman hailed a four wheeler, since there was no taxi in sight. Just as she was getting in she noticed the horse was inclined to be frisky. He was jumping about and swishing his tail in a way that alarmed her—she was a timid little thing. So she addressed a few words to the aged driver.

"I hope," she said, smiling bravely, "that you will not run away with me."

"No, mum," he replied, mournfully, "I have a wife and seven kids at home already." B. P.

Mr. Carr Makes a Call.

Mr. Carr had occasion to call at the house of a neighbor at night. He rang the doorbell. After a long wait a head was poked out of a second floor window.

"Who's there?" asked a voice.

"Mr. Carr," was the reply.

"Well," said the voice as the window banged shut, "what do I care if you missed a car? Why don't you walk and not wake up people to tell them about it?" D. S.

Forever and Forever.

A man entered a jewelry store to buy a clock. The jeweler showed him the different styles—one in particular he said was an eight day clock.

"What does that mean?"

After the jeweler had explained that it would run eight days without winding, the man exclaimed, "For the love of Mike, how long would she run if you wound her?" G. E.

It Couldn't Be.

"What do you want with me?" asked the indignant motorist when she was ordered to stop.

"You were traveling at forty miles an hour," answered the police officer.

"Forty miles an hour? Why, I haven't been out an hour!" said the woman.

"Go ahead," said the officer. "That's a new one on me." C. L.

One Million $1.00 Packages Of Genuine Yeast Vitamine Tablets To Be Given Away Absolutely FREE

as explained below to prove to you what they will do—Every Reader of this Paper Is Entitled To This Great Free Offer for Five Days

These are guaranteed to be the genuine Yeast Vitamine Tablets prepared from the original formula of Dr. Catrin of the Faculty of Medicine of Paris. They positively contain no drugs in any form.

This Will Often Quickly Help You Increase Your Strength and Energy, Put On Pounds of Good Firm Flesh and Round Out Your Face and Figure If You Are Weak, Thin or Emaciated Due to Causes Explained Below

HUNDREDS of thousands are taking Yeast Vitamines—They may be just what you need to increase your weight and energy and give you that good firm flesh which you may have so long desired. The fact that you may have taken Yeast Vitamine Tablets, mixed with drugs, without obtaining results would not prove that our Genuine Yeast Vitamine Tablets (pure and unadulterated) would not help you.

A small tablet which contains drugs might not contain a sufficient quantity of Vitamine to do you much good. Therefore, no matter what you may have tried without obtaining results, we advise you to get a free $1.00 package of our Genuine Yeast Vitamine Tablets from your dealer today. Try them for ten days and watch the results.

Investigations of the Medical Research Committee (composed of eminent physicians and scientists) would seem to show that no matter what quantity of food may be taken, if such food is deficient in Vitamines, you gradually lose flesh and become thin and weakened, while a much smaller quantity of food, rich in vitamines, quickly produces good firm flesh, and increases weight, strength and energy, provided your blood contains a sufficient quantity of oxygenated organic iron to enable you to assimilate your food properly. Without organic iron both food and Vitamines are absolutely useless, as your body cannot change inert, lifeless food into living cells and tissue unless you have plenty of organic iron in your blood.

Steady —Nerves
Firm Flesh
Rich —Red Blood
Shaky —Nerves
Pale Watery —Blood
Weak Flabby Tissues

WOMEN WHO ARE SCRAWNY AND ANGULAR in appearance or who have hollows in the neck or sunken, flabby tissues will find that there is nothing like good firm flesh to round out face and figure and give a youthful appearance.

MEN WHO ARE THIN OR EMACIATED, with weak, flabby muscles, should try adding a few additional pounds of good firm flesh and see what a remarkable tranformation it will quickly make in their appearance.

Blood examinations by physicians all over the country have shown that an enormous number of people are deficient in hemoglobin or iron content in the blood stream, and this is often the real underlying cause of a thin, emaciated, weak and run-down condition and it is for this reason that thousands of people may take Vitamines without obtaining results. It is not the fault of the Vitamines, but it is the fault of your blood. Organic iron takes up oxygen from your lungs. This oxygenated organic iron unites with your digested food as it is absorbed into your blood, like fire unites with coal or wood and by so doing it creates tremendous power and energy. Without organic iron in your blood your food merely passes through your body without doing you any good. Therefore, in practically every case where Vitamines are necessary, organic iron is also necessary.

For centuries scientists tried in vain to produce organic iron. At last the problem was solved, so that you may now obtain pure organic iron from any druggist under the name of "Nuxated Iron," which is ready for immediate absorption and assimilation by the blood the moment it enters the system.

If you merely wish to gain greater strength, energy, vigor and endurance we recommend that you take Nuxated Iron only. DO NOT TAKE VITAMINES UNLESS YOU WISH YOUR WEIGHT INCREASED up to what a person should normally weigh. We do not claim, however, that Vitamines will put flesh on everybody. Some people are naturally too thin and will probably remain so in spite of Vitamines and everything else.

Those whose meals consist principally of meat-soups, white bread, meats of various kinds, fish, potatoes, tinned fruits and vegetables, pies and cakes, are likely to suffer from under-nourishment and a weakened physical condition due to a deficiency of both Vitamines and Organic Iron, no matter how much they eat, and in such cases both Vitamines and Nuxated Iron should be taken. Always take Yeast Vitamine Tablets before meals and Nuxated Iron after meals.

Arrangements have been made with the druggists in this city to give every reader of this paper a large $1.00 package of Genuine Yeast Vitamine Tablets, absolutely free, with every bottle of Nuxated Iron that you purchase. Be sure to take only Genuine Yeast Vitamine Tablets with Nuxated Iron. Do not be misled by imitations which often contain drugs.

Insist on Genuine Yeast Vitamine Tablets, pure and unadulterated, prepared from the original formula of Dr. Catrin, of the Faculty of Medicine of Paris.

If as a result of faulty metabolism you feel tired in the mornings, restless at night, if you suffer from weakness, nervousness or lack of vitality, if your flesh is soft or flabby; if your eyes lack luster or your lips are pale; if you feel the need of more pep, vigor and energy so that you radiate magnetism, force and power, purchase an original package of Nuxated Iron, get a free $1.00 package of Yeast Vitamines with it and make this test.

Weigh yourself before you start and test your strength and endurance on a gymnasium testing machine, then again after ten days and see for yourself how much you have increased in weight, strength and endurance. It is often remarkable what an astonishing difference it makes in a person's appearance to round out face and figure with a few pounds of good, firm flesh, and it is often equally surprising what a tremendous amount of pep, vigor, force and energy a little more oxygenated organic iron will give a person whose blood is deficient in this magic-like substance.

If after making the above test you do not receive all and even greater benefits than you expect, the manufacturers will promptly refund your money.

THE ENCYCLOPÆDIA BRITANNICA

WHAT has been the lasting heritage of the war? In brief, a nation of keener thinking, knowledge-demanding people. The war had a profound effect on the 100,000,000 inhabitants of this country. It carried their interests from the town or city in which they live across the water into foreign countries, to every part of the world. They became no longer content to know only their neighbor across the street, but they wanted to learn of their neighbors in all nations of the earth. The war created in the people a thirst for knowledge, world wide in compass. The war instilled in the people the habit of thinking broadly in world wide terms, of wanting information on subjects they never dreamed of before, of thinking more deeply on the problems of the day. Since the war, during the political, social, economic adjustment in this country, this habit of the people has grown stronger and stronger until today there has never been manifest such eagerness among the people for knowledge—knowledge on every conceivable subject under the sun.

The Britannica Goes Hand in Hand With the Awakened World

Where can people find the means to satisfy this demand for knowledge? The greatest reservoir of knowledge in existence—authoritative and comprehensive—is the Encyclopaedia Britannica, the most widely known, the most reverenced—the resource of thousands of men and women seekers of knowledge in every generation for a century and a half. It is the book of the hour to satisfy the increased demand for knowledge by the awakened people of today.

Are You Abreast of the Times?

Today as never before the man and woman needs every ounce of knowledge he or she can obtain in order to cope with the present business, political, social and economic readjustment. Business particularly has been facing new and strange conditions, endeavoring to get back to a normal basis. In this tremendous readjustment it has been the men with the broad foundation of knowledge who, as executives and workers in our industries, have been able to take the responsibility and have risen speedily to positions of greater power and greater remuneration.

The man who holds his job today during this readjustment period is he who is particularly fitted for his work, the man who knows more than his fellows. Knowledge is always above par in the market and the easiest commodity in the world to sell, as an employer will gladly pay your price if you have the knowledge to deliver. An investment in the Britannica will pay you many times over in dividends of knowledge, pleasure and satisfaction.

World's Most Authoritative Work

The Britannica has had a long and enviable career, and has grown in authority and esteem from generation to generation until it occupies the position today as the great reference book, ahead of any other in any country or any language. It has had as its contributors a host of the greatest experts in the entire world throughout the 150 years of its existence.

In placing the Eleventh Edition before the public, the Press of the University of Cambridge announced: "The Eleventh Edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica is now offered to the public by the University of Cambridge in the hope and belief that it will be found to be a trustworthy guide to sound learning, and an instrument of culture and world wide influence." Seldom has a hope been so quickly and completely realized. Thousands of owners have found the Britannica an indispensable means of self education.

What This Work Will Do for You

The Britannica will stimulate you to improve your education whether or not you've had a college education. It will furnish you with a teacher of any subject you wish to study—a teacher who is master of his subject and tells what he knows in clear, simple language—a teacher who is always at your command.

It will give you the answers to the thousand and one questions that the morning paper, sermons and books prompt in every active mind. It will make everything you see, read and hear more interesting.

It will enable you to lay out a plan of education for your children and keep abreast with their studies.

It will give you the history of every country in the world, every race, every city and the lives of all the men and women who have left their mark upon the world.

It will tell you more about every city, town, mountain range, lake, sea, desert, river, and every other place of interest than you would learn by visiting them.

What Is to Come?

How shall America readjust her industrial conditions? What will be the eventual results from the Disarmament Conference? How will Europe stabilize herself? Will the new nations created by the war last? Is the fall of the Bolshevist regime in Russia imminent? Will Germany fulfill its treaty obligations?

By means of the extraordinary articles in the Encyclopaedia Britannica on economics, industries, politics, government, labor and capital you will be able to obtain a clear insight into the problems of today.

Our Prices Are Extraordinarily Low

At the prices we are selling these sets you are getting an enormous book value. This is the complete latest edition of this famous Encyclopaedia, of which there have been sold more than 200,000 sets. The Encyclopaedia Britannica contains the almost incomprehensible total of 44,000,000 words, 30,000 pages (as many words and pages as 450 ordinary books) and 15,000 illustrations, many in colors, and hundreds of maps. The sets are bound in a special high quality of cloth, buckram, and in the finest leathers obtainable. The workmanship is the best. Other materials used are the highest grade.

These sets are printed on the genuine India paper—the beautiful, light, strong, thin but opaque sheet which has proved an ideal medium on which to print the Encyclopaedia Britannica, because it makes this great work more compact, much more convenient to handle and more inviting to read.

Stop and consider this wonderful bargain—this famous Britannica which you probably have always wanted, in the tremendously popular Handy Volume form, and sold for a small payment with order and moderate monthly amounts for a limited period. Do not hesitate—invest in this Encyclopaedia Britannica, which will repay you many times in dividends of knowledge and satisfaction.

PROLOGUE.

Quite a few years have played their insistent tattoo on Pa Potter's fontanelle since last he was examined for insurance. . . . There would have been many more of them only for the persistence of Charley Thompson, the demon insurance salesman, who with honeyed words coaxed Pa's signature to the dotted line of an application. . . . Of course, there still remains a loophole for Pa . . . he may not pass. . . . and yet if he should not it would mean there is something wrong with him. . . . What to do! What to do!

Scene—Office of Examining Physician.

Two palpably nervous individuals approach . . . we recognize Pa as one of them . . . and the other? . . . Of course, it is Thompson . . . but why is Thompson nervous? That is easy, children; Pa may not pass and then all his effort is lost. . . . And why is Pa nervous? That is even easier, children: He may pass and then he'll have to take the insurance . . . Ah, here comes Dr. John Johnson, the demon chest thumper and collector of comical blood pressures.

DOCTOR (enters slowly and looks Pa over with a sad smile. Shakes his head as if in disapproval):
Wanta get some insurance, eh?
Step on the scales . . . how much you weigh?

PA (gloomily to impress doctor):
Sorter fell off last year or so,
Lotsa worry an' work, you know.

(Doctor's eye lights with a gleam of professional interest . . . he worries, does he? Not so good . . . takes Pa's height, absently dropping measuring rod on Pa's bald head . . . not so good, either.)

DOCTOR (noting weight and height on Part II. of examination blank and beginning to ask routine questions with an air of detachment):
Race (white or black)?

PA (nettled):
White, of course.

DOCTOR: Where do you reside, winter and summer?

PA (helpfully):
Same place.

DOCTOR (after he gets that one straightened out):
Do you contemplate a trip beyond the limits of the mainland of the U. S. A. If so, when, where, and for what purpose?

PA (gayly):
Ha! ha! Thass a good one.

DOCTOR: If foreign born, have you become a citizen of the U. S. A.?

PA (aroused):
Waddye mean foreign born? I'm a hundred per cent American.

(Luckily the doctor doesn't pursue the examination so far as to ask Pa what that might mean.)

DOCTOR (with a keen look):
Do you drink anything?

PA (facetiously):
Yes, anything.

(That's a good one. It always was.)

DOCTOR (frowningly):
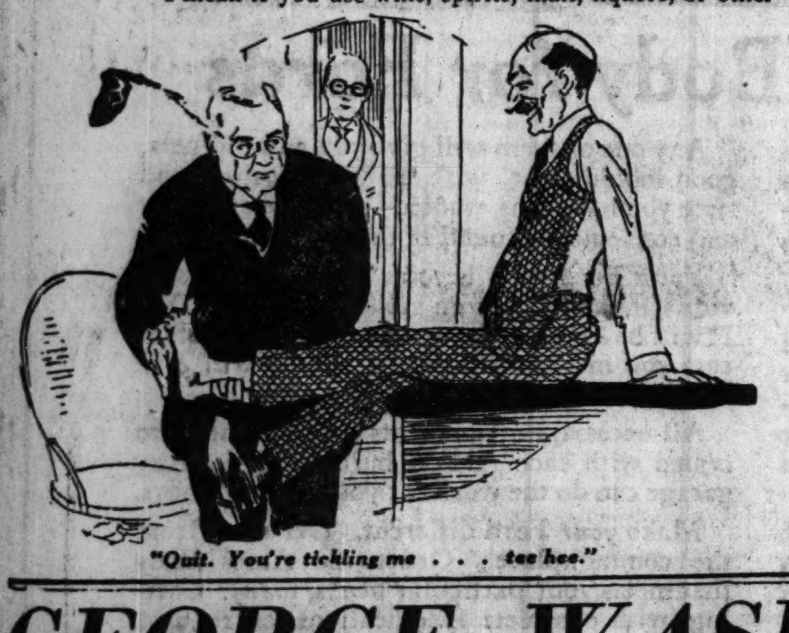
I mean if you use wine, spirits, malt, liquors, or other alcoholic beverages, state kinds used and how much in any one day at the most.



"Quit. You're tickling me . . . tee hee."

(Certainly, if any one has the right to ask such a question these days it is the doctor.)

PA (jovially):
Thass good. Who writes those funny jokes for you?

DOCTOR (ignoring unseemly levity . . . he didn't write the questions):
Do you now use or have you ever used opium, chloral, cocaine, or any other narcotic drug?

PA (stirred to the depths):
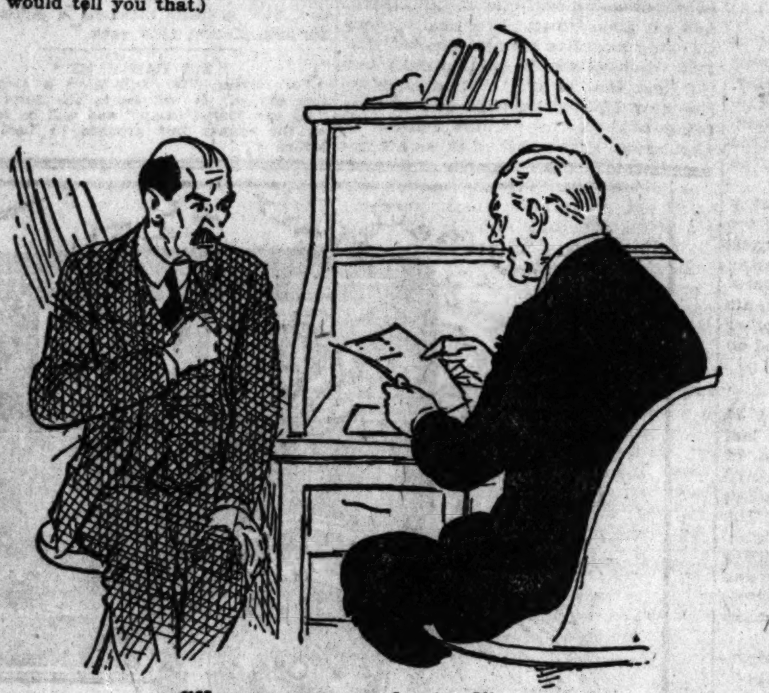
Say, do I look like a drug fiend?

(Certainly Pa does not look like a drug fiend. Any one who knows Pa would tell you that.)



"Have you ever used opium?"

DOCTOR (relentlessly):
Has either of your parents or any of your brothers or sisters been afflicted with insanity, epilepsy, or diabetes?

PA (scornfully):
I should say not.

DOCTOR: When were you last confined to the house by illness? How long? What nature?

PA (with sudden interest . . . he loves to talk about this):
Well, y'see, I had the flu. I had the flu for weeks and it settled in my lungs and I had pneumonia and I fell away thirty pounds, and when I got up I was as pale as death and as weak as a cat, and when I went downtown I was so thin my neck rattled around in my collar, and when I went into the office one of the fella's says to me, he says, "Say, when did you die?" and I says, "Who, me?" and he says, "Yes, you," and I says to him, I says, "Who, me?" and he says, "Yes, you," and I says, "Ugh, ugh, not me. Why?" and he says, "Well, you go on down to the morgue and crawl on a slab and hold a lily in your hand and they'll bury you without asking any questions." That's how bad I looked and, you know, I've never felt quite the same since I had that darn flu. Ma says . . .

DOCTOR (interrupting, having heard something about the flu from several others):
Have you ever had malaria, typhoid, or other fevers; palpitation or any disease of the heart, varicose veins, frequent coughs or hoarseness, asthma or shortness of breath, pleurisy, bronchitis, gastritis, appendicitis, jaundice, vertigo, dizziness, fainting spells, fits, epilepsy, delirium tremens, neuralgia, neuritis, apoplexy, mental derangement, gout, goiter, sunstroke or heat prostration? Sign your name here in full.

(Well, that's over.)

Let me feel your pulse. (Takes Pa's rather limp wrist.)
Now, roll up your sleeve. No, your left arm.

(Wraps band tightly around Pa's upper arm and pumps blood pressure machine . . . Pa's heart begins to pound . . . maybe his blood pressure is too high or too low or somep'n . . . Doctor eyes gauge critically and then gives Pa questioning look . . . Pa's heart sinks . . . blood pressure takes sudden drop . . . Doctor looks at Pa as if in alarm . . . Pa feels faint . . . Doctor hastily deflates pressure and takes band off . . .)

PA (nervously):
Is it too high or somep'n?

DOCTOR (they never give you any satisfaction):
Hop fifty times on one foot.

(Pa hops . . . starts out gayly for first ten . . . next ten, not so gayly . . . from forty to forty-five barely gets off floor . . . last five nearly kill him.)

PA (panting):
Whew, I'm all in (puff, puff). When I was a kid (puff) I wouldn'ta thought nothing (puff) of . . .

DOCTOR (passing steel tape around Pa's chest):
Expand!

(Pa expands, or at least that's what he calls it.)

Now, contract!

(Doctor notes difference . . . barely perceptible . . . shakes his head sadly . . . suddenly grabs Pa and puts ear to Pa's chest . . . Pa wonders what he is listening to so earnestly . . . doesn't know the Doctor is engaged in that pleasant indoor sport known in the medical circles as locating the apex beat, mapping out the borders, and determining if the systolic and diatolic sounds are what they should be . . .)

PA (worried):
How's my heart? My heart all right?

(Doctor ignores question and starts mysterious tapping on Pa's chest . . . taps a while and then listens . . . somewhat like a woodpecker . . . seems to be enormously pleased with what he hears . . . hammers Pa all over chest and then suddenly switches attack to Pa's stomach.)

PA (still more worried):
How's my chest, huh? Lungs all right?

(Doctor too absorbed in fascinating pastime of percussing Pa's stomach to answer . . . concentrates attack on McBurney's point . . . medical slang for that part of the anatomy directly over the appendix . . . if Pa winces he has appendicitis . . . Pa doesn't wince, but he's getting still more worried . . . he must be in awful shape . . .)

DOCTOR (suddenly grabbing Pa with both hands):
Now cough!

(Pa coughs . . . wonders why . . . he'll never know.)

DOCTOR (stopping for a rest):
Did you say you were rather nervous?

PA (rather vaguely):
Yes, I get very nervous.

DOCTOR (suddenly):
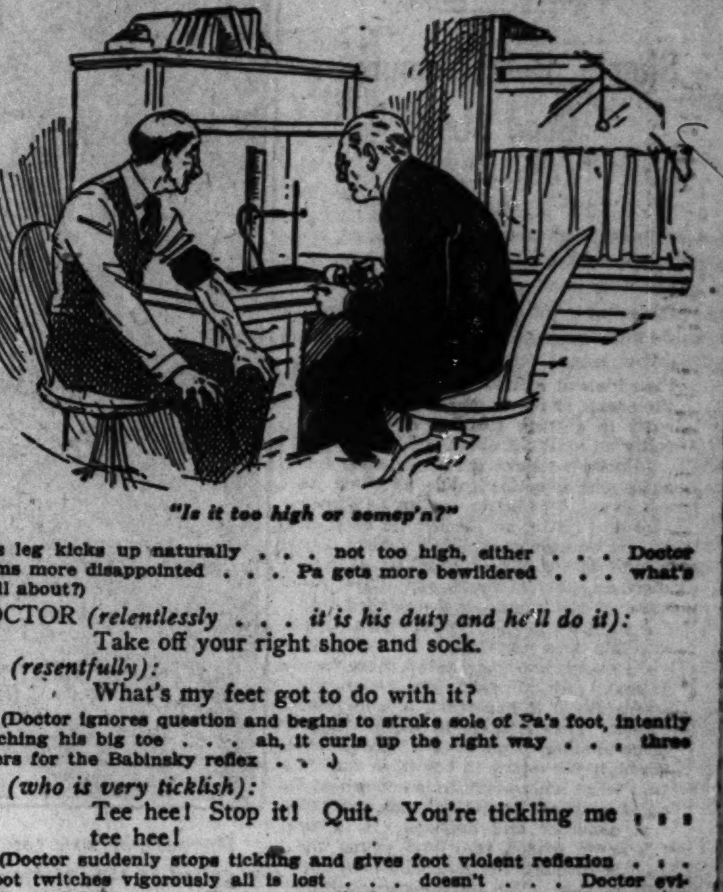
Stand with your feet together. Now close your eyes.

(Watches Pa keenly to see if he sways . . . doesn't . . . Doctor seems rather disappointed . . . decides to try the patella reflex.)

Here, sit down. Cross your legs. Good.

(Gives Pa a smart rap with the edge of his hand on the kneecap . . .



"Is it too high or somep'n?"

Pa's leg kicks up naturally . . . not too high, either . . . Doctor seems more disappointed . . . Pa gets more bewildered . . . what's it all about?)

DOCTOR (relentlessly . . . it is his duty and he'll do it):
Take off your right shoe and sock.

PA (resentfully):
What's my feet got to do with it?

(Doctor ignores question and begins to stroke sole of Pa's foot, intently watching his big toe . . . ah, it curls up the right way . . . three cheers for the Babinsky reflex . . .)

PA (who is very ticklish):
Tee hee! Stop it! Quit. You're tickling me . . . tee hee!

(Doctor suddenly stops tickling and gives foot violent reflexion . . . if foot twitches vigorously all is lost . . . doesn't . . . Doctor evidently satisfied . . . Pa has passed the ankle clonus, although he'll never know it . . . Doctor then introduces him to the justly famous team of Heller and Haines, after which the examination is concluded . . . meanwhile the poor salesman is pacing up and down outside the office wondering if Pa passed or not . . .)

PA (doing a lot of wondering on his own hook):
You sure did run me out of gas.
Tell me, Doc . . . am I gonna pass?

DOCTOR (gloomily):
Your pulse is much too high, you know;
Besides, your pressure's rather low.

PA (alarmed):
Is that a dangerous way to be?
Tell me what'll be good for me.

DOCTOR (even more gloomily):
You've a flabby skin and lifeless eyes,
What you need is exercise.

(Belligerently):
And you'd better take some right away.

PA (panicky):
O, I'll begin this very day.
I know I'm sorter on the blink,

(Bravely):
But it won't be long till I'm in the pink . . .

(Suddenly):
Am I gonna pass the exam', you think?

DOCTOR (resuming impenetrable gloom)
You'll have to come back in a day or so.
Your pressure, of course, is rather low,
But you'll pass, I guess, so far's I know.

PA (jubilantly, now he knows there is nothing serious the matter with him):
Gosh, I'm glad . . . c'mon, let's go.

(And so saying he grabs his hat and coat and hurries to the office, making a mental resolution on the way that he will join a gymnasium class the very first thing and exercise regularly every day. . . . Well, that's a noble aim . . . perhaps we will get a glimpse of Pa going through his first exercises in the Business Men's Gym Class . . . ooh, what they will do to him . . . poor Pa.)

(And That's That—Until Next Sunday.)

GEORGE WASHINGTON ESSAYS BY BOYS AND GIRLS

THE time for sending in your essays in this contest is growing shorter every minute. There are just twenty-five days left. Are you going to be caught in the eleventh hour rush?

Perhaps you have been browsing through biographies and histories in the endeavor to make your essay a more worthy contender in this contest to win a share of the big prizes, but you must hurry now. Get it off to The Tribune this week, for something might come up later to prevent your writing it even at the last minute.

Besides the essays appearing on this page each Sunday there are others printed every day in The Daily Tribune.

He Has Not Gone.

A sage Frenchman once remarked of Napoleon, "He was as great as any man could be without virtue," but Washington was great with virtue combined. His military genius was, perhaps, not developed to such a degree as was that of the former, but where justice, honor and integrity were concerned, he far surpassd Napoleon. And, after all, are not these qualities more admired in a man, more respected, than military genius alone?

Washington is loved because he is a true representative of the nation, and it is a fact that he who really loves the thing itself loves its finest exhibitions, of which he is one.

The birth of the great patriot marked the beginning of a new era in our history—an era in which more was accomplished than in dozens of centuries preceding in which the foundation of our great land of today was laid, a bit insecure at first, but becoming firmer as the English despots were gradually crushed.

Washington's character was as nearly perfect as God ever intended it to be. But was he not a human being like you and me? Did he not occasionally give way to his fiery temper? And did he not suffer the same temptations?

He has not gone from us forever. His memory still lingers with us, and his soul does likewise, for that is immortal.

Vast Accomplishments.

First in war,
First in peace,
And first in the hearts of his countrymen.

These are words that thoroughly describe George Washington, once commander of the colonial army in the war for independence, and first president of the United States. Washington was foremost among a type of people adapting themselves in abilities, virtues, and defects to the new nation which they had founded and which they called "United States," a type which was as genuine American as has existed on this continent before or since.

Washington was an American of pure and noble type. He believed intensely in popular government. He respected the people because he knew the future of the new nation rested in their hands. He conceived a nation as he thought it should be and followed out that conception with loyalty and truth.

He concerved the plan of making the constitution long before it was ever dreamed of by any one else.

He beheld in the thirteen infant states the germ of a mighty empire reaching from sea to sea.

He was strong for a liberal educational system in the United States. He did not like to see the youth of the nation sent abroad for an education.

Washington was quiet, serious, and earnest throughout his life.

He understood men and knew how to choose among them.

Washington, as a soldier, fought a trying war to a successful end; as a statesman he laid the foundation for a great republic. These are the accomplishments of the father of our country.

Liberator of America.

All countres have outstanding characters who have accomplished much for the growth of their respective countries. It may be in art, science, religion, or otherwise. So our country has many leading characters.

Among these was our beloved George Washington. He was not a poet, not a minister, not a doctor, but a common, everyday man who stood and stands today in the minds of every American as the liberator of America.

George Washington was born in Virginia, Feb. 22, 1723. As a lad he was distinguished for his truthfulness, manly spirit, and energy. These traits were the fruits of a devoted and conscientious mother. At 16 he had made himself a surveyor, and was looked upon as a young man of unusual promise. All through his earlier career he showed his executive ability and willingness to serve. He was considered by the people as a brave, wise, and good man. Gov. Dinwiddie called him a "person of distinction."

The second continental congress chose him to lead the continental army in the great war for liberty. In his leadreship he proved to be supreme in war, in council, and in peace. At Valley Forge the commander in chief showed his self-sacrificing spirit when he shared the hardships of the elements with his army. As our first President, Washington had great responsibilities, but with a firm reliance on the Divine Providence, his office was held with honor.

To George Washington the man, the hero, the patriot, the Christian, the liberator, the friend of mankind, the father of our country, every true American is ready to give three cheers, but above all we give thanks to our Creator for his accomplishments.

Sublime in Defeat.

Under the parental roof, in the humble capacity of school boy, George Washington imbibed from his excellent mother, the sterling principles which have today immortalized his name.

With luxury and pleasure within reach, he chose a career of hardships and privations. On becoming the master hand in the revolution, war materials and the means of procuring them were lacking, he had neither trained soldiers nor trained officers; he was obliged to enroll an army drafted largely from the invaders of the primeval forest which he had explored as surveyor, during his minority, but his inflexible resolution carried him to ultimate success.

Washington, great in victory, was sublime in defeat. The wealthy and the influential might desert him; congress, temporarily deceived by his maligners might abandon him; the mass of the people might denounce and secretly plot against him, but his hopes of success in a cause that was just were not to be shattered, and when all seemed lost this dauntless patriot rolled the tide of war back to fortune by a series of the most skillful maneuvers ever recorded on the pages of history.

Grand as were his triumphs in war, grander still was his marvelous ability as a statesman. Hostile Indians roamed over our land; pirates preyed upon our commerce; our government was not centralized; our national treasury was empty and our nation had no credit; such was the foundation of the American republic which was placed upon an enduring basis by our cherished statesman, George Washington.

Many generations have come and gone since the death of that marvelous leader of men, George Washington. But the memory of his life achievements still exists in the hearts of his people.

Total cash prizes $11,650.00

The rules governing the contest are as follows:

1. Essays must be on George Washington and must be 250 words or less.
2. Handwriting will not count. Neatness, grammar, spelling, and punctuation will count. The chief consideration will be given to the thought expressed. Age and grade will be given due allowance.
3. All essays must be original. Copies of anything published will not be considered.
4. The Chicago Tribune reserves the right to publish any manuscript submitted. No manuscript will be returned.
5. Any school child attending grammar school, high school, or equivalent grades (including public, parochial, and private schools) in Chicago and the states of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Iowa, or Wisconsin, is eligible.
6. $11,650 in cash prizes will be paid as specified. In case of ties the full sum offered will be paid to each winner.
7. The judges will be selected from the faculty of the Medill School of Journalism of Northwestern university. Their decision will be final.
8. Any student may submit as many essays as desired.
9. Essays must be written on one side of the paper, and on the same sheet must be signed the name of student, address, school, grade, age, and room teacher's name.
10. All essays must be addressed "Essays," The Chicago Tribune, 7 South Dearborn street, Chicago.

Washington is unquestionably to be added to the ranks of eminent men whose characters have been molded by a mother's influence. Traditions represent her as a woman of vigorous character, equal to the trust placed with her. She educated her children in habits of frugality, diligence, and virtue.

George Washington has the honor of being the first President of the United States, which at that time was but a struggling democracy, while now it is recognized as a world power. All through his entire administration he was ever guided by a sense of justice which ruled his life. He was a God fearing man and gave the credit of his successful government to the guiding hand of God over his people.

Washington possessed a mysterious quality of character which was manifested in a long life of priceless service. His personality ever inspired confidence and commanded respect. He was a living proof that patriotism is not merely a delusion nor is virtue but a name.

No one of the sons of man, in my estimation, has ever equaled in character, personality, or political influence George Washington. He has justly been termed "the father of his country."

Always Thinking of Others.

I wonder how many boys and girls in this country use for their ideal our first president, George Washington? If every boy and girl would use him for their model and follow his example, the world would cease wondering "When will there ever be another person as good and kind as Washington?" and there would exist the best generation this world has ever known.

When he took the position of commander in chief of our army, he took the fate of a nation into his hands. Always thinking of others and never of himself, he led his men to victory, being in the midst of the battle. Save for one man, one can truthfully say that Washington was the savior of our country. One never thinks of "Had he been defeated," for defeat was unknown in the vocabulary of Washington.

He was 6 feet 2 inches tall, a heavy frame, brown hair, and blue eyes. Can one imagine a more dignified personage?

Let's all try to be a George Washington in heart and mind, even though we can't in stature, for it's what we are, not what we look like, that counts in the end.

Hope Never Left Him.

George Washington stands out as the finest type of American. He was a man of high ideals, firm determination, and controlled passions. He was a general by instinct, a statesman by necessity, and a president by the love and respect of a nation.

The ideals of George Washington most vividly revealed to us are, first, his desire to serve his people, not for ambition's sake but because he was an American; second, his desire to free his nation; to release the generations for time eternal from that servitude which England had so ignobly forced upon the people of a whole nation.

No greater example of firm determination has ever been recorded than Washington's determination to keep a nation of six million unorganized people bonded together until victory was secured. Washington, with a faithful band of half clothed, half starved, and discouraged men held at bay for six years the greatest nation on earth and finally drove that nation from our shores forever. No task could require greater determination than that.

Washington is usually represented as a cold statue, but from his letters we gather a glimpse of the passions of the soldier. Hope seems strongest of all Washington's passions. His hope never left him, nor did he allow his griefs, joys, fears, or hatreds to carry him beyond the bounds of common sense.

The reputation of our country today is built on the world's knowledge of the character of George Washington, the greatest of all Americans.

Few Understood Him.

Washington has been set apart from other men and praised by all nations, yet it has been said that while many have praised him few have understood him. In his lifetime Washington had many enemies. During his military career he was abused and severely criticized, but final victory brought an end to this, and he passed to the presidency amid a general acclaim.

The question has been raised as to whether or not Washington was a true American. It has often been said by the people that he was simply an English country gentleman and not an American. But when we consider the time in which he was living, can we not call him the greatest American of that time? It was a difficult undertaking for any one who had been born a colonist, as Washington had, to rise to the sense of national understandings. Washington was the first thorough and broad American, distinct from his fellow citizens, who were only colonial Americans, not yet reconciled to the new life before them. He passed in a single step from being a Virginian to an American, and in doing so he stood alone. Not one of us can realize what this man has done for us when he made this change in his life.

It was Washington's great task after the war to mold the colonies into a nation, and then to start this nation on its then dim and uncertain career.

A Model of Service.

The word Americanism is of recent coinage, but the fire of the spirit was kindled long ago in the hearts of the American colonists. Standing out in bold relief against a background of brave countrymen we see a Virginian, George Washington.

Cradled, as the colonists were, in the forests of America, and surrounded by revengeful Indians, there was developed a physical courage in young Washington. Likewise in later years, when he saw his fellow countrymen overburdened by tyranny and wronged by England, he also attained a strong moral courage.

From boyhood to manhood Washington has been a model of service to others, not for reward but for the self satisfaction of being able to assist. Signal among these many occasions was his acceptance of the office of commander-in-chief of the continental army without the least remuneration, only hoping that he might fulfill his task successfully.

Perhaps the secret of the favorable results obtained in his undertakings was that he depended not upon his own strength but on the power of God. How often we find him in earnest prayer at the time of a crisis!

Let us, as Americans, be ever mindful of the example of true Americanism set us by George Washington.

Took Life Earnestly.

Of Washington we write with awe and admiration.

Until Gen. Washington had finished his life, it was hard to believe that our country could produce so great a man, so brave, so patient, and so self-sacrificing.

He took life earnestly and early set out to serve his country. He was a keen man and understood the people. His trustful leaving of the service of the new nation at the time it had shaken Great Britain was typical of his grand and simple nature, but nothing was less likely than that he could be spared at such a time. The people knew he was anxious to see a union of the states established and were more than willing to do as he advised them.

Washington was a great statesman, a wonderful financier, a man of sterling character, who, when in the right, fought for the right until he won.

Through all his trials, which were many and varied, he always showed the broadest and most generous sympathy. One thing which he could never understand was how any man could run away or refuse to fight for his country. When he beheld such cowardly acts his temper ran uncontrolled. His one thought was to fight, and fight to the last.

Gen. Washington, whose name we all love and honor, whose name stands out true and loyal to every patriotic American, was truly a great man. The father of his country, and that country the envy of the world.

REVEALS SECRET OF SUCCESS IN WINTER DRIVING

Simple Rules Insure a Good Start.

BY HIGH SPEED.

In cold weather gasoline does not vaporize as it does in high temperature, resulting in all sorts of engine troubles from hard starting to lack of power. As gasoline gets colder it becomes, we might say, thicker and heavier, and then instead of flowing freely through the nozzle of the carburetor it has difficulty in getting through at all, especially on starting up.

In order to make the action clear imagine the gasoline to be as thick as mucilage. The latter cannot be forced through a very small opening such as the carburetor nozzle and formed into a fine spray. It might be forced through, but it would run down the sides of the nozzle or be pushed into the manifold in the form of drops. Cold gasoline does just that.

On starting a cold engine these days of heavy gasoline even on a moderately warm day it is necessary to apply the choke. This is done in order that a large amount of gasoline will be drawn through the nozzle in the hope that in that large amount there is enough of a volatile nature to get into the combustion chamber and explode. It is for the same reason that you prime the engine through the petcocks or a special primer. You introduce into the combustion chamber a comparatively large amount of fuel, the greater part of which is so heavy that it will not vaporize even with ordinary heat applied.

A Waste of Fuel.

The trouble with priming and with keeping the choke applied is that it wastes fuel and also lets into the engine a quantity of gasoline which does no work—in fact, it is harmful, if we may say the production of carbon and oil contamination are really harmful. The gasoline that does not vaporize does not all go out through the exhaust. Some of it does, but much burns with a flame and deposits carbon. Some also flows down the sides of the pistons and gets into the crank case, where it mixes with the oil. Both condtions are not the best for the engine, and of the two the oil dilution is the worst. The oil is thinned, and weakened, hence lubrication of the entire engine is impaired.

The owner can overcome some of these difficulties by making a few changes and observing certain facts. First install a primer; but instead of using ordinary gasoline use a mixture of gasoline and commercial ether. This gives firing immediately providing the spark is good, and avoid using a large quantity of fuel to get initial firing. Secondly, avoid keeping the choke applied longer than necessary. So much for getting started.

After the engine is started it should run at such a temperature that the fuel will be vaporized before it gets into the combustion chamber. This does three things: It saves fuel, gives more power, and keeps the engine warm. The same results practically are had if the fuel is preheated enough and kept so until it reaches the cylinders.

Cover the Radiator.

There are various ways in which the engine temperature can be kept up. One is to use the radiator shutter or a radiator cover. When the engine is cold these can be made to keep out the cold and they will diminish the fan draft so as to reduce the cooling effect on the water in the radiator. Thermostatic control of the water is another method but it is not considered to have all the advantages of air control. The thermostat blocking the water passage when the engine is cold is likely to cause freezing of the water at the bottom of the radiator while the rest of the water is warming. By all means it is necessary for the owner to alter the carbureter hot air opening. While for part of the running it will be advisable to close the air control altogether it also will be found that doing this reduces the power perceptibly. If a means of attaching a hand control is provided it should be done.

PACKARD CHIEF TELLS OF "OLD PACIFIC'S" TRIP

"Not long ago there came to my mind a very interesting event associated with the early days of the automobile industry," said E. F. Roberts, vice president of the Packard Motor Car company. "It dates back to 1903 and deals with the adventures of 'Old Pacific,' a one cylinder, nine horse power Packard that had been commissioned to make a transcontinental run from San Francisco to New York.

"The start was made from San Francisco, with E. T. Fetch in charge, and the finish took place in front of the Astor hotel, New York, fifty-three days later. 'Old Pacific' was the first gasoline propelled vehicle to cross the Nevada sands. Seven days were required to do the job.

"Even murders were of secondary interest to the appearance of an automobile, for in Carson City, where a murder had occurred an hour or so fore, 'Old Pacific' made her entrance to the town, the crowd, on seeing the first motor car of their lives, promptly left the scene of the murder."

NEW LOCKS AND OTHER "EXTRAS" FEATURE OF SHOW

Many Devices Found to Add Comforts.

One of the noticeable features at the auto show is the changed appearance of the front of the car through the adoption of automatic cooling devices. A number of these appeared last season, but the practice has become more general, especially those with thermostatic regulations.

Another external feature is the various forms of vizors or shades projecting from the top of the wind shield frame. Automatic wind shield cleaners which operate pneumatically in rain or snow eliminate much of the annoyances of driving under these conditions as well as tending toward greater safety.

Thieves Expert Now.

For devices designed to protect against theft there are many new locks and alleged burglar proof inventions. Merely relying upon a switch key is no protection against the expert car thief, who knows how to tamper with the ground wire and then depart with the switch locked.

Nor does locking the doors of a closed car afford much security, for too many keys fit these doors. Various ingenius types of gear lever, steering wheel, and ignition locks will interest the visitors. A device which prevents the theft of the motometer or other radiator cap ornament has appeared on the market.

Tail Lights Popular.

Tail light signals are featured in many of the cars. During the last few months the practical value of these has been so well demonstrated as to cause many makers to adopt them as standard equipment. The advantage of the tail light signal "Stop" is that it is seen much quicker than the driver's hand extending and is always visible, whereas the driver's hand is often not visible to the motorist directly behind.

The average visitor not only examines and studies the cars and body work offered at these expositions, but also finds considerable interest in the displays of sundries, parts, and accessories. In fact, there are more seekers for accessories than for cars, for most car owners desire some new devices. This is specially noticeable in such articles of equipment as spotlights, windshield ailerons, and modern head lamp designs.

Case Six Cylinder Uses Three Continental Types

The Case car is shown again this year as a six cylinder car using three types of Continental motor and is built as a five passenger touring, seven passenger touring, and a sedan. Delco ignition is used on all three. The rear springs are semi-elliptic.

THE PERFECT CAR

By Guy Lee

Its engine purrs like a rippling rill,
  It skims o'er ruts and it wades through mire;
It's baffled not by the highest hill;
  It's seldom been known to blow a tire.
Its carburetor is always there,
  Its brake and clutch never make me moan.
What is this auto beyond compare?
  It's the sort of a car I'd like to own.

And I guess I'm fixed, for a visit to
  The exposition of motor craft
Proves each machine that is placed on view
  Is exactly the kind for which I'm daft.
Of this I'm sure, for the agents tell
  Me so, in words that are rare and brave.
Yep. Every one of 'em's trying to sell
  The perfect automobile I crave.

Chandler Officer Confident for Big Business Year

"There are many signs that point to good automobile business for the near future," said George M. Graham, vice president of the Chandler Motor Car company, yesterday. "Foremost is the ever increasing tendency to talk, think, and act good times. Practically every thinking man has assured himself that 1922 business will be substantially better than that of 1921. Then consider the new 1922 automobile shows now being held in the various centers of population. The spirit of those attending, the size of the crowds, and, most important, the show sales are surpassing even the most sanguine hopes of practically every manufacturer. Next is the tremendous good roads activity, the greatest in the history of the country, which is now in full swing everywhere. Thousands of miles of improved highways were constructed last year, and still greater mileage is scheduled for completion this year."

A real Sedan Body for Fords

HERE is a beautifully proportioned Sedan body for a Ford chassis. It is sixteen inches longer than the regular Ford Sedan—and about six inches lower. It has four doors that swing wide open—and two broad, comfortable seats upholstered in smart worsteds.

From the rear to the radiator the body is of pure stream-line design. There is a ventilator in the cowl. And special reinforcing, combined with scientific design, eliminates all the annoying little squeaks and rattles so common in nearly all closed bodies.

Six other AMES built BODIES, each equally as distinctive as the Sedan, meet every demand for seating capacity, style and price. These bodies are illustrated below.

Any one of them will give you a brand-new, good-looking car, with all the comfort and style you have long wanted—plus the economy and convenience found in the Ford chassis.

Your Ford will become a personal, individual car, if it has an AMES built BODY. It will be different from the thousands of other cars you meet on the road. And it will give you big-car comfort and riding ease.

All necessary attachments for mounting are crated with each AMES built BODY. Any garage can do the work for you in a few hours.

Make your Ford different. Get away from the commonplace. Order the Ames Body that meets your particular needs, today. Catalog, with complete specifications, on request.

TOURISTS GIVEN LATE REPORT ON GRANT HIGHWAY

Called Good Route to the Pacific.

The promised completion of the Grant highway from Chicago to the Mississippi river under the state bond issue plan by the end of next year brings into prominence the claims of that route of travel as the most direct between Chicago and the Pacific coast by way of Yellowstone park.

The Grant highway was laid out after a careful study of the topography of the country and with a view to avoiding deserts and high altitudes, and those who have been active in the promotion of the improvement and use of this route assert that they have succeeded in finding a way on which they can direct the tourist with the assurance that he will be in easy reach of every modern convenience all of the way and on which he can drive as safely and as comfortably as he can on the roads in the neighborhood of his home town. The further assertion is made that there are only a few miles of this route in which the altitude is more than 5,000 feet and none over 7,500 feet, and that only for a short distance, at the crossing of the continental divide, in western Wyoming, just south of Yellowstone park.

The highest altitude east of that pass is at Casper, which is the same altitude as Denver, 5,280 feet, and the highest west of the pass is between La Grande and Pendleton, in Oregon, at the pass of the Blue mountains, where the altitude is 4,400 feet.

Many Miles of Pavement.

Nearly 1,000 miles of the Grant highway is now surfaced with concrete gravel or macadam, and when the plans of each of the states are carried out it will be completely paved. In Illinois the paving will be all of concrete and work of the same sort is under way in Iowa. Nebraska contemplates a surfaced road and now has a good earth road for most of the distance.

The tourist driving the Grant highway the present year, however, going westward, must detour north from Stuart or Bassett and go by way of Carns Bridge across the Niobrara, Springview, Norden, and over into South Dakota through Martin and Rosebud, getting back to the regular road at Gordon, Nebraska. This detour is to avoid heavy sand. Eventually, however, there will be a pavement on the through route by way of Ainsworth and Valentine, but no tourist should allow himself to be persuaded to go that way at present.

One traverses the rich country of eastern Nebraska and the potato and alfalfa farms around Gordon, Chadron, and Crawford, and in the Great valley of Wyoming one will learn the agricultural resources of that state and be in the midst of the oil operations which have developed many of the modern cities during the last five years. There are modern accommodations at Lusk, Manville, Douglas, Glen Rock, Casler, Shoshoni, Riverton, and Lander, and good accommodations at Dubois and Moran.

How to Plan Trip.

The tourist is advised to stay at Riverton or Lander at night and start toward the divide the next day, going only about eighty miles and spending the next night at Dubois, driving the next day from Dubois across the divide, which is near by. In this way the possibility of spending the night in the high altitude of the pass will be avoided. Anyway, the magnificence of the scenery in this region, when one has in view the wonderful sight of the Teton mountains, is reason enough for leisurely driving.

Going north from Moran, one reaches the south entrance to Yellowstone park, getting to be the favorite entrance by reason of its accessibility from the east and south. If one is going farther west, he skirts the south line of the park, passing north of the Teton range, directly to Ashton, Idaho. This is now a driveable road and saves over 100 miles over the route by way of Jackson and the Teton pass.

AUTO TOURING LEAPS IN 1921, STATISTICS SHOW

51,000 Ask Way of Motor Club.

BY CHARLES P. ROOT.

[Field Secretary, Chicago Motor Club.]

Motor touring—"everybody's doing it." The highways and byways are now, in all weather, crowded with automobiles, and rain, snow, or heat acts as no damper to the enthusiasm of the people who are "seeing America first."

The rapid improvement of all roads may be credited with this desire of the people to travel, to get out into the open, to commune with nature.

This traveling horde is making towns grow, is enhancing property values, is teaching geography, and is giving health to millions. It also is creating business and keeping money in circulation.

All the world travels on wheels now, rubber cushioned wheels.

Big Growth of Service.

Some idea of the spirit of wanderlust may be gained from the records of the touring bureau of the Chicago Motor club, and this is but one spot in the country where touring information is gathered and disseminated for the sole benefit of motorists.

In 1919 the club was called upon to give route information to 1,816 people. In 1920 the figures jumped to 9,199, while in 1921 the 51,211 represented the number of calls made for this knowledge of the highways.

Some details are interesting as showing the time of the year used by travelers. The main bureau at the clubhouse at Michigan boulevard and 33d street and the Edgewater Beach and Austin branches showed these figures: January, 585; February, 599; March, 1,013; April, 1,743; May, 5,652; June, 9,107; July, 9,881; August, 10,327; September, 5,682; October, 3,436; November, 1,897; December, 1,289.

These figures do not include the information given out by branches located at such places as Waukegan, Highland Park, Elgin, Aurora, De Kalb, Joliet, Ottawa, Gary, and Hammond, where touring bureaus are maintained, nor the hundreds of mechanical service stations located in northern Illinois and Indiana which are prepared to give out information to motorists.

Survey 37,000 Miles of Road.

When February puts in its appearance the 1921-'22 highway activities of the club may be summed up somewhat as follows: Roads surveyed and logged, 37,000 miles; new state highways marked, 128 miles; state highway markings repainted, 350 miles; route direction signs and arrows erected, 2,500; special road direction signs, giving mileage to towns, 45; caution signs erected, including school, railroad, turns, curves, dangerous crossings, 1,500; special "blinker" lights, redflex signs, warnings, etc., 15.

This represents the work of four road crews and cars which have been kept constantly on the roads since March 1, 1921, and in March, 1922, these crews will again begin their activities.

This is the work the Chicago Motor club donates to motorists in general, to guide them on their way, to surround the public with every possible safeguard.

Preparing Road Maps.

From the surveys made by the road crews the map department of the club is now engaged in preparing maps that will indicate the nature of the roads in counties and states adjacent to Chicago —whether paved, gravel, or dirt—and giving the main highways in all directions.

The survey cars have traversed all the important highways of Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, Indiana, Michigan, and Ohio, have gone east as far as Buffalo, south to Louisville and St. Louis, north into Wisconsin and Michigan, and west to the Missouri river.

Each of these crews reports to headquarters daily on road conditions and changes, each carries and posts detour signs as occasion requires.

Other Surveying.

From all parts of the country and particularly from each county in Illinois the club receives weekly reports on road conditions and changes and presents this information to its members and the press in the form of road letters.

The club's road survey work has extended east to Buffalo and Washington, south to Florida, west to Los Angeles, and north to St. Paul, to say nothing of covering intermediate roads aggregating thousands upon thousands of miles. The road sign posting began in 1907, a year after the club was organized, and it has grown each year since.

The sign posting work has extended over the main highways of Illinois and northern Indiana, every important road being marked, while there is hardly a village adjacent to Chicago that does not have a number of the yellow signs of caution within its precincts.

1921 Rewarded Fighters 100%, Chandler Distributor Asserts

BY THOMAS J. HAY.

[Distributor Chandler and Cleveland.]

The slogan of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE that 1921 would reward fighters, has proven as being 100 per cent correct in statement. No matter how unsatisfactory any firm or individual's business may have been in 1921, it unquestionably would have been worse, had he not been a fighter.

It is characteristic of the American business man, and particularly that part of the American business public engaged in the merchandising of automobiles, that the more problems you give them, the harder they try to overcome them. The automobile business during 1921 had its problems and they were solved as they presented themselves.

The motor car industry has found itself for the season of 1922. Like all other commodities, they have reduced their prices, cut out every extravagance and are prepared to enter the new season with new lines of cars at attractive prices.

Not only have the prices been lowered, but the values have been increased. Never in the history of the automobile business, has a dollar bought as much automobile as it will buy at the auto show this year. Factories have readjusted their prices to the low point and the keen competition between the various makers will enable the purchaser to select a car and buy it for considerable less money than a less valuable car would have cost him one or two years ago.

Therefore, both dealer and manufacturer look forward to the coming season, which will be ushered in by the auto show, with the utmost confidence. Along with other businesses that have established new methods, new price levels, the automobile business will continue to be one of the first three greatest industries in America.

Device Forces Motor to Warm Up on Cold Days

Automobilists who operate their cars these cold days will find a great deal to interest them in the exhibit of the Rayfield motor thermostat. This device forces the temperature in the water circulation of the motor and quickly brings it to the required heat and holds it constant.

VALUE TELLS IN LONG RUN OF SALES—BIGGS

"In the long run value tells, whether in an automobile or any other article," said H. A. Biggs, vice president of the Studebaker corporation, yesterday, "and the manufacturer who offers most for the money gets the most success. There may be times when this fact is not apparent. For instance, when this country, returning to an era of peace, faced a great demand for goods with production at a low ebb, previously accepted standards of value were for the most part lost sight of.

"As I view the situation, 1922 is going to prove a keenly competitive year, and the public is going to judge cars more critically with an eye to securing the greatest value for each dollar invested. The days when anything on four wheels would sell for almost any price asked have passed. In offering our cars for 1922, we have incorporated a number of features that give them added beauty, completeness and retirement, but our ideals have undergone no change whatever. We are continuing as in the past to pioneer along lines of giving the highest quality at the lowest possible prices."

Makers of Bumpers Favor 'Broad Faced' Shield Type

One of the interesting and remarkable developments in the automobile industry is that of the bumper. During the last two years bumpers have changed radically in style and principle. Up to and prior to the period of bumper evolution, single bar bumpers were the only type in use. Today twenty-three manufacturers are manufacturing bumpers of the "broad face" type.

STOP RATTLE IN SHACKLES.

Spring shackle play or looseness between the spring end and the shackle may give much annoyance until the seat of trouble is discovered. A good method of taking up the play is to place shims between the spring end and the shackle. Or the play may be removed by tightening the spring bolt.

CUBA LOSES MARKET FOR MOLASSES; USES IT FOR AUTO FUEL

Cuba has found a new market for her molasses crop by converting it into denatured alcohol for automobile use.

When prohibition was enacted in the United States it automatically destroyed Cuba's market for millions of gallons of molasses. The molasses was formerly refined in America and distributed to the brewing companies. When the brewers ceased to brew, molasses became a drug on the Cuban market temporarily.

"A large percentage is now being converted into denatured alcohol," says Mr. Hires, "and forms the base of a new automobile fuel used by practically all of the cheaper and many of the more expensive cars in Cuba. It sells for 29 cents a gallon against 50 cents a gallon for gasoline. What does not go into automobile fuel is turned into pure alcohol and shipped to South America, where there is no eighteenth amendment."

Use Engine Instead of Brakes on Long Grades

Some motorists appear to have the mistaken notion that it is harmful to the engine to use the compression as a brake in going down step hills, says Scientific American. Shut off the engine and leave the gears in mesh, so that the wheels drive the engine against the compression in the cylinders. Be sure that the throttle is closed. This will help to save the service and emergency brakes from excessive wear. If greater braking power than that afforded by the high speed position of the gears is needed shift into second or low, the braking effect being increased as you step down because the rear wheels drive the engine faster.

PROPOSED TARIFF ON CRUDE OIL FOUGHT BY A.A.A.

Appear Before Senate to Protest.

Believing that the proposed tariff of 35 cents a barrel on crude oil, 25 cents a barrel on fuel oil, and the proposed $1 to $3 tariff on asphalt if successful would materially and adversely affect the individual automobile owners of the country and add to their already heavy upkeep, maintenance, and taxation burdens, the American Automobile association has entered a vigorous protest against these proposals.

Speaking in behalf of the owners of more than 10,000,000 motor vehicles, the A. A. A. representatives appeared before the senate committee on finance and made it plain that the A. A. A. would fight any proposal designed to take any more revenue from the motor car.

Present Pertinent Facts.

In presenting argument against a tariff on oil, it was pointed out that more than 10,000,000 automobiles are owned in the United States, or more than 83 per cent of all the automobiles in the world, in contrast with which less than 16 per cent of the world's oil supply is located in the United States.

Further facts presented show that while the United States holds this less than 16 per cent of the world's oil sources, it is furnishing two-thirds of the world's annual requirements and at the same time consuming more than three-fourths of the world's total production, which makes it necessary for Uncle Sam to import more than 20 per cent to meet his own needs.

It was asserted that any tariff which would prohibit or restrict the flow of oil to this country would affect adversely, in some form, nearly every citizen.

May Have to Import.

Conservative estimate of the increase in the price of gasoline derived from Mexican oil, resulting from the proposed tariff, reaches from 3½ cents to 7 cents per gallon and therefore the entire gasoline supply would bear an adidtional burden cost of about $140,000,000.

If the production and sale of motor vehicles continues to increase in the future as in the last ten years it is not unlikely that we shall soon be compelled to purchase immense quantities of oil in foreign countries.

Veteran Distributor Finds Owner's Good Will Best

"The importance of owner coöperation cannot be overestimated," says George T. O'Brien, president and general manager of the O'Brien Bros. Motor company, distributors of the Stanley steam car, "for I have found, after careful check, that 62 1-3 per cent of our yearly new business comes from the efforts of those we have served and dealt with. This positive check means more to me than just an army of Stanley steam car boosters. It means perfect salesmen, plus the army of Stanley boosters, the sum total of which is more business and more friends."

ENGINEERS TAKE UP PROBLEM OF REPAIRING CARS

S. A. E. to Hold 2 Ope Meets Wednesday.

The automotive engineer has bee responsible for the creation of a vas new army of nearly 10,000,000 of moto cars and trucks in this country an now he must shoulder the respons bility of keeping them in operatin condition.

The business of servicing this tr mendous number of vehicles is co stantly developing stumbling block and the Society of Automotive Eng neers has decided the engineering prob lems of service are worthy of speci attention. It has scheduled two tec nical meetings in Chicago during thi week to cover only service matters.

To Hold Two Meets.

T. S. A. E. announces that these tw technical sessions will be held at and 2 o'clock on Wednesday in th rooms of the Western Society of Eng neers in the Monadnock building.

B. M. Ikert technical editor of Moto Age, will discuss some of the criticism of present day cars which are voice by repairmen and owners.

J. F. Page, service manager of th Packard company of Chicago, will tal of the problems of the man who face the car owner when repairs are mad

New Construction Plan.

In the afternoon C. B. Veal wi describe a novel scheme of buildin commercial car bodies so that the may be repaired at less cost and with out serious delay. This will be fo lowed by H. C. Buffington of the Weav er manufacturing company, makers o special garage tools and repair equi ment.

Those interested in the betterme of automotive service are invited t be present. Men in charge of servic stations are particularly welcome an the engineers hope that they will volu teer their constructive suggestions an criticism for the ultimate purpose o keeping the car owner happy and a vancing the motor car, truck and ai plane as means of transport.

Stream Lines Still the Rule in Auto Exhibi

In body the 1922 car still emphasiz the stream line with a more flowin effect. Drum type headlights, a ne type of radiator, sloping windshiel new top, a marked increase of nick trimmings throughout are some of th notable exterior features of this year development. The results of the m chanical advances are summarized in readier response from a cold moto greater steadiness even at high spee and a greater accessibility.

All America Proclaims this The Greatest Cadillac

Surely, no such wonderful ovation has ever before been paid any manufactured product as is, now being accorded the New Type 61 Eight-Cylinder Cadillac.

Friendly messages of approbation reach us daily, in surprising volume, from literally every part of the country.

But the thing which renders these tributes to the new Cadillac so gratifying is the spontaneity and the manifest pleasure with which they are offered.

Owners seem to take a personal delight in recording how its sheer beauty alone causes people everywhere to pause and admire when the new Cadillac rolls by.

With equal zest, they describe its superb power and its swift and easy acceleration. Their admiration mounts to a climax in telling of its road-steadiness and its incomparable riding-smoothness.

In many instances, this balanced and buoyant travel has been sustained for thousands of miles at high speeds over practically every manner of road.

We, ourselves, have not presumed to speak of the new Cadillac with anything like the enthusiasm these owners employ.

But it would be hypocritical for us to pretend that these messages, glowingly enthusiastic as they are, add anything to what our own sober judgment has told us of the merits of this new Cadillac.

It is our sincere conviction that it marks a definite advance over even the past high and unrivaled Cadillac standards.

We feel that we may go still further, and say that the New Type 61 represents, even more than the Cadillac ever did before, the greatest motor car value in the world.

This is not alone our verdict. It is the substance of the messages coming to us in overwhelming measure from owners in every part of the country.

We believe it will be the individual verdict of each succeeding new owner when the increased delights of the car are revealed to him in his first wonderful ride in the New Cadillac.

"SPEED DEMONS" FEW, THOMPSON OF STUTZ AVERS

Most Drivers Careful, He Finds.

BY WILLIAM H. THOMPSON.
[President Stutz Motor Car Company of America, Inc.]

"Is speed essential?" is a question that is hammered at representatives of cars every day. And the question has been the basis for some interesting and comprehensive study on the part of the Stutz organization.

We find that the average motorist does not drive his car so very rapidly, but he does want to know that when a necessity demands that his car will leap into the breach and perform to his satisfaction.

There are more times, we find, that an accident can be averted in the daily routine of driving by speeding your car out of danger than by throwing on the brakes and stopping with a jerk and a bump, most likely in the very path of the approaching object. Naturally a driver has a feeling of security when he knows that if he urges his car at a crucial moment, it will readily respond.

"Few Really Speed."

But as to just plain ont and out speedy driving, there are few who travel at a very rapid gait. There is a certain type of man, the expert driver, who hurtles his car over the road at a rather brisk pace.

For instance, many of the race drivers and other connected with speed as a profession drive rapidly. But there is little element of danger in this mode of travel for these persons, for their training has made them equal to any emergency and if a tire blows out or some unforeseen difficulty arises they know the course of action to pursue.

You often hear drivers criticized for driving from "here to there" in a certain given fast time, the natural supposition being that they 'beat it" all the way. But frequently this is not the case. The knowing driver who is touring on the road usually wants to make the best possible time between points—but it is not necessary for him to drive at a dangerous rate of speed to accomplish his aim.

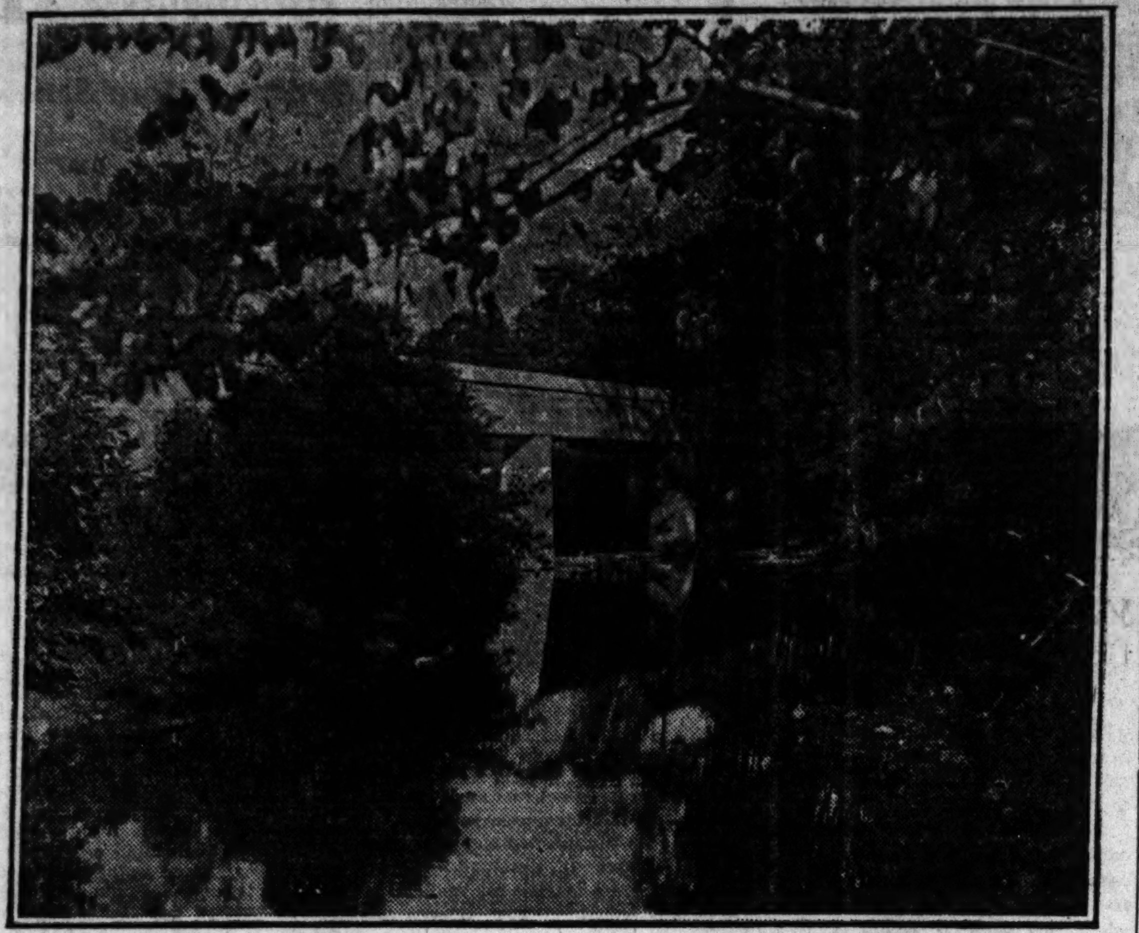
Definite Speed Speedy.

It is only necessary to choose a definite safe speed and keep his car everlastingly at that pace. And to make fast time it is unnecessary for him to take any undue risk. One could drive his family at that speed.

Of course, it is necessary to have a car that is designed to travel over all sorts of roads at this given speed, for if one has to slow down for the ordinary bumpy stretches evident on practically every touring road it becomes essential to travel faster over the better parts of the road, and this may become dangerous.

So, in the ultimate, it would appear that the dyed in the wool motorist does want speed in his car, so that he may use in when he needs it, but even more than high speed he wants a car that will travel at a fair clip, for long distance, standing up under the abuse of all sorts of roads, and just keep everlastingly at it without giving up for an instant.

COOK COUNTY'S BIT O' NATURE



The primeval nature of Cook county's forest preserves is a continual surprise to even the constant visitor. Here's a view across a bend in the Des Plaines river showing one of the new concrete bridges that feature the motor roads through the preserve.

This Gent Rises to Say His Car Rambled 300,000 Miles

Records of long lived motor cars are constantly coming up. Recently W. H. Barnes of Des Moines, Ia., wrote the Cadillac factory at Detroit to report that he was still driving a Cadillac turned out in 1909, which had covered more than 300,000 miles, and was still giving excellent service.

"OLD TIMERS" TO BANQUET HERE TUESDAY NIGHT

With accommodations for only 500, reservations for the Old Timers' club banquet, which will be the most important social event of Automobile show week, are being rapidly registered by Lloyd Maxwell, chairman of the entertainment committee. The banquet will be held at the Congress hotel on Tuesday evening.

Directors of the club will meet Monday to select candidates for 1922, to be voted on at the banquet.

"Benevolence is not the only cardinal virtue of the Old Timers' club," said President Albert Champion yesterday. "It represents a spirit of good fellowship. We now have more than 2,000 members, and expect to enroll more than 5,000 before the end of the year."

TOUGH STATE FOR THIEVES.

In Nebraska an automobile theft department of the enforcement bureau has index records and files of all missing cars, and is open for inspection to every person in the United States who loses a motor car by theft. The bureau is state managed, and all recoveries are made without cost to any one.

OFFICIAL HOLDS SERVICE COMES BEFORE LOOKS

Points Out Ideal Blend to Please Patrons.

BY ARTHUR E. BARKER.
[Vice President Maxwell Motor Sales Corp.]

One of the most perplexing problems confronting automobile manufacturers is that of a suitable combination of beauty in appearance with mechanical goodness. As surely as the automobile maker leans to the extreme suspicion is almost certainly to be directed against that quality which has apparently been submerged by the outstanding characteristics of the other.

An unusually beautiful car—especially if it is one of medium price—will invariably excite doubt concerning its actual performance merit. Likewise, the best performing car in the world, in the so-called medium priced class, is doomed to a comparatively limited ownership unless stress is placed on its looks as well as on its action.

Must Have Good Looks.

In other words, it must have good looks—a pleasing appearance—if it is to make the friends that all good cars deserve. And the more satisfying it is to the eye the more readily will the public respond to the appeal of its makers, once its mechanical requisites are unquestioned.

For that reason astute manufacturers will never think of specializing on appearance until they have firmly established the mechanical merit of their cars. If he is wise he will sell performance—not beauty alone.

Some Strong Sales Points.

Among the things which are even more important than appearance and which, combined with attractive appearance, furnish an irresistible sales appeal are ample power for all driving conditions, a motor that is as effective in cold weather as in normal weather, a car that remains in good running condition with nothing more than reasonable attention from its owner, and, lastly and most important of all, a car that is exceedingly economical in upkeep.

In developing our new series of cars, with their radical changes in lines and furnishings, we never for a minute forget the mechanical end of the business. Then, as soon as the mechanical affairs had been taken care of to the satisfaction of our patrons and ourselves, we were in a position to go to an equal extreme in the direction of appearance.

10,500,000 AUTOS AND TRUCKS REGISTERED IN 1921, CENSUS SHOWS

Cleveland, O., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—One person out of every ten in the United States now owns a motor vehicle—a grand total of approximately 10,500,000 passenger cars and trucks. This total represents the official registration of the various states on Dec. 31, 1921, and is an increase of 1,204,748 over 1920, according to information sent in to the Chandler Motor Car company.

This gain during the last year is considered remarkable by officials of the automotive industry and surpassed by a wide margin their most optimistic predictions at the start of last year.

In some states the gain was as much as 35 per cent and ten states reported an increase of more than 20 per cent. The leaders in this group were southern states—West Virginia, Florida, and New Mexico. Ohio with a gain of 25 per cent led the industrial states.

Among the twelve leaders several states crawled up a notch or so. New York is first, Ohio second, Pennsylvania maintained third place, while California replaced Illinois in fourth place—the two states exchanging places. Michigan stepped up the ladder from eighth to sixth place, outdistancing Iowa and Texas. Iowa slipped two pegs—into eighth place—while Texas remains in seventh position.

"GOLDEN RULE" AUTOISTS' GUIDE ON RURAL ROADS

Must Be Best Driver to Escape Accidents.

Lack of courtesy and a failure to recognize the reasonable rights of users of the highways have frequently been cited as faults of many motorists.

The Golden Rule should be observed while driving on the public roads as much as anywhere else.

It is not alone in the attitude of the drivers toward the pedestrian that there is remissness, but in their behavior toward other drivers that there is need for improvement.

Future of Motor at Stake.

A well known authority in automobile circles has indicated that it is not too much to say that the future of the motoring world depends upon the behavior of the motorist toward the public.

The subject of training the driver is consequently worth attention, and that the automobile community as a whole realizes that is evident by the establishment of various schools where the mechanical side of the profession is taught to the future driver.

A motor car needs a driver who is a skilled mechanic, but it also needs a driver who is skillful in manipulating a car on the road. What is required in a driver besides a general knowledge of his machine is a knowledge of the rules, customs and courtesies of the road and the habits of traffic, also the possession of the qualities of alertness, foresight and a consideration for others.

Must Be Best Driver.

The motor car driver needs to be the best driver on the highway, if he is to drive without offense to the public and danger to others and himself, for he has to conduct a vehicle which is more valuable than any other and more speedy.

He must be on the lookout for pedestrians, stupid, drunk or deaf; for wagons on the wrong side of the dangerous corners, and be prepared to find vehicles in charge of sleepy drivers who will often do the wrong act on being aroused. That he keep in mind and practice the Golden Rule is no small part of his job. In this is involved most of his qualifications as a driver.

COURTESY URGED AS SAFETY NEED ON OPEN ROAD

Courtesy on the road among motorists is akin to safety, and a new "courtesy series of suggestions is now being issued for the thousands of motorists in this section of the country.

Lack of courtesy, it is pointed out, often leads to recklessness, which in turn leads to accidents. Therefore, motorists are asked to read the following courtesy rules and see if they wish them:

1. When a man approaching you from behind sounds his horn as a signal that he wishes to pass, don't "step on it." Draw over to the right and let him go by.
2. Do not use more than your half of the road, thus crowding others into the ditch.
3. It is not courteous to "steal" a parking space from a man who is just getting ready to back into it.
4. Do not imagine that every motorist on the road who tries to pass you is starting a race. He may be on important business.
5. When you pass a man from behind going in the same direction, do not cut in directly in front of him. This is discourteous.
6. Do not shove another man's car along the curb to make room for yours, thus jamming his car against a fireplug or the car ahead.
7. It is discourteous to halt behind a traffic jam and honk your horn.
8. The correct giving of hand signals is courteous as well as safe.

Refuse Insurance on Spares; Seek Safety Locks

Now that all automobile insurance companies in Chicago and many midwestern states refuse to cover spare tires in their policies, motorists daily thronging the auto show are showing keen interest in those exhibits which display devices to protect spare tires from thefts. One such exhibit that is attracting much attention features the new spare tire and spare wheel locks made by the Oakes company.

GEORGE H. BIRD DENIES MOTOR INDUSTRY IS IN 'UNLIQUIDATED' STATE

BY GEORGE H. BIRD.
[Bird-Sykes company, Chicago.]

It is difficult even for a man on the inside of the industry to keep straight the relative values of motor cars today and seven years ago. One well known car, which has remained practically unchanged, is today selling at 2 per cent less than the pre-war price. Another famous car, very little changed, is today selling at 50 per cent more than its pre-war price. These are rare examples because they represent practically unchanged cars.

In the case of the Paige, comparisons are not so easy to make because of increases in size, wheel base, motor power, and many expensive refinements. But for example, the pre-war Paige Little Six sold at $1,330, and the present Paige 6-44 sells at $1,465. In the case of the Big Six, there is no pre-war Paige with which we can compare it. But it should satisfy the particular buyer to know that the present price of $2,195 on the Paige 6-66 is practically a third less than its price of a year and a half ago.

People who like to label the automobile industry as "unliquidated" and "extravagant" should compare such evidence as this.

30,046 MOTOR CARS STOLEN IN 28 U. S. CITIES

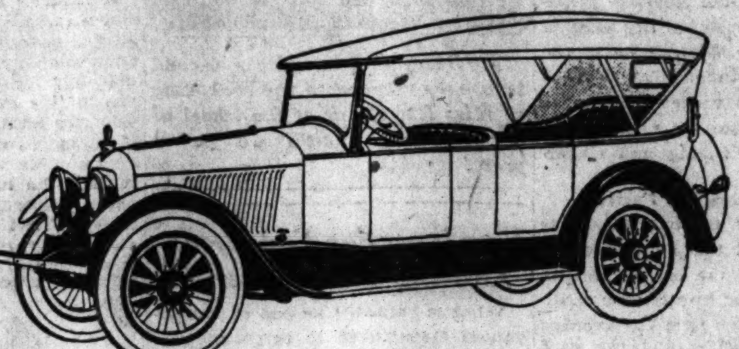
Thirty thousand and forty-six automobiles were stolen in 1920 in twenty-eight "index" cities of the country and 21,273 of them recovered, according to the annual compilation of the National Automobile Dealers' association. The number stolen was 3,012 less than the number stolen in 1919, but was 2,601 more than the number stolen in 1918. In 1918 cars unrecovered were 21 per cent of the number stolen, in 1919 they were 26 per cent, and in 1920 29 per cent.

Chicago took the lead from New York with the number stolen, although a higher percentage of cars remained unrecovered in New York. New York had 5,179 stolen; Chicago 5,527. New York recovered only 2,717 of her stolen cars, while Chicago recovered 4,340. Dayton, O., had the unusual record of having recovered more cars than she had stolen.

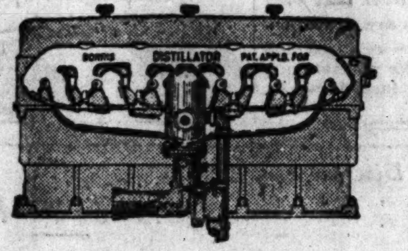
The Pacific coast cities kept up their yearly good work of recovery. There were 4,877 cars stolen in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Oakland, Portland, and Seattle and 4,175 recovered. The unrecovered cars were 16.4 per cent of the total stolen, or approximately 50 per cent of the average for the country.

Apperson Models This Year Take Name from Record

Apperson Brothers continue their policy of not designating their product by yearly models. The models this year, however, will be known as Apperson-Beverly models, taking the name from a continuous running record made at Beverly Hills, Cal. No radical changes, mechanically, have been made, but many new refinements and conveniences have been added.



An Engineering Triumph



DORRIS DISTILLATOR PAT. APPLD. FOR

A recent addition to The Dorris 6-80—The Dorris Distillator, which traps unvaporized gasoline and returns it to a central reservoir where it is distilled by heat.

The Dorris has led in automobile engineering since 1905

To appreciate the exceptional engineering skill that designed The Dorris, one has only to sit at the wheel for a few miles on any kind of road.

In starting, there is little of the customary choker manipulation, even in cold weather. And once under way, the consciousness of unlimited power and speed under absolute control, of dependability, of certainty that the rear wheels are always holding the road, all create a sensation of satisfaction impossible to describe.

The very "feel" of The Dorris suggests perfection.

The Dorris

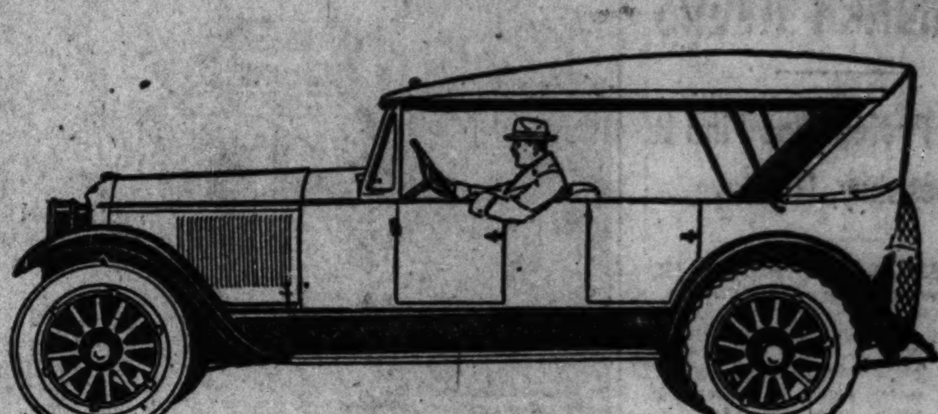
THE MOST BEAUTIFUL CAR IN AMERICA



Reduced Prices on All Paige 6-66 Models

Every car in this famous line has been sweepingly reduced. The reductions range from $680 to $800. This is the news that thousands of people have been hoping for—and waiting for. It means the amazing opportunity to buy a seven passenger 6-66 for as little as $2195. It is not merely a chance to save money. It is a chance to own the Master of the Highway, the one car that every motorist respects and desires above all others.

And remember one other point, please: The 6-66 of 1922 is the fully perfected product of the Paige Engineering and Designing staffs. It carries a wealth of refinements that were undreamed of during the past year. It is an infinitely finer car—an infinitely handsomer car—all this and a very greatly reduced list price.

100,000 DOCTORS USE AUTOMOBILE, GARDNER AVERS

Other Professions Find It Necessary, He Says.

BY RUSSELL E. GARDNER JR.

[Vice President Gardner Motor Car Co.]

Professional men and women are experiencing more and more the benefits of the automobile. Not only does it enable them to enlarge their field of endeavor but it places them in a position to serve more completely.

Men and women who practice medicine, law, dentistry, and other professions are indispensable to any community. They assume a leading part in the welfare of every city, town and hamlet.

It is but natural, therefore, that any means of permitting freer development of the professional fields should become universally favored. Such is the position of the automobile today.

Must Race Against Time.

The physician is more often required to race against time than any other public servant. A call in the night very often means a fight against death or the threat of permanent illness.

More than 100,000 physicians in the United States depend upon automobiles to extend their service in their communities. And others appreciate this increased service. People on distant farms who formerly had to depend on makeshift remedies until the doctor came now know they are in almost as convenient reach of the doctor as their city neighbors. Time and distance have been lessened as factors in every illness.

Salesman's Right Bower.

Salesmanship today is one of the most prominent professions. Accordingly, it is one in which the automobile is used most extensively. For the automobile increases the field of the salesman's activity to such a degree that it has become an essential part of his selling equipment. It extends his territory, it saves him time, it stores up his energy for the actual work he has to do.

The salesman often travels alone. The roadster type provides the right capacity for the comfortable and economical transportation of one or two passengers and baggage. The roadster is also convenient to handle in traffic.

Efficient and dependable, the modern car merits the popularity it has attained among people of discrimination.

Bond Company to Use Armored Truck Transport

An armored car is to be used by the National Surety company to carry bonds, according to a recent New York report. The car will be protected throughout with one-quarter inch steel specially treated to make it impenetrable by automatic pistol bullets. Its crew will consist of two guards and a chauffeur. The vehicle is expected to handle $500,000,000 worth of securities annually.

NO ADVERTISING CARS.

Automobiles, decorated for the purpose of advertising, are forbidden on the streets of Cleveland, O.

WILDERNESS TRAVEL

The extent of tourist travel these days is illustrated by this snapshot of the Pines bridge over the Croton river showing five cars traveling over the span, which is in the heart of the wilderness.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

He's Out to Find the Truth About Motordom.

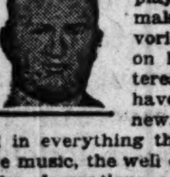
The Question.

What do you generally give the most attention to when attending the auto show?

Where Asked.

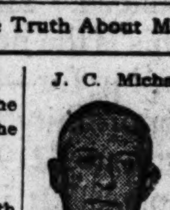
At the Old Town club, 321 Plymouth court.

The Answers.



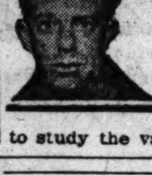
John L. Thompson, 475 West 27th street—I am interested especially in the display of the different makes of cars. My favorite cars are always on hand, and I am interested in what they have to show that's new. But I am interested in everything that may be there—the music, the well dressed women, the color, decorations, and everything. Besides, one comes in contact with the leading business men of the city.

Archie E. Moran, 11312 Stephenson avenue, chauffeur—What really interests me most is the new designs of the cars and to see the changes in the styles of the cars as the years go by. I have been driving cars for twelve years, so naturally that phase of it is most interesting to me. The new patents and improvements are, of course, also interesting, and the accessory exhibits show the newest developments in driving comfort.



J. C. Michael, 3600 Princeton avenue, coal dealer—The annual auto show is interesting and instructive in the same sense that any other exhibit of things that people are highly interested in would be. A car becomes a very personal thing, and the wider our experiences with them the more varied is our interest in the various exhibits. We never know when something entirely new and worth buying is going to appear on the market.

G. H. Frimersdorf, 5039 South Michigan avenue, coal business—Like most of the visitors, perhaps, I am most interested in the cars themselves. The play is the thing, and the cars are the main show, naturally. But the side shows, so to speak, should not be overlooked. The new lights, the safety devices, devices for convenience and economy—all are worth our time and attention.



Harry R. Nickerson, Antioch, Ill., chauffeur—What interests me most is the changes in the models, the new accessories—in general, everything. The modern motor is an interesting piece of mechanism, and it is a real privilege to be able to study the various designs in detail.

NEARLY A MOTOR CAR.

In England an attractive automobile is sold, built on racing lines with long and impressive hood, which houses merely the passenger's feet, the motive power coming from a motorcycle engine at the rear.

A WORD TO THE WISE.

"Court convenes at 9:30," is a warning sign to motorists of the danger of fast driving, and is conspicuously posted on several prominent highways leading into Quincy, Mass.

NAMES POINTS OF EXCELLENCE BUYERS DEMAND

Booster Urges Motor Car Must Be Trustworthy.

"When everything else has been said," declared D. A. Burke, general sales manager of the Peerless Motor Car company, "people admire most in an automobile the ability to do all the things that a good motor car is called upon to do, to do them well, and to continue to do them for a long time, without constant tuning and tinkering.

Trustworthiness Big Factor.

"The virtue of trustworthiness is all embracing. It takes into account the excellences of the engine and its power, as evidenced by the car's readiness to travel faster than the average owner cares to drive, and the ease with which it passes other cars on long, steep hills.

"The flexibility of the power plant, which makes driving a genuine pleasure at all times, regardless of the rate of speed and the emergencies that may arise, is also an important factor making for turstworthiness.

Noiselessness Also Expected.

"This desirable quality also includes that degree of quietness which makes a secret of the fact that the car is borne along by mechanical means.

"It comprises, in addition, all the other elements that create a feeling of satisfaction in the owner."

JUST A SECOND!

We'll say it'll be just a second before we respond to the beckoning of Miss Rae Burns at the wheel of her Haynes. Wait'll we go to press!

New Invention Ends Long Running with Choker Out

What is regarded as one of the advanced steps taken in perfecting the system employed in properly vaporizing the gasoline before it enters the carburetor and to secure its proper distribution, is that which has been evolved by A. L. Nelson, chief engineer of the Premier Motor corporation. So quickly and intensely are the hot exhaust gases applied to the fuel mixture in the intake manifold that only three or four explosions are necessary before the choker can be released and the motor operated on its normal mixture, even in the very coldest weather, it is claimed.

POLICE AIDED BY AUTO MAKERS IN 'WAR ON THIEVES

Stolen car bulletins issued regularly with car number, motor number and owners' names, is one of the means the manufacturer is taking to cooperate with police bureaus throughout the country and help owners recover cars which have been stolen.

Dodge Bros. maintain a department to deal with motor car thefts reported by owners and insurance companies. Every two weeks the complete list reported is sent to dealers and service stations in all parts of the country. Copies of the bulletin are also mailed to a national list of police bureaus.

A favorite scheme of the shrewd stolen car merchant is to pass himself off as the representative of an insurance company, in this way accounting plausibly for the low price he is asking for his cars. The farmer is considered a good stolen car prospect, and if the stolen car broker finds a fertile field for his wares in one farm community, he may go back again and again, disposing of his cars in that vicinity. That is why whole fleets of stolen cars are sometimes driven back to the cities by detectives.

CASEY Automatic Windshield Wiper

Biggest Value on Market at $6
Operates from Motor
Both Hands Free for Driving

It Will More Than Pay for Itself the Next Bad Day You Drive

You said after that bad night, a few days ago, when the road was blurred ten seconds after you used your hand windshield wiper, "If I get home safely this time, I'll get an automatic wiper for next time"—

Your last excuse to take chances is now gone. For only $6 you get the wonderful Casey Automatic Windshield Wiper.

It Wipes, You DRIVE

At the touch of a button it starts keeping a big, generous arc free of snow, sleet, rain, mist. Your whole attention can be given to driving.

Power from Motor is supplied from vacuum tank or intake manifold, through a rubber tube connecting with a small vacuum motor which operates the wiper. Nothing to wear out but the easily replaceable strip of rubber on the wiping arm.

Easy Installation

Easily and quickly installed by drilling three holes through the windshield frame and attaching tubing to intake manifold or vacuum tank. Template for drilling and complete fittings furnished. Packed in individual boxes, 10 boxes to a carton. Weighs little more than the ordinary hand cleaner.

Arrange at the Auto Show to get it on your car.

KANE COUNTY TO SPEND $300,000 ON ITS HIGHWAYS

Northern Illinois Has Big Building Program.

Elgin, Ill., Jan. 28.—[Special.]—Four highways that pass through Kane county are to be improved this year at a cost of approximately $1,000,000, according to plans prepared by the state highway department and announced by George N. Lamb, district engineer. Kane county's road building program calls for an expenditure of $300,000 and Will, Du Page, and Lake counties also have made plans for the expenditure of large sums for road work this season.

If the weather is at all favorable for road building, it is predicted that more road work will be done in northern Illinois the coming summer than ever before in a season. Except for the stretch east of Bloomingdale, contracts have been let for the entire Chicago-Rockford road. The Aurora-Chicago road also will be completed this year, and a stretch of highway between Bloomingdale and Ontarioville will be improved, the contract having been let.

On St. Charles Link.

A survey now is being made for the improvement of a strip of the Elgin-Aurora road between St. Charles and Geneva. About three-quarters of a mile of that road will be improved this year by the state. As soon as the weather permits work will be resumed on the Elgin-Marengo road.

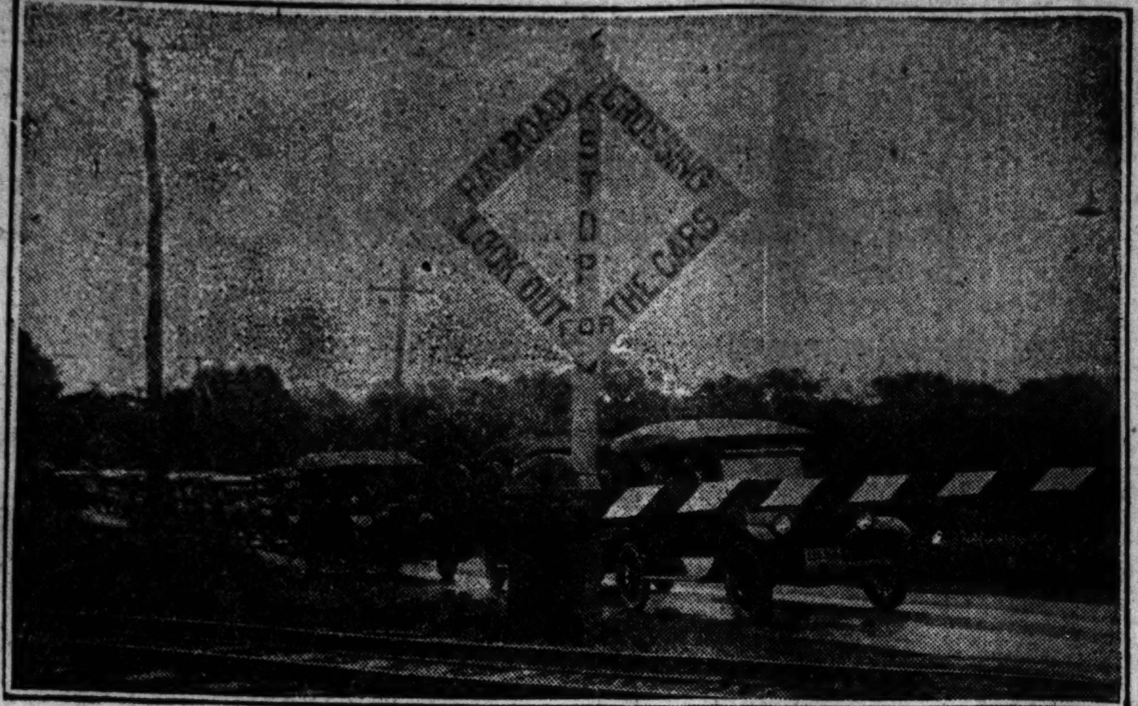
Improvement of the highway connecting Freeport and Dixon and passing through the towns of Baileyville, Forreston, Haldane, and Polo, has been urged by the people of the three counties through which it passes, Stephenson, Ogle, and Lee, and it is possible this work will also be done in 1922.

Ask for Ten Feet.

In this instance the state has not been asked to construct a road of regulation width, but only a strip of concrete ten feet in width, the plan being to improve the adjoining ten foot strip later on when financial and other conditions warrant it.

The Federal Paving company of Chicago is shipping machinery to convenient points in Stephenson and Jo Daviess counties in order to be able to begin work at the earliest possible moment on the improvement of portions of road No. 5 connecting Chicago and Dubuque.

A NATIONAL PROBLEM



Will the increased automobile traffic throughout the country necessitate double decked roads under and across railroad crossings? The picture only shows half the long lines of machines waiting for the train to pass—the other line was back of the photographer. The consequent clogging of the road sometimes has serious results.

MOTOR TRIP OF 3,378 MILES COSTS FIVE PEOPLE $160

An unusual trip was made by motor car by William E. Peck and family of four, who have traveled 3,378 miles at a total cost of $158.12. The trip, according to C. E. Eldridge, Chicago Reo dealer, was made from Utica, N. Y., to Sioux Falls, S. D., and the financial phase of the enterprise contains facts and figures which are of interest to every automobile owner. There were five in the party, the trip was made in a Reo car, and a total of twenty-nine days consumed by the journey.

The expense included the upkeep of the car and every item while traveling. The party slept inside only when they were guests of relatives at Sioux Falls. All the other nights were passed in a tent.

In calculating the expense a charge was made for all the provisions with which they started from home, as well as what they bought on the way. They broke camp and began traveling about 8 a. m., stopping a while for lunch, and usually getting into camp for the night at about 5 p. m. The purchases were made at retail stores, and naturally there are no cut rates for tourists. The cost of the trip and return by rail was found to be $175 fare and sleeper for each person. This figure, however, did not include the meals which would be necessary on the train.

Modern Motor Mottoes

An ounce of attention is worth a pound of overhaul.

An oiling a day keeps the repair man away.

Look before you back.

Spare the oil and spoil the car.

A rolling car gathers no crowd.

A tool in the kit is worth thousands in the garage.

Service is as service does.

Fools rush in where experts fear to ride.

A little knowledge of electrical systems is a dangerous thing.

An ounce of instruction may save a pound of repair.

A skid to the wise is sufficient.

HERE'S STORY OF ONE DELIGHTFUL MOTOR TRIP (MEX)

Mexico City, Jan. 28.—[Special.]—American and Mexican auto drivers, four in number, have just made the trip of 1,000 miles from Chihuahua to Mexico City. These roads are notoriously bad, but all the machines came through without mishap except the total destruction of five tires and fifteen inner tubes. The chief difficulty along the way was the constant punctures owing to cacti and other similar natural obstructions.

A short time ago a heavy auto truck made the trip from Vera Cruz to Mexico City over indescribably bad mountain roads where frequently carts and wagons refuse to go. Yet it, too, arrived in the capital without serious mishap.

All these feats are impressing upon the department of communications and public works the necessity of great trunk lines of roads connecting all the state capitals with one another and with the national capital, and a plan is now on foot for the construction of such roads by the federal and state governments working in conjunction.

CHOICE OF AUTO NAMES REFLECTS INDUSTRY'S RISE

BY LYNN McNAUGHTON.
[General Sales Manager Cadillac Motor Co.]

How names are chosen for automobiles forms one of the interesting chapters of the rise and growth of the industry. Usually the name is that of the founder and builder; a minority are named after some great figure in history, persons of remarkable moral quality as well as noted achievement.

The Cadillac car is named after Sieur de la Mothe Cadillac, who founded Detroit in 1701. The reason for the choice of this name are twofold: because the company was the pioneer automobile company in Detroit—established in 1899; and because the seal of the Cadillac family and the life of Cadillac embodies principles which were taken to guide the builders of the car.

Had Romantic Life.

Cadillac's life in America was one of exploration and romantic adventure. As the first commandant of the French territory in Michigan, he built Fort Pontchartrain and established a small trading village on the present site of Detroit. As the governor of the great French territory of the Mississippi he came to the notice of the French court and was rewarded.

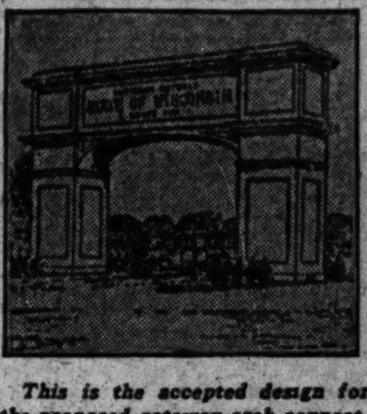
The armorial bearings of the Cadillac family represents high ideal of truth and public service. The birds shown in black against a gold background denote wisdom, riches, and cleverness of mind.

Meriettes and Fess.

The birds (meriettes) without legs designate that the bearers should look to the wings of virtue and merit to succeed. The "fess" or bands on the seal indicate that the bearers "must always be in readiness to undergo the business of the public weal."

The company placed the Cadillac seal on their cars because it represents the ideals of the makers of the car.

ON MERIDIAN



This is the accepted design for the proposed gateway arch connecting Illinois and Wisconsin on the Meridian trail. It will be erected just north of Rockford.

53% OF SALES IN 1921 CREDITED TO 1920 BALANCE

Figures for 1921 indicate that the automobile industry as a whole did about 53 per cent of the business heretofore credited to 1920.

While this comparatively low return is a source of comfort to some of those concerns which otherwise would have considered 1921 a sad year, it renders conspicuous the records of some.

Dodge Brothers' output for 1921 amounted to 90 per cent of the previous year, since the firm made and sold 107,000 cars during the twelve months.

Five Passenger

Wouldn't You Like to Own It?

The Price Makes it Easy

The Coach has aroused more interest than any Essex type ever shown. It is drawing bigger crowds. It is selling faster. Everyone is talking about it.

The reason is easily understood.

Costing but little more than the open models, it gives the luxury, comforts and distinction of the fine enclosed car. Hitherto, such quality, reliability and distinction in closed cars has cost more than most buyers wanted to pay.

For Family and Business Use

The Coach is amply large for family use in city or country. Light and nimble, it also meets the requirements of business and professional men with economy and satisfaction.

It is a delight to drive. It is easy to steer. Controls operate with unusual ease. It rides with the lulling comfort of a big car. It is easily turned and parked in narrow and crowded spaces.

Operating cost is low. The New Improved Essex chassis requires hardly any attention. The body is built to give long service.

Economy That Endures

To the savings in fuel, oil, tires and upkeep all Essex owners know, the Coach now adds the economy of a fine distinguished closed car, at a price you will like. Best of all it continues these qualities, free from annoyance and maintenance cost. In every way the coach wins the pride of ownership.

Go see the Coach. You are sure to want it. Deliveries are behind now, and you will not want to wait too long for yours.

ESSEX MOTOR CARS

RESTFUL RIDING ONLY CRITERION, FARLEY BELIEVES

22 Years' Development to That End.

BY J. I. FARLEY.

[Vice President Auburn Automobile Co.]

It has been interesting to view, from the inside, the development of the automobile during the twenty-two years we have been making cars.

Back in the days of the "one lunger," the owner usually felt pretty proud of his car if it completed a journey of a few miles without mishap.

In those days, the thing which the automobile lacked and needed most was mechanical perfection. This came rapidly. The two cylinder car, the "four," the "six"—even the "eight" and "twelve"—have been the accomplishment of less than a score of years.

Motors Extensively Developed.

Ten years ago, even fifteen years ago, motors had been developed to such an extent that there was no longer any uncertainty about their ability to run.

Perhaps next to the motor itself, the greatest developments that have taken place in motorcar construction are electric lights and the electrical self-starter. What other really big developments have there been? Granting all this and facing conditions of today, it is well to ask ourselves what development is most needed right now?

The motorist is seeking riding comfort. He wants beauty. He wants dependability. He wants ease of control and utmost safety. He wants mental as well as physical comfort. He wants to forget the mechanical details of his car in the satisfaction that his car performs well—that it looks good—that it rides smoothly over the highways—and that it gives comfort and enjoyment to himself and his passengers.

Restful Riding Right.

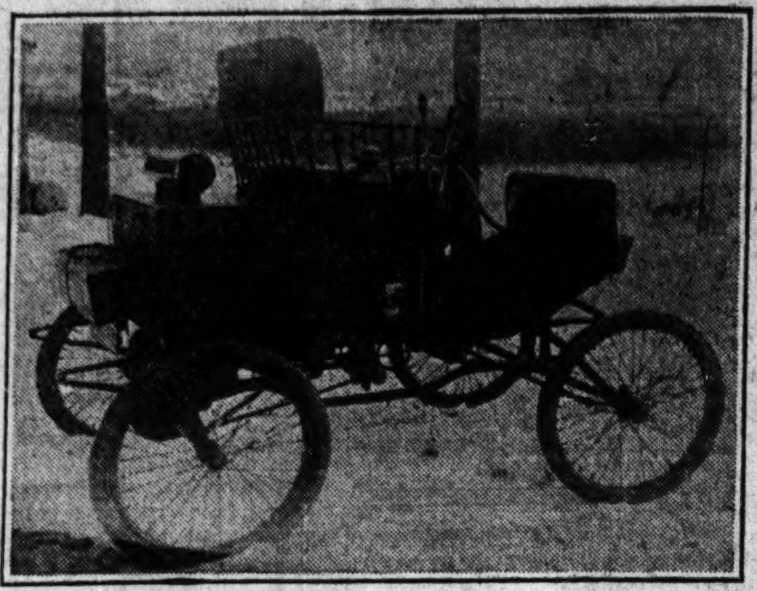
Al of these things are summed up in two words—restful riding. And how can restful riding be attained for the motorist?

True restful riding must be based on structural fundamentals — velvet spring action, perfect car balance, vibrationless motor, perfect transmission, reliable brakes, and careful design of all parts. Seat cushions must be soft and leg room abundant.

Air Cooled Car Cylinder Milled Out of Solid Block

The Fox engine, of which Ansley H. Fox is president, presents exclusive features in its construction. One of these is the design and construction of the air cooled cylinders. In making the cylinder castings the wall is cast one and one-quarter inches thick, and the cooling flanges, instead of being of steel or other metal set into the wall, are milled out of the solid cast iron of the cylinder itself.

STILL GOING STRONG



This is the year's winner in the Old Car contest of the Auto Show. It's a steam driven Locomobile built in 1899 or 1900 and is still going under its own power, asserts John Barr of Dayton, O., who owns it and will exhibit it at the show.

THE AUTOMOBILE

Product of brain and brawn, I fill man's primary need for transportation.

I aid the progress of civilization, by bringing men closer together.

I am the friend and servant of mankind.

I am the companion of recreation and the helpmeet of work.

I render employment to millions. I speed production and the delivery of the world's goods.

I increase the value of property.

* * *

I place the country within reach of the city dweller, and bring the city to the doors of country folk.

To the farmer I have been a godsend. I save him time and labor. Through me he has improved his way of living I have brought the town close to him.

The manufacturer depends on me to carry merchandise from source to factory and on to the markets.

I proclaim the wares of the merchant. I swell his profits. I serve the customer.

I am the feet of the salesman, bearing him to greater service, to more and greater riches.

I bring the physician in time to save the stricken. I keep his mind keen and his hand steady. I restore roses to the cheeks of pallor.

I serve the interests of all professions. I am the inspiration of art and of letters.

Man is indebted to me for the broadening influence of travel. I provide comfort and protection on his way.

To youth I mean the wholesomeness of the great outdoors, the poetry of motion, and the romance of changing scene. To age I bring rejuvenation, through diversions other than the hearthstone.

I attend man at his birth. Throughout the span of life I am the cradle, the saddle, and the rocking chair. I am the bearer to the final place of rest.

I am the new common carrier. I am the automobile.

Truck Drivers Demand Closed Cabs for Wet Days

Rain trickling down a driver's neck, snowdrops splattering his cheeks, or a raw biting wind numbing his fingers and squinting his eyes have a great deal to do with the efficiency of his work and the dollar performance of the truck he is intrusted with. It has been found by a survey of the truck owners of the country by the Republic Truck Sales corporation that the truck drivers of today are several laps ahead of the passenger car owners in their indorsement of the closed car vehicle.

H. W. Anderson, Veteran of Industry, at Show

Harry W. Anderson, general sales manager of the Duesenberg Automobile and Motors company, Inc., of Indianapolis, arrived in Chicago today to take personal charge of the Duesenberg exhibit in the automobile salon of the Drake hotel. Mr. Anderson, a veteran of the industry and wearing an "old timers'" button, with five stars on it, is one of the better known sales executives of the industry.

MOTORS OF LONG AGO VIE IN RACE FOR SHOW HONOR

Choose 21 Year Old for Exhibition.

More than 200 owners of old time automobiles which still can make headway on their own power sought for the honor of having their machine exhibited at the Auto show. For six weeks the show management looked for the oldest car in the country made by one of the exhibitors. They barred cars owned by makers.

Honor to 1899 Wonder.

The honor went to John Barr of 3502 East 5th street, Dayton, O., whose Locomobile steam car, built in 1899 or 1900, filled the bill. He will drive this car in the procession to the Coliseum, where it will be exhibited during show week.

The management was offered a steam car built in 1857, which still can run ten miles an hour. Unfortunately it was not built by one of the manufacturers exhibiting. It is a duplicate of three built in 1853, which were destroyed in the Crystal Palace fire in New York in 1855.

Older Car Denied.

The owner of a Haynes car, said to have been constructed in 1897, refused to allow it to be shown. Among the big list submitted were many Oldsmobiles of 1901 and 1902, several Cadillacs of 1902 and 1903, a Duryea of 1897, which, however, was not built by an exhibiting manufacturer; a Franklin, some Ramblers, a Packard, a Pierce Arrow of 1902, a Brush, an Auto Motor car, and an experimental car made by Mr. Kelsey, now of the Kelsey Motor Car company, in 1899 or 1900.

How Thick is the Crank Case?

You know car prices but do you know real car values? In this year of slashing price cuts how can the average buyer tell how much scrimping and shaving on materials and quality in the hidden parts has been done—how much fine machining—good materials and strength thruout the car has been sacrificed to bring costs and prices down?

The manufacturer whose business is founded on ideals of quality will maintain quality in spite of prices.

But the urge towards cutting costs below the danger point in order to show big profits at the present low price levels will be too strong for some manufacturers to resist.

Choose the car whose actual value you can measure accurately.

Choose the car with specialized standard units of known value and you can be sure that the quality is right, regardless of the price you pay.

Buy a Columbia Six and you know it is the same good, dependable, long-lived Columbia it has always been—the same Continental Motor, the same Timken Axles, the same Borg and Beck Clutch.

You know every part of the Columbia Six is good, so you have an accurate measure of Columbia value.

The Columbia Six is the lowest priced six cylinder car on the market today, composed of the following units:

Continental Motor, Timken Axles, Atwater-Kent Ignition, Presto-O-Lite Battery, Stromberg Carburetor, Auto-Lite Starter Motor and Generator, Harrison Radiator with AUTOMATICALLY CONTROLLED RADIATOR SHUTTERS, Borg and Beck Clutch, Durston Transmission, Spicer Universal Joints, Gemmer Steering Gear, Detroit Steel Springs, Genuine Leather Upholstery, Cord Tires.

AUTO A BIG HELP TO ENGLISH COPS' CRIME SCIENCE

Scotland Yard Men Rely on Motor.

The automobile and the motorcycle have revolutionized the business of detecting crime in England.

The new science of the detective leaves the pure reason methods of Poe's Dupin and the scientific observation and inductive reasoning of Sherlock Holmes far behind.

The proponents of what Scotland Yard men describe as "more than a science" will leave Mr. Holmes—Watson at wheel—at the starting post hidden in a haze of dust and gasoline smoke.

Question of Speed.

The motor car has made the art of the detective, above everything else, a question of speed.

London, as nearly alarmed as Englishmen ever get at the recent unemployed demonstration, has watched "Bobbies" race by on motorcycles and in sidecars and has read of veritable squadrons of them scattering to the four corners of the city in automobiles for roundups. And London believes that Scotland Yard, on rubber tires, petrol driven, is efficient and that its firesides are safe.

"Many important innovations have been introduced into the science of detecting crime," says Chief Inspector Sweeney of Scotland Yard, "but to my mind the introduction of the motor car, although it was the simplest and perhaps the most obvious, was by far the most important.

Imagination Is Used.

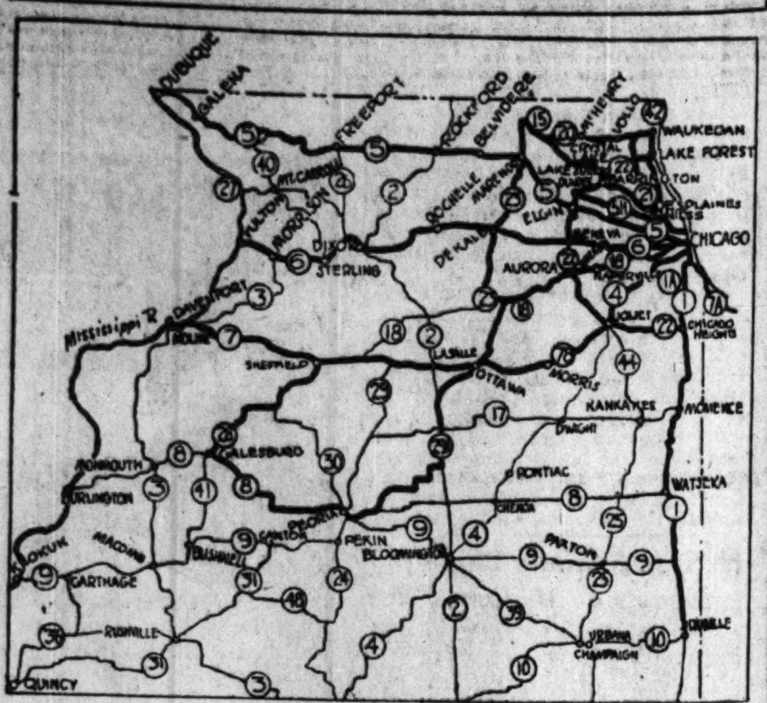
"The work of the detective is now practically a science, and at Scotland Yard we have tried to make it even more than a science. We try to temper science with imagination. Edgar Allan Poe's detective, Dupin, obtained his results by the exercise of pure reason. Sherlock Holmes seemed to obtain most of his results by imagination, or luck. We try to make our detectives a mixture of Holmes and Dupin."

"The Yard" has had need of speed. Although the spectacular American motor bandit has no cousin operating here, the bolshevik and the Hooligan among the workless have given the London force many a test of its ability to concentrate with lightning speed and revealed the necessity of plotting instantaneous movement to meet any emergency.

Sidelights on Medium Priced Cars Seen at Show

In the matter of distinctive appointments cars displayed at previous automobile shows did not compare with the present exhibitions at Coliseum. Few medium priced cars have carried sidelights in the past. The Earl touring car is one that has them mounted on each side of the cowl. With the roadster there is a different arrangement. The sidelights are on the front fenders.

NUMBERED ROADS IN ILLINOIS



Numbering of through routes on the state highway system is another important item in the 1922 program. The map shows the system decided upon for northern Illinois. These roads have been marked by the Chicago Motor club.

SEES UNIVERSAL LEFT HAND DRIVE IN A FEW YEARS

"Through foreign marketing of American made left hand drive automobiles, the United States will eventually bring foreign countries to adopt the American system of traffic movement in the streets," predicts William Elliott Phelps, general sales manager of the Haynes Automobile company.

"In many foreign countries the rule for traffic is 'keep to the left,' or just the opposite of our traffic rules, and as a result, the foreign buyers of American cars demand right hand drive cars—that is, cars with the driver's wheel on the right hand side of the automobile.

"In this connection, it is interesting to note the origin of the custom by which vehicles going in opposite directions pass to the left and not to the right. In the early days in England when horse drawn coaches were the prevalent means of transportation through the narrow streets, the coachman's whip with its long lash had to obtain its play on the side of the coach away from the sidewalk. Otherwise the lash would strike the pedestrians. And as the driver manipulated his whip with his right hand, it was found necessary to have vehicles pass to the left. Many other countries adopted the passing to the left idea, partly because of the narrow streets, and partly because England had set the custom."

Marmon Adds New Sedan Model to Exhibit List

A four door, four passenger sedan, one of the group of new Marmon closed cars, will be seen at the Marmon booth. This close coupled car is the latest of the Marmon line.

FEW CARS FOUND ON COUNTRY ROADS IN WINTER, SANDERS SAYS

BY FRANK H. SANDERS.

[President Franklin Motor Car company, Chicago.]

A few days ago I had occasion to drive my sedan a distance of 239 miles through the country. I covered this in seven and one-fonrth hours. The temperature was well below freezing and there was considerable snow on the road in some places. I passed a few cars—so few compared with summer—that I was reminded more forcibly than ever of the limitations of the average car.

It takes more than theories to make such a performance possible. Even the most practicable engineering ideas will fail of practicability without high grade construction.

The very highest grade automobile construction turned out in reasonable quantities required a retail price of about $1.25 a pound up to recently. Today we witness medium and high grade construction, mostly of steel, retailing at 75 cents to 80 cents a pound. Aluminum costs three times as much a pound as steel.

Car Sells Under $500, but Has Conveniences

Including many operating conveniences and selling under $500, the Gray car is being exhibited at the Congress hotel. This new low priced car is built by Frank L. Klingensmith, formerly vice president and treasurer of the Ford Motor company, and Frank F. Beall.

MANY PROCESSES MAKE PAINTING AUTOS BIG TASK

A book might be written on the painting process used in finishing high grade automobile bodies. In the case of the Oldsmobile, for instance, the body is washed in gasoline and sanded with a coarse grade of emery cloth. It is primed with red oxide, laid on with an air brush; then a second coat, consisting very largely of pure lead, is applied and allowed to bake on for twenty-four hours at a temperature of 130 degrees. "Glazing" follows, with a heavy liquid made up of varnish, lead, and "japan," applied with a putty knife. All these processes are preliminary to two coats of "rough stuff," and after the latter has been applied the work is just considered to have been "surfaced," or ready for the serious business of painting. The first color coat goes on and is baked for two hours at 125 degrees. Then comes the first coat of color varnish. This is baked for eight hours at 115 degrees and is allowed to air dry from five to eight hours. Another coat of color varnish follows, and in between coats there are endless rubbings with felt and pumice, water and stones.

When smoothness and color have been attained, the necessary striping is put on by hand; upholstering follows, the car is rubbed carefully with water, and is then ready for final varnishing. This is a most painstaking process, and when the last of it is finished the body is carefully wheeled into an absolutely dark and practically air tight room. The darkness keeps the flies away and the air control is such that dust is not permitted to circulate and spoil the finish.

NEW ELECTRIC STYLES.

"The complaint among electric car owners that the manufacturer is slow in producing new types of closed cars which meet present day demands respecting modernity of appearance will be heard no more after these people have seen the new type of sedan and brougham which we have produced this year," asserts Paul A. Frank, president of Rauch & Lang, Inc.

AUTO MAKER EVOLVES NEW PAINT COLOR TO DEFY DUSTY ROADS

A new color for automobiles, called dustproof gray, has been announced by the Columbia Motors company.

Dustproof gray is the origination of R. A. Long, chief engineer of the Columbia company. Mr. Long used half a dozen cars, each one finished in a different color, for his experiments. He put a driver in each car and instructed some of them to drive about Detroit only, others to go into the country, and still others to drive in the city and country, too. They had orders not to wash the cars and to keep on running until each had accumulated a goodly coat of dust.

The cars were then taken to the paint shop and the painter given instructions to mix up several batches of paint with the idea of getting a tint that would neutralize most of the coats of dust.

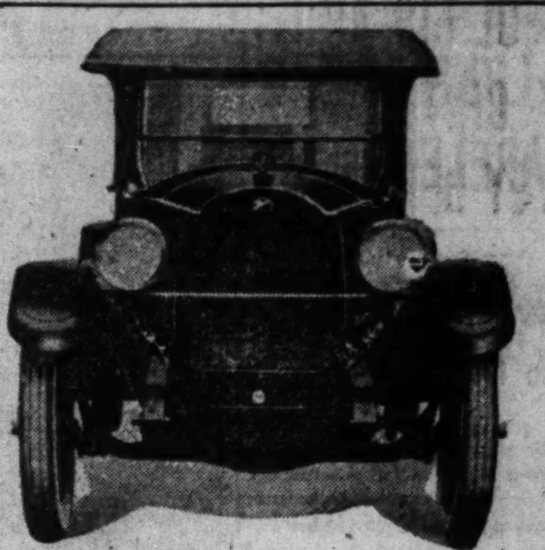
VOORHIS TELLS HOW USED CARS AFFECT DEALERS

"The policy of automobile manufacturers, distributors, and dealers in facing and handling the used car problem will determine very largely the degree to which the automobile industry gets its share of real benefit out of the improving business conditions of 1922," C. B. Voorhis, vice president and general sales manager of the Nash Motors company, said yesterday.

"A practice which during the last year has cost the automobile dealers of the country losses aggregating more than $250,000,000 is the policy of some manufacturers in forcing such quantities of new cars into dealers' hands as to suggest, encourage, and often force dealers to engage in ruinous methods of handling used cars."

MORE SPEED IN FRANCE.

For the first time in French history the traditional horse-drawn victoria gave way to the motor car, when Gen. Pershing was received at Elysée palace, in Paris, by President Millerand. The American party arrived at the palace entrance in an automobile.



THE NEW 1922
PATERSON

New in its beautiful body design and many new features. The chassis is reliable, strong, and sturdy. The motor is a Continental—the 7-R. The wheel base is 120 inches. The tires are cord—32x4½ all around. Every unit is standard and of the best.

What Are Your Plans for 1922?

In making your plans for 1922 it would be well to look into the new Paterson line.

The one conspicuous success at the New York Show!

Success! It was instantaneous! From the moment the doors of the New York Show opened until they finally closed the largest crowd was always to be found around the Rickenbacker exhibit.

This car took New York by storm. Probably never before has a motor car created such genuine interest. This Six was pronounced by many of the industry's leading engineers as being the biggest step forward in motor car design in years.

And why not? Who knows motors better than Captain E. V. Rickenbacker.

What's more, associated with Capt. Rickenbacker are some of the industry's leading figures—Everitt, Flanders, Hood, Cunningham, Tichenor, Evans, Drumpelmann, Miller—all men who individually have held first line positions in the industry!

Such a group of men know how to produce a real value. They know motor car designs; they know the very best production practice.

The Rickenbacker is the sweetest running motor you ever sat behind.

One ride will convince you of that!

For sheer motor performance this new Six is destined to establish new standards.

For soft, smooth-as-silk, noiseless, flexible operation this car has astonished the veterans of the industry.

You can start it on high (just as easily as on low) and away she whirls with the speed of a high powered aeroplane.

Take her right down to two miles an hour. Slip her up to 25—30—35—40—45—50—55—60—65 miles per hour! At 65 miles per hour she rides as smoothly as at 25!

Mind you there are fundamental reasons for all this. New engineering principles. Look this car over and be shown.

Another thing! What is the element that causes a car to wear? Friction! And friction comes from vibration. Up to date every car built has some bad period of vibration. Some at 25 miles per hour—others at 30—others at 35, etc. But not with the Rickenbacker. This car has no period of vibration. Of no other car can this statement be made—regardless of price.

You'll want to see the unusual frame—unusually strong and unusually light.

The easy riding qualities of this car have astonished everyone.

This is without question the smoothest riding car that has ever been produced.

The body lines are very snappy. In fact it's one of the smartest cars on the American or European market today.

Quality considered the Rickenbacker is the lowest priced fine car ever offered.

But see it yourself. The car will tell its own story.

MOTORISTS LOSE GALLONS OF GAS —CARELESSNESS

Faulty Compression Eats Up Mileage.

BY C. H. WILLS.
[President Wills Sainte-Claire Motor Co.]

Thousands of gallons of gasoline are wasted every day by motorists because of the inefficient operation of their engines.

An important detail to watch to keep the engine running efficiently is the compression. A motor with faulty compression may appear to run fairly well when driving the car at a reasonable speed or when it is working hard. Lost compression shows up when the car is being driven at a comparatively low speed.

How to Tell It.

Under either of these conditions the engine will run with an irregularity that makes the car jerk or jump instead of running steadily, as it should. This indicates that there is considerable loss of power and that much more gasoline has to be burned than when the engine is developing its full power.

In fact, gasoline mileage may be cut nearly in half through compression loss and still the engine may continue to run fairly well, according to the ideas of an amateur driver.

Try the Crank.

If an engine is not running well and a compression loss is suspected, the simplest way to detect it is to use the crank and turn the engine over by hand, and thus feel the compression on each individual cylinder. You will nearly always find that some pistons will go over compression much easier than others, and this means that somewhere there is a leak in this cylinder.

The number of miles which a car should run without having the valves reground varies greatly, depending on oiling and other engine conditions.

With the average car under normal running conditions, however, it is probably wise to have the valves ground at least once every 5,000 to 10,000 miles, depending on the operating condition of the motor.

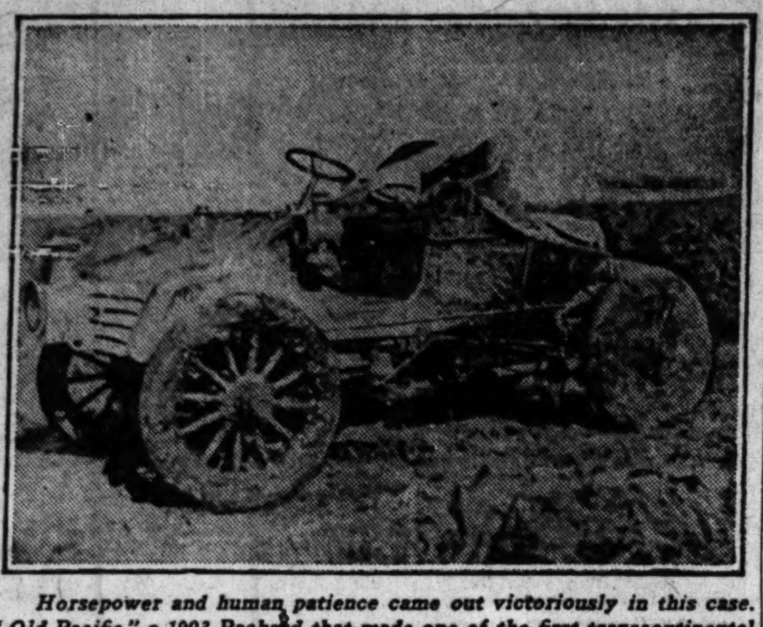
Small Price Difference Between New Dort Models

Two new closed models, which brings the members of the Dort passenger car line up to six, are in the Dort exhibition at the show. These new Dorts are designed to supply the want of motorists who have hitherto been unwilling to pay the difference in cost for a closed car. The sedan is but $210 more than the Dort touring car, and the coupe is but $180 more than the Dort roadster, which is getting them rather close together. The differentials are, of course, based on prices at the factory and do not embody freight or war tax.

Oakland Motor Car Makes $500,000 Addition to Plant

The Oakland Motor Car company has just completed an addition to the motor plant at a cost of approximately $500,000. This new addition has added 200,000 feet of floor space for manufacturing purposes. In all the plants of the company there is a total of 1,270,500 square feet of floor space. This area composes the entire floor space of the eight plants of the company at Pontiac and extends over a plot of land of approximately twenty-eight acres.

"OLD PACIFIC"



Horsepower and human patience came out victoriously in this case. "Old Pacific," a 1903 Packard that made one of the first transcontinental runs from San Francisco to New York, was "caught" in the gumbo of Iowa. It made twenty miles in fourteen hours along here, but—that's going some for such an old timer.

BUYER DICTATES NEW DESIGNS IN CAR, CLARK SAYS

Makers Follow His Lead, He Says.

BY E. W. CLARK.
[Director of Sales, Chalmers Motor Car Co.]

Invariably the new year brings some change or advancement, or whatever you may wish to call it, in the popular trend of motor car design. It may be a new type of wheel, a new body line, or another style of seating arrangement, but always it is something a little or perhaps very greatly different from the vogue of the previous year.

For all of which the average owner gives most of the credit to the resourcefulness of the engineer. It would, in fact, seem to be the general impression that about all the engineers do is to lie awake nights wondering what new angle can be given to the appearance, comfort, or performance of the cars in which they are individually identified.

Owner Himself Responsible.

That is, of course, largely as it should be. The engineers are, it is true, constantly striving for a better car than any of its predecessors. But what the average owner fails most to appreciate is the fact that he is himself perhaps the dominating factor in putting the resourcefulness of the engineer into actual effect.

In the last analysis the activities of the engineers are guided almost wholly by the demand or preference of the owners. The rakish car of today is simply the outgrowth of a manifested preference for that type of vehicle.

Wants Beauty and Strength.

Today as never before the average owner is looking for a car which is really distinctive in beauty as well as economical and trustworthy in service. Such items as a new type of fender, graced with a newly designed beautiful crown, which follows perfectly the arc of the wheel which it covers, are of instant appeal to the buyer. The more popular body is one that is hung low and, although massive in design, the car still retains the grace of a cruiser. Steel disk wheels are now being used more extensively than ever in the past.

GEYLER TRACES MANY CHANGES IN MODE OF LIVING DUE TO CARS

BY LEWIS GEYLER.
[President Louis Geyler company, Dort distributors.]

The automobile is responsible for many change in the mode of living. Before it became generally used, the country folk stayed in the country and the city people stayed in the cities—excepting on occasions when they took excursions on trains or boats.

Now there is an intermingling. You go out on any road fifty miles from Chicago and as many cars appear to be coming one way as are going the other. Those from the city are out for the air, to enjoy the scenery and to patronize the farmers who have fresh vegetables and dairy products for sale. The farmers are running into the city to do their buying of clothes, hardware, and other necessities, taking advantage of the great markets instead of confining themselves to the small dealer with limited stocks.

WOMEN BUY CARS WITH JUDGMENT, SID BLACK SAYS

No Longer Ask Foolish Questions.

"We used to sell automobiles to men," says Sid Black, vice president of the Cleveland Automobile company. "We still do, but we also have to sell to the women before we can get a man to purchase a car.

"This is only natural, because the woman gets as much use and pleasure out of the automobile as the man, and why shouldn't she have something to say about choosing it?

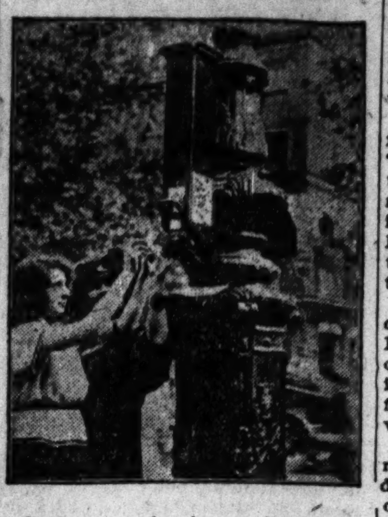
"I believe it is even more noticeable this year than ever that women are becoming motorwise. They no longer ask foolish questions. Their inquiries are right to the point and they are good judges of quality. We are exhibiting an entirely new line of sixes, and it is surprising to see how quickly the salient points are picked up by the women visitors."

The new Cleveland cars are characterized by a low center of gravity, giving a road hugging effect. Individual polished aluminum steps are standard equipment, with runningboards optional. Radiators on all models are of highly polished nickel, as are the windshield frames. Barrel type headlights of the new vogue are used throughout, and the cowl lights are small editions of the headlights. The headlights are readily adjustable. Full crown fenders are featured, and winged radiator cap and motometer are standard equipment.

Car Makers Provide Real Winter Comfort

"The increase of heater equipment by car manufacturers," says C. S. Pelton, vice president of the Perfection Heater and Manufacturing company, "is one of the developments of the last year. The heated car is so logical that the buying public has welcomed with widespread adoption this comfort feature. This increased popularity is very evident when one realizes that at least 80 per cent of the closed cars exhibited this year are equipped with heaters."

Getting Bus Rides



Owing to the increasing motor bus traffic in Paris it has become necessary to eliminate the collecting of fares on board. Ticket machines have been erected at the stopping places and prospective passengers must drop a coin and get a ticket before boarding. Herewith it is.

YANK CAR WON FIRST ROAD RACE; STILL EXHIBITED

Among things to be seen at the new Stevens-Duryea plant at Chicopee Falls, Mass., is a queer looking little vehicle.

Back in 1896, the year McKinley defeated Bryan for the presidency, this "horseless carriage" was shipped over to England. There it was destined to record an event of tremendous import in the history of American industry. Practically unknown abroad, it captured the first long distance international road race.

The race took place over a fifty mile course between London and Brighton. In all there were fifty entries, the pick of Great Britain and Europe. America's sole entry, a Duryea, crossed the finish line more than an hour in advance of its nearest competitor.

Contemporary accounts of the race record the fact that the route was so densely crowded for ten miles inside the city limits of London that it was impossible for one car to pass another.

H. C. S. Exhibits Three Models of Medium Price

The great crowds which are going to the Coliseum this week emphasizes the fact that the motor car has become one of the most important things in the lives of the American public. Among the exhibits which are attracting attention is the H. C. S. booth from Indianapolis. The H. C. S. is designed and built by Harry C. Stutz.

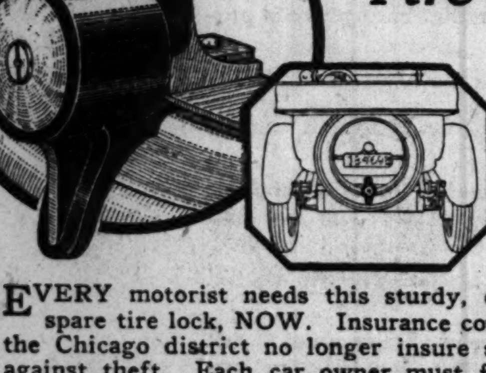
OAKES Spare Tire LOCK



Stops Spare Tire Thefts

$5.00
Ford Type $4.00

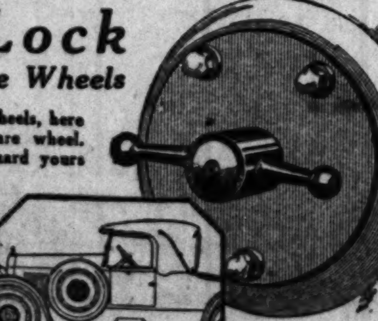
EVERY motorist needs this sturdy, dependable spare tire lock, NOW. Insurance companies in the Chicago district no longer insure spare tires against theft. Each car owner must furnish his own protection from the tire thieves now operating in all large cities.

The Oakes is a real spare tire lock. It fits over the bolt on your tire carrier and prevents removal of tire until your key unlocks it. It adds to appearance of car. Eliminates unsightly "makeshifts," such as straps, chains and ropes. Sturdily made and easy to install. Has only two parts—a strong barrel finished in glossy black and an approved lock with nickel-plated face. It is made in types for nearly all cars. Thieves are busy and your "spare" may go next. Make your spare tire safe with this lock. Get it from your dealer, or see us.

A New Lock for Steel or Wire Wheels

Oakes Spare Wheel Lock
for Steel Disc or Wire Wheels

If your car has steel disc or wire wheels, here is a distinctive lock for your spare wheel. Spare wheels are stolen daily. Guard yours with this lock. It fits over the stud which projects through the wheel hub. Foils thieves. Beautifies the car. Barrel and arms are polished aluminum. Lock unit is approved type, of polished nickel. The lock sells for $7.50. Special type for Fords, $5.00. Ask your dealer.



Used on COLE cars as standard equipment.

The Creation Of A NEW STANDARD

IT is supremely fitting that the opening of the greatest Automobile Show in Chicago's history should mark the appearance of a motor car which establishes a new standard.

New interests experienced in the automotive business have joined with the Standard Steel Car Company in the formation of the Standard Motor Car Company of Pittsburgh, which Company has taken over the manufacture and sale of the Standard Eight.

This combination has developed the new Standard Eight, which is the embodiment of all that is best in advanced automotive engineering. Every unit blends into both chassis and body to produce a car of surpassing beauty and comfort, combining exceptional flexibility, smooth, quiet operation and rare economy.

This car is new in appearance, new in construction and in both respects reveals a thoroughness and attention to detail that is distinctive.

The exclusive "dry sump" oiling system, which has proven its worth in the severest aircraft service, is one of the new outstanding features, as it does away with the resultant troubles, such as smoke, carbon piston wear, loss of power and excessive oil consumption, as experienced with motors using ordinary splash or force feed systems.

The production of this car entirely in the Standard shops, from the raw steel to the finished parts, and not from assembled units, guarantees the building of a superior car at a price that does not include the fixed charges of different parts makers, as in the case of an assembled automobile.

The verdict of the motoring public on the new Standard is already manifest. It may be seen at the Automobile Show, or at our salesrooms—and it is well worth seeing.

STUTZ
THE CAR THAT MADE GOOD IN A DAY

Another STUTZ Promise Fulfilled by Performance!

THE great Stutz organization promised an announcement of importance to the industry at the New York Show.

Here it is!

A new standard of price for cars truly fitted to class among the world's best.

No longer must the exacting buyer, who insists upon the quality to be reflected in added years of service, as well as unequalled appearance and performance, pay over $5000 for his car.

The sturdy Stutz first proved the finest of the world's best cars by performance in the gruelling tests of actual comparison on the Speedway.

Today establishes this new standard for value among the best cars of the world—

STUTZ	Bearcat	$2950
STUTZ	Roadster	$2950
STUTZ	Four Passenger	$2990
STUTZ	Six Passenger	$2990
STUTZ	Coupe	$3990

It is only necessary for you to ride in the Stutz of today to realize that it is not only unequalled among other cars, but that it is the best car that ever bore the Stutz name.

And in addition to its many improvements and refinements, Stutz buyers now have the option of right or left hand drive.

Now, backing up the first Stutz records for Speedway performance, come new records for comfort and appearance and durability, and finally the world's record for automobile value among high class cars.

STUTZ DEALERS NEWS
SUNDAY, JAN. 29, 1922

Important to Dealers

Not only new prices that set new standards of value—there's a bigger story for the Stutz dealer.

A proposition that has never been equalled in the sale of high-class cars.

Made by dealers—for dealers—to dealers—for the first time.

Stutz Challenges the World

Try to find any other established manufacturer who can equal the Stutz proposition.

Product—organization—quota—discounts—every angle of dealer co-operation—judge by any standard you want.

If you want to know the fairest, squarest, greatest opportunity for success in 1922—See Stutz!

Sure You're Welcome

The Stutz organization has opened complete headquarters at the Congress Hotel. President William N. Thompson, and Sales Manager Fred Wilson are in charge. Practically every Stutz dealer in the eastern territory will be in attendance at the various meetings to be held during the auto show.

"Of course, dealers not now handling the Stutz will be welcome at our offices in the hotel," said Mr. Wilson. "If our plan is as logical as we believe it to be, and as those who have tried it say it is, we want everybody to be familiar with it."

Artists Like Stutz

Howard Chandler Christy and Franklin Booth, two famous artists, said some very complimentary things about the grace and beauty of the Stutz car.

Two Favorites

Thomas Meighan, a great favorite of the movies, attracted much attention as he sat in a Stutz car at a recent auto show. He says the Stutz certainly is a favorite with him.

WARNS AGAINST BIG ALLOWANCE FOR USED CARS

Sales Manager Gives Some Tips to Buyers.

BY E. T. STRONG.

[General Sales Manager Buick Motor Co.]

There is only one safe way of making a bargain when turning in a used motor car toward the purchase of a new car. And that is to be absolutely certain that you pay a fair price for the new car and not be misled by a fictitious allowance on the old one. If you are offered more for your old car than you know in your own mind it is actually worth, just ask yourself who will pay for the extra allowance. You cannot get something for nothing.

Every used car has a real value. When allowances vary widely it is well to investigate. It is not what you are allowed on your old car but what you pay for the new one and the transportation value received that you should consider.

Warns of Fictitious Allowance.

If on two cars of practically the same selling price you are offered much more for your used car in exchange for one than for the other you may be sure that the two new cars are not of the same value. On close study you will no doubt find that one of the two carries a highly inflated selling price, permitting a fictitious allowance on your used car.

Ask yourself this question: What car would you purchase if you were paying all cash?

The used car market, like other markets, has seen many changes in the last four or five years. During the war and immediately after its close the value of used cars was greatly enhanced—not because there was anything of greater value in the car, but because the production of new cars was far below the demand for personal transportation. The shortage made it easy to sell old cars at good prices.

Demand for Used Cars Less.

As new cars become available the demand for used cars decreased and there developed a tendency on the part of some to induce owners to trade in old cars by offering them allowances that were really deceptive.

The Buick Motor company has never believed in any sales policy that might encourage the giving of fictitious values for used cars. The prices of our various models have always been such that they were perfectly fair to either the cash buyer or the trade-in buyer.

Prices have moved up and down with costs. Quality has never been sacrificed to maintain a certain price.

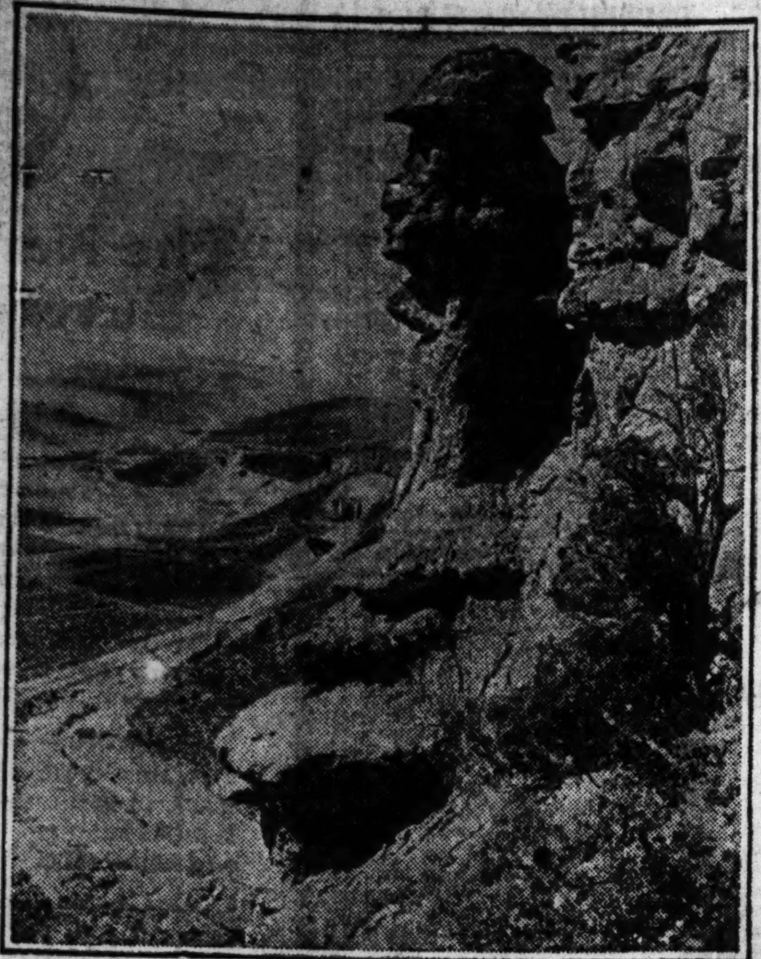
New Gear and Brake Shift Works from Wheel

A feature of the new model Elgin six is the absence of gear and brake levers in the front compartment. Speed changes are effected by means of a mechanical shifting device which is operated by a small lever on top of the steering wheel. All that is necessary to change speeds is to move this lever and press in on the clutch pedal. Any speed may be pre-selected while the clutch is engaged. For instance, in starting the car the driver moves the hand lever to 1 for first speed position and as soon as the clutch is pushed in and released the car starts moving in low gear. The lever is then moved to second position and through the disengagement of the clutch the gears are meshed in second speed. Same operation in changing to third speed.

Peerless Takes Over Philadelphia Agent

R. H. Collins, president and general manager of the Peerless Motor Car company, has announced that C. R. Cunliffe and his associates have purchased the business of the Girard Automobile company, Peerless distributors in Philadelphia. To take over the control of the Philadelphia business, Mr. Cunliffe has resigned as general sales manager of the Peerless and is succeeded by D. A. Burke.

OLD MAN OF THE DESERT



"The Old Man of the Desert" looks noncommittal, but the motorist who travels over the shifting sands sees many strange sites. Note the tunnel through an outcropping seen in the center of the picture.

"USED CAR SALES SHOW TREND OF TIMES"—ELDRIDGE

As the Chicago automobile show opens sentiment among automobile men is considerably more cheerful than was the case even as recently as the first of the year, says C. E. Eldridge, manager of the Reo Motor Car Co. of Chicago.

"None is so optimistic as to predict record breaking sales for the coming season, but nearly all feel that not only will the volume of 1922 business compare favorably with that of 1921, but they feel that the extremely precarious days of 1921 have gone for good," he said.

"Chief among the encouraging factors in the changing sentiment is the incredibly quick change in the used car situation. As recently as a month ago used cars went begging. How quickly this situation has reversed itself is seen not only in the increased activity in the used car salesrooms of the automobile dealers on Michigan avenue, but in the fewer used cars being advertised.

"With the opening of the show the interest of most people is centered on new cars. But there is a direct relationship between the prospects for the sale of new cars during the coming season and the improved used car situation."

GASOLINE CRACKS LEATHER.

Don't use gasoline to clean leather unless you want to crack it. Plain water, with a few drops of ammonia, will remove the dirt, after which the upholstery should be rubbed briskly with a soft cloth. An excellent leather dressing is made by combining two parts of linseed oil to one of turpentine.

FINDS A LONGING IN EVERY SOUL TO OWN AN AUTO

Sales Chief Calls 'Inherent Desire' Big Factor.

"Those who have to do with the sale of automobiles have one great advantage that no other product has known," states C. J. Nephler, general sales manager of the Oakland Motor Car company. "This advantage is summed up in two words—inherent desire.

"Some time try the experiment. Stand on any busy street corner and ask the first hundred persons you meet, who do not already possess automobiles, whether or not they would like to have one, and their answer will invariably be 'yes.'

True of All Classes.

"You will find this to be true even among those whose worldly possessions have thus far made it impracticable for them to buy a car. Of no other article of merchandise, outside the bare necessities of life, is this true. It isn't true of a watch, piano, talking machine, cash register, a motorcycle, or any other manufactured product.

"This important selling advantage of 'inherent desire' in itself establishes the automobile as a vehicle of utility indispensable to our very existence.

Points to Added Efficiency.

"If it is true as established by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce we increase our efficiency nearly 57 per cent by the use of automobiles, then who among us wishes to appear backward? It is only natural to wish to be progressive and to adopt those conveniences which make our lives more valuable to the community.

"I confidently look forward to the time when every active individual, whether factory hand, clerk, or executive, will own his own car."

One of the striking appearance features of the Oakland 6-44 is the new radiator and hood design carried through on all five body styles. The marked improvement which this change has produced is instantly apparent.

Announcing the First Chicago Showing of the New Oakland 6-44

Distinctively different in body design, more complete in appointments and more mechanically perfect, the Oakland 6-44 is a New Oakland throughout.

The new design of the Oakland 6-44 is indicative of the numerous improvements which have been incorporated in engine and chassis construction, improvements particularly designed to increase both pride in ownership and driver's satisfaction.

For example, so marked an advance in engine construction has been contributed by Oakland engineers that Oakland gives to every purchaser of its 6-44 cars an unusual 15,000 mile special written guarantee.

You will find it exceedingly interesting to inspect the five New Oakland models on exhibition at the show. They tell the Oakland story most completely.

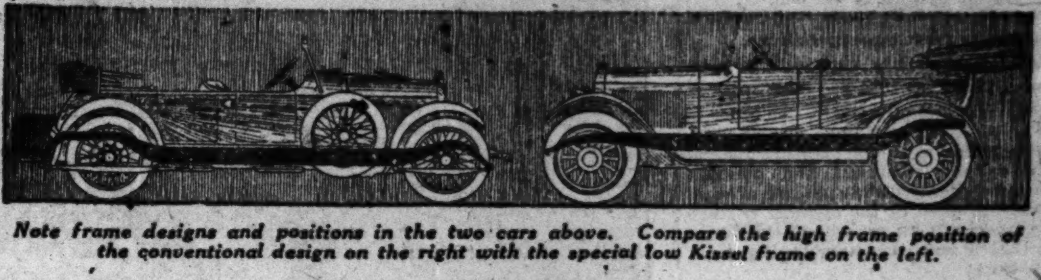
KISSEL

Advanced Engineering Achievements

Create a New Valuation Basis

Kissel is First to carry the Custom built idea into his motor and chassis as completely as he has in his body.

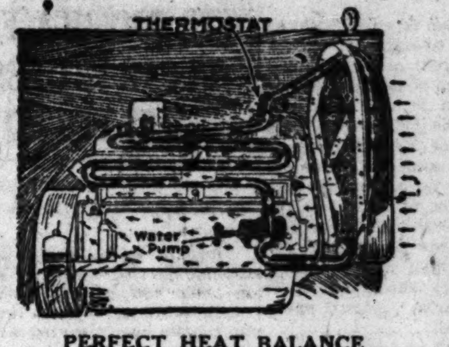
See these exclusive Kissel features—considered by experienced owners as the Buywords of Quality for 1922—at the Auto Show



Note frame designs and positions in the two cars above. Compare the high frame position of the conventional design on the right with the special low Kissel frame on the left.

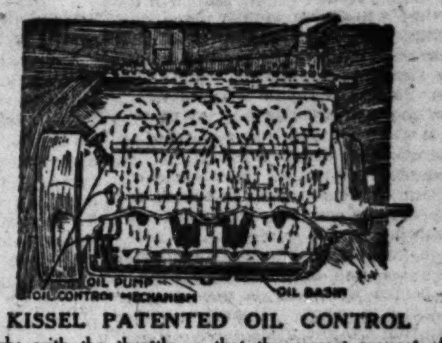
PERFECT ROADABILITY

The ability of a car to hug-the-road at all speeds—with no sideway—that's Roadability as developed by Kissel. A specially designed frame with an exclusive "kick-up" in front permits a low center of gravity with plenty of road and spring clearance. The weight is hung between the axles—not on top or over them. In addition Kissel tire economy, reported by owners as high as 18,000 miles on one set of tires, is due in part to this Perfect Roadability.



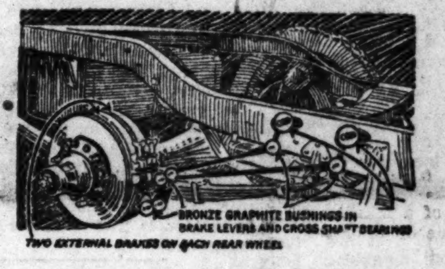
PERFECT HEAT BALANCE

The Kissel Motor will not overheat in the hottest weather or under most severe conditions. An exclusive combination of designing and engineering created a specially designed pump and radiator of proper capacity—and a series of exclusively designed inlets and outlets for the heated air. To maintain the proper water heat—summer or winter—Kissel built a scientific Thermostat into the head integral with the motor.



KISSEL PATENTED OIL CONTROL

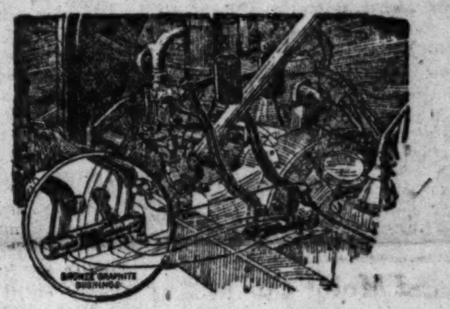
Works with the throttle so that the correct amount of oil is provided according to amount of throttle or power used. No danger of too little oil at fast speeds or too much at slow speeds. Creates economy in oil consumption—provides long bearing life—eliminates necessity of taking up bearings. The Kissel Patented Oil Basin prevents oil piling up at either end on grades—eliminating smoking, loss of oil and fouling of plugs.



BRONZE GRAPHITE BUSHINGS IN BRAKE LEVERS AND CROSS SHAFT BEARINGS
TWO EXTERNAL BRAKES ON EACH REAR WHEEL

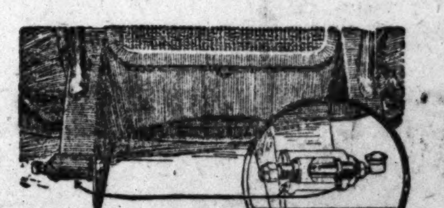
DOUBLE BRAKING EFFICIENCY

Kissel's two sets of brakes (hand and foot operated) are of the external contracting type—provides greater leverage with less effort because power is more easily applied. All adjustments are external and consist of turning a thumb screw. Impossible to stick or wear loose and drag—no rattling—due to all working parts being equipped with hand-fitted, self-lubricating bronze graphite bearings.



INCREASED FOOT LEVERAGE

By designing the foot levers a certain number of inches longer, Kissel secures not only greater increased leverage, but makes easier operating. In addition both levers are equipped with hand-fitted self-lubricating bronze graphite bearings that practically eliminate looseness and rattles and prevent sticking or "freezing."



SPRING SIDE-PLAY ADJUSTMENT

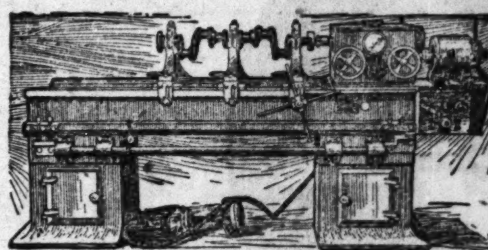
75% of the pronounced chassis rattles are due to side-play in the springs. Kissel prevents such rattles and increases the bearing surface about 40%—by equipping the front of both the front and rear springs with a specially designed spring hanger with an adjustable bearing. A simple turn of the adjustable nut quickly takes up all side-play.

MINIMIZED CONNECTING ROD VIBRATION

Not only do all connecting rods in each Kissel motor weigh the same, but perfect balancing of both ends of each rod insures the piston and shaft ends of each rod weighing exactly the same as the corresponding ends of all rods in the same motor.

CUSTOM DOORS

No matter the position of the chassis—Kissel nonrattling close-fitting doors stay closed. By triple-offsetting they dovetail deep into the triple-offset pillar post like a bank vault. Rattles or play prevented by special plug and socket anti-door rattlers and a double catch door latch.

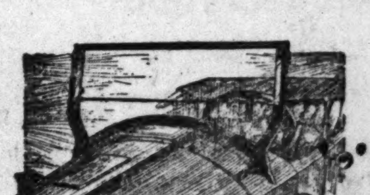


A PERFECTLY BALANCED CRANKSHAFT

Throughout the whole range of speeds, Kissel shaft vibration is reduced to the very minimum by bringing every Kissel crankshaft into accurate static and dynamic balance on the special Carwen Balancing Machine.

HAND-FASHIONED FENDERS

Notice Kissel individual fenders—exclusive in design—custom-built to each body. To attain the exclusive full width deep crown design necessitates special fender steel hand-rolled—not stamped—by exclusive equipment. Positive rigidity prevents loosening and rattling.



CUSTOM-BUILT WINDSHIELD

Distinctively designed and hand-fitted to each cowl. Impossible to wear loose and rattle because fastened with special anchor bolts to cowl supports. Set at an angle that eliminates mirror effects.

BALANCED CLUTCH PARTS

Fine engineering to minimize vibration in the motor is extended to even the clutch parts which are perfectly balanced by experts.

NEW VIBRATION MINIMUM

All reciprocating parts in Kissel's new motor are perfectly balanced, while each assembly is made up of carefully selected units of the same weight. Also each piston assembly must weigh within 1/8 ounce of every other piston assembly in each motor.

ALL CHASSIS RATTLES AND SQUEAKS PRACTICALLY ELIMINATED

A silent velvet-like cushion effect is attained at all working points having a bearing surface exposed to a slow motion—by inserting hand-fitted bronze graphite bearings. Being graphite lubricated they permit a close hand-fitting that practically eliminates rattles or squeaks—"freezing" or sticking.

HIGH USED CAR VALUATION

Kissel used car value is proportionately much higher because of Advanced Fashions, Advanced Engineering and Excellent Mechanical Construction.

HERE IS SIMPLE EXPLANATION OF ENGINE CULTURE

Watch Both Cylinders and Rings.

There is nothing mysterious about piston rings used in automobile engines, even though repairmen will tell you that new rings of a certain sort will elevate your engine into some new state in which it produces twice as much power and speed as before. There is a good deal of misinformation about piston rings, and because of it automobile owners spend millions each year for such parts, in many cases getting no results from the expenditure.

Piston rings are supposed to pack the cylinder, so that gas does not leak downward and oil upward. In order to be an ideal device it must do this without exerting too much pressure against the cylinder wall and the pressure must be evenly distributed all around. The ring must fit the cylinder perfectly; it must fit its grooves in the piston so that it will be neither too tight nor too loose.

Give Good Service.

Such piston rings will run perhaps 20,000 or 30,000 miles, but a time must come when the rings no longer make a gas tight joint. It then is necessary to find out why the rings no longer fit well. The average repair man will tell you that when wear takes place only the rings become worn, so that all that is necessary to put the engine in first class shape is to replace the piston rings. How the repair man knows is one of the mysteries of this world. The fact is that no one can tell whether the rings are worn or whether the cylinders are worn or just what the condition of these parts is unless the parts themselves are examined and measured.

It is natural to suppose that after the engine has become worn over a long period the wear is not confined to any one part. Experience has shown that cylinders become worn just as readily as the rings. But the average repair man assumes that for his especial benefit the cylinders have worn uniformly round, which, strange to say, does not happen in service. Cylinders wear oval or they score or they have high spots here and there. They are not perfectly round after 10,000 or 20,000 miles.

Wear Uniformly.

At the same time that the cylinders do not wear round they also do not wear uniformly along the length. The piston rings do the wearing, and the rings only travel a certain distance in the cylinder. This is called the ring travel. The wear then takes place for a certain vertical distance, leaving at the top and bottom of the cylinder a bore practically equal to the original bore of the cylinder. There may be some wear at top and bottom, but it is exceedingly slight compared with the ring travel wear. In attempting to install oversize rings in a cylinder that is worn the attempt is made to get a larger ring into the original bore, for in what other way can you get the ring into the worn area of the cylinder? If the ring ends are filed the ring then is made smaller and it is no longer oversize.

This explains a great deal of trouble owners have because so-called oversize rings were installed in the cylinders. In the first place the cylinders should be made true either by grinding or some other process, and new rings obtained to fit the new bore. In this way only can one be sure of a perfect fit. To say that new rings will lap themselves into an oval bore is wrong, for they will not, nor will new rings in worn cylinders take the shape presented by score marks or hard spots in the cylinder metal.

Fit Is Important.

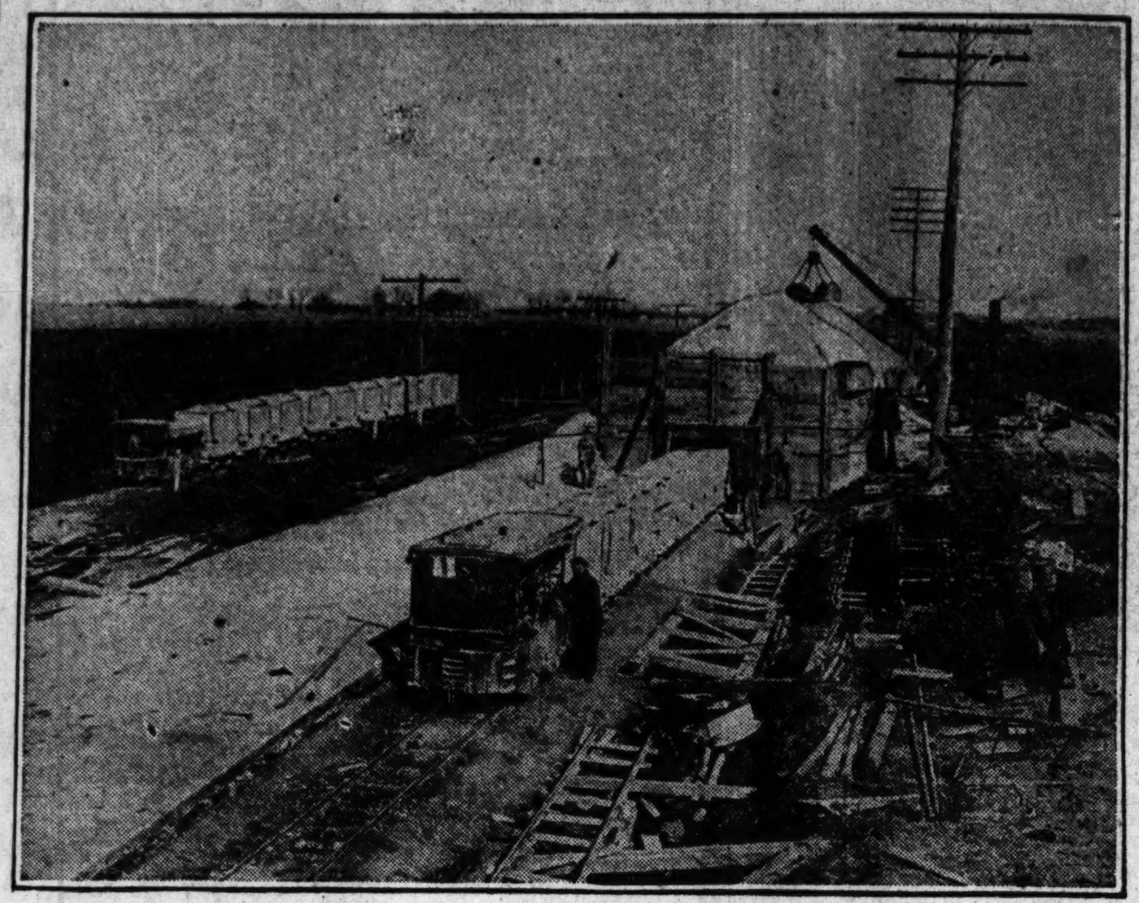
The type of ring has something to do with results, but not so much as the average shop is inclined to think. The fit of the ring in the cylinder means more than the design of the ring itself. Patent rings are helpful, but a patent ring poorly fitted will not give good service, whereas an ordinary split ring well fitted gives perfect results. The ring must so be designed that it presses evenly against the cylinder all around, its metal must not be too hard, and above all, it must be fitted to its groove in the piston so as to be able to do its work properly. This means the groove must be trued in a lathe to the exact size of the new ring.

When your engine lacks power, when the compression is poor, when it pumps oil and uses too much fuel, it usually is a sign that the rings do not fit properly, but it is not a sign that new rings alone will cure these troubles. You must find out the condition of the cylinders into which the rings fit.

SPARK PLUG TESTER.

By adding a handle and a wire spring ground connection to an ordinary spark gap a very convenient spark plug tester results.

HOW ILLINOIS ROADS ARE BUILT



Pick and shovel have been discarded in the construction of the modern high type highway. Today the men who build Illinois pavements employed tons of machinery in their work. The picture shows fast progress on a state road near Bloomington. Note the special narrow gauge track and the giant mixers.

SEE AMERICA FIRST IN CAR WITH 350,000 MILES BEHIND METER

Would you start out touring America in a car that had traveled 350,000 miles?

That is what Robert Annand and Clark Merritt of Duluth, Minn., did in their "prairie schooner" last November and not once in the ten months they have been "seeing America first" have they been in a place where they could not drive on their own power. They have been through twenty-one states and western Ontario on their tour.

The car is a Buick that first saw service in 1913 and then ran into more misfortune than falls to the lot of the ordinary car. It served first as a seven-passenger touring car in Duluth, Minn., and later it labored as a taxi for several years. Caught in a disastrous fire, the Buick was so badly damaged that it was practically given up. After purchase, however, by the Pioneer Automobile company, Duluth, and converted into an ice boat, it made an enviable record as the "white streak." It was finally rebuilt for a service truck and after it had covered a distance of 350,000 miles, the chassis was purchased by Annand and Merritt who converted it into a motorized "prairie schooner."

DOWN ON THE FARM.

In the early days of the automobile, when staid citizens thought it was scandalous for a woman to do anything so extremely vulgar and bold as to drive a car, Mrs. Clara Center, now of Lindsborg, Kas., used her "horseless carriage" to gather up the cows in the pasture for the evening milking.

ONCE-OVERS.

When figuring in an automobile accident do not talk too much. Get the time, the place, names of those in the car, and their addresses if you can, and by all means take down the number of the license and state where issued. If there are any bystanders who saw the accident it is well to get their names and addresses, even though the car is not badly damaged.

OHIO MOTORISTS DECLARE WAR ON ROADSIDE SIGNS

Ohio motorists who have been accustomed to reading billboards as they drive along will have to find some other means to remind themselves that their livers are out of order. For the edict has gone out from Columbus that advertising signs—particularly those that reduce visibility—must go.

This decision was reached at an engineers' conference held in the office of Leon C. Herrick, state highway director, to consider plans to make 1922 a record year in road building.

E. J. James of the Ohio Stae Automobile association pledged the coöperation of the state's motor clubs in removing dangerous and objectionable signs.

"Next year will be the greatest year in highway construction this country has ever known," Commissioner Herrick said. "Signing of the new federal aid act by the president insures a continuation of the federal aid principle."

1922 Year of Keen Competition--McDonald

"It is my frank opinion," declared Stewart McDonald, president of the Moon Motor Car company, yesterday, "that 1922 is going to be marked by keen competition. And woe to the manufacturer who tries to get by with clever sales methods. Today the man who buys a motor car probably knows as much or, in a great many cases, more than, the salesman who is selling it. He is not going to have his judgment dimmed by one or two outstanding features, but will demand that the car be good through and through and represent dollar for dollar value. Price isn't the big thing that sells a motor car. The average American realizes that when he buys any commodity that there are several price ranges and that he generally receives in return exactly what he pays; the same applies to an automobile."

"LIMOUSINE" DERIVED FROM HEADDRESS OF FRENCH PEASANT GIRL

"The name 'limousine' comes from the head covering of French peasant women," says J. I. Handley, president of the Handley-Knight company.

It appears that the limousine was the head covering of the womenfolk of the region about Limoges, France, says Mr. Handley, which was the capital of the old province of Limousine. The peasant women wear a sort of coif, or hood, with a cape attached. This became known as a limousine, because the women of Limoges wore it. Later the women themselves were called limousines, and when the French brought out a sort of campaign wagon for their armies, much like our prairie schooner, this was named a limousine, because it was covered with a hood. When the French began to build automobiles covered with a hood, they were quickly named "limousine."

"Other names in automobile vocabulary have equally interesting antecedents," he asserts. "Sedan is named after the village in northeast France of the same name, where occurred the debacle of Napoleon III. in 1870. The factories in this town were famous for the chairs used in that day to carry persons, men performing the service. The chairs of those days were the forerunner of the modern taxicab. Chairs were necessary because in the ancient parts of London and Paris the streets were narrow and the twistings and turnings many. A horse and carriage could not get through. Instead of calling a taxi, you called a chair, which responded with its carriers. The chairs built at Sedan were so luxurious and comfortable that they became the favorites of royalty, and soon the name 'sedan' was used to denote all high class chairs.

"When a new type of closed car was developed, and a fitting name was desired for it, sedan was chosen."

TEST YOUR WHEELS.

Every car owner ought to make it a practice to test the wheels for side play at least three or four times a year. If the motorist will jack up each wheel in turn and, grasping it firmly, push and pull it, any side motion will be readily apparent.

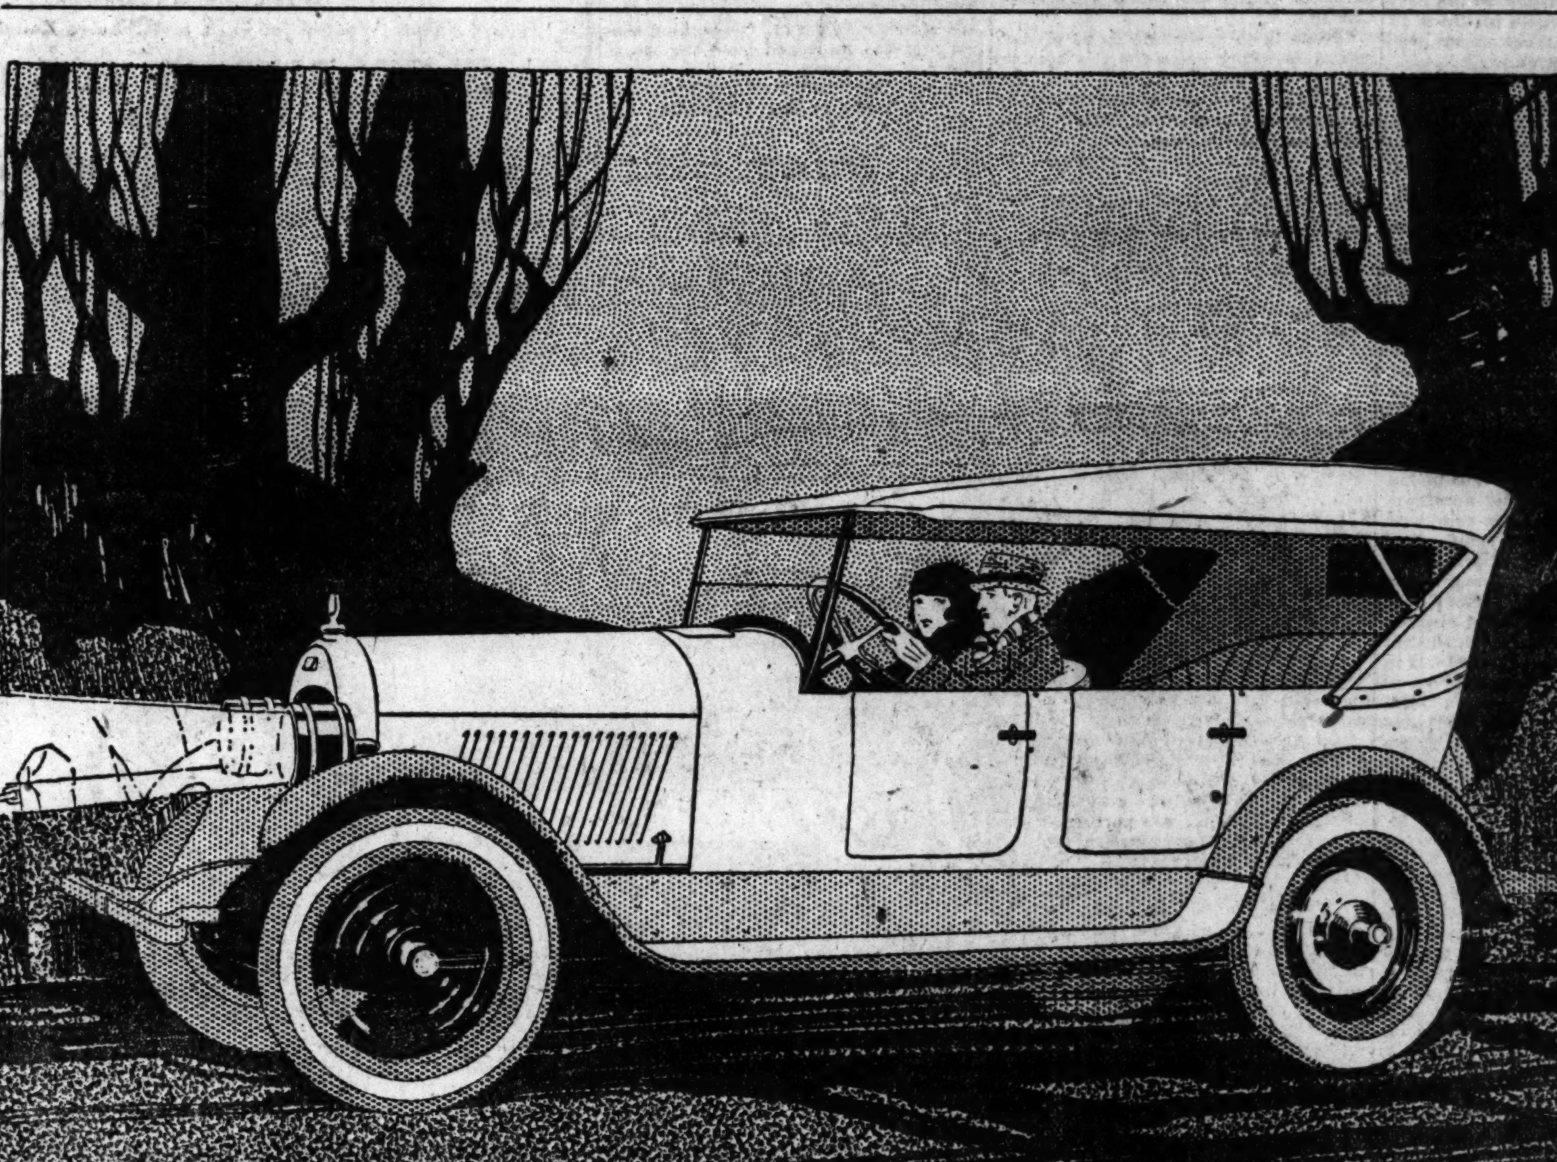
Lexington Leads Because It Lasts!



New Series 'U'—$1985

THE 'U' means ultimate! It is the matured product of a pre-determined plan behind everything Lexington has done for more than a decade.

The aim has been a car of maximum service and minimum upkeep, whose peak of efficiency will be maintained in excess of all previous standards.

The theme of this notable car is extreme durability.

You can safely buy it with 100,000 miles of utmost satisfaction ahead of you.

There can be no other quality car like it, because the factory-community system which produces the Lexington is like that of no other car in the world.

This vast system affords advantages and effects economies enjoyed by no other method or maker.

The Series 'U' possesses all the essentials of gentility, has the charm of gracious proportions, and is decidedly a car of repose. Its range of effortless performance is phenomenal.

Power has been put to music by the famous Ansted Engine. It has a split-second acceleration, is a champion on hills, and is a thoroughbred under every condition.

See this, the most complete motor car ever put upon the market, at the Auto Show or at our salesrooms, now!

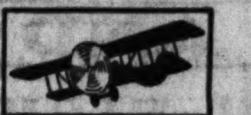
AVIATION



ir Board Meets, Urges National Laws for Flying

lso Passes Prayer to Save Air Mail.

BY MORROW KRUM.

T what was probably the hottest meeting ever held by an aviation body in Chicago the Air Board of Chicago went on rec- ast Thursday officially indorsing air mail service and urging na- al legislation governing flying. The ing was held in the city hall. J. Arnold, president of the air wielded the gavel.

ny noted aviators attended. ng them were Reed G. Landis, R. Schroeder, Ralph C. Diggins, and W. H. McChord. James S. Ste- Charles Dickinson, J. F. Cor- Harry Maynard, Charles Foldes, Foster, and some forty others ested in flying were present.

e meeting was called to pass reso- urging national legislation to late flying. The Hicks-Wadsworth that is now in congress caused fireworks. Several aviators pres- favored the bill and asked that a ution urging its adoption be d. This was opposed. Cries that ill favored the "interests who e the American airplane the laughstock of the world during the war" e raised. The proposal was voted wn.

Then a motion was made that a ple resolution, merely asking con- to make laws for flying, was d. This resolution made no men- n of the Hicks-Wadsworth bill. It osed no set of specific laws, mere- praying the legislative bodies to ake laws."

Another resolution was passed fa- ng the air mail service and ask- congress to include in the postal get the original fund of $2,200,000 the air mail service. Copies of this olution will be sent to all members congress.

t was the most interesting meeting aviation body has ever held in Chi- o, and, despite the fact that a re- t of the affairs seems quite dull, shows that Chicago is awakening.

ew Airship, the Napoli, Promises to Eclipse Roma

The giant airship Roma, which Italy d to the United States government, ooked upon as such a great success t the Italian air authorities are ding another on much the same , only bigger and better, profiting experience. It will be called the oli or Naples, and probably will the second of a large fleet of air sters.

The Roma measures 34,000 square ters; the Napoli will be 54,000. Like Roma, the Napoli will be of the i-rigid type. Its shape will be much same as the sister airship, though re elongated.

s in the case of the Roma, the car l be in the steel beams of the ship. will hold a commandant's cabin with ecessary instruments, a passen- r cabin, a dining room, lounges, a kitchen run with electricity.

t the rear of the ship will be ter- s for the passengers to admire the ery at their ease.

here will be twelve Spa motors of horse power each, Italian designed constructed. They are to be set dem in the steel ribs in such a way t they can be repaired and even nged, if needful, during the flight.

e Napoli will be able to carry a dred passengers. With only four its engines working its speed is ected to be forty-three miles an r.

LOST LAURELS

[From Keystone View Company.]

Lucien Boussotrot, French aviator, who was former holder of the world's endurance record for continuous flying, states he will try to beat the record made on Dec. 30, 1921, by Lieut. Edward Stinson, U. S. A., and Lloyd Bertaud. The present record is 26 hours 19 minutes 35 seconds, and it was in this flight that the title was wrested from the French aviator. April or May is the time set for the new flight.

AVIATION QUERIES

Questions regarding aviation will be answered in this column of The Sunday Tribune. If a lengthy or personal answer is desired, send a stamped addressed envelope. Address Aviation Editor, The Chicago Tribune.

Air Mail Service.

"Where shall I make application to become an air mail pilot? V. C."

Write to the civil service commission, D. C.

Boat.

"What is a hydroplane? K. H. G."

A hydroplane is a boat that moves across the surface of the water.

Solo.

"What is meant when a flyer says he made his first solo flight. J. K. M."

To solo means to fly alone.

Jacobi.

"What is the distance between Jersey City, N. J., and Chicago by air line, and how long did it take THE TRIBUNE aviator to complete the journey last summer? B. F."

The distance is 756 miles air line. Ross Jacobi left Jersey City at 4:45 p. m. and landed in Chicago at 1 a. m. He made two stops, one of an hour and another of twenty minutes. The long stop was caused by a loose fitting in the oil tank of his Oriole, an oversight by a mechanic.

Schroeder.

"Will you please give me R. W. Schroeder's address? H. A. A."

R. W. Schroeder, Underwriters' Laboratories, 207 E. Ohio street, Chicago.

Flying Auto.

A flying automobile is the latest development in the French aero world. A successful demonstration of an ordinary automobile with folding wings, two engines, one of ten horsepower for land going and the other of 300 horsepower for air travel, was held at Buc, Seine-et-Oise. The machine performed all the usual feats of an airplane and also of an automobile.

Farm Company.

The Pioneer Aero company has been formed in Topeka, Kas., to act as local distributor for the new Longren airplanes. The officers of the company are: Dr. F. C. Stewart, president; S. K. Beach, vice president; Clayton P. Trivett, secretary treasurer, and E. B. Lopp, pilot and sales manager.

British Hope to Discover a Fireproof Tank

Twenty-seven Firms Submit "Safe" Reservoirs.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LONDON.—Exhaustive researches are now in progress at the Royal Aircraft establishment, Farnsborough, Hants, to find a type of gasoline tank for airplanes which will do away with, or minimize, the danger of explosion and fire in the event of a plane crash.

Aircraft experts state that 20 per cent of the fatalities that occur when airplanes crash result from explosion of the gasoline tanks and the resultant fire, in which the pilot, caught in the tangled wreckage, is often burned alive.

Throughout the war experts attempted to develop a tank which could stand the shock of a crash. No suitable tank could be found, however. One device was produced whereby, when a pilot saw that a crash was inevitable, he could pull a trip detaching the gasoline tank, which fell to the ground free of the machine. Many planes were constructed with this feature, but it did not prove entirely satisfactory.

The British government has now offered prizes to private companies, which are today entered in a series of competitive tests at Farnsborough. Twenty-seven firms have made entries of their particular type of gasoline tank, among them the Waldo A. Ross company of Washington, D. C., an American firm.

Actual crash conditions are simulated in the tests. The gasoline tanks are mounted on a wooden chassis, together with a heavy concrete block, cast to resemble an airplane engine. This gear is then hoisted to the top of a large dirigible shed and placed on an inclined trolley track, which runs to the grounu at a sharp angle.

When a trip is released the tank and concrete engine is plunged downward, attaining a velocity of eighty-two miles per hour at the moment that they crash into the ground at the base.

This severe shock would crush the ordinary steel gasoline tank, and has severely battered many of the tanks entered to date. Some of these tanks, made of steel on the outside, are protected by an inner rubber skin, however, and even though the steel casing is fractured, the rubber expands and keeps the gasoline from escaping.

The tanks are also to be tested for machine gun fire, incendiary bullets being fired into them. It is hoped that a tank may be developed which will even be bulletproof.

Winter Flying.

E. B. Heath, president of the airplane company bearing his name, which is located at 2856 Broadway, asserts that it is just as easy to teach students to fly in the winter as in the summer, provided you have the proper motor and there isn't too much snow.

"We are using an old Standard with a Curtiss Oxx motor at our field," said Mr. Heath. The field is located at Irving Park boulevard and Harlem avenue. "We have a special 'stove' on the motor and have no trouble starting on cold mornings. Roy E. Duthler, our pilot, now has seven students, and they are learning to fly despite the cold weather."

FARM AND GARDEN

WHAT'S WRONG WITH FARMING TOLD BY FARMERS

By Frank Ridgway.

This is the third of a series of letters written by farmers and printed in the "Farm and Garden" department of The Tribune, pointing out "what's wrong with farming?" Not all farmers are willing to admit that there is anything particularly wrong with farming. Some of the farmers try to sift out "what's wrong with farmers?"

The idea seems to be growing among farmers that their troubles are closely related to the epidemic that has struck industry, that prosperity of the one depends more or less upon the prosperity of the other, and the best thing to do is to work hard and make the best of it.

Farmers have learned that much of their trouble can be overcome by organizing and working out their problems co-operatively, but they have also found out that if they are to succeed they must continue to grow grain and hay and hogs and cattle as they did before organizations were ever thought of. Many are regarding organization and legislation as aids in removing obstacles and not remedies that will cure all of the farmers' difficulties.

In his letter printed below Ralph Helm of Three Rivers, Mich., says it is foolish for farmers to imagine that the work of an agricultural bloc in congress, a "dirt farmer" on the federal reserve board or juggling of tariff will bring about a magical elimination of agricultural ills.

BLAMES INFLATED PRICES.

"What's wrong with farming?" Nothing.

A few problems, of course, need solving, but comparatively this answer holds good.

What, then, is wrong with the farmers? The same thing that is wrong with men in every other line of business.

RALPH L. HELM.

In the first place, agricultural prosperity is not a thing apart from the prosperity of the country as a whole or any other particular line, as manufacturing or commerce. The condition of any one directly affects that of all others.

The trouble, therefore, is the inability or unwillingness of all business men, meaning also farmers, to recognize the fact that "history repeats itself" and profit thereby. Every schoolboy who has been shaken out of his shoes for pulling the hair of the girl in front of him when he should have been learning the causes of the panics of '37, '73, and '93 should have learned at least, by the time he is old enough to head a business, that every period of overinflation and speculation is followed by the opposite extreme.

Expansion of business at inflated prices in order to grab the lion's share of increased trade is a quite frequent and highly probable road to bankruptcy. In the same manner the purchase of land at $300 and $400 per acre on borrowed money because wheat happened to be $3 a bushel is just as certain a road to ruin when the inevitable depression comes before the return of normal conditions.

The lamentable feature accompanying these "silk shirt orgies" is that all men who have learned this lesson and are content to sit tight and continue business at the old stand, although not so completely swamped, must suffer along with those who have wrought the havoc.

To be sure, there are some farm problems which sorely need attention, such as efficient and economical marketing, but to imagine the work of an agricultural bloc in congress, a "dirt farmer" on the federal reserve board, or juggling the tariff will bring about a magical elimination of our ills is just as foolish as to imagine that such procedure will change human nature, which is the real cause of an economic condition of such magnitude as this which confronts us at present.

RALPH L. HELM,
A dirt farmer and one of the sufferers.
(Graduate of Iowa State college, 1912.)
Three Rivers, Mich.

PAYS THE FREIGHT.

I have farmed more than fifty years, and I can truthfully say that farm problems are many—there are many uncertainties. The no price problem cuts the deepest and is the greatest stumbling block the producers have to contend with all over the country. And every year there comes a lull when there is no market price on grain, because the farmers must wait till the bunch in Chicago or some other place figure out a safe price on the farmers' produce.

On the other hand, the manufacturer and all other industries mark the price on their goods before they are put on the market. Now, then, if it is fair for these people to put a fixed price on their products it ought to be just as fair for the farmer to put or have a fixed price on all his products; this price to be a price that shall be just as fair to the consumer as to the producer.

And the price at the local market ought to be the same—the man in Dakota should get just as much for his produce as the man in Maryland, grade and quality considered. As it is now, freight comes out of most all we have to sell, and if we buy a load of something we also pay the freight—see.

Right Scale of Prices.

I'll just mention prices on a few farm products that I believe can be produced on the following figures, and I should be glad to farm on these prices, but of course the price would have to be figured out on the proper basis:

Wheat—2 cents per pound.
Rye—1½ cents per pound.
Barley—1½ cents per pound.
Speltz, 1½ cents per pound.
Corn—1¼ cents per pound.
Oats—1¼ cents per pound.
Navy beans—3 cents per pound.
Potatoes—1¼ cents per pound.
Hay—$10 to $12 per ton.
Hogs and cattle—5 to 6 cents a pound.

These are not get rich quick prices, but I think would help farm land prices and also brace up the farmer. More people would want farms and the consumer should not have to pay the prohibitive price for his eats.

P. C. L. RIEGEL,
Rochester, Minn.

DEALERS WIN OUT.

"What's wrong with farming?"

Just at the present time low prices received for grain and live stock produced by the farmer, coupled with high prices of groceries, agricultural implements, clothing, and the hundred and one other things the farmer needs and uses would about cover everything that's wrong with farming.

Any business man, lawyer, clerk, school teacher, county, state, or national official, or any one else empolyed in or out of the city at a salary of $2,000 a year or more, who thinks a farmer who produces wheat at 85 cents to $1 a bushel, oats at 30 cents, corn at 35 to 40 cents, hides at 3 cents, butter at 25 cents, wool at 20 cents, and so on down the line, is in clover, had better exchange places with that horny handed tiller of the soil.

Taxes Too High.

I don't think any one would have to look long to find a farmer who would exchange with them most gladly. I have heard fools make the remark that the farmer could make money raising potatoes at 25 cents a bushel. I have lived on a farm all my life, and it's worth 25 cents a bushel to dig and bury or put them in the cellar, let alone raise them.

The trouble with farming is the city vultures jump on the farmer with both feet when he has anything to sell or buy, setting the price both ways. This could be prevented to a certain extent by the organizing of coöperative buying and selling organizations among the farmers.

Another thing which is a great burden to the farmer at present is high taxes. Taxes are four times what they should be in proportion to the prices received for farm products.

Trim Wholesale Prices.

The remedy: Raise the prices paid the farmer for his products about three times what they are now, or trim wholesale and retail prices down so they will be on an equal basis with farm produce prices. The manufacturer and retail dealers make from 10 to 100 per cent profit on every business transaction. Why should they ask the farmer to work for his health?

Let the farmer set his own prices the same as the manufactnrers and retailers, and when they raise their prices let the farmer raise the price on his products at the same time.

GLENN W. DUNNING,
South Bend, Ind., General Delivery.

Notes for the Dairyman.

Whether you are milking one cow or a whole herd you will be interested in two new circulars that have just been issued by the University of Illinois. They are both short and tell a lot at a glance. One of them—circular No. 249—is written by H. A. Harding, and describes methods of measuring the volume of cream in milk. "The Heavy Feeding of Milk Cows Is Now Profitable" is the title of circular No. 250 written by H. A. Ross.

Five dollars will be paid by The Tribune for every farmer's letter printed in the "Farm and Garden" department, pointing out "what's wrong with farming."

Every farmer has his own ideas about what his greatest troubles are and how the ills of agriculture may be corrected. Public opinion will help remedy the present condition in the farming field if farmers will aid in familiarizing the people with their worries.

Send in your opinion about the farmer's greatest problems today, whether it is taxes, corn acreage reduction, grain prices, finances, renter and landowner's difficulties, agricultural organizations, co-operative buying and selling associations, or any other factors aiding or stumbling blocks preventing the restoration of the farmer's buying power.

The Tribune would like to have your photograph along with your letter. Address the Agricultural Editor, Chicago Tribune.

Buick

First Place at the Show for the Fourth Consecutive Year

For the fourth consecutive year Buick has been awarded first choice of space at the National Automobile Shows. This honor is conferred each year by the automobile manufacturers who are members of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, upon the member having done the greatest volume of business during the previous year. The figures on which this 1922 award was made proved Buick to be the largest builder of six-cylinder cars in the world.

That Buick has retained this position year after year reflects convincingly the high regard in which Buick is held by the American public. Such regard is a logical outgrowth of Buick policy which has been rigidly maintained for twenty years—that every car which leaves the Buick factory must first, last and all the time give that thoroughly dependable and trustworthy service which will make every Buick owner a Buick enthusiast.

An international authority says "There is published in Philadelphia a Newspaper which I consider the 'Manchester Guardian' of America—the 'PUBLIC LEDGER'"

The Philadelphia Public Ledger is noted for its Complete and Superior News Service, and through its leased wires and cable service, is distributing daily the news of the world to more than three hundred newspapers in the United States and Canada.

Do you know that in a few years the circulation of the Philadelphia Public Ledger has grown from 45,000 to more than a quarter million?

To the Editor of the Public Ledger:

Sir—In the January Atlantic Monthly a plea is made for a representative American newspaper in these words:

A newspaper well edited, and appealing to the best and not the worst that is in us—a Springfield Republican on a larger scale, and published in a metropolitan center; a Manchester Guardian occupying in America the place which that newspaper fills in England—would not lack adequate support.

I could not help recalling, while in Europe last summer, hearing one of the most representative men of one of the great European capitals say: "There is published in Philadelphia a newspaper which I consider the Manchester Guardian of America—the PUBLIC LEDGER." And few men, by reason of his position, knew the newspapers of the world as did this man.

I commend this voluntary statement to the Atlantic writer.

CHANDLER SIX

The Car That Won an Instant Triumph

NEVER was the supremacy of an automobile so quickly recognized. Chicago acclaimed it at the show yesterday. Other cities are making the verdict nation-wide. It is the magnet of booth and salesroom, the theme of hundreds of congratulatory telegrams.

The new Chandler glorifies economy. It presents the ultimate of automobile construction at new standards of low cost. The motorist of moderate means may now drive a car a millionaire might be proud to own.

All that a car should have—rugged construction, surging power, lulling comfort, art of lines, details of smartness and richness of finish are here, because this is a NEW car, not a car slightly revised and adorned, but new in body and chassis, an achievement possible only to a company of ample resources and highly developed manufacturing skill.

This Chandler will be stylish and efficient three years from now, though priced on a basis of 1913. It expresses not only Chandler skill, but is an actual advance for the entire industry.

MEN— WOMEN—

FREE COURSE SALESMANSHIP.

The ninth of a series of lectures on the elements of salesmanship will be delivered Monday night, Jan. 30, at 7:15. This lecture will deal with that part of a sale which is known as

"THE PRESENTATION."

Everybody is welcome, including men from other sales organizations, inexperienced men and women, and all those who are directly or indirectly interested in general salesmanship. While these lectures are primarily for the purpose of training our own men, we have had a large outside attendance of many people who derived inspiration and assimilated new ideas from these peppy hour talks.

Telephone or call in person to register for the Monday night meeting. Room 1821 Conway Bldg. Telephone Main 5121.

MEN. WOMEN.

FREE COURSE OF INSTRUCTION IN SALESMANSHIP.

I will instruct a number of select men and women, between 21 and 40, to become high class sales people. This instruction is absolutely free and will require but 2 evenings a week covering a term of 4 weeks. Instruction free and a position worth $6,000 yearly to those who qualify is a rare opportunity. Class Monday, Jan. 30th, at 6:45 p. m. For further information and enrollment see MR. SADLER, before class at Room 246 Conway Bldg., 111 W. Washington-st.

OFFICE MEN.

If you work in an office, a bank, or any other place with a lot of men who have the taste and discrimination to know a good pipe when they smoke it you can make a lot of money by casually introducing the only biteless, "gooless" pipe ever invented; even the cigar and cigaret smokers will want this pipe when you show it; you can make a good income without any canvassing. Write today if you work in an office or bank.

MILEAGE GUARANTEE ABOLISHED BY RUBBER MANUFACTURERS.

Sweeping Action Ends Drain on Tire Industry.

Millions of tires have been replaced by the tire manufacturers every year on the adjustment system. These millions of tires must now be turned over to TIRE REPAIR SHOPS and every one entering this interesting and profitable business NOW will reap a golden harvest.

TIRE REPAIRING will boom—car owners will now be forced to guard every last mile in their tires, and SPOT PATCHING, SECTIONAL WORK, and RETREADING will take the place of factory adjustments.

We teach you this business ABSOLUTELY FREE OF CHARGE—pay as you learn—find you a good location and furnish you with all necessary equipment.

School is open both DAY and EVENING.

Take our "tip" and investigate this business at once—you will never regret it. Call or write

BUSINESS PROPERTY—NORTH.

FOR SALE—I AM COMPELLED TO SACRIfice my attractive business property, corner on Central-st. car line, Evanston. This beautiful building covers 90 ft. of frontage, two story and basement, with 4 stores and 4 modern flats, with additional ground in rear which should be improved. The building would cost about $40,000 to duplicate today and the ground is worth about $12,000. The rental will run over $5,000 in the spring. The corner store at $50, if it were not under lease, I could rent it for $100 per month. The property is very well located in one of the most rapid developing high class sections of Evanston, and I sincerely believe that in five years the property will bring $50,000. I am offering this valuable property at the extremely low price of $35,000; $17,000 first mortgage, five years straight to run. If necessary will take back second mortgage up to $7,000. Will furnish statement of leases and expenses if interested. Address T O 408, Tribune.

FOR SALE—OWN YOUR HOME.
NEW BRICK BUNGALOWS
AND 2 FLATS.
Why pay out rent money year after year, which will never bring you any returns, when you can have a home of your own and pay $50 to $60 per month [incl. int.]? We will build to your order, for Spring or Fall occupancy, on our lots only, beautiful homes in a restricted neighborhood, opp. Marquette Park. A home that will include all the advantages that you desire, such as a large lot where the children will have freedom to play, attractive lawns and shrubbery. The interior will be finished to suit your tastes; likewise the size and number of rooms, incl. sun parlor if desired. You will have neighbors who are neighborly. Also very near to churches, schools, theaters, and shopping district; close to 63d-st. car line. Plans, specifications, and expert designing free. $150-$200 payment down and a small payment each month will soon give you possession of one of these lots. After lot is paid for, a 10% payment will enable you to own a home. Decide today and stop paying rent. Information gladly given, which places you under no obligations. Act now. VACANT—NORTH SIDE.

North Shore Homesites.
Our Ridge View subdivision, "the beauty spot of the North Shore," is the most talked of property today, bordering on Ridge-blvd., in a beautiful built-up section, only 2 blks. from Chicago surface line transportation and within easy reach of N. W. "L" station; 1 fare to loop.

That future home of yours should be located in a section that is protected against the undesirable class of building development and in a location where a continuous increase in ground value is taking place. We have protected our property by building restrictions that are bound to insure the right kind of development.

There will always be a big demand for this class of property. Beautiful wooded lots, 35x155, with sewer, water, and cement sidewalks incl. Let us show you this property and convince you.

Drive out by way of Ridge-blvd. to 1 blk. north of Howard-st., or take Western-av. car north to our office at Howard.

HOMESEEKERS, INVESTORS, BUILDERS.

I have subdivided the finest and most desirably located tract in the heart of the most exclusive residential section of beautiful and will immediately offer to those who are looking for a choice, highly restricted home site or investment, large lots, 60x160 ft., at unusually low prices of $395 to $600, and will sell on very easy terms to responsible parties. There is no other property in Park Ridge for sale at anywhere near these prices and adjoining property is now being offered at nearly three times my prices. Each lot has a 40 ft. building line, $4,000 restriction and is one of the very few places around Chicago where you are absolutely protected in the future against any undesirable element.

To those who are not familiar with Park Ridge let me say that it is a completed and restricted community of artistic homes and fine improvements situated on the very edge of Chicago, in the direct path of the city's greatest growth. It is reached by 60 trains daily on the Chicago & Northwestern, only 29 minutes from the loop, and a monthly commutation fare of less than 12c.

In convenience, beauty, healthfulness, social life and everything that makes a home location attractive, this property presents a combination of city and country advantages that cannot be surpassed.

To those who are interested in building I have a building and financing plan that is unsurpassed. I can afford to build at an extremely small profit and have over 100 choice plans to show you.

You could want no better, more attractive, more convenient location for a real home and by buying from the owner you could hardly find a more desirable investment.

The time to buy to the best advantage is now. Write today for map and full particulars. Address S N 273, Tribune.

Illinois.

A REAL FARM for Sale

This farm is located on the Beach Road in Lake County, approximately six miles northwest of Waukegan, Illinois. The distance from Chicago is about 40 miles.

There are 283 acres. Approximately 200 acres are under cultivation. There are 40 acres in alfalfa and timothy, with 40 acres in young timber.

SOIL.

The soil is black loam, with a heavy clay sub. The land is well drained, fenced, and cross-fenced.

IMPROVEMENTS.

There is a very complete set of modern farm buildings, comprising a 15 room house for owner and hired help, furnace heat, bath, running hot and cold water; one 165 ft. combination horse and cattle barn with two large cement silos, hog house, sheep barn, one 150 ft. open implement and tool shed, four car garage, large hay or straw barn, two large corn cribs, two story granary, engine house, oil house, workshop, chicken houses, several open feed and shelter sheds, and three good wells.

ORCHARD.

A fine orchard, including apple, pear, peach, and cherry trees, surround the main dwelling.

TRANSPORTATION.

The transportation facilities are ideal. The Chicago and Northwestern Railway runs hourly trains between Chicago and Waukegan. The Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee Electric R. R. runs semi-hourly trains. The electric railroad maintains a local passenger station, known as "BEACH STATION," within one-third mile of the farm gate. The automobile motoring route from Chicago is either over SHERIDAN ROAD, GREEN BAY ROAD, or the newly constructed TELEGRAPH OR MILITARY ROAD into Waukegan, thence north on Sheridan Road to the intersection of Beach Road, thence due west to end of Beach Road. The farm buildings are on the northeast corner.

CHANDLER TOURING CAR, 1920. Here is a standard popular make car of 7 passenger, equipped with a light 6 cylinder economical motor. Is coming into our hands in exceptionally fine condition. Has an excellent set of cord tires, 2 extras, bumper, seat covers, etc. If you are looking for a Chandler bargain in a touring car, this car will surely please you. Special for this sale, $750.

HAYNES, MODEL 47, 1921 BROUGHAM. This is a small 4 passenger inclosed sedan. We obtained this from the original purchaser and we believe the car to be in equally good condition mechanically as a new car. The upholstery, paint, and tires are in exceptionally fine shape. Has 5 Rudge-Whitworth wire wheels, one extra tire, bumper, clock. This car can be had at a great saving. Special for this sale, $1,350.

BUICK 1922 ROADSTER. This is a new Model 22-34 light 4 cylinder car that costs $1,050 delivered here in Chicago. Customer just accepted delivery. Looks just like a new automobile and has only been run a few miles. If you are looking for a Buick bargain of the latest model at a great discount do not fail to see this car. Special for this sale, $750.

CADILLAC 8, TYPE 57, TOWN LIMOUSINE. This particular car has a special Kimball custom made body on it. The body alone would cost more than we are asking for the entire car. This car has been through our mechanical department and will carry our standard guaranty. Has an excellent set of cord tires, one extra, bumper, clock, trunk. If you are looking for a modern up-to-date Cadillac limousine at a ridiculously low price, this car will surely please you. Special for this sale, $1,650.

CADILLAC 8, TYPE 59, VICTORIA COUPE. This is one of the popular late series in a roomy 4 passenger coupe and is being offered at way below the market price. This car shows practically no wear, has an excellent set of cord tires that are almost like new, bumper, clock, etc. Mechanically guaranteed by this company. We are making a special price on this car—way below what we have ever offered a similar automobile for. In order to avail yourself of this bargain come down here for a demonstration immediately; you will probably never have another opportunity of buying such a nearly new Cadillac coupe at this price of $2,750.

CADILLAC 8, TYPE 59, TOURING CAR. This car is in almost new car condition and is of the late series. We have made an inspection of this car mechanically and it will carry our standard guaranty. Has an excellent set of cord tires, one extra, bumper, clock, etc. If you are looking for a bargain in a slightly used Cadillac car of the late series this will surely please you. Special for this sale $2,250.

CADILLAC 8, TYPE 59, PHAETON. Painted dark Cadillac blue. We have made an examination of this car mechanically and it will carry our standard warranty. Original finish on this car shows practically no wear. This is your opportunity to obtain a Cadillac sport model of a late series at a bargain price. Has an excellent set of cord tires, one extra, bumper, squeegee, etc. Special for this sale, $2,250.

CADILLAC 8, TYPE 57 VICTORIA COUPE. This is a roomy 4 passenger coupe of practically the same type of body as we are delivering new today. This car is coming into our hands from the original purchaser in most remarkable condition. Mechanically it will carry our standard warranty. Has an excellent set of cord tires, one extra bumper, clock, etc. Painted a special color of dark Cadillac blue. If you are looking for a Cadillac coupe that cannot be classed as the ordinary used car this car will surely please you. Special for this sale, $1,500.

CADILLAC 8, TYPE 51, LIMOUSINE. A most desirable car for business or private use. Is coming into our hands from the original purchaser, who has kept it in good shape. The body on this car is a custom made body that would cost many times more than the entire car. Mechanically it is in good shape. Has an excellent set of cord tires, one extra, bumper, etc. No doubt this is the best bargain offered by any one in a limousine at a low price. Special for this sale, $500.

OUR SALESROOM WILL BE OPEN EVENINGS FOR THE INSPECTION OF USED CARS AS WELL AS NEW DURING AUTOMOBILE SHOW WEEK.

FORD—DODGE BARGAINS

CASH OR TERMS.

We specialize in slightly used and renewed FORD and DODGE CARS. Our large, well equipped service station, our tremendous buying power, and our quantity sales enable us to sell you a Ford or Dodge car in absolutely perfect condition, guarantee it as such, at a lower price than any other person or firm in this city.

Below we list at low prices and easy terms a few of our many bargains. We will accept any good FORD or DODGE in trade.

FORD SEDAN, 1921. This car is in the very best of condition. Is equipped with electric starter, dem. rims, extra tire, tube, and rim, spotlight, shock absorbers, dashlight, and large Decker steering wheel with lock. Special bargain at $465. $179.40 cash, $36 a mo.

DODGE SEDAN, 1920. This is one of those good Dodge cars, having had the very best of care, coming into our hands from the original owner, who drove it very carefully only 7,275 miles. It is the desirable FOUR DOOR style, with the deep velour upholstering. Equipped with bumper, snubbers, shock absorbers, and extra tire. Special bargain at $965: $330 cash, $78 a month.

FORD COUPE, 1920, with electric starter, dem. rims, approved lock, spotlight, etc., and carries our regular guarantee at the low price of $375; $145 cash, $29 a month.

DODGE COUPE, 1919. In remarkably fine condition; shows very careful handling. Practically as good as new. Has bumper, the regulation cream color wire wheels, one extra with extra tire and tube, and the necessary gear shift lock. Special bargain at $685: $265 cash, $52 a month.

FORD TOURING, 1921. This dandy little Ford car has one of the smoothest running motors "Henry" ever built. The general condition of the tires, body, etc., is A1. Has electric starter, extra tire and carrier, tool box, lock, spotlight, stop light, etc.; bargain for fair, $265; $110.60 cash, $22 a mo.

DODGE TOURING, 1919. A very wonderful little car, in like-new condition. Has been driven only 9,602 miles by original owner, from whom we purchased it. Our mechanics' report after having this car out on "test" states that same is perfect in every respect and needs absolutely no repairs and we will back this up with our written guarantee. Only $585: $225 cash, $45 a month.

FORD ROADSTER, 1920. This dandy little Ford runabout is in perfect condition. Some salesman or person desiring a two pass. car will get a real bargain in this. Has starter, approved lock, etc. Only $245; $104.20 cash, $18 a mo.

MARMON

THE SAFEST PLACE TO BUY A USED CAR.

MARMON 34, 4 pass., 4 door, 1921. Very seldom do we take in a car that has been used so little. This is our latest series. Is painted a beautiful peacock blue, upholstery, top, paint and tires show practically no wear. Car is equipped with bumper, motometer, spotlight, wind wings, rear view mirror, 5 wire wheels, extra tire and tire cover. A real opportunity to get one of those wonderful fast and comfortable cars. Guaranteed the same as a new car. Reduced from $3,500 to $2,900.

MARMON 34, 7 pass. touring, 1922 model. Car has just been painted a beautiful French wine color, has been driven very little in demonstrating service. One of the most beautiful color schemes we have yet turned out. Carries same guarantee and service as new car. Price $3,250.

MARMON 34, special speedster, 1921. Has just been painted a beautiful dustproof gray. Will bear most rigid mechanical inspection. Is without question the fastest stock car in the world. Ideal for cross country touring where time is a factor. It is also a wonderful city car. $3,000.

MARMON 34, 4 pass. coupe, 1920 model. Car has been rebuilt, including latest improvements. Repainted Marmon standard blue black fenders. Has a set of excellent cord tires. Specially priced at $3,000.

MARMON 34, 7 pass. touring, 1918. This car has been put in excellent running condition, is painted Brewster green, equipped with good tires, and owing to our stabilized design is right up to date in appearance. Why not ride in a high grade used car that has the appearance of new? Price during this week $1,600.

PAIGE, 1920, 7 pass. touring. This car is in very good mechanical condition, newly painted Marmon standard blue and is way above the average in appearance and condition. Priced very low at $900.

HUPMOBILE, coupe, 1921 model. This car only required a color varnish. Has been driven very little and is almost new in every respect. Reduced to $1,500.

CADILLACS

Almost any Cadillac is a good car to buy, but one bought here is especially good because we sell used Cadillacs exclusively and select only the best of those offered us. Every car is completely rebuilt and guaranteed like new.

Type 59 Suburban Sedan, 1920. This car has very low mileage, has had unusual care, has had all worn parts replaced, and has been refinished dark Cadillac Blue; five fine cord tires. Can hardly be told from new.

Type 59 Suburban Sedan 1921. This car has had hardly any service and both looks and runs like new. It has the original finish without a scratch on it. Upholstery shows no wear. Tires are excellent. A rare chance to get an almost new car at a used car price.

Type 59 touring. Completely rebuilt and refinished Cadillac Blue. Fine cord tires. Perfect top and upholstery. A car you would call brand new if you rode in it or saw it standing on the street. Very low price.

Type 57 Touring. This is probably the best bargain we have ever had. The car has had little use, has been rebuilt with new parts wherever needed, refinished dark blue, and can be had for about one-third the new car price.

We have many other Cadillac cars of all models, all rebuilt and guaranteed. It will pay you to see us about any car you may think of buying. We can usually sell you a better car and at the same time save you money.

PACKARD

PACKARD TOWN CAR—This is a special car by "Derham," one of America's finest custom body builders. The car has been gone over inside and out, is equipped with new cord tires and carries the same guarantee and service that is extended to new Packard cars. To the man desiring an exclusive car we offer an exceptional bargain at $4,750.

PACKARD TWIN-SIX TOURING. We have overhauled this car both the motor and chassis, and it is in perfect operating condition. The body, top, and upholstery are perfect and the tires nearly new. This is certainly a wonderful value at $1,000.

PACKARD TWIN-SIX COUPE. This is a late model rebuilt and guaranteed chassis, with practically new custom built body seating 4 passengers. It cannot be distinguished from new in any detail. The body and wheels are painted dark green and the upholstery is imported cloth. The price is low at $4,500.

KISSEL KAR TOURING. This is the latest De Luxe Model and is practically a new car. Equipment includes 2 new spare tires with covers, touring trunks, 6 wire wheels, spotlight, front and rear bumpers, carriage side lamps, etc. Car, of course, is perfect as to paint, upholstery, and mechanical condition. Special at $2,000.

PAIGE TOURING, with winter inclosure. For the man who wants comfortable transportation this winter at a very minimum of cost, we can highly recommend this car. It is in fine mechanical condition; tires are first class and the entire car has been refinished in a very durable dark blue color. Price only $500.

FRANKLIN SEDAN, 1920 MODEL. This car came into our hands in exceptionally fine mechanical condition. We have given it a thorough oiling and greasing; repainted the body and chassis, and can assure the purchaser that the car will give him long and continuous satisfaction. Our price is certainly reasonable at $2,000.

It is not necessary to have had experience in this line, as it will be an entirely new merchandising proposition, directed by the factory, which will assure success. Capital required would be from $5,000 to $10,000 to cover your stock of merchandise and store equipment.

Write at once before your territory is closed. Address T O 187, Tribune.

BUSINESS PERSONALS.

For the First Time

DR. J. M. MARTON, PH. D.

will reveal his secret to teach ladies and gentlemen his wonderful discovery on the permanent removal of without the use of powder, pastes, solutions of burning liquids, or electric needles.

It is an unusual opportunity to any one to take up this study and get the benefit of the many years of hard work and experience through which Dr. Marton accomplished this method.

This new and profitable study will be operated under the name of "THE ART AND SCIENCE OF FACIAL CHEMISTRY," and all diplomas will bear the seal and signature of Dr. Jules M. Marton, Ph. D., Consulting Chemist, who is a post-graduate in two of the greatest universities of the world, Berne and Budapest.

Day and evening classes will be conducted and only a limited number of students can be accommodated. So we request that you make your reservations immediately. Very reasonable tuition fee.

Superfluous Hair Removed PERMANENTLY.
NO DEPILATORIES.
NO NEEDLES.
NO MARKS.
NO PAIN.

PHYSICIANS' INVESTIGATIONS SOLICITED.
MODERATE CHARGES.

The Marton method is positive, permanent, and painless—has no ill effects on the skin or health—and is particularly effective in stubborn cases where depilatories and electric needles have been used without satisfactory results.

To those who have lost faith and are discouraged, who have been imposed upon; to those who have tried everything, and to those who have tried nothing, I extend a proven treatment that will painlessly and permanently remove superfluous hair.

OAK PARK TO HAVE NEW HOTEL AND FLATS TO COST $1,400,000

Labor troubles don't seem to worry Oak Park at all. Yesterday $1,400,000 worth of buildings, involving three big projects, were announced. Architect Thomas R. Bishop designed a $300,000 forty-eight flat building and Harry J. Kusel began work a few days ago at the southeast corner of Washington boulevard and Kenilworth avenue. Mrs. Mary Hassett owns the 141x200 site and is building for an investment. There'll be three, four, five, and six room apartments.

Mr. Bishop has drawn plans and Mr. Kusel will build a seventy suite fireproof hotel at the southeast corner of Wisconsin and Pleasant, also in Oak Park. The suites will have one and two rooms. There'll also be nine stores. Adjoining this a seventy-five court apartment building, two and three rooms, will be erected. Work will start on these two in a week or ten days and they'll be ready in the fall. Their total cost will be $600,000. Mr. Kusel hopes to have the Kenilworth apartments ready by May 1. The hotel site was once talked of as the location for a big Lubliner & Trinz theater. It fronts 180 feet on Wisconsin and has a depth of 280 feet.

Architect A. L. Himelblau has drawn plans and work has started on a seventy-five flat building to front 340 feet on Pleasant street, 192 feet on Clinton avenue, and 192 feet on Home avenue. It will cost $500,000. There will be four and five room apartments, all with unusually large rooms, according to Mr. Himelblau. For instance, the living rooms in some will be 13x20 and the dining rooms 12x16. Date of occupancy is set for Sept. 1. The building is set twenty-five feet back from Pleasant street and will have a court 118 feet wide, facing Pleasant. The Walln Construction company is owner and builder, and the Richie Bond and Mortgage company is financing it.

Broker Says It's Wife Who Decides Where Home'll Be

"It's the wife who decides where the home'll be," says E. M. Chase of Wheaton, secretary of the Du Page county real estate board. "That's why we've moved over on State street, to be near the shoppers."

Mr. Chase, formerly with W. W. Stevens of Wheaton, has just formed the new realty firm of Chase, Steck & Co., and opened offices in the North American building. The other members are Andrew P. Steck, treasurer of the Du Page realty board, and a farm expert; E. W. Chase, son of E. M. Chase, and formerly with H. L. Harroll & Co.; Earl Rice, and George Allmart. The phone is Randolph 2778. The firm also has a Wheaton office. It will specialize in Du Page county farms and suburban homes.

Chicagoans Build Huge Kansas City Storage Plant

Work has just started in Kansas City, Mo., on a $1,500,000 eight story cold storage plant of two units, with a total capacity of 20,000,000 pounds, by the United States Cold Storage company of Chicago. J. A. Spoor, A. G. Leonard, R. Fitzgerald, and H. E. Poronto are the Chicagoans in this concern. S. Scott Joy, Chicago architect, designed the buildings. The United States Cold Storage company now has one of the largest single units in the world in the central manufacturing district, with a capacity of 63,000,000 pounds.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

BOSTROM TELLS PROGRESS MADE IN ZONING CITY

Predicts It'll Be in Force by Jan. 1, 1923.

BY AL CHASE.

Building Commissioner Charles Bostrom delivered several significant messages to various interests of Chicago at the Friday luncheon of the Chicago Real Estate board, when he discussed the past, present, and future of zoning in this town.

CHARLES BOSTROM. [Gibson-Sykes-Fowler photo.]

Most important perhaps was his calming message to certain hysterical manufacturing interests which have fought zoning blindly and without reason. To them he said: "We must care for business first; no hardship should be placed on it, for without business we'd have no Chicago."

A Message to the Owner.

To the property owner who is sitting nervously on the edge of his property, expecting any day to see his land values depressed by some building atrocity which zoning would prohibit, Mr. Bostrom said: "I believe the zoning ordinance will be completed and in force throughout the city by the first of next year."

And to the crêpe hanging property owner, who is sure the ordinance will be wrong, no matter who draws it up, Mr. Bostrom said: "It's reasonable to believe mistakes will be made and for that reason we'll have boards of appeal."

"Eight men have been working on surveys since Oct. 10, 1921, and 74 per cent of their work is done," said Mr. Bostrom. "They'll be finished in a month. About 57 per cent of the surveys already are recorded on maps and all the maps will be done in about two months.

Will Make Tentative Report.

"The zoning commission will then begin a study of the city as shown by the maps and make a tentative report on what they believe should be embodied in the ordinance. Public hearings will at once be started in various districts and the proposals of the commission will be discussed.

"We may get these public hearings six months from now and it'll probably take at least two months to hold them. Then we'll make any changes and correct any mistakes which the hearings have demonstrated as necessary and have an ordinance drawn up and submitted to the council. After it's once passed it'll require 80 per cent of the property owners of a neighborhood to have it changed.

Tells How Realtors Can Help.

"Realtors of Chicago can help the zoning commission by educating the people as to what is meant by zoning. Probably few people know that Chicago is in better shape, even without a zoning ordinance, than any other large American city, for we have fifty-seven classes of buildings which cannot be erected without necessary frontage consents."

Mr. Bostrom said four kinds of maps were being made, one showing height of buildings, one character of buildings, another showing area, and a fourth depreciation. A density of population map is contemplated. Chicago has never been so comprehensively mapped.

EXPERT TO TELL REALTORS ABOUT RENTING LAW

B. J. Boehm, chairman of the renting division of the Chicago Real Estate Board, announces that owing to the success of last year's lectures on "Landlord and Tenant," by Herman V. Silvertrust of the legal firm of Ziv, Loomis & Silvertrust, he has arranged for a new series of lectures for this year. The subjects to be covered are as follows:

HERMAN V. SILVERTRUST. [Laswell Photo.]

Correct forms of leases to be used and the proper way of preparing and signing them; preparation of notices to be served on tenants; assignments and subletting.

Correct method of serving notices, of cancelling leases during and at the expiration of the term; extensions and renewals, etc.

Rights, duties, and liabilities of landlord; the rights, duties, and liabilities of tenant.

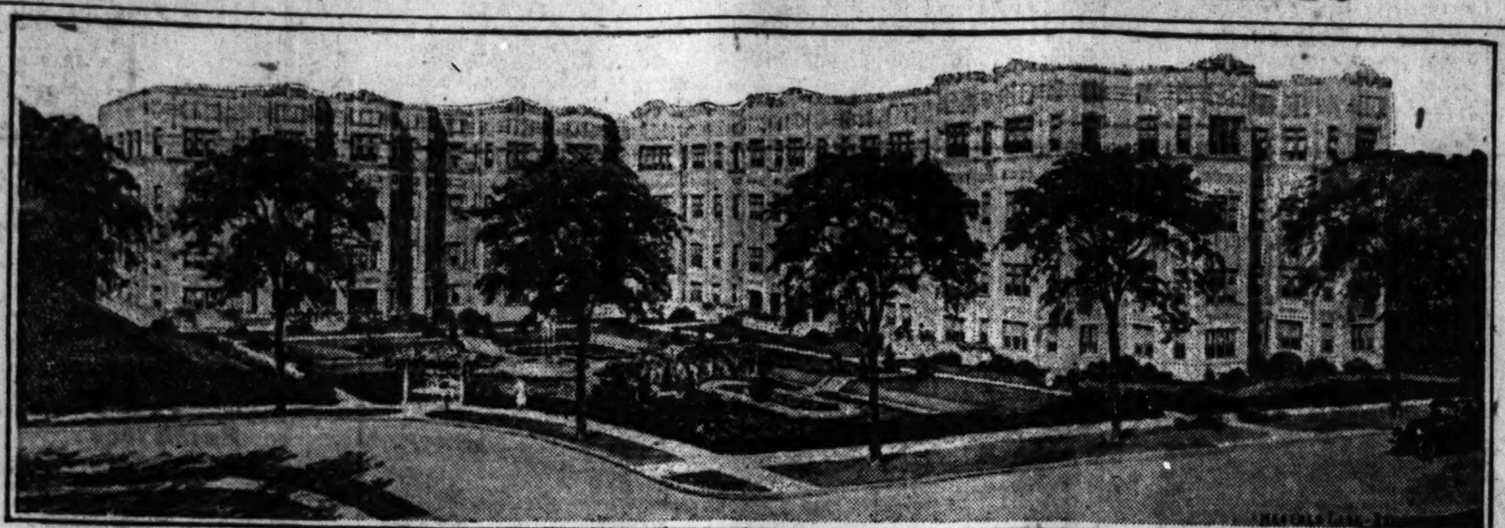
Steps and action necessary to be taken under the law in order to evict a tenant during the term for violation of convenant of lease, and after expiration of term.

The lectures will be two in number, one tomorrow evening and the other Monday, Feb. 6. They will begin at 7:30 sharp and end at 9:30, and will be given at the board rooms, 57 West Monroe street. There will be no charge and the course is open to both members and their employés.

Work Starts on Two More Uptown Flat Buildings

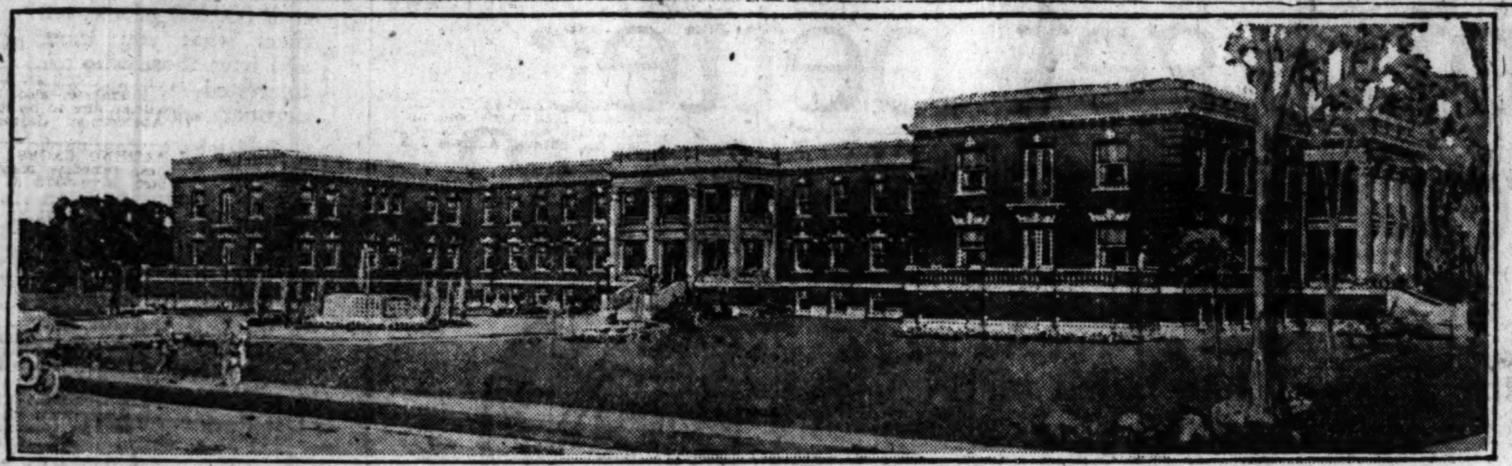
Architect Paul F. Olsen has drawn plans and work has started on two more large uptown apartment buildings. Ford U. Malmin is owner and builder of each. At 1358-66 Greenleaf avenue is a $175,000 structure to have forty-two flats of two, three and four rooms. The lot cost $40,000. A twelve apartment building is going up at 6360-62 Wayne avenue, to cost $50,000. It will have two room flats with kitchenettes. Both will be ready May 1.

PROPOSED UPTOWN CO-OP APARTMENTS



Above is a likeness of a proposed coöperative apartment building which will be erected at the northeast corner of Juneway terrace and North Ashland avenue if enough interest is shown in the project by prospective coöps. Architect Arthur C. Buckett designed the building. It will have thirty flats—fours, fives, sixes, and sevens—and will cost approximately $350,000. The Juneway Terrace Apartment Building corporation is to be formed with a capital of $400,000. According to D. E. Mulvey & Co., who are handling the proposition, the four room flats will sell for $9,000; the fives for $11,000, the sixes for $12,500, and the sevens for $15,000. There will be a $250,000 mortgage. The property is 247x178. The architect's plans call for a billiard and pool room for tenants, a dance hall, a reception hall, and a playroom for the kiddies, with a kitchenette and a maid to care for the youngsters when mothers are shopping.

EVANSTON'S NEW HOME FOR SWEDISH AGED



Construction will start this spring on a $200,000 addition to the Swedish Old People's home in Evanston from plans by Architect Andrew Sandegren. The present building is 40x132, erected in 1909. The completed structure will be 240 feet in length and 132 feet over all at each wing. It will accommodate 122 aged. The present capacity is only thirty-nine. The grounds are to be landscaped and there'll be a fountain, pergolas, etc. The organization owns practically the entire block bounded by Colfax and Grant streets and Pioneer and McDaniel avenues.

Realty Jottings

Well the mystery is solved and the several hundred realtors and friends who attended the "mystery banquet" of the Oak Park Real Estate board on Friday evening seemed to think it was worth solving. Instead of the old fashioned method of having a program with speakers, Cary M. Jones started things by beginning to auction off Oak Park's library. It was bid in by the Rev. James W. Vallentyne for several millions and then Mr. Vallentyne told what the library meant to Oak Park. Robert E. Cantwell bought the parks and playgrounds and then made a speech about them. F. A. Macnutt bought the schools, the Rev. Merle N. English the churches, Dr. A. M. Corwin the homes and the Rev. Carl D. Case "the spirit of Oak Park."

J. Frank Linsey of G. W. Drollinger & Sons reports his firm will place on the market on Feb. 1 for small flat buildings the north side of Adams street between 49th and 50th avenues. The property is 165x528. Edward C. Waller sold it to Louis Armbrecht for a reported $36,000.

There are twenty-seven buildings, all stores and flats, now building on West Madison between Cicero and Austin avenues. The Prairie State, a newly organized bank, is erecting a $75,000 building at the southwest corner of Madison and Austin.

What is claimed is a record rental for a short term is reported by E. F. Keebler & Co. at 131-33 South State, where Henry Preisler & Co. are paying George Friend $5,000 a month on a six months' lease for the 40x150 store. It is being used as a manufacturers' outlet shop. Mr. Friend will use the space himself on Sept. 1.

News of the Architects

The Illinois Society of Architects has appointed a committee of nine well known architects, all of whom are specially qualified to value any kind of a building, to form a board of valuators. Harry B. Wheelock is chairman and Ralph C. Harris is secretary. Other members are: Melville C. Chatten, Frank E. Davidson, Henry K. Holsman, Elmer C. Jensen, Emery S. Hall, Robert C. Ostergren, and Richard E. Schmidt.

"The Illinois Society of Architects realizes the great importance of having proper building values established as the basis of a loan or sale, and for that reason has appointed this committee of nine," said Mr. Wheelock. "Requests for valuation can be made to Secretary Harris."

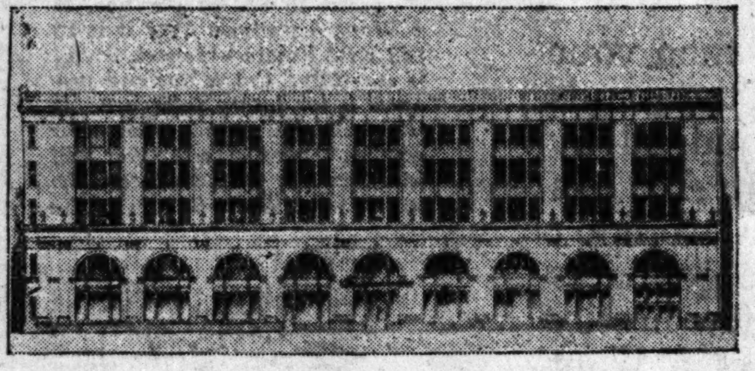
Architect Arthur C. Buckett has moved his offices from 190 North State street to the Ashland block. His new phone is Randolph 4039.

ELKS ENLARGE SITE OF NATIONAL WAR MEMORIAL

With the purchase yesterday by the Elks National Memorial headquarters committee of ninety-three feet in Lake View avenue, just north of the Lehmann homestead at the corner of Diversey, the B. P. O. E. now have a site fronting 393 feet on Lincoln park and 250 feet on Diversey for the new national war memorial. Joseph T. Fanning, secretary-treasurer of the Elks National Memorial headquarters commission and also executive director, who made the announcement, said the price was approximately $1,000 a front foot. The sellers were George F. Porter and Meta Dewes Burgweger. Frederick M. Bowes of the Bowes Realty company was broker.

To Replace Old Jefferson Town Hall



Here is a drawing of the proposed five story $400,000 bank, office, and department store building to replace the historic old building at the southeast corner of Milwaukee avenue and Irving Park boulevard, once the Jefferson town hall and now a police station. Michaelsen & Rognstad are the architects. The Milwaukee-Irving State bank will occupy the corner. Details of the project were told in this department on Jan. 13.

PLAN 'KNOW YOUR NEIGHBOR' DINNER FOR FIVE HUNDRED

E. S. TAYLOR. [Riel Photo.]

Five hundred future residents of Edgebrook Manor will be the guests of Lonnquist, Driver & Co. at a "know your neighbor" banquet Tuesday evening at 7:30 at the Morrison hotel. A community club is to be organized.

"We're proud of our buyers," said Axel Lonnquist, who hails from Detroit, and we want them all to know each other, so when they get settled in our new subdivision they'll be congenial and contented and not discontented strangers. This is going to be a sort of neighborhood affair, and there'll be no mention of sales or business."

Ransom E. Kennicott, chief forester of the forest preserve district, and E. S. Taylor, office manager of the Chicago plan commission, will be the speakers. Mr. Taylor's lecture will be illustrated.

Mr. Lonnquist announces that his firm has sold over $200,000 of realty in his 200 acre subdivision up in the northern tip of Chicago, on the St. Paul.

COMMISSION MEN PLAN $2,000,000 OFFICE BUILDING

As a result of a questionnaire sent out to the 475 butter, cheese and egg commission men who form the Chicago Mercantile exchange, formerly known as the butter and egg exchange, it has been decided to build the proposed $2,000,000 fourteen story Mercantile Exchange building near the loop.

The exchange has recently enlarged its quarters at the northeast corner of La Salle and Lake so it will have a floor space of 80x150 by May 1. It is now 40x150.

"The new building will be close to the loop, no matter how many firms go across the river to the north or west side," said Secretary S. Edward Davis. "We won't need to move until 1924, but we plan to have our new building ready by that time. Two-thirds of the office space will be taken by allied interests. We'll, of course, have a large trading floor in the new building, and we need one, for we handled $248,000,000 worth of business last year."

New Fire Risk Company to Have Boul Mich Offices

The American General Insurance company, a new Chicago fire company, will occupy all of the second floor and the south half of the third floor of the new Mather building at 324-26 North Michigan avenue. It will pay Alonzo C. Mather, lessor, a term rental of $49,800 for the five year term. The Real Estate Management corporation is renting agent of the property.

Miss Helen M. McCullough, manager of the board, announces some more data about the contemplated Florida trip. It'll cost $235 per person complete. The Havana trip will cost $40 extra. There'll be 125 in the party, which will travel in a special train. The party will leave Chicago Feb. 11 at 8:15 p. m. and arrive at Miami the morning of Feb. 14. Back in Chicago on Feb. 25. Miss McCullough will tell you all about it—phone Franklin 4592. The trip is, of course, under the auspices of the Cook County Real Estate board.

SAYS OWNERS SHOULD KNOW ABOUT ZONING

Expert Tells How Public Is Being Educated.

BY CHARLES M. NICHOLS.

[Chairman Chicago Real Estate Board Zoning Bureau.]

What interest should the property owners take in the zoning of Chicago?

The Chicago Real Estate Board has answered that question very definitely, at least in so far as its own membership extends, by establishing a zoning library and bureau of information in the board rooms, 57 West Monroe street, by employing an expert technical advisor on the subject; by arranging weekly talks on zoning at its regular luncheons, and by districting its entire membership of 6,000 into fifty zones of four square miles each.

Will Show What Zoning Means.

Through the bureau of information the membership will become acquainted with what zoning means to each of them and also as to the methods being pursued by the zoning commission in the districting and restricting of property.

The expert engineer, Jacob L. Crane Jr., who has been engaged for the last eight years in city planning and zoning of cities in the east, will be prepared to answer all inquiries on the subject and to give advice in specific cases. The districting of its membership into quadrangles of four miles each will enable the members to take up such problems as are peculiar to any particular district.

What Owners Should Realize.

Property owners should understand that, whether they like it or not, their real estate is about to be restricted in two or three different ways. They should realize that zoning, primarily, is a question of land and what is put on that land. Property is zoned in regard to the height and area of buildings and the uses to which they are put. Thus a proper zoning system becomes a matter of great interest not only to land owners but to engineers, architects, merchants, manufacturers, the small shop keeper and householder, and in fact to everyone who either owns a building or occupies one.

Chicago should be zoned better than any other city because it has the successes and errors which other municipalities have made before it. It is my observation from the splendid work already accomplished that Chicago bids fair to become the best zoned city in America and that in the shortest space of time. Zoning will help it to become a bigger, better, busier community, with greater safety, healthier conditions and to be a more comfortable place to live in.

WHY didn't I get better results from that WANTAD?

HAVE YOU ever used a Want Ad to secure buyers and failed to receive just the right sort of returns?

Even with a good market, a fair price, and a thoroughly acceptable offer, a Want Ad will sometimes fail to produce —because of insufficient information or inadequate size.

Your Want Ad is no more than your voice, reproduced hundreds of thousands of times, and your offer is judged by what you say in your Want Ad. In talking to a prospect, you wouldn't expect to convince him of the goodness of your offer by mumbling a few hastily chosen words—so why expect a Want Ad to do so?

What you put into a Want Ad determines to a large extent what you get out of it! Always, before writing a Want Ad, apply The Tribune slogan:

The more you tell the quicker you sell!

In AUTOS

HERE'S an example of the successful application of The Tribune's Want Ad slogan, proving how well it works out:

Mrs. N. ran the following Want Ad in an effort to sell an automobile:

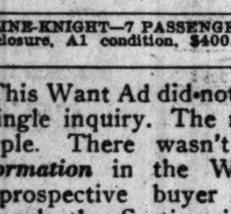
MOLINE-KNIGHT—7 PASSENGER. WINTER enclosure, A1 condition, $400. Graceland 000.

This Want Ad did not produce a single inquiry. The reason is simple. There wasn't enough information in the Want Ad. A prospective buyer hunting through the Section in search of a good offer couldn't get any definite idea of why Mrs. N.'s auto was a good buy. So there was no response!

Mrs. N. then rewrote the Want Ad to read as follows:

MOLINE-KNIGHT — 5 OR 7 PASSENGER. winter inclosure, heater wire wheels; other extras; A1 coach and mechanical condition. A real buy for quick sale. 000 Irving Park-blvd. Phone Graceland 000.

This Want Ad, because it gave the prospect something to think about, sold the auto immediately. Mrs. N. said she would always remember to apply The Tribune's Want Ad slogan whenever she had occasion to use a Want Ad.



ROOMS

ANOTHER example .... Mrs. B. was advertising for some one to rent her front room. She ran this Want Ad for a week without results:

TO RENT—LOVELY FRONT RM., ADJ. TO bath, suit. 2 young men; nr. 3 lines of trans. Buckingham 000.

Then Mrs. B. applied The Tribune's Want Ad slogan, "the more you tell, the quicker you sell." She checked up the important features of the room and put them into this Want Ad:

TO RENT — SPLENDIDLY FURNISHED large front room, adjacent to bath; very modern; excellent location; suitable 2 men; reasonable; nr. 3 lines of transp. and lake. Phone Buckingham 000.

On the second day after this Want Ad ran the room was rented. Showing how very important it is to tell just how your offer differs from similar ones!

A HOTEL Example

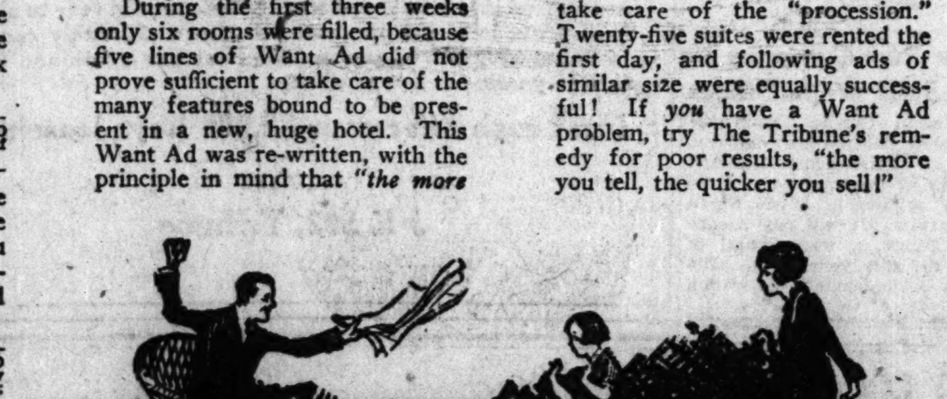
ONE of the jobs of The Tribune Want Ad Section is keeping hotels filled with guests. When, two or three months ago, the Jackson Park Plaza opened for business, five line Want Ads were run to rent 200 suites.

During the first three weeks only six rooms were filled, because five lines of Want Ad did not prove sufficient to take care of the many features bound to be present in a new, huge hotel. This Want Ad was re-written, with the principle in mind that "the more you tell, the quicker you sell." A half-column was substituted, in which were listed features—the location, service, economy, various attractions.

The day after the half-column Want Ad appeared the management of the hotel found it necessary to hire four extra clerks to take care of the "procession." Twenty-five suites were rented the first day, and following ads of similar size were equally successful! If you have a Want Ad problem, try The Tribune's remedy for poor results, "the more you tell, the quicker you sell!"



"Mother, come quick; here's just the place we've been looking for. It tells all about it in this Want Ad!"

Here's HELP

THE following outline will assist in the preparation of a Want Ad whose duty it is to sell Real Estate—Houses. Study it carefully. Cut it out and preserve it for future reference. It will help you phrase your offer so that a prospective buyer will know exactly what you are offering in your Want Ad.

By this time next Sunday—people will have rented rooms, apartments; sold houses, furniture, autos; secured better positions; hired clerks or cooks; done a multitude of things; all with Tribune Want Ads!

A unique little wonder-worker—the Want Ad—when you come to think of it. By what other means could you gather over 800,000 people, tell them what you want, and have those who are interested step out and negotiate with you?

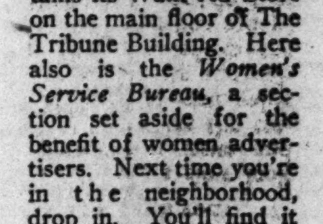
Just take a slow look through this issue and try to visualize the tremendous aggregate value of the markets and values represented in the Want Ad Section today! Want Ads can do that something for you—quickly, conveniently, at a minimum of expense. Use them regularly!

When you call Central 0100 and ask for an Adtaker—

you are well connected! Do you know that if you have a telephone your credit is good at The Tribune? We continually carry from forty to seventy thousand accounts entered in this way. Your Want Ad is taken over the phone and a bill is sent later. A quick and convenient method of inserting a Want Ad. Remember it!

Or you can visit the Want Ad Store—

FOR the convenience of those who occasionally find themselves in the region of the Loop near Madison and Dearborn, The Tribune maintains its Want Ad Store on the main floor of The Tribune Building. Here also is the Women's Service Bureau, a section set aside for the benefit of women advertisers. Next time you're in the neighborhood, drop in. You'll find it most comfortable.



"I see The Tribune's telephone number has been changed."

"Changed to what?"

"Central O-100."

"What was it before?"

"Central 100."

"Oh—100."

"No, NOT O-100! 100 is what it was before it was changed. It's O-100 NOW."

"Oh, O-100."

"No! Not O-O-100! O-100!"

"Oh,"—

Don't let US have any misunderstanding about it. When you want a Tribune Adtaker ask for
